FABULOUS COMMAND

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Long Beach and a good share of the Western Hemisphere live under peaceful conditions made possible in part by lean, athletic, 57-year-old three-star General Archie J. Old Jr., and the deterrent force poised by the Fifteenth Air Force he commands from nearby March Air Force Base. This article, and one next Sunday on "Combat Control Center" will summarize the potent force on the economic life of the Pacific Coast and the freedom of the nation played by General Old and the Fifteenth Air Force.)

By EVERETT W. HOSKING
I, P-T Sunday Editor

The general has stars in his eyes as well as on his shoulders—

He's got IBM for a brain, ITT for a voice, and, at his fingertips he has the safety of a good-sized portion of the free world.

Under his thumb, he has a $6-billion empire that, from 20 or more major air bases, exerts a tremendous effect on the economic life of the Pacific Coast.

The general is Lt. Gen. Archie J. Old Jr., Commander, Fifteenth Air Force, with headquarters at nearby March Air Force Base.

Even without the mechanized aids of a computerized era, Gen. Old would be a pretty fabulous person.

And that is the reason for the stars in his eyes. The forceful, three-star general is rated a better than even chance to add a fourth star to his uniform in the not too distant future.

The odds are based on his experience, demonstrated ability and the fact that he has held one of the Air Force's top commands for such a long period—nearly nine years.

Some astute military observers feel that he is the logical man to step into command of the globe-circling Strategic Air Command when its present commander, Gen. Thomas S. Power, retires in November.

As Commander, Fifteenth Air Force, Gen. Old combines the understanding of a family counselor with the canny skill of a Wall Street broker in managing a $6-billion organization that includes a substantial portion of the force that keeps the free world free.

* * * *

GEN. OLD was responsible for the development of SAC's first mixed force of missiles and bombers into a potent fighting machine that can react immediately should an attack be made against us.

In addition to its B52 bombers—each one carrying more lethal power than all the bombs dropped during World War II—Gen. Old's Fifteenth Air Force operationally pioneered all intercontinental ballistic missiles—Atlas, Titan I, Titan II and Minuteman—into the SAC inventory. Each of these can be fired within the warning time of our early warning system.

Gen. Old bosses major air bases and missile installations at 20 or more locations in the United States and Alaska.

Operating from these installations are several hundred B47 and B52 bombers and approximately 400 ICBM's poised and ready to be fired should the need ever arise.

FUTURE IN SPACE, maybe even in a "flying saucer" seems pretty important to Jefferey Franklyn Vaill as he relaxes comfortably in the arms of his famous grandfather, Lt. Gen. Archie J. Old Jr., commander of the Fifteenth Air Force. The tot will be one year old today.

'RIGHTS' PROBE HALTED

Portugal Expels Ex-Judge Kenny as a 'Disrupter'

LISBON (UPI)—Four foreign attorneys, including two Americans, who had scheduled a news conference Saturday on "Human Rights in Portugal," were "politely invited" to leave the country. Security police saw that they accepted the invitation.

Security police descended on the Tivoli Hotel minutes before the news conference was to have begun and asked them to report to police headquarters where officials said they were "courteously invited to leave the country." Police then escorted them to the airport.

The two Americans are Robert E. Treuhaft of San Francisco, husband of Jessica Mitford who wrote the best-selling "The American Way of Death," and Robert Walker Kenny, 62, Los Angeles, long a colorful figure in California politics.

Ordered out with them were Conrado Gomez of Mendoza, Argentina, and Norman A. Endicot who has a law practice in Toronto and who was en route home from a lawyers' conference in Budapest.

A Portuguese Foreign Ministry statement accused the four lawyers of interfering in Portugal's internal affairs and disrupting the "public order in conditions which are not permitted in any country."

Treuhaft was the first to leave. He boarded a plane for New York. Kenny and Gomez said they were flying to Paris, and Endicot booked passage on an Air Canada flight for Toronto. All were expected to be out of Portugal by 9 p.m. Saturday.

(Treuhaft arrived in New York by jetliner Saturday afternoon and said he was "stunned" by his ejection from Portugal. He said that after the press conference was called off he and the others went to the hotel bar for a drink.

("Shortly after, six of those tight-suited guys from the Portuguese secret police, showing their muscles, walked into the bar, asked us for our passports

Old Hero Finally Resting

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—An old soldier found rest Saturday. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, a tireless campaigner in three wars who served his country with distinction in the remarkable postwar occupation of Japan, was caissoned under a blue Virginia sky on the final slow journey of the military dead.

The body of the 84-year-old general of the Army was entombed in the rotunda of the General Douglas MacArthur Memorial, the building in which are displayed his papers, decorations, his honors, and such mementoes as the crushed gold-braid cap and the long-bowl corncob pipe.

It was in Norfolk that his mother and father were married, and his mother came from a long line of Virginians. It was the general's own choice to return to Virginia in death. He had called Norfolk "my spiritual home."

Standing beside the bier when the final note of taps faded through new-budding trees was Jean Faircloth MacArthur, the widow, who escaped with him from Corregidor in one of the memorable episodes of World War II.

She blinked at the last long note. Then she wept silently, a slightly bent figure standing beside a shining gray coffin. On the marble wall behind her were etched the three words the

CDC Board Refuses to Back Unruh

Bane and Wilson Endorsements Also Withheld

FRESNO (UPI) — The board of directors of the politically powerful California Democratic Council (CDC) voted unanimously Saturday to withhold its endorsement of Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh's campaign for re-election.

The action had been expected because the controversial speaker had been increasingly at odds with the CDC, Gov. Brown and other state Democratic leaders. He also has met with disfavor among the state's labor leaders and the AFL-CIO recently refused to endorse him.

* * * *

THE VOTE came shortly after State Controller Alan Cranston, the founding president of the CDC and its choice for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, told the board to "keep cool" and remember the central issues during the current campaign. He said these issues were peace, maximum employment and civil rights.

Unruh has praised Sen. Clair Engle, one of Cranston's opponents for the nomination and has said nothing uncomplimentary about the other major candidate, former presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger.

* * * *

BEFORE the vote on Unruh's endorsement, the board withheld its backing from two other Unruh supporters and opponents of the CDC, Assemblyman Tom Bane, D-Los Angeles, and Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Los Angeles. Bane is running for Congress and Wilson is seeking re-election.

Bane was endorsed by his local CDC group only three days after 27th Congressional District Incumbent Everett G. Burkhalter announced he would run again. The board cited this short time lapse and the fact that the local endorsing convention was held on the same day as the Long Beach statewide convention in February as reasons for withholding its endorsement.

Praises 'Role of Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday Soviet Premier Khrushchev is "seeking to preserve peace in the world." Johnson said that so long as Khrushchev "talks in peaceful terms, he will always have our ear."

This was Johnson's response, at another unannounced Saturday news conference, to a request for comment on Khrushchev's recent kind words about the American President and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

"I am glad to see," said Johnson, "that Mr. Khrushchev is playing the role of peace and seeking to preserve peace in the world. That certainly is the desire of this country. When he talks in peaceful terms, he will always have our ear."

* * * *

AT THE SAME TIME, the President gave scant encouragement to any who would call for an early summit meeting.

Johnson said that because of the forthcoming election, his newness in office, the absence of a vice president, and a multitude of foreign policy problems, he does not plan to leave the continental United States this year.

The only things that could take him abroad, he said, would be an unforseen emergency or "some feeling that great advances could be made."

* * * *

THIS DID, HOWEVER, leave the door slightly ajar for a possible 1964 summit session.

Aides said that in his response about Khrushchev, Johnson was not trying to get into the Sino-Soviet dispute on Moscow's side. The Kremlin accuses the Chinese of advocating nuclear war instead of Khru-

Hayden One of 250 Held as 'Sitters'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police arrested 250 civil-rights sit-in demonstrators Saturday, including red-bearded actor Sterling Hayden, in a traffic-clogging demonstration on San Francisco's automobile row. Hayden was carried out.

Police cleared some 300 persons from showrooms of the Big Three of motordom—Ford, General Motors and Chrysler. The arrested were charged with disturbing the peace, unlawful assembly and disobedience. Bail was set at $276 each.

A spokesman for General Motors, which operates the Cadillac agency showroom, said GM had refused to sign a statement "which would require a quota of nonwhite employes."

REPORTERS CROSSED UP AGAIN

Johnson Invites Tourists to Take Stroll With Him

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson interrupted a quiet stroll around the White House grounds Saturday to order the gates opened and a flock of tourists admitted to join him on his trek.

Johnson left his office, headed for lunch, about 2:30 p.m. when, as he later told it, aide Bill Moyers suggested they take a walk.

With a handful of Secret Service agents and assistants in tow, Johnson headed down the asphalt driveway behind the White House. Nearby was a wrought-iron gate behind which shouting tourists were massed.

The President ordered the gates opened and some 100 sightseers found themselves suddenly propelled into the usually unoccupied lawns at the south of the executive mansion, facing the Washington Monument.

With Johnson in the lead, the visitors made a slow tour of the circular drive behind the White House, winding up at the same gate through which they had entered so unexpectedly.

Johnson, full of the same good spirits he displayed Friday in entertaining farm leaders, rail negotiators and poet Carl Sandburg, set up an informal receiving line at the gate as his surprised guests left.

For each he had a smile, a handshake, a few words and, occasionally an autograph.

Some of the tourists were too stunned to speak as they shook the President's hand. But most responded with such remarks as "Thank you very much, sir," "A pleasure," and "Nice meeting you."

As the last of the group departed, Johnson said, "I enjoyed being with you."

One gray-haired man, a camera dangling from his neck, walked up to Johnson during the tour and, waving toward the White House acres, inquired, "Do you cut this grass yourself?"

"No, sir," replied the President, "I don't. But I'd probably feel better if I did."

Turning, Johnson spotted one of the reporters who regularly cover the White House and exclaimed, "You don't belong here. If you want to march, you ought to join the Army."

"I've already done that," the newsman replied.

Johnson was well

L.A.C. Says:

No Law Can Correct This

As the Civil Rights debates progress and demonstrators seek laws to give equal rights to all our citizens—an example of the futility of laws was given in Olathe, Kansas. It was a warning that there must be a greater tolerance among the people if our racial problem is to be solved. None of the laws now on the books or to be enacted, would have solved the tragic Olathe incident.

It involved a young Negro couple who had rented a duplex in one of the all-white areas of the town. The young Negro is an Air Force lieutenant. He was assigned to the Olathe Air Base as a radar officer. It is apparent he had the educational and personal qualifications to be an officer and a gentleman—equal in ability to other officers of his rank.

The young couple rented the duplex in a new subdivision after searching two weeks for a nice place to live. They moved in on a Thursday—and moved out on Friday. Reason for moving out was that the neighbors showed their resentment over having Negroes as their neighbors. The young Negro said he was disappointed and "we are financially able to live in a nice place—if all we wanted was a roof over our heads, we could have found that."

There was no law violated. Apparently, the landowner willingly had rented the duplex to the young couple. But the attitude of the white people who also are renters was so unpleasant the Negroes decided they would not endure it. So they are forced to seek another home. It is hoped they will find another nice place to live where the neighbors will not be so intolerant—but that is questionable.

Many provisions of the Civil Rights bill before Congress need to be enacted. The long-established method of depriving Negroes of voting privileges in some Southern states is a travesty on law. Negroes with education equal to, or higher than, most of the whites, are refused this privilege by subterfuges. Negro children still are deprived of the right to attend schools with whites—and equal use of public transportation is denied Negroes in many places.

These are fundamental rights that must be provided for all our citizens. There must be provisions to protect them from discrimination in employment and places that provide services for the public as a whole. But there are also provisions in the bills that go far beyond Civil Rights in that they deprive people of their property rights if they exercise these rights in choosing to whom they may rent, sell or lease their private property.

It is a tragic debate and situation. No law can change the personal attitude of people. Only their own conscience can do that. The people as a whole must accept the responsibility to help change this discrimination. They must come to accept the fact that an intelligent, clean and decent Negro family has a right to decent housing in an area and atmosphere that matches their education and desire for a better life. How to achieve this without destroying other basic civil rights is the great problem. The sad experience of the young Negro Air Force officer is an example of the cruelty of the discrimination that exists in the North as well as the South. It cannot be corrected by laws. It must be corrected in the hearts and minds of the people.—L.A.C.

Belgian MDs Assailed for 'Brutality'

BRUSSELS, Sunday (UPI)—Talks aimed at ending a strike by 10,000 Belgian doctors collapsed early today despite the spur provided by the threat of an epidemic of highly infectious children's diseases in the country.

Prime Minister Theo Lefevre, following a marathon bargaining session which started Saturday, warned Belgium "is now entering a period of brutality."

* * * *

THE STRIKE, against a new national health-insurance law, swung into its 12th day.

Lefevre immediately called his cabinet into an emergency session to deal with the situation.

He said representatives of the striking doctors had refused to accept compromise proposals put forth by the government.

"We do not want a period of brutality," the prime minister said. "One brutality leads to another and this is a terrible thing."

* * * *

EDMOND LEBURTON, the minister of Social Security, charged the doctors had presented what amounted to an ultimatum at the meeting. "They have shown an utter lack of fair play," he said.

Even Saturday, it became apparent that tempers were rising because of the crisis caused by the medical walkout. At one point, the talks were suspended in anger.

"I hope that this will not become known as the time of the assassins," Lefevre had commented.

Clean-Up Week Set May 10-17

Long Beach has proclaimed May 10-17 as Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Week, a project spearheaded by the civic beautification committee of the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

In a drive to stimulate upgrading of buildings and property, awards will be given those businesses and organizations showing the greatest improvement.

Mrs. Francis Merchant, chairman of the project, asked that nominations be sent, this week, to the Women's Division, Chamber of Commerce, 121 Linden Ave.

Categories for the competition will include industrial, business, commercial and professional buildings, churches, schools, clubs and public agencies; lumber, brick and sand storage yards; wrecking and second-hand lots; service stations, drive-ins, auto washes and parking lots; parks, golf courses and recreation areas.

Winners will be announced and honored at the civic beautification committe's awards dinner in May.

FLIER ROWS GIRL HOME

A Marine Corps lieutenant took his girlfriend for an airplane ride Saturday — but, they ended up rowing.

Lt. Stephen Majias had to ditch his single-engine plane a half-mile offshore from Aliso Canyon south of Newport Beach. He and Susan Rutan, 22, of San Diego, were paddling toward shore in a life raft when a fishing boat picked them up.

Lt. Majias told Orange County Harbor Department officials the engine on his plane suddenly quit as they were returning to Capistrano Airport about 2:30 p.m.

and told us that we would have to leave the country immediately," Treuhaft said.

("It was apparent to me that we were under arrest when I refused to give them my passport. I was grabbed and hacked across the arms. One of the men reached in my pocket and forcibly removed my passport.")

Trehauft said he was then ordered to start packing for the trip home. The attorney said a representative of the U.S. embassy "looked after us" before the flight to New York.

Before Treuhaft left, the four men were seen lunching in an airport restaurant, a plainclothesman at their sides.

The attorneys earlier told newsmen arriving for the conference that Portuguese security police had forbidden them to hold it.

Before the P. I. D. E. (security) police arrived, Kenny told newsmen, "There will be no press conference because police told us we cannot hold it." He said his group was not even permitted to hand out a press release on their studies of the enforcement of human rights in Portugal.

"We came to Portugal as individuals and not as members of any organization," Kenny said.

The Foreign Ministry communique repeated that the four attorneys had been invited to leave Portugal and said the action was taken after they entered the country as tourists and "started investigations on problems concerning the Portuguese jail system, which concerns only the internal policy of Portugal, trying to inquire into the Portuguese life and disrupt the public order in conditions which are not permitted in any country."

One of the attorneys told newsmen they had contacted families of political prisoners in their study. The Foreign Ministry said this was an attempt to interfere in Portugal's internal affairs and criticize the decision of competent Portuguese authorities.

Navy 'Bugs' Sea Floor in Weapons Test

By LOU JOBST
I. P-T Marine Editor

SAN CLEMENTE ISLAND—Like much of modern naval warfare, weapons testing is going underwater.

Engineers have laid out a subsurface test range which extends five miles to sea from the southern shoreline of this Navy-controlled channel island.

At its deepest point this underwater 'Cape Kennedy' is 3,600 feet.

* * * *

THE RANGE, developed and tested by engineers of the ocean systems division of Locktems division of Lockheed-California Co., comprises measured distances and sea-bottom-mounted electronic listening devices called hydrophones.

Known as Lobal, for long base line tracking system, the 'phones in recent tests detected signals from a submarine at a slant range of 15,000 feet and more than half a nautical mile down.

This is believed to be an all-time record for picking up underwater signals.

* * * *

UNLIKE SONAR, the engineers say, Lobal is not an active detection system but is designed solely to measure effectiveness of underwater weapons.

Lobal, they claim, will pick up the course of signal-sending vehicles underwater just as ground equipment tracks radio-transmitting test rockets.

The range was established with the assistance of the Naval Ordnance Test Station which maintains this island 60 miles from Long Beach as a base.

* * * *

LONG A surface bombardment range and navay airfield, San Clemente Island more recently was used in development and testing of the submerged launching mechanism for the Polaris missile and testing of ASROC (anti-submarine rocket) and SUBROC (submarine rocket). This test work has been done in water down to 200 feet.

Electronic-eavesdropping Lobal, the engineers believe, can be used to check programmed performance and course of new underwater weapons and counter-weapons, assist in calibrating sonar systems, track ships and weapons for research purposes and aid in anti-submarine warfare evaluation and in data correction for Navy training exercises.

Placed 3,300 yards apart in a triangular pattern, the Lobal hydrophones were linked by separate cables to data processing and computer units on the island.

* * * *

TO ACTIVATE Lobal for the tests, radio-synchronized devices simultaneously pulsed signals aboard a submarine and at the shore-based processing equipment.

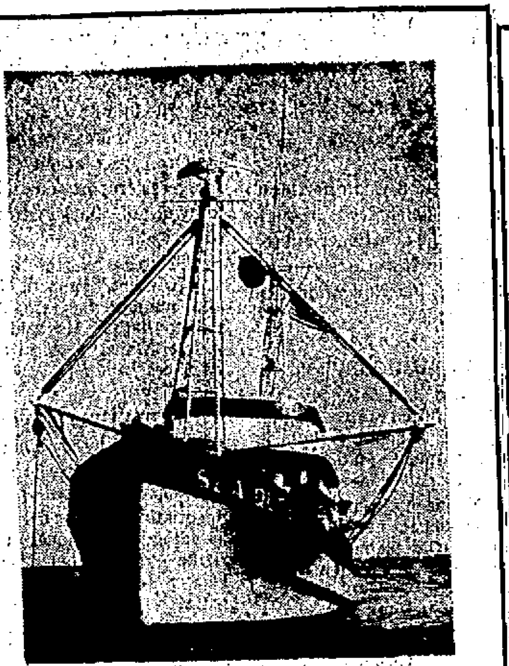
Signals from the sub picked up the electronic listening devices, amplified and transmitted to the shore computers. There the sound pulses were reconstructed, processed into written language and translated by the computer into three-dimensional coordinates. A plotter then mapped the sub's course and position. Tracking accuracy was to within 10 feet.

* * * *

THE SYSTEM also filtered out surrounding ocean sounds, accepting only signals of predetermined characteristic and timing. This is an absolute prerequisite of any underwater test system.

In addition to the submarine, the Lockheed oceanographic research ship Sea Quest and a Navy destroyer participated in the tests.

NOTS, with headquarters in Pasadena, has a support installation at Reeves Field, Terminal Island, and spent $4½ million at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard for construction of three ships and equipment for the Polaris test work.



OCEANOGRAPHIC research ship Sea Quest sends signals (via sound projector on boom extended over the starboard side) to underwater hydrophones in test of underwater test range recently off San Clemente Island.

7 Maritime Academy Trustees Quit in Row

PORTLAND, Me. (UPI) — Seven members of the 12-man board of trustees of the Maine Maritime Academy resigned Saturday after refusing to act on Gov. John H. Reed's request to replace controversial academy superintendent Frank C. Rodway.

The trustees, including chairman Ralph Leavitt of Portland, sent their resignation to Reed in a telegram two hours before a scheduled meeting of the entire board to act on the governor's request to remove Rodway.

Rodway's appointment to the $15,000-a-year post last January resulted in a wide-ranging controversy over his qualifications as head of the military-type institution at Castine.

* * * *

RODWAY, who vowed to fight Reed's efforts to oust him, was elected on a 7-5 vote of the trustees.

Resignation of the seven members who voted in favor of Rodway's appointment apparently was done without the knowledge of the other five trustees.

A spokesman said the other five had not arrived at the trustee meeting when the resignations were announced.

* * * *

REED HAD asked that Rodway, a Falmouth real estate dealer, be replaced on grounds that he was not qualified.

Earlier, the U.S. Maritime Administration in Washington had ruled that Rodway, a lieutenant in the U.S. Naval Reserve, was not qualified.

The federal agency agreed to grant a waiver of the requirements but at the same time gave no assurances about some $300,000 in federal funds earmarked for the academy.

ANSWER:	The tuition for the course you select includes your texts and supplies normally required. Statistically, the majority of Automation Institute graduates earn more than the total educational investment within less than 2 months on the first job. Each month thereafter yields a big profit. Budget tuition plans make it possible to delay part of your investment until after graduation. The sooner you train; the quicker you will improve financially.
QUESTION:	How Certain Am I Of Getting A Good Job?
ANSWER:	Guarantees of employment are illegal and unrealistic. Your job position depends on your "know how". AUTOMATION INSTITUTE is America's largest, oldest, and best recognized independent specialists in the IBM training field. You will learn from leaders in this field, using the latest equipment. There are no short cuts to success . . . only proven paths.
QUESTION:	Does The School Have NATIONWIDE Acceptance?
ANSWER:	Yes. AUTOMATION INSTITUTES have trained & placed more people nationwide in new IBM careers than any other private school. In all principal cities there is an Automation Institute to help and serve you. More companies hire A. I. graduates than from any other private school in the Automation field.
QUESTION:	Is Experience Required?
ANSWER:	NO. AUTOMATION INSTITUTES place hundreds in new careers at the beginning level. Advancement training is an integral part of your course. You are thus assured of the best possible opportunities for immediate employment and advancement.
QUESTION:	How Does The Placement Service Work?
ANSWER:	Our Placement Director is in constant contact with Business, Government, and Industrial IBM Installations. Individual attention is given both the graduate and the employer regarding the employment objectives and desires. No fee is charged either the graduate or the employer.

Rail Walkout Leaders Go Back on Job

OAKLAND (AP)—A number of Southern Pacific switchmen remained off "sick" Saturday night at Oakland while striking switchmen at the Roseville yards returned to work. All Oakland freight, however, was moving normally, SP said.

Earlier Saturday, the Roseville switchmen, leaders in the stoppage, had threatened to fire their union officers rather than comply with the 15-day nationwide rail strike postponement obtained by President Johnson.

* * * *

THE MORE than 200 switchmen had walked out Thursday before SP could carry out its announced intent to post new work rules—target of the threatened strike.

SP said it had managed to keep its freight and passenger trains rolling on schedule despite spread of the Roseville stoppage to other Northern California yards.

Friday, SP got a federal injunction in San Francisco. It charged the stoppages violated the President's agreement.

FRIDAY NIGHT, when J. Frank Young, chairman of switchmen's union Local 263, urged the Roseville switchmen back to work, some 250 members voted at a meeting to oust their local officers.

Saturday, Young called another meeting, said the members had acted improperly, insisted he still was their chairman and asked them as a personal favor to report for afternoon duty.

"I am proud to say they agreed," Young said.

IN WASHINGTON, Johnson underscored anew his deep desire that railroad and union negotiators end by collective bargaining the recurring threat of a national rail shutdown.

THAT TOUR GUIDE LOOKS FAMILIAR
In a surprise gesture Saturday, President Johnson ordered the gates to the White House grounds opened and conducted a group of flabbergasted sightseers on tour. President pointed out sights and signed autographs.

President Invites 100 Tourists for Stroll on White House Lawn

launched on his conducted 15-minute tour of the backyard when newsmen and photographers heard about the walk. Pell Mell, they dashed from the lobby of the White House office wing and raced through the rose garden to join the hikers.

When half a dozen photographers arrayed themselves across the driveway ahead of the President and his visitors, to get a good vantage point for pictures, Johnson called out, "Now don't you-all mess this up. Get out of the way."

Many of those who went walking with Johnson introduced themselves as visitors from foreign lands.

Johnson had an extended conversation with one student from India, reminiscing about his visit there as vice president.

It was so international a gathering that, as the sightseers departed, the chief executive exclaimed:

"I know so many people over in Finland, Denmark, the Philippines and Japan. I feel like I've been on a tour."

Jokingly, the President said to his parting guests, "I didn't think you-all would come through the gate."

Reporters asked Johnson about his weekend plans.

He said he expected to remain at the White House except for a visit later in the day with Felix Frankfurter, the ailing retired Supreme Court justice, and a trip to church today.

Then he disappeared into the White House for a mid-afternoon lunch. Later in the afternoon he went golfing at Burning Tree Club in nearby Maryland.

shchev's "peaceful coexistence."

Johnson was referring to "complimentary" remarks—as the questioner put it—which Khrushchev made during his Hungarian tour, the aides said.

* * * *

KHRUSHCHEV said in a speech last Monday that "the United States is an imperialist country but its government judges the world situation soberly."

Johnson also made an announcement that touched upon the technological rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union. He said:

"The world record for aircraft speed, currently held by the Soviets, has been repeatedly broken in secrecy by the United States aircraft A-11."

* * * *

THE CHIEF Executive said secrecy wraps will be stripped from the high-flying A-11 to permit an official bid by the reconnaissance interceptor craft for acknowledgment as the world record-holder.

Relations with the Soviet Union also came up during the 20-minute Cabinet Room conference when Johnson was asked for a progress report on withdrawal of Soviet troops from Cuba.

"There are still some troops there," he said, "but the number has declined substantially." He said he didn't "want to get in any numbers game."

* * * *

THE PRESIDENT opened the session by reading a statement in which he said emergency White House negotiations aimed at avoiding a national rail strike represented "collective bargaining in the truest sense of the word." He said his aim is "to get consent rather than to get coercion."

Domestic politics also figured in the news conference, with the first major question dealing with the future of Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to Viet Nam who is regarded as a potential Republican opponent for Johnson in November.

Johnson said he knows of no possibility of Lodge resigning, that "his services there have been very satisfactory and he has done a very constructive job."

* * * *

THEN someone wanted to know about the President's reaction to the 260,000 votes collected by Alabama's segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace in Wisconsin's Democratic primary last Tuesday.

"Gov. Wallace got 25 per cent of the votes and 75 per cent voted against him," said Johnson.

Postage Stamps Honor President Kennedy

NEW YORK, April 12 (EN) — The tragic assassination of our late President John F. Kennedy has focused the attention of many philatelists to the Togo Kennedy Visit issue, and we already have had numerous inquiries for this set.

ALEUTS' TEACHER BARELY ESCAPES DEATH IN TIDAL WAVE

L.B. Girl Sees 23 Friends Killed

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

KRISTINE MADSEN
World Falls Apart

In earthquake-ridden Alaska, on a remote island just seven miles long, Kristine Madsen's one-teacher schoolhouse still stands.

But Kristine is back home in Long Beach today — because there are no students left on Chenaga Island.

Only the white, frame school building, sitting high on a hill, remains as a grave reminder that a native fishing village once threaded its way along the narrow strip of coastline below.

Here lived native Aleuts who fished the seas and hunted the mountains, who worshiped at their Russian Orthodox church on Sundays and sent their children to Kristine's school on weekdays.

They lived simple, happy, uncomplicated lives in their rigorous paradise. Their only contact with the outside world was a mailboat that arrived once every two weeks.

* * * *

BUT CHENAGA'S native fishing village is no more.

It was swallowed up by the sea—along with 23 of its 70 villagers — on the day the worst quake in North American history cracked, crumpled and buckled Alaska.

Swept away by a tidal wave were the crudely picturesque houses, the church, the piers.

With it, too, went the mainstay of the village's economy — its small fleet of fishing boats.

The 90-foot wall of water also washed away, at least for the moment, the adventuresome twinkle in the eyes of 23-year-old Kris Madsen of Long Beach, who last year went to Alaska to teach and to find her new frontier.

* * * *

STILL STUNNED, she finds the terrifying events of that Good Friday difficult to describe.

"The whole world seemed to fall apart before my eyes," she recalls.

The only nonnative in the village ("I was quite an oddity with my bright red hair"), Kris often opened the school building to villagers for family-night social events.

The night the quake hit they were to have watched a movie at the school. Its title, ironically: "The House on Haunted Hill."

At the zero-hour, Kris—who had been down to the village making arrangements for the gala evening — was climbing the long zig-zaggy stretch of wooden stairs to the school building.

"All of a sudden the earth began to shake, houses moved from their foundations, the trees crackled and groaned," she recalls. "It was virtually impossible to stand up or to walk."

Simultaneously, the ocean was sucked back from the shoreline almost as if to gain momentum for its death blow.

Aware of impending danger, villagers began a mass retreat to high ground, sweeping Kris with them. From the hills, they watched their houses, their church, their boats fly into the air—then disappear.

The waves swallowed up those not lucky enough to get away. Two of the 23 lost were Kris's students—a first-grade girl and a fourth-grade girl.

* * * *

UP ON THE RIDGES, survivors spent the night in sub-zero weather, warmed only by Kris's clothes and blankets salvaged from the school building, which also served as Kris's living quarters.

Some of the survivors were gashed and bruised by flying debris. One was a 20-year-old mother whose twin daughters had been swept from her arms by the wave.

Survivors were evacuated by plane the next day in relay flights to Cordova, a coastal town of 1,100 population, 90 miles away. Kris was among the last to leave.

* * * *

PLANS, at first, were to keep the families and Kris's remaining 12 students together. She was to have conducted classes in Cordova to complete the school year.

It since has been decided, however, that survivors will be moved to the villages of Tatilek and Alamar, where the Red Cross and the Bureau of Indian Affairs will aid in their rehabilitation.

None will return to Chenaga Island. The village will not be rebuilt.

Before returning to Long Beach, Kris had one last look at the now-deserted island—the island where, in eight months, she had learned to love the people, where her students had participated joyfully in school activities, where life had been calm and peaceful.

With five of the villagers, she returned by boat to help search for bodies, to scan the debris for belongings, to remove supplies from the school building and to find her dog who had been left behind.

The half-collie, half-Labrador puppy (she named him TLO) had been given her at the beginning of the school year by friends in Anchorage. He had been her constant companion.

She found TLO alone on the island, dazed and injured. He had to be shot.

Of the 23 villagers killed, only four bodies were recovered—two of them were found on an island eight miles away.

Also found there was the upper story of a house that had been swept from Chenaga. Contents were dry and undamaged — the beds were still neatly made.

* * * *

"THE RETURN TRIP was the eeriest, the saddest day of my life," says Kris, now safely home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Michelsen of 3191 Oak Grove Road, Rossmoor. (Her mother teaches first grade at Starr King Elementary School.) "Even though I saw the village, now just rubble and debris, it all seems like a dream."

What's in the future for Kris?

"I don't know yet," says she. "Perhaps I'll teach next year in California. Perhaps I'll do some substituting now." She doesn't know if her savings, deposited in a bank in Anchorage, were saved.

But right now the money is of no concern. Her concern is with the villagers, left penniless and homeless, who must carve a new life in far-away Alaska.

Alaska High Tides Viewed Anxiously

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP)—Earthquake-jittery coastal residents south of here were warily watching the tides Saturday as water began creeping up on homes, canneries, warehouses and other buildings.

Flooding is feared in low-lying areas of the Kenai Peninsula, Kodiak Island and possibly at Valdez, southeast of Anchorage, where the March 27 earthquake is believed to have caused the land to sink from three to more than six feet.

A peninsula official, after touring the area Friday, said high-tide seawater already had reached its previous highest level for this time of year, and still has three feet to go before hitting its seasonal peak Monday and Tuesday.

* * * *

CHAIRMAN Harold Pomeroy of the peninsula borough said the water has been lapping over Homer Spit near the end of the coastal arm, and neared the English Bay and Seldovia airstrips.

The Red Cross said it was prepared to open new refugee shelters if necessary. The agency said there still are nine shelters housing 900 persons evacuated in the earthquake and tidal waves.

Later Red Cross damage figures show 3,319 families were affected in the disaster. The quake and ocean waves it caused were said to have destroyed 546 homes and damaged 1,246 others.

The latest casualty count from the emergency health office listed 55 known dead and 59 missing and presumed dead. The over-all total has remained at 114, and officials slowly are confirming the deaths of many on the missing list.

State Civil Defense said the new flooding threat could send seawater over a fourth of a 2,500-foot runway at Seward, but probably will not reach the 5,000-foot main runway.

* * * * *

AT KODIAK, police said water already has flooded Marine Way — once the city's main waterfront road, but the town's lower business district was virtually wiped out by March 27 waves, leaving little left for any flood damage.

The lower areas of Seward and Valdez also were destroyed.

Officials have said it may be necessary to relocate business districts on higher ground when they rebuild if the land has sunken and the high tides continue to threaten.

Pomeroy said it might cost several million dollars to relocate or elevate buildings.

Precautionary steps — including diking and lifting of buildings — were being taken in some of the threatened areas. Otherwise, residents were waiting to see what happens.

'Fireball' Shot Will be Tried Again Monday

CAPE KENNEDY (AP)—The space agency Saturday rescheduled the twice-postponed Project Fire spacecraft launching for 3:30 p.m. EST Monday.

The 200-pound craft is to plunge downward into the earth's atmosphere at 25,000 miles an hour to provide information on heat which will scorch manned spaceships returning from the moon.

Unfavorable weather in the re-entry area forced a postponement last Monday and a combination of bad weather and technical troubles wiped out the Atlas-boosted shot Friday.

Sen. Smith Spurns Veep Suggestion

MOLINE, Ill. (UPI)—Sen. Margaret Chase Smith said Saturday she is definitely running for the Republican presidential nomination and not for the vice president spot on the GOP ticket.

The Maine Republican criticized a magazine article which said: "It is the vice presidency she is after."

Mrs. Smith is the only opponent to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., on the ballot for the Illinois presidential preference primary Tuesday.

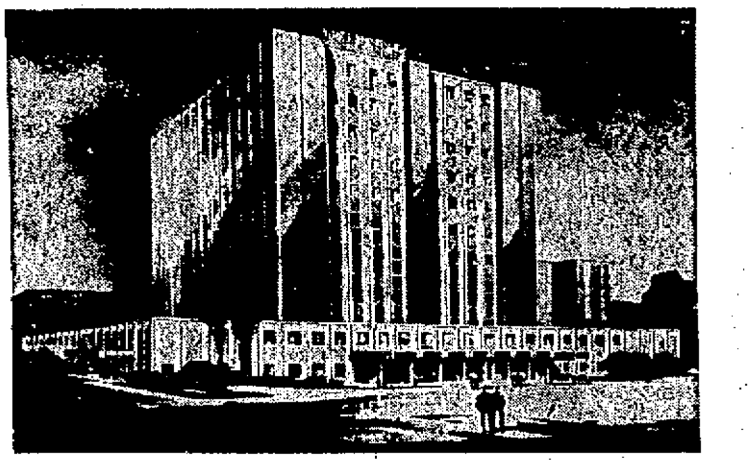
$18-Million Addition to Veterans' Hospital to be Started in July

By BEN ZINSER
I. P-T Medical-Science Editor



CLOSEUP OF NEW 11-story "tower" building at VA Hospital. It will be in front of existing main building.

Plans have been completed for an $18-million construction program at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

The program features an 11-story tower building in front of the existing main building and a new psychiatric building that will double the size of the hospital's psychiatric service.

Also slated is renovation of existing buildings.

The Los Angeles architectural firm of Adrian Wilson and Associates has designed the tower and drawn up plans for renovation. This part of the project will cost $14 million, according to Dr. Michael L. Matte, hospital director.

* * * *

WORK IS scheduled to start in July.

A new two-story psychiatric building, with 120 beds on each floor, is slated for completion in one year and will be used to house medical patients during what Dr. Matte calls "the transition period."

The hospital will maintain its 1,600-bed capacity during the over-all construction period, expected to require 30 months.

When the tower building is completed, VA Hospital will then have a bed capacity of 1,725, Dr. Matte said.

The tower, to be built of reinforced concrete, will front the present main building and face Seventh Street. VA Hospital occupies 110 acres at the corner of Bellflower Boulevard and Seventh Street.

* * * *

BECAUSE of the construction program, plans for a contemplated 120-bed nursing service have been postponed, Dr. Matte said.

Three unoccupied wards of wooden construction will be reopened on the north ramp while construction is in progress, Dr. Matte said.

The construction program will require the razing of four cantonment-type wards on what is called the X ramp.

Other patients will be temporarily reassigned to existing permanent buildings.

The new psychiatric building will be located just north of the hospital's 564-bed wing, completed in 1958.

Dr. Matte said the new tower building will be occupied as follows:

Basement: Dietetic service, central linen service, radioisotope treatment clinic and cobalt "bomb" for radiation therapy.

First floor: Main lobby, admitting service, outpatient clinics, registrar, diagnostic radiology.

Second floor: Administrative offices, including those of hospital director, assistant director, chief of staff, chief of nurses, fiscal officer, supply officer, personnel and engineering; dental service and laboratory service.

Third through 10th floors: 80 patient beds a floors.

Eleventh floor: 40 patient beds and a 16-bed intensive-therapy unit.

Patients in the tower building will be mainly those assigned to the pulmonary-disease service, general medicine, cardiology, gastroenterology and geriatrics.

First floor of the existing main building will house, when construction is complete, the canteen, medical illustration department, pharmacy, clinics and some administrative offices. Second floor will quarter a recreational area, the auditorium and the medical library. On the third floor will be the chapel and a 42-bed ward. Another 42-bed ward will be on the fourth folor. The fifth floor will continue to house a conference room.

* * * *

THE WEST wing of the existing main building will house dermatology patients on the first floor, allergy on the second and hematology on the third. The east wing of this structure will quarter polio patients on the first and rehabilitation service floor, physical medicine on the second and surgical patients on the third.

In the wing completed in 1958 the spinal-cord-injury service will continue to occupy the basement and first floor. Neurology will be on the second floor and surgical patients on the third.

The pitch-and-putt golf course on the north grounds, which was to have been declared surplus property, will be retained to provide a recreational area for psychiatric patients, Dr. Matte said.

Legislation opening up millions of acres of public lands in California for community development has cleared the House and is headed for the Senate.

The measure would give the Interior Department long-sought authority to sell small tracts for residential, commercial and industrial development. Its sponsors say built-in safeguards have been provided to prevent speculation and profiteering.

The bill gives the authority for three years while an interim commission decides on a permanent arrangement for disposing of tracts.

* * * *

AT PRESENT, such sales are subject to extensive red tape. On occasion, special legislation from Congress is needed to authorize disposals. Years are sometimes required, and prospective buyers become discouraged.

Much of the land available is in the desert area of Southern California, where extensive residential developments are under way on privately-owned lands. Some of the land to be freed is adjacent to communities which want it for residential expansion or new industrial plants.

The federal government currently holds 25,795 acres in Los Angeles County, 7,354,363 acres in San Bernardino County, 254,764 in San Diego County, 1,435,320 in Riverside County and 641,624 in Imperial County. Not all of this is suitable for development.

* * * *

SAFEGUARDS provided for disposal require extensive public advertisement of pending applications to buy, and competitive biddings after appraisals of fair market value. Tracts sold would be limited to 5,120 acres.

The Bureau of Land Management of the Interior Department believes the new offerings will relieve population pressures which are beginning to build up on desert lands.

The measure passed the House of Representatives on the consent calendar, without debate and without opposition.

Mosk Speaks to Solons on Water Bills

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk of California pledged his support Saturday to the proposed Central Arizona Water Project if Congress gives existing projects in the lower Colorado basin a prior water right.

"Great projects, supporting millions of people, already have been built by those who thought — and reasonably thought—that the law protected those projects in the water they used," Mosk said. "The law to be fashioned should accord with that understanding."

He told the Senate reclamation subcommittee this is the sole purpose of an amendment he drafted for Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif.

"The amendment could be added, he said, to either the Central Arizona Project authorization bill introduced by Arizona's two senators or to a pending draft bill to authorize Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall's broad Pacific Southwest water plan, which would include the Central Arizona Project.

Quake at A-Plant Feared by Engle

WASHINGTON (AP)—Expressing fear of an earthquake-triggered atomic blast, Sen. Clair Engle, D-Cal., urged Saturday that Congress delay construction of a nuclear power plant at Bodega Head in Sonoma County.

Engle announced through his office the preparation of a resolution for the Senate to direct the Atomic Energy Commission to withhold a permit for the plant until the AEC can certify to Congress "with reasonable scientific assurance, the geologic adequacy and seismic safety of said site."

The resolution says Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has spent nearly $4 million for excavation and development of a site within 1,000 feet of the rift zone of the San Andreas Fault which caused the 1906 San Francisco earthquake.

It cited two reports of geological survey investigators. One by Dr. J. P. Eaton last September concluded that Bodega Head "is not an adequately safe location for a nuclear power plant." The second, in December by Drs. Julius Schlocker and Manuel G. Bonilla, said that if a future earthquake near Bodega Head caused fault displacements comparable to those of 1906, "rupturing of near-surface granitic bedrock would be expected somewhere at Bodega Head."

9 CANDIDATES VIE FOR 3 POSITIONS

Hill Elects Councilmen Tuesday

Signal Hill voters Tuesday will elect three city councilmen from among nine candidates, including two incumbents.

Each incumbent, Paul S. Kemner and Thomas W. Denham Sr., is in a three-candidate slate. With Denham are William C. Probert, retired steelman, and M. F. (Buzz) McCallen, owner of Hilltop Auto Sales. The slate with Kemner, a former mayor, includes Morris L. Shoup, former councilman and mayor, and George E. Papadakis, chairman of the city planning commission.

The three unaffiliated candidates are attorney Norman D. Causey, realtor Verne Morrill and the controversial Tod C. (Kid Mexico) Faulkner.

Backgrounds and platforms of the candidates, as supplied by them, are as follows:

Kemner, 43, of 2096 St. Louis Ave., is a painting contractor. He is a graduate of University of California at Berkeley and attended Long Beach City College. Affiliations include Boy Scout work, P-TA.

PAUL S. KEMNER

Papadakis, 36, of 2131 E. 21st St., teaches school in Torrance. He is past treasurer of Torrance Education Association, board member of the Greek Orthodox Church, an Elk and former United Fund captain. He and his wife, Colleen, have three children. He has been on the Planning Commission three years.

G. E. PAPADAKIS

Shoup, 49, won a recall election in 1959, served a year as mayor and was defeated in the 1962 council election. He is shipping-dock superintendent of an express firm and is active in Monte Vista Masonic Lodge.

The Kemner - Papadakis - Shoup platform includes: opposition to "very real threat posed by 'organized gambling interests;'" a balanced city budget; land acquisition for water and public parks; industrial development to broaden tax base; support of the city's general plan; efficiency study of city operations; resistance to "any form of metropolitan control" while cooperating with other agencies, and offer of "proven leadership" with 8 years of civic government experience.

Denham, 58, of 1825 E. Hill St., is a builder and developer. He is a Shriner and a member of El Bekal Temple and of the Guiding Light Tabernacle in Signal Hill.

T. W. DENHAM SR.

McCallen, 43, of 1790 E. Burnett St., has lived in Signal Hill for a quarter of a century. He has memberships in Rotary Club and Signal Hill Chamber of Commerce.

M. F. McCALLEN

Probert, 69, of 2068 St. Louis St., is a retired owner of a metals distributing firm. He is an active Mason, including Calvary White Shrine among his memberships. His son is city administrative officer of San Gabriel.

W. C. PROBERT

The platform of this slate provides pledges of strong local government and representation of the city "with dignity, honor and consideration for all citizens;" maximum services for every tax dollar; completion of citywide lighting program; opposition to condemnation of private property for uses not beneficial to the people; balanced budget; opposition to "any form of commercial gambling;" their "most thoughtful consideration" of Signal Hill development, and preservation of self-government to promote Signal Hill as "the best city in which to live."

Causey, 33, of 1999 Junipero Ave., ran unsuccessfully for council in two previous elections. His affiliations include a number of legal groups. His platform supports all three propositions on the ballot. He says the office of city attorney should also be elective and councilmen should be elected by district rather than at large.

N. D. CAUSEY

Verne Morrill, 60, of 2225 Cherry Ave., describes his candidacy as non-political. He cites long activities for Signal Hill, World War II scrap metal drive and victory gardens, fund-raising for the first city ambulance and bringing many realty developments to the city. Among affiliations are nine years with Long Beach District Board of Realtors, Armed Services YMCA Committee and National Conference of Christians and Jews. His 17-point platform includes opposition to repeal of the residency requirement for employes, but support for the other two ballot propositions.

VERNE MORRILL

Faulkner, 63, of 2332 Cerritos Ave., lists himself as retired businessman, property owner and professional boxer, only fighter ever to hold three state titles, bantam-, welter- and middleweight. Platform includes general support of master planning and zoning with avoidance of "reckless enthusiasm" to hold tax rate "at rock bottom," but advocates building a municipal auditorium "in time for the World's Fair," among other recreational developments.

RADIO FAULTY

Joan Delayed at Calcutta, Jerrie Ahead

A blonde Ohio housewife appeared to have taken an unbeatable lead Saturday over Joan Merriam Smith of Long Beach in their respective bids to be the first woman to fly solo around the world.

Mrs. Jerrie Mock, 38, landed on Guam while Mrs. Smith, 27, was grounded with a faulty radio several thousand miles away at Dum Dum Airport outside Calcutta. Mrs. Mock planned to stay overnight at Guam, then fly to Wake Island.

Mrs. Smith expects to take off today on the next leg of her flight, tracing the course followed 27 years ago by Amelia Earhart on her ill-fated flight. Mrs. Mock plans to fly from Wake Island to Honolulu, then on to San Francisco to complete her circuit.

Hill's Long Residency Battle Coming to Vote

Legislative measures before Signal Hill voters, as propositions on Tuesday's ballot include the long-standing issue of whether civil service employes should be required to live within the city's boundaries.

The issue long has been fought by Signal Hill firemen, many having regularly secured exemptions from the existing ordinance on grounds they are unable to find suitable homes at a cost they can afford in Signal Hill. The city council has followed an interim policy of granting these extensions of time automatically pending a decision by the voters.

The firemen now have been joined in the campaign for approval of proposition 1, which would repeal the ordinance, by the Signal Hill Police Officers' Association.

* * * *

THE POA wrote the formal argument in favor of the proposition that accompanies sample ballots. The argument cited difficulty of finding homes either to rent or buy "out of wages paid in our various city departments," particularly for families with children.

The argument against repeal was written by Mrs. Nellie J. Combellack, president of the Taxpayers Association and formerly the mayor for many years,, who also is author of the arguments against the two other propositions.

The other measures would change the elective offices of clerk and treasurer to positions appointed by City Council.

MRS. COMBELLACK'S argument for keeping the residency requirment says employe families living outside "are responsible for a decline in city funds from the state." This is based on the fact that some state funds, such as allocations from sales tax revenues, are based on population. Her argument also says employes "are paid top wages," ought to live "where they receive their paychecks and states the Taxpayers Association unanimously opposes outside residence.

Mrs. Combellack's arguments on the other propositions call on the voters not to give up their right of electing clerk and treasurer, which they have done since the city's incorporation in 1924. They point out that if these officials fail to properly perform their duties, they now can be removed by the people through recall, and cites unanimous votes by the Taxpayers Association against both propositions.

In the campaign for repeal of the residency requirement, the Signal Hill Firefighters Association has distributed material that lists 26 businesses in the city as "prominent taxpayers" who "fully endorse" the repeal proposition.

The firefighters say apartment restrictions, high property cost and minimum choice of location "make it extremely difficult for employes to reside in Signal Hill" and that repeal will permit "the possibility for each person to locate within his financial means."

The official arguments for making the clerk and treasurer positions appointive come from the council itself. They call the propositions "non-controversial" and say they "do not reflect on the present office-holders" but are proposed in the best interests of the city.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

South Carolinian Is Mrs. America

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Mrs. South Carolina, Deseree Jenkins, was crowned Mrs. America of 1964 Saturday night.

DESEREE JENKINS

The 34-year-old mother of two from Columbia was picked from 10 semifinalists.

When the panel of judges announced the winner of the week-long contest, Mrs. Jenkins looked stunned. Then a broad smile flashed across her pretty face and tears streamed from her big brown eyes.

When she regained her composure, Mrs. Jenkins said she was "shocked, but overjoyed" that she had won.

"I couldn't move when I heard my name. I didn't believe it.

"But when they handed me my crown and robe and a big bunch of flowers, I knew it was true," she said.

Her husband Joe charged through the crowd, hugged her and said:

"Baby, I love you."

Mrs. Jenkins, who had won the good grooming competition earlier, said she had had no hope of winning the contest. "I was just proud to get that one title," she said.

2 Fliers Rescued After Ditching

HONOLULU (AP)—Two fliers were rescued from rough seas northeast of Hilo Saturday about six hours after ditching their crippled twin-engine aircraft with a cheerful "Here we go for a ride."

The survivors, neither of them injured, were in good spirits when taken aboard the Cape Small, a Coast Guard patrol vessel. The Cape Small also picked up three other men—an Airforce paramedic team—who parachuted from planes at daybreak to attend the airmen.

Aboard the ditched Lockheed Ventura were pilot Blaine Gardner, owner of Aero Service Corp. at Manila, and copilot Vic Koss, 38, of Hayward, Calif., an aircraft inspector at Alameda Naval Air Station.

Brazil Coup Leader Named President

BRASILIA (AP)—The army general who led the successful military coup against Joao Goulart's government was named interim Brazilian president Saturday night in a drab, spiritless congressional election.

GEN. HUMBERTO BRANCO

The nearly-unanimous vote for Gen. Humberto Castello Branco was marred by a low-keyed but nevertheless dramatic show of defiance by Goulart's Labor Party which abstained from the roll call vote in the Chamber of Deputies.

The combined Congress — Chamber and Senate — gave Castello Branco 361 votes out of 438 present. There were 72 abstentions and 37 congressmen were absent.

Christian Democrat Deputy Juarez Tavora received three votes and retired Marshal Eurico Gaspar Dutra two. Duta is a former Brazilian president.

Castello Branco will serve out what was left of the ousted Goulart's term—until Jan. 31, 1966, when a full-term president to be elected in October, 1965 will take over.

L.A. Mob Tosses Rocks at Crash Scene

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—One man was killed Saturday in a bus-auto collision in the south-central part of the city and an unruly crowd gathered and threw bottles and rocks at policemen investigating the accident.

Police said an ambulance and a patrol car were damaged by the flying debris.

The incident took place in the same general area where a riot occurred among 2,000 high school students Friday at the end of a track-and-field meet between Jfferson and Manual Arts High Schools.

Police said about 250 persons gathered at the accident scene. One arrest was made. Police booked Bill Ray Bagby, 19, on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon. Officers said he was observed throwing pieces of cement.

Killed in the crash was Myles Evans, 28, Los Angeles, driver of the car.

Prisoners Tear Up Miami's New Jail

MIAMI (AP)—Rioting prisoners smashed windows in Dade County's modernistic new jail Saturday, flooded cells and corridors and hurled garbage and flaming debris through the broken windows to the yard below.

Peace was restored after 4½ hours, with 15 alleged leaders in solitary confinement. No injuries were reported to either officers or prisoners. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Barry Aide Sees Rumford Act Repeal

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The financial coordinator for Sen. Barry Goldwater's California campaign Saturday predicted voters would repeal the Rumford Housing Act this November.

"The initiative is going to carry by the largest majority of any initiative in the history of California," said former Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell.

Shell spoke at an afternoon session of the board of directors of the California Young Republicans Organization.

Louisiana's Block-LBJ Bid Fails

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—The Democratic State Central Committee refused by a single vote Saturday to knock out a move for independent presidential electors that could keep President Johnson off the Louisiana ballot in November.

Arch-segregationist Leander H. Perez, victorious after a complicated struggle over parliamentary procedure, said it was not a rebuff of Johnson, considered the probable party nominee.

But, he said, "it will force . . . Johnson to come to Louisiana and tell the voters what he's going to do for them—and then the voters will give him a kick in the pants."

Salinger Says Water Top Issue

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Pierre Salinger, seeking the Democratic senatorial nomination, listed California's water problems Saturday as one of the issues he'll hit hardest.

"There cannot be a more important statewide issue," Salinger said. "Our lives for the next 100 years will be affected by the decisions soon to be made about water."

SAC Chief Says Pentagon Is Forcing His Retirement

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Gen. Thomas Power, head of the Strategic Air Command, said Saturday in a copyrighted story in the Omaha World-Herald he is being forced to retire on schedule Nov. 30.

"I'm not quitting," Power said. "They're asking me to leave." He has been commander-in-chief of SAC since July 1957.

He said he plans to publish "Design for Survival," a book which he said has been ordered withheld from print by a Defense Department order for more than five years.

FABULOUS COMMAND: THE 15TH AIR FORCE

Despite the fact that he is a staunch advocate of a mixed force of bombers and missiles, Gen. Old is a heavy-bomber man since long before World War II.

Today, he'll grin slightly and tell you that despite the ever-increasing number of missiles, most of Fifteenth Air Force's lethal destructive power is carried in the bomb bays of his B52s.

Professional management of men, money and machinery is the cornerstone on which the success of the Fifteenth, as well as SAC, rests.

"Management is everything," Gen. Old says flatly, "in operations as well as administration."

* * * *

THE GENERAL is speaking as a big businessman, operating a business solely designed to prevent war but operated in such a manner that should an aggressor start a war the attack could be absorbed and the enemy defeated.

He heads a "corporation" that is composed of more than 77,000 people including 10,000 officers, 61,000 airmen and 6,000 civilians.

Assets of this carefully managed business run by Gen. Old total around $6 billion. Included are equipment valued at more than $500 million and supplies totaling $175 million. Its real property adds up to more than $1½ billion and its aircraft and other weapons to almost $4 billion.

And, like any other growing concern, Gen. Old and his Fifteenth Air Force have to spend money to stay in business; a lot of money. Pay for officers, airmen and civilians alone comes to almost $300 million a year. Then other items such as subsistence for personnel, medical services, etc., add up to approximately $500 million each year.

* * * *

THERE are other dollars spent—for fuels.

Weapons use a lot of fuel these days and the fuels are varied.

For example, because of high altitudes at which aircraft fly today, liquid oxygen is vital. Almost 6 million gallons were used last year. Both Atlas and Titan 1 missiles use large quantities of this oxygen or LOX as it is called.

The Minuteman is a solid-fuel missile and Titan II uses a special type of storable fuel.

Helium is also used, about 37 million cubic feet a year. Nitrogen needed in the Atlas and Titan I totals more than 7½ million gallons a year.

Jet bombers, tankers, and other planes consumed about 635 million gallons of kerosene (JP4) last year which cost $63 million. Other fuels and LOX and nitrogen cost about 3½ million a year.

Much of the liquid oxygen and nitrogen is manufactured in plants operated by the Fifteenth Air Force. Each missile base has a plant with a capacity of 5,000 gallons a day for either LOX or nitrogen.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, Gen. Old manages 15 B52 and 9 B47 jet-bomber squadrons, plus 13 KC135 jet-tanker squadrons. Bomber, tanker and missile-combat crews work more than 74 hours a week on an average work schedule.

By last summer there were 22 operating ICBM squadrons capable of launching missiles against an aggressor, 16 of them in the Fifteenth Air Force.

The boss of this far-flung empire, Gen. Old, like the majority of successful executives of the nation's major corporations, is a perfectionist.

As a youngster in Farmersville, Texas, in college at Trinity University and Texas University, and through aviation cadet days in the old Army Air Corps, Gen. Old always left his mark for getting the most out of everything he did.

His never-ending demand for efficiency has enabled him to put several outstanding accomplishments into the history of military aviation.

* * * *

ONE OF his prime efforts was the first round-the-world flight of three Boeing B52 heavy bombers in 1957.

When the historic project was given the Fifteenth Air Force by the Strategic Air Command, Gen. Old delegated it to the 93rd Bombardment Wing at Castle Air Force Base near Merced but let it be known that he would fly in the lead airplane.

After careful perusal of all phases of planning, Gen. Old took off from Castle Air Force Base on Jan. 16, 1957, and circled the globe in his B52, a total distance of 24,325 miles, in 45 hours and 19 minutes, landing at March Air Force Base.

Perfectionist Old refused to get excited when he was greeted after landing. He had reviewed the operation many times before taking off and knew that it could be done. He told reporters that the flight was merely a routine SAC mission and that "the planning and preparation that went into the aerial circumnavigation were identical to what is remanded every day in the Fifteen Air Force and the Strategic Air Command."

* * * *

THE TRIM general is keen on physical conditioning and works out in the base gymnasium every chance he gets. He usually skips lunch and spends the noon hour in the gym.

He is an expert golfer, playing in major amateur tournaments whenever his busy schedule will allow. He carries a high average as a bowler, like hunting and fishing when he has time, and is considered a gin rummy expert.

He is known as a tough taskmaster, but on the other hand, will fight for his men with higher headquarters even more enthusiastically than the higher headquarters may like. "We keep our troubles in the family," he says grinning. "To the outside world we present a solid front."

A staff officer at Fifteenth Air Force headquarters last week noted that "General Old is a pilot's pilot. With his experience as a combat pilot and flying know-how, his is fully acquainted with all operational and technical requirements facing his command. He is demanding but asks nothing of his staff officers which he cannot do himself.

* * * *

"BRIEFLY, under the outside toughness is a warm human being whose concern for his men is as important as the mission."

Gen. Old, in a interview with The Independent, Press-Telegram, was equally emphatic about his interest in his men.

"They're the best," he says. "While we take advantage of every—and I mean every—scientific device that comes along, the mechanical brain or gadget is only as good as the man who runs it.

"There will never be a mechanical substitute for man's ingenuity, dedication, courage and reliability as typified by our SAC personnel.

"Our men are the greatest force for peace in the world today.

"Their willingness to put in a 74-hour work-week, to spend days at a time away from their families, and their ability to maintain a constant state of alert is the major deterrent—the critical factor that would make it profitless for anyone to attack us.

* * * *

ALERT is a way of life for Gen. Old and all his men. The general himself, or his deputy, is always on instant call.

In addition to communication systems in his office and in his car, Gen. Old carries a radio on his belt so he can be summoned at any time.

Even in his more relaxed moments recalling his days in Europe with Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, then the commander of the Eighth Air Force and now the Air Force's chief of staff, Gen. Old is only a telephone ring from instant action.

His belt radio is with him on the base golf course. He knows that even as he answers it, his staff car will be careening down the fairway to pick him up and speed him to his command post.

Instant communications are vital to him. A 30-second delay in a call is 30 seconds too long.

"When your phone rings," says one key staff officer, "you damn well better pick it up on the first ring. There just aren't any excuses.

"Oh, its a little different at home when you're off duty—You're allowed up to six rings then—but you better not take 'em all."

That's life in SAC—

And, particularly, that's life in Fifteenth Air Force under Gen. Old.

One ring from "go".

(Next week: Comat Control Center).

CROCKETT (UPI) — Union workers at the California and Hawaii sugar plant here went on strike Saturday after negotiations on a new contract deadlocked.

Missile Contract Awarded by Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has awarded a $13,222,358 contract to General Dynamics, Pomona, to begin production of Redeye missiles, the office of U.S. Sen. Clair Engle said.

The shoulder-fired Redeye is designed to destroy low-flying enemy aircraft.

Automaton Roams Johns Hopkins Corridors and Offices

BALTIMORE (AP)—An automation that roams halls and offices is giving the jitters to scientists at the Johns Hopkins University applied physics laboratory.

The 100-pound robot, dubbed the Beast, sends staff members scurrying to slam their doors when they hear its buzzing approach, lest it pop into their offices.

The robot, which looks like a huge hatbox on wheels, is the only one in the world that can survive in a natural environment—in this case a maze of corridors and offices at the lab.

Hopkins scientists have given the beast a computer brain and an electrical sense of touch that enable it to replenish its energy and cope with obstacles.

When its 12 silver cadmium batteries start to run down, the Beast feels its way along a corridor until it finds an electrical outlet. Microswitch fingers on the end of its arm can sense the contours of a regular electric socket. When contact is made, the robot inserts two prongs into the outlet and recharges the batteries. Then it pulls out the prongs and moves on.

The machine steers itself by using its arm and microswitches built into its wraparound bumper to feel its way along corridors cluttered with soft drink machines, stair wells, office doors and people.

Occasionally, its arm gets caught in a stair railing or an electrical cord and has to extricate itself.

"To survive, it has to be able to recognize that it is not getting anywhere," said George Carlton, the scientist who heads the laboratory's adaptive machines group.

The robot moves back and forth, shaking its arm to disentangle it. If that doesn't work, it does a pirouette. If it is still caught, it tries backing straight away. With built-in persistence, it keeps wiggling until it is free.

Soon, Hopkins scientists will equip the Beast with an echo-ranging device so it can roll straight down hallways and an electric eye for spotting wall plugs.

Eventually, scientists hope to develop more complicated models that can be used for space and underwater exploration.

MacArthur Entombed in Norfolk Memorial

general had held to be the highest human aspiration: "Duty, Honor, Country."

Perhaps she remembered the day nearly two years ago when, already tiring and sensing that his life was drawing to a close, he stood at West Point and told the cadet corps: "The shadows are lengthening for me . . . I listen vainly, but with thirsty ear, for the witching melody of faint bugles blowing . . ."

At her left stood their tall, dark-haired son, Arthur, 27. At her right stood Douglas II, the general's nephew, who formerly was ambassador to Japan and to Belgium.

Mrs. MacArthur was entirely composed—as she had been throughout—when she was handed the folded U.S. flag that had covered the casket. She thanked the escort commander, Maj. Gen. Hugh M. Exton, when he presented the Flag to her, and then clasped it to her breast with black-gloved hands.

That was the end of funeral services that began at the rotunda, went in solemn military procession to ancient St. Paul's Episcopal Church, two blocks away, for a half-hour ceremony, and returned to the Memorial for the burial rites.

The services lasted an hour and 20 minutes, ending at 10:40 a.m. The family received condolences from friends and old military comrades inside the memorial after that. When Mrs. MacArthur, her son, and Douglas II emerged at 11:25 a.m., she still was clutching the Flag.

Midway down the front steps of the columned, 114-year-old building, she stopped and handed the colors—folded to a small triangle, with the stars showing—to Norfolk City Manager Thomas Maxwell. It will be put in the Memorial.

Mrs. MacArthur and Arthur left immediately for New York by plane from the Naval Air Station here.

The casket rested on a platform that had been built over a circular, depressed crypt area, 36 feet in diameter, in the middle of the rotunda. Late in the afternoon, in private, the coffin was lowered into its tomb. Beside it is another tomb, for Mrs. MacArthur.

The walls of the rotunda bear the flags of the many units that fought under MacArthur. They are lettered with excerpts from his speeches, and high up in the rotunda are printed the names of his campaign, from Vera Cruz to the Yalu.

It was in this setting that more than 60,000 persons filed past the bier to view the body from 6 p.m. Thursday until 7 a.m. Saturday, when the Memorial was closed to prepare for the services.

MRS. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR accepts flag that covered casket of Gen. MacArthur during services in the MacArthur Memorial at Norfolk, Va. Making presentation is Maj. Gen. H. M. Eaton. Next to him is former ambassador Douglas MacArthur, the general's nephew. At right is general's son Arthur.

POOCH IS A REAL WAG

We've Had Cat Burglars; Now -- You Guessed It

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (UPI)—Police advised a St. Joseph couple Saturday to put their money in a bank—or get a new watchdog.

Officers received a telephone call Friday night reporting $10,400 missing from the pair's home.

A thorough search of the house turned up the money. Some was hidden under the bed and the rest was stashed behind the toilet.

The couple's pet dog apparently had a busy night lugging the money bags from one part of the house to another.

Police declined to identify the couple for fear a real burglar would get wind of the easy pickings.

Petty Officer Uniform Put to the Test

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Testing has begun at North Island Naval Air Station on a new type uniform for Navy First and Second class petty officers.

Fifty petty officers have been selected to try out the uniform, a replica of the chief petty officers' uniforms except for insignia.

A Navy spokesman said 1,000 of the new uniforms would be tested throughout Navy commands to determine whether morale, recruitment and retention of Navy personnel are improved.

A pool of chief petty officers last year indicated they were against lower petty officers having the same uniform, but a similar poll of enlisted men indicated dissatisfaction with their uniforms.

Posh Ceremony to Unite Irene, Prince Carlos

PARIS (UPI)—The wedding of Princess Irene of The Netherlands and Prince Carlos de Bourbon-Parma will be "a grand and splendid ceremony" celebrated by "hundreds" of Spanish Carlists, a spokesman for the prince said Saturday.

The spokesman laughed at rumors around Europe that "La Princesse Terrible," as the French press calls Irene, and the prince, son of the Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne, already have wed in secret.

"That is absolutely false," the spokesman said. "When they marry, no matter where, there will be a grand and splendid ceremony which will attract without doubt hundreds and perhaps thousands of Carlists from all over Spain.

RICHARD STRAUSS'S LAST OPERA GLORIOUS

USC Gives 'Love of Danae' U.S. Premiere

By RACHEL MORTON

Walter Ducloux has added still another star to his crown of musical achievements as head of the music department of USC. On Friday night in Bovard Auditorium the USC Opera Theater presented the American premier of "The Love of Danae," the last opera written by Richard Strauss.

Ducloux staged and conducted the performance which will be repeated tonight and Tuesday night.

After hearing this masterpiece by one of the greatest composers of our time, it is hard to understand why it has been so shamefully neglected in our country for so long a time. (It was composed between 1938 and 1940 and Strauss died in 1949.) To Ducloux and USC we owe our profound gratitude for the privilege and honor of having this opera premiered in our midst.

The music of Richard Strauss, like that of the other genius, Richard Wagner, is heavily orchestrated in the richest of colors. Frequently one heard familiar Wagnerian influence as in the music of Jupiter's Soliloquy, so like Wotan's Farewell and in the music of the fall of Valhalla, home of the gods, requires great performers.

Ducloux, with college material both in the orchestra and among the singers, shaped a performance Friday night that was nothing short of astonishing. The large augmented orchestra played the difficult score like a professional organization and the young singers amazed us with performances near perfection.

The story concerns the unsuccessful suit of the god Jupiter for the hand of the beautiful mortal Danae.

A really great artist was discovered in Genevieve Weide, soprano, who sang the role of Danae. Her beautiful voice was voluptuously warm in color, dazzling in the upper range and faultlessly produced. To this rare vocal gift was added beauty in appearance and tender womanliness in her acting. Miss Weide should go to the very top in opera.

Richard Riffel was a handsome Midas in his tunic of gold. His powerful tenor voice found no hazards in the difficult music and there was nobility and persuasiveness in his acting. His was a professional performance of distinction and one could easily visualize in him a future Siegfried.

Another handsome figure in a tunic of blue and silver was tenor Richard Robinson as Mercury, whose vocal virility was matched by his spontaneous acting. The important and taxing role of Jupiter was sung by George Gibson. His baritone voice was not big enough for the enormous demands made upon it and his acting, though sincere, was not that of a god of Olympus.

A quartet of beautiful voices was heard in the thrilling music of the ensembles sung by the "four wives," Karla Nelson, Linda Sue Marks, Gloria Hodes and Lucille Anderton. Equally impressive were the four nephews of the king, sung by William Ghent, Peter Lau, French Tickner and Dennis Dalsimer.

Gene Allen sang well the role of the embattled Pollux and Carol Plantamura was a sympathetic Xanthe with a lovely voice.

The stage and lighting effects were exceptionally dramatic, as in the slant-shower of golden rain . . . the student appearance of the phantom ship bearing Jupiter to earth . . . the dramatic changing of Danae to a statue of gold, and the gleaming golden coins that Jupiter tossed high in the air to the milling crowds.

The costumes in different tones of gold which the principals wore in the second act were gorgeous. It was a pity that at the very end Midas did not rush dramatically on stage into the arms of his faithful wife, as the music so overwhelmingly depicted.

But above and beyond all was the soul-stirring music of Richard Strauss as Ducloux unfolded it in superb orchestral playing.

Burgess and Mercer, as a team, won first place in debate. Mercer tied with another Cerritos man, Bob Wyman, for fourth in impromptu speaking.

Gay Little placed second in women's impromptu speaking and John DeWeerd was third in men's extemporaneous speaking.

Spying Trial May 25 for GI Deserter

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — George John Gessner, a 28-year-old Army deserter charged with passing military secrets to the Russians, Saturday was found mentally competent to stand trial, and trial was set for May 25.

Federal District Judge Arthur Stanley Jr. said Gessner is "mentally competent to understand the charges against him and assist in his defense."

Gessner, born in Homestead, Pa., was brought here for his third mental competency hearing since he was charged March 16, 1962, with passing U.S. missile and nuclear weapons secrets to Soviet agents at the Russian Embassy in Mexico City.

Stanley ordered Gessner held without bail at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Dr. George S. Parlato, psychiatrist at the U.S. Medical Center at Springfield, Mo., testified as to Gessner's mental competency at the brief hearing.

C. C. Prof Authors Cook Book

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I, P-T Food Editor

No avocation would be more apropos of an English and literature professor than writing a cookbook. And no one would be better qualified to write a cook book than Dr. George C. Booth, "prof" at Long Beach City College.

To say that Dr. Booth is a "prof" is understating the facts. Thirty years ago he started his career at Long Beach City College as instructor and faculty adviser of journalism. His colleagues and students proclaim him one of the most popular professors on the campus, and one whose classes are unique and wonderfully interesting.

* * * *

A FREELANCE writer and photographer, Booth has, since 1936, made many trips to Mexico, and while on sabbatical leave in '58-'59, he and Mrs. Booth took up residence there. He speaks the language like a native.

The book now completed, and been published by the Ward Ritchie Press, will be available in Long Beach on April 20 at Buffums book department, Called "The Food and Drink of Mexico," it is chock full of authentic and exceptional dishes. It is a book of Mexican cookery which will delight and intrigue those interested in distinctive and unusual food, with drink recipes from all Latin America. He was inspired to write the book when he became aware that the food in Mexico is much more than beans and tamales.

WASHINGTON — Rep. Craig Hosmer, R. Long Beach Friday urged young men in his district, the 32nd, who would like to be considered for enrollment in the service academies in 1965 to apply to him no later than June 1.

He said requests should be in by then so arrangements can be made with the Civil Service Commission for candidates to participate in examination which will be given locally on July 13.

Hosmer said he requires these examinations because his designations are made partly on the basis of grades received. He said those wishing to compete in the designating examination should send their requests to him. The address: Room 530, House Office Building, Washington 25, D.C.

Each of the 14 areas' boards of directors within the county choose the two persons they wish to represent their area on the county's general board.

N. L. McLaughlin, area chairman for the formation of the Congress, stated that more than 1,200 people in the Long Beach area have been asked to serve on the congress.

He pointed out that in addition to voting on board members each Congress is charged with reflecting public opinion, advising its community board and providing a channel of communication between the county wide United Way organization and the donors, agencies and cities.

Chairman of the nominating committees for the different communities were: Don L. Nutter, Long Beach; Wallace L. Bruce, Lakewood; E. Thornton Ibbetson, Bellflower and Mrs. Eva Huffine, Paramount.

Johnson Calls on Old Friend Frankfurter

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson paid a 20-minute call Saturday on retired Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter and said he intends to return from time to time.

The President described the 81-year-old Frankfurter as a "genuine and very dear friend." He said he had been corresponding with Frankfurter and when an opening developed on his schedule decided to visit him at his apartment in northwest Washington.

Frankfurter suffered a stroke-like illness two years ago and remains partly paralyzed. He greeted the President in a business suit and sat in a desk chair as they conferred in the study of his second floor apartment.

UNUSUAL CAR DEALER TELLS STORY OF HUGE PRICE CUTTING

"1964 AUTOMOBILE DISCOUNT SELLING ANGERS COMPETITORS IN LONG BEACH

"A most unusual car dealer" as Bill Whitledge is know in automotive circles, said yesterday that his low cost 1964 automobile selling program has caused some strong protests from other Long Beach dealers.

"I can't help it if they get mad," says Bill with a friendly smile, "this is a highly competitive business, if I'm offering the buyer a better deal, why, naturally he'll buy from me" but Whitledge's Village Motors dealership is not without considerable respect from the majority of car dealers in and around Long Beach. His long-standing reputation in the area has been a large factor in the success which he has enjoyed.

We Sell Them Low Because They're "Used"

Although the many 1964 cars have much of the new car warrantee and other guarantees, the Village Motors' policy insists that they be "used cars" even if they still smell brand new and may have as little as 1,500 miles on them. "If a man wants to buy a car that looks new, drives new, but costs the same as a used car then he'll wind up at Village Motors," according to Whitledge. "We've got mostly 64s, 63s' and 62s, none of those old-timers." It may be significant that most buyers are looking for something a little better than they're presently driving, consequently they may be looking for a very late-model, like a 1964, during the same year.

Shrewder Buyers Impressed by Savings

"Car buyers are much more attentive to the small details about buying a car nowadays" asserts Whitledge, "they shop around more, compare cars and prices more, and I think they get more for their money" he continues, "at least they do at Village."

Profit Margin Not a Factor

"The way we work it, we'll take a particular car, say a 1964 Ford, we'll spotlight this car for a month and sell as many as we can, then we'll go to Pontiacs or Oldsmobiles. "Of course, we get the cream of the crop, they're real clean so they move fast." Evidently they do move as fast as Villages says, because the volume of our business is phenomenal. "We move so darn many cars that we can cut our mark-up way down." When asked how it was possible to sell so many cars, Whitledge replied: "we've got ways to finance people so that they have the smallest down payment possible, and our prices are so low that monthly payments are quite small too." To be specific, he pointed out that "we'd rather make $50 a car on fifty cars, than make $400 a car on five cars, this way, we sell lots of clean cars for low prices to people who really appreciate the savings, we make some good money, and the buyers give us lots of referrals."

Even Offer Six Month Guarantees

"When we sell a car, we sell security and confidence with it as well," continues Whitledge, "if a car does not happen to have a balance of new car warranty Village Motors backs it up and guarantees the engine, transmission and differential of all our cars for ninety days, plus we warrantee all parts and labor for six months at our cost." This unusual dealer, with his high volume of late model near-new cars will bear watching.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

LBJ Gains Respite in 1st Labor Crisis

By SAM FOGG
United Press International

President Johnson encountered his first major labor crisis last week and only through personal persuasion averted an immediate nationwide railway strike.

With less than two hours to go before a one-minute-after-midnight deadline, Johnson wrung from both sides late Thursday an agreement to postpone the looming showdown for 15 days. It took all of the carrot-and-stick skills the President learned in three decades of Capitol Hill experience to gain the respite.

* * * *

THERE STILL was no assurance that he could prevent a coast-to-coast railroad tie-up which has threatened to erupt during the prior administrations of both Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy.

Yet Johnson was exerting the strong psychological and public pressures of the presidency to win some sort of willingness from the union and management antagonists to avoid an outright strike.

After winning the 15-day breathing spell, he set up a five-man team of presidential negotiators to work with both sides in the cabinet room of the White House which is but a few paces from his own office.

* * * *

AND WHILE expressing confidence that steps toward settlement would be taken by the bargainers, Johnson served blunt notice that if need be he would ask an exasperated Congress to pass emergency legislation to prevent a crippling strike should the mediation collapse.

As matters now stand, the federal government has exhausted all legal machinery to block a rail strike under the National Railway Labor Act. In addition, legislation passed late last session which compelled the first peacetime compulsory arbitration in railroad history expired on Feb. 28.

At issue was the complex maze of new work rule changes the railroads want to institute.

The courts and a series of mediation boards have given the carriers the right to put the rules into effect, but management representatives and spokesmen for the five major rail unions have been plodding away in the hope of amicable settlement.

* * * *

THE TRUCE fell apart last week when 7,200 workers went on strike against the Illinois Central Railroad that serves a 14-state region stretching from Lake Michigan to the Gulf Coast.

Members of the Association of American Railroads promptly countered with a declaration that the carriers would impose the new work rules at 12:01 a.m. EST Friday.

At Johnson's behest, Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz summoned both sides to Washington in a fruitless effort to restore peace. At 6 p.m. Thursday with the hours ticking off, Johnson swung into action.

* * * *

HE CALLED the union and management to a personal conference in the cabinet room and tried to win agreement for a 20-day strike moratorium.

It was not until after another three and a half hours of personal bargaining by the President that the moratorium of 15 days was agreed to and the time-bomb of a strike defused—for the time being at least.

From a domestic standpoint, Johnson fared better legislatively last week when the House in a burst of post-Easter recess activity passed both a wheat-cotton farm bill and a food stamp plan he had advocated. The action was marked by a rare demonstration of solidarity between Northern and Southern Democrats.

But the sectional divisiveness that afflicts the Democratic Party was underscored Tuesday in Wisconsin's presidential primary balloting. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, entered as an outright segregationist in the Northern state, polled more than 264,000 votes or about 34.1 percent of the Democratic balloting.

Wallace, who also is an entry in coming primaries in Indiana and Maryland, ran far behind the administration's "favorite son" candidate, Gov. John W. Reynolds. But the size of his vote stirred discernible signs of concern from Northern political figures who are battling for passage of the civil rights bill by the Senate.

Throughout the week, the nation paid final tribute to Gen. Douglas MacArthur who died last Sunday. He lay in state for viewing by mourning thousands in New York City, the rotunda of the Capitol in Washington and at Norfolk, Va., his final resting place.

The passing of the 84-year-old hero of three wars marked the end of an epic military career. It also stirred a residue of controversy when two interviews he granted 10 years ago were published after his death.

In one of them—with Scripps-Howard correspondent Jim Lucas—the general was quoted as bitterly charging that the British government had betrayed him by leaking secrets of his Korean war strategy to the Chinese Communists.

Lord Attlee—the British prime minister during Korea—denied the allegation. MacArthur's long-time aide, retired Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, asserted many of the statements attributed to MacArthur in the Lucas interview were "pure fantasy."

But Whitney acknowledged that MacArthur felt that two British defectors, Guy Burgess and Donald McClean, had been responsible for giving the Reds top allied military information during the Korean War.

And another long-time MacArthur associate, Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby (ret.), who was the general's intelligence chief said he was in "substantial agreement" with the Lucas account.

FOREIGN PRESS VIEWS

Fulbright, Wallace Placed in the European Spotlight

By United Press International

European newspapers commented the past week on American home and foreign affairs, ranging from policy speeches by Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., to the Wisconsin primary.

The Times of London said, "What the senator said in his two recent speeches is not new, yet it will undoubtedly stand out as a landmark in the evolution of American policy. . .

"In effect, Sen. Fulbright is asking the American people to become less hypnotized by the threat of communism, more aware of the changes and diversity within the Communist world, and more concerned about the quality of American life.

"It would be wrong of foreigners to be patronizing about this . . . nevertheless, it is no use denying that in recent years those who have looked to the United States for enlightened leadership as well as military protection have been worried that attitudes have not changed fast enough," the Times said.

Le Monde of Paris said Alabama Gov. George Wallace's sudden entry in the Wisconsin primary "constituted a clever maneuver on the part of those who support racial segregation.

"It was aimed to prove that not only the South was against the civil rights act but also large portions of the populations in north east urban centers."

The Austrian Die Presse, commenting on the 15th anniversary of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), said:

"NATO has fulfilled its main tasks . . . in the first decade of the alliance, U.S. power and purposefulness consolidated Europe, saved it from succumbing to Soviet pressure, and closely linked Europe with America by means of a network of military, political and economic organizations. . .

"This Europe now calls for an increased share of political and military responsibility. There will hardly be a NATO after 1969 if this development continues in the next five years and if Europe becomes even more self-confident and stronger, thus prompting the United States and the Soviet Union to look for . . . joint guarantees against such a Europe."

The East Berlin newspaper Berliner Zeitung said, "Farmers are the poorest Americans. Although $10,000 a year is necessary on the farm for normal needs there are 350,000 farm families with an annual income of only $438."

Beach Combing
With Malcolm Epley

FROM Newcastle, Eng., comes Peter Stattersfield. This personable British bachelor has been visiting at the Procter and Gamble plant here (he's a P and G man in England) and his presence afforded me a chance to probe for some British impressions of the U. S. and interesting experiences of a foreign visitor.

Let's start with an amusing experience Peter had in San Francisco, where he went to see a play and unexpectedly learned about a U. S. service club whose name was new to him.

He got the last seat, in the middle of the 13th row. He immediately realized that all of the people around him were acquainted with each other, and before curtain there was a great deal of jovial talk and quip exchange buzzing around his head.

Presently a lady next to him asked his name and introduced him to her husband. Peter commented that he seemed to be in the middle of a group and the lady said yes, he was.

"We're all Lions," she said, "What are you?"

"A Christian," said Peter, whose name, perhaps, ought to be Daniel.

THE visitor is much interested in U.S. politics and is glad his first visit here was timed with the opening of the campaign.

"I arrived in the U.S. just a couple of days before the New Hampshire primary," he said. "Everybody I talked to told me that to watch for that vote because it would be highly significant.

"Then they held the election, and immediately people began telling me it didn't mean a thing. Evidently the significance of a primary election over here depends on whether you like the result."

THE talk in our little group at the Petroleum Club veered around to the U.S. role in international affairs and a couple of Americans decried what they described as Uncle Sam's timidity in dealing with other nations and U.S. fears of offending somebody.

"In Britain," Stattersfield said, there is no such impression of the U.S. The British are inclined to look upon us as pretty progressive and powerful people, and fear the possibility that some hotheaded U.S. act might start a big war with Britain caught in the crossfire. He made it plain that was the widely held view, not necessarily his.

He said most British are rather surprised at expressions of dissatisfaction by some Americans over the outcome of the Cuba confrontation of 1962. They thought that came out pretty well, whereas they hear Americans who complain that the U.S. should have gone into Cuba at the time and knocked Castro over.

THE genial Englishman, in our area for the first time, said he finds freeway traffic startling but not terrifying. He is impressed by the tendency in this area for structures to run to one and two stories — the widespread, low-rise development that has marked the region but, as we told him, may not be so commonplace here in the future.

He is fascinated by the oil wells dotting this area and in this connection offered a comparison that was a new one on me.

He said that when he was in San Francisco someone took him over to South Tahoe for a look at the gambling casinos.

"When I got down here," he said, "those steadily rocking oil pumping units reminded me of the people I saw up there pulling the handles of slot machines."

THE Newcastle man, I could see, was a little weary of quips about taking coal to his home town. There are coal mines in the area, he said, but there's also a big Procter and Gamble plant, which obviously meant more to him.

CAN CURE LEANING TOWER OF PISA

'It's a Pushover,' Says L.B. Man

By GEORGE ERES

A Long Beach man is willing to bet the Italian government he can straighten out the leaning Tower of Pisa.

"If we can't do it, it won't cost them a cent," said Robert E. Lenihan of Lenihan & Stephenson, soil stabilizers, of 1234 W. Cowles St.

"Of course, they don't want it straightened entirely, but we can bring it back to the degree of tilt they want and it won't cost any $3.2 million—the figure reported in newspaper stories out of Italy. We figure it can be done in about four months for about $250,000," said Lenihan.

Lenihan has written the Italian Ministry of Works, offering to come to Italy at his own expense to discuss the project.

* * * *

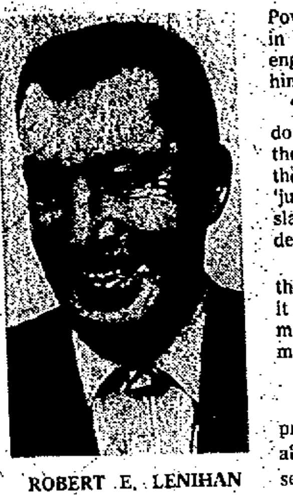
IF HE says he can do it, maybe he can. After all, his firm raised an entire mountain top.

"We were the only firm in the U.S. to bid on the job of raising the missile tracks at Hurricane Mesa, Utah. We lifted 16 to 40 feet of bedrock—not just one spot, but the whole mass about 70 feet wide and 3000 feet long —and raised it as much as three inches to conform with the curvature of the earth. We did the job, about four years ago, to correct a subsidence problem, and did it to less than one-sixteenth of an inch tolerance. It took us four months."

* * * *

LENIHAN, a crew cut, leather-tanned, self-styled "madman" at 58 has been in the construction business for 35 years and for the 15 years he has been straightening out people's sinkage problems.

"I started with sidewalks and patios and sections of



ROBERT E. LENIHAN
Modern-Day Atlas

highway," Lenihan said. "It's a very simple method—so simple that people used to refer to me as that 'crazy guy' over in Gardena."

It wasn't until he tackled and lifted the Bureau of Power & Light steam plant in Wilmington that the engineers began "talking to him."

"They didn't think I could do it," said Lenihan. "Oh, they figured I could raise the corners. But they said, 'just wait till you get to the slab with all those big condensers.'"

Lenihan not only leveled the cracked slab but raised it to its former level with its more than 100 tons of equipment in place.

* * * *

LENIHAN moved to his present site in Long Beach about eight years ago and seems to have a corner on the market on the service he deals in. He holds contracts with the Port of Long Beach, Long Beach Oil Development Co., Richfield Oil Co., Cal Vet, Union Pacific Railroad and others for soil conservation work.

"The problem of picking up something that has sunk is simple," he said. "All you need is a controllable material to pump underground. I have such a grout—a material that can be used to correct soil conditions that result from lack of compaction. There's no secret to the method: you simply improve the density of the soil and bring it to 100 percent compaction. The secret is in finding the grout that has no shrinkage. Cement and water has not proven satisfactory for this type of work."

Only two men know the proportions of the material used by the firm. Lenihan and his partner, Joe Stephenson.

"The ingredients themselves are no secret," he said. "People have samples and I suppose they've subjected them to analysis, but so far no one has been able to duplicate our material. I experimented with various proportions for three years before I hit on the right formula."

* * * *

ITALIAN engineers and geologists have been warned that the eight-story white marble tower of Pisa originally started in 1174 and completed in 1350, is leaning more and more and by 2100 will topple unless steps are taken to correct the problem. It now is more than 16 feet off perpendicular and is tilting a quarter of an inch each decade.

"We can straighten out the Tower of Pisa and raise it for them if they like," said Lenihan. "But they don't want it straightened altogether. We can not only do that but guarantee them that there will be no further settlement. We've stopped the settling of more than 250 structures. I'd sure like to cure that tower. I'd like to do it even if we don't make a nickle on it."

Safe Ejection of Pilots Possible at Ground Level

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

As recently as 1955, most military pilots who ejected from disabled aircraft below 2,000 feet need not have bothered. Nearly 90 percent of them were killed.

In a relatively few years, however, the minimum altitude for safe ejection has shrunk down to ground level. And, with the latest systems, the aircraft can be at a standstill on the runway.

Three generations of these aerial lifesavers built by engineers at Douglas Aircraft Company's Long Beach plant were dramatically demonstrated last week at a seminar sponsored by the Naval Parachute Facility at El Centro.

* * * *

LIFE-LIKE DUMMIES were ejected from a low-flying airplane and from fixed stands on the ground, all providing graphic proof of the ability to rocket pilots to safety from situations which would have been fatal a few years ago.

More than 1,500 of Douglas' oldest system, called ESCAPAC I, are installed aboard the Navy's Douglas A-4 Skyhawk attack aircraft, providing safe escape at ground level and at speeds from 70 to 600 knots.

Also demonstrated was a "souped-up" version, ESCAPAC I-C, which offers safe ejection from a standstill at ground level and in flight at all speeds up to 600 knots.

* * * *

THIS SYSTEM IS especially applicable for vertical takeoff and landing aircraft and was chosen for the Lockheed XV-4A Hummingbird VTOL research plane and the Ling-Temco-Vought XC-142A VTOL aircraft.

The third version of the Douglas ejection seat, ESCAPAC II, also has a zero speed-zero altitude capability, with an additional margin of safety provided by a unique parachute which is literally exploded open to deploy the canopy four times as fast as conventional methods.

A charge fires the chute out to the length of the shroud lines, where a second charge fires, ejecting 14 weights attached to the skirt of the canopy. The process pops the parachute open in less than half a second, compared to about two seconds for the conventional method under zero speed conditions.

Promote Deputy City Attorneys

Two Long Beach deputy city attorneys have been promoted in a staff reorganization revealed Saturday by City Atty. Leonard Putnam.

In a letter to the City Council Putnam named Malcolm E. Uptegraff as assistant city attorney and Harold A. Lingle as chief deputy. Both will serve in the city hall office.

The title of Philip J. Brady, head of the harbor branch of the Law Department, will be changed from assistant to chief deputy.

* * * *

PUTNAM will seek council confirmation Tuesday. The reorganization, he said, will effect a "definite chain of command and responsibility" at the city hall office.

Uptegraff joined the city attorney's staff in 1958. He has lived in Long Beach since 1926, graduating from Poly High School and Long Beach Junior College (now City College).

After receiving his law degree from Southwestern University Law School and serving 56 months in the Army, he entered private practice here in 1946.

He and his wife, Marie, reside at 1520 E. Second St. Their son, Michael, attends the University of California Medical School.

* * * *

LINGLE, a Long Beach native, also graduated from Poly as well as the University of Oregon. He received his law degree from Harvard Law School in 1948.

Appointed a deputy in 1956, the new chief deputy has been assigned in recent years to the drafting of tideland oil contracts and related unitization agreements. In this capacity he has appeared many times before the State Lands Commission and other state officials.

Red Cross Fund Drive Push Due

An all-out effort is announced for this week's extension of the fund campaign of Long Beach Chapter, American Red Cross.

"Our March coverage of the city and branches was considerably retarded by Easter week vacations and by chapter work load related to the Alaskan earthquake," said James A. Willingham, fund chairman.

He made a call for potential contributors to mail in their checks or telephone the chapter at 319 W. Broadway for someone to pick up uncollected funds.

"Making contacts is our major campaign problem," he emphasized.

* * * *

WILLINGHAM summarized last week's results:

Collections of $260,000 were tallied toward the overall goal of $387,974.

Artesia and Bellflower branches both passed last year's totals on their climbs to top their goals.

Collections above last year were reported by Long Beach postal employes, Ocean Center building, Los Altos and North Long Beach.

"Dramatic and continued needs in Alaska and other stricken areas in this year of tragic disasters make it imperative that American Red Cross reach its financial goals," said Willingham.

More of Same?

WILL THE RESULT of the revolution in Brazil merely be the exchange of one form of tyranny for another?

The rebels toppled the government of President Goulart on the well-documented charge that he was turning Brazil into a Communist state.

No one in the free world wept to see Goulart deposed, but there's not much to cheer in the developments in the Brazilian government under the new leaders.

The revolutionary leaders, bypassing the Brazilian Congress, have empowered themselves to suspend political rights in Brazil for 10 years. They have granted sweeping powers to an interim president not yet selected. They have imposed censorship on the press. And they have frankly admitted: "It remains very clear that the revolution does not seek to legitimize itself through Congress."

In brief, they have taken the familiar preliminary steps toward totalitarian government.

Perhaps it is their sincere intention to relinquish power in good time and hand the reins to democratic government. History, however, offers few examples of despotic governments deliberately giving way to less arbitrary forms.

The revolution offered Brazil a chance to save itself. But the question remains to be answered whether the Brazilian government will be something better or just more of the same—whether the new leaders, succumbing to the temptations which Goulart found irresistible, will commit the very mistakes against which they rebelled.

Drafts Take Work

GOV. WILLIAM W. SCRANTON of Pennsylvania says he is not a candidate for President, that he will not campaign for the nomination, but that he would accept a draft call if it came from the hearts of the people.

Perhaps it's possible for a man to get the nomination in this manner, but the chances are against it. Candidates who said approximately what Scranton is saying have obtained the nomination—but only because, contrary to their utterances, they worked hard to get it.

In politics, drafts are rarely spontaneous. They are made by opening doors and operating the bellows of propaganda. When the draft appears spontaneous, it is because of the smoothness of the techniques used to create it.

If Gov. Scranton gets the nomination, it will be almost certainly because he committed himself to that end and worked in some fashion to attain it. One might add, perhaps, that the man who is unwilling to do so does not deserve the prize.

Recipe for Chaos

AT FIRST BLUSH, one is inclined to admire the spunk of folk singer Joan Baez for refusing to pay that portion of her income tax which goes for purposes with which she does not agree.

But on second thought, it is clear that if followed by any substantial number of citizens, her example would lead to anarchy and chaos.

Just as Miss Baez dislikes federal military expenditures, others may protest agricultural subsidies, aid to education, and any number of programs of government.

A person may question the wisdom of certain government projects, but obviously he cannot be permitted to choose which projects he shall support.

The survival of organized, democratic government hangs on the thread of mutual compromise. Miss Baez no doubt benefits from many a federal program which others find objectionable.

Korean War Review Offers Reminder of U.N. Weakness

LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The controversy again emerging over the obstacles faced by Gen. MacArthur in trying to win the war in Korea 13 years ago is just as important today as it was in April and May of 1951. For when an international armed force is mobilized to maintain peace anywhere in the world, the United Nations appears to have no effective system that will enable its agent—the armed forces of the United States, in the case of Korea—to win the victory by using the normal methods of military strategy. As a consequence, American lives were sacrificed in Korea, and Red China was not punished for her aggression.

When the crisis did arise in Korea in 1951, American forces were held back from winning the victory because our European allies—Great Britain and France—did not wish to take the risk involved in pushing the war vigorously against the Red Chinese.

Gen. MacArthur's disappointment that he was not permitted to carry out his plan to win the war was the direct outgrowth of a situation on which, while in the Far East, he was not adequately informed. It was a contest going on behind the scenes in and around the United Nations itself. The weakness in trying to adjust military facts to diplomatic theories continues to exist today.

The U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff here had unanimously supported Gen. MacArthur's recommendation that the Chinese air bases in Manchuria, north of the Yalu River, should be bombed. In fact, the Joint Chiefs, 90 days before Gen. MacArthur was relieved of his command in Korea, explicitly approved the entire military plan he espoused—namely, to use the Chinese Nationalist troops and some American divisions to impose a military and economic blockade against the common enemy and to permit air reconnaissance over Manchuria and China.

* * * *

AS FOR AN economic boycott—a problem somewhat similar to the one that arose recently in the Cuban situation—it so happens that countries which were members of the Security Council itself engaged in trading with the enemy during the Korean War. It was disclosed early in 1951 that 120,000 tons of rubber had been sent to the Communists through the British port of Hong Kong after the war began in June 1950—four times that what was shipped in 1949 through British sources. Oil, steel, aluminum, electrical equipment, copper wire and other strategic materials also were being shipped to the Chinese Communists.

When Gen. MacArthur testified before the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees on May 4, 1951, he made this significant statement.

"One of the great weaknesses of the United Nations effort as a United Nations effort there is that it was not well balanced. Almost the entire burden of blood and effort and money is confined to two countries—the native country of the Koreans, and ourselves. . . .

"The relativity of authority in making international decisions should be based in some degree upon the responsibilities of the agents that carry it out. And if one nation carries 90 per cent of the effort, it's quite inappropriate that nations that only carry a small fraction of the efforts and the responsibility should exercise undue authority upon the decisions that are made."

The most sensational proof of how the United States government was forced to accede to the allied wishes is also to be found in the testimony before the Senate Committees which revealed that the United States Department of State on March 20, 1951, had requested Gen. MacArthur to agree to deploy his troops in such a way as to avoid "any advance with major forces North of the 38th Parallel." He was instructed to "permit sufficient freedom of action for next few weeks to provide security for U.N. forces and maintain contact with enemy," so as to give time "to determine diplomatic reactions and permit new negotiations that may develop." This was the beginning of the appeasement and compromise in Korea—the acceptance of an armistice that that has to this day not been followed up by the signing of any peace treaty.

The Socialist Labor government was in power in Great Britain at the time when the trading with the enemy of the U.N. was going on. In the British Parliament, the "left wing" of the Labor Party even introduced a motion in the House of Commons calling for an expression of "no confidence" in Gen. MacArthur.

* * * *

SEVERAL days before Gen. MacArthur was relieved of his command, this correspondent wrote in a dispatch that President Truman was being urged to reprimand the general and that demands for this action were coming from London particularly. Gen. MacArthur had publicly appealed to the United Nations for military help. He had asked for reinforcements again and again, to no avail. He sought the right to bombard the Communist bases from which the Chinese were coming to attack his forces, but the British publicly denounced him—and kept on trading with the enemy.

A general election is to be held in Great Britain this autumn, and undoubtedly the foreign policy of the British Labor party, as revealed in the campaign, will be watched with much concern on this side of the Atlantic in view of the record made by the Laborites in the Korean War.

An Ike Vote to Lodge Would Close Books on a '52 Favor

I, P-T Political Editor

RECIPROCAL TRADE may prove to be the fattest issue in next July's selection of a Republican presidential ticket—not reciprocal trade in the traditional context, but rather in the trading of political favors and prestige.

HOUSER

The story started 12 years ago. Henry Cabot Lodge was a chief persuader of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower to run for president. Lodge even went so far as to assure Americans that the hero-general would come home from his foreign billet, discard his unifrom and be available.

Lodge was joined by Washington public relations man Robert R. Mullen in working for Ike in that faraway New Hampshire primary. The effort succeeded in knocking down an odds-on conservative favorite, Robert A. Taft. The man from the foreign outpost, thousands of miles away, came home and won.

In late 1963 Ike urged Lodge to make himself available. Although Ike's was not an exclusive endorsement, it touched off the little blitz which won Lodge a smashing victory in the latest New Hampshire primary against an odds-on conservative favorite—Barry Goldwater—and has him today leading the polls.

MULLEN NOW is the national coordinator of the Draft Lodge campaign. Lodge is now the man thousands of miles away. And although Ike has not completed the parallel of 1952 by assuring America that Lodge will return, Mullen, in his own way has, in these words:

"We know that if the clear call is sounded, he will report for duty, and that he will report with the full elan of a good soldier, full of fight and spirit, and with the smell of victory in the air. His own commitment to an all-out campaign is the least of our worries."

Lodge, incidentally, is a major general in the Army Reserve.

There is certainly no lack of debate on Lodge's capabilities in the field of foreign policy, an area which opponents of the Johnson administration say promises to be the best point of attack for Republicans.

The range of this debate varies from the recently publicized pamphlet of a group backing Goldwater which implies Lodge is soft on communism to the estimate of a national pundit that Lodge's experience as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations make him "more qualified for the presidency than any other candidate."

A Saturday Evening Post editorial two months before the New Hampshire primary noted Lodge's international reputation gained from his conduct of the UN office. It said:

He discarded the cautious routine of waiting for instructions from the State Department before replying to Russian attacks. In its place he established a policy of refuting the Russians point by point on the spot.

"IN HIS EIGHT years at the UN, the U.S. did not lose a major clash with the Russians in the Security Council or the General Assembly."

If the polls are accurate, the GOP candidates at home and working face—strangely—an uphill fight against this illustrious absentee. But they apparently do not want for ammunition. They note Lodge's losses to John F. Kennedy for the Senate and on the Nixon presidential ticket. They accuse him of campaigning on bankers' hours in the 1960 national race and of actually being responsible for the miniscule deficit by which the GOP failed in that election.

IKE MAY yet be the biggest factor for Lodge in the convention showdown so widely forecast. If Ike, reinforced by stunning primary performances of Lodge's stateside campaign guerillas, is called upon, or insists upon shaping platform and ticket towards a best-prospect chance for the GOP, whom will he recommend?

July, 1964, may be the closing point of the full circle of the Lodge-Eisenhower reciprocal trade.

Golden Road to Godlessness

EDITOR:

With a population of 180,000,000 people harboring every crackpot theory of life known to man and being sponsored by some person or group, what are we waiting for? We have a panacea for every ailment known to a nation. Its amazing to see so many brilliant ideas floating around and due to the lethargy of our leaders, none of them are as yet, in operation.

(1) "Abolish all millionaires and divide the money equally among the people."

(2) "Have our government deposit $1,000,000 in the banks for every citizen and they can live on the interest."

(3) Every citizen out of a job, to be paid a handsome salary for life."

Since everyone is striving for less work and more pay, why not do the job right? Abolish all work and pay every citizen $10,000 per week for life and no tax. Our government would have nothing to do but print money.

What about the economy of our country? Just forget it. What of the monotony of such a system? Simple, monotony has no effect on stupidity. Under such systems, we would have nothing to worry about except population explosions. Utopia would be just around the corner.

We could turn our churches into dance halls, because religion would be an extra burden under such systems. Our schools could be used for gambling halls, and think of the happiness, peace and contentment we could enjoy. We would learn war no more and we could live on isles of golden dreams, until we were awakened to the realization of the fact that we had been enshrined in Mr. Khrushchev's temples of atheism.

'Free Money' Just a Mirage

EDITOR:

The question of the West Beach Project was studied by the Shoreline Development Committee during the recent Long Beach Chamber of Commerce Congress For Progress. It was brought out at that meeting that the Chamber was 100 per cent for the re-development but 100 per cent opposed to the use of federal subsidies for such an undertaking. We hope that this is the feeling of the Re-development Agency. Long Beach is fortunate to have such farsighted men who are able to see through the fallacies of federal subsidies.

The National Chamber has recently completed a major examination of the Federal Urban renewal and Public Housing Programs. This study is most astonishing. In the first place, the federal government's "take" on these programs is approximately 13 per cent. In other words, it costs the local tax payer about $1 control cost for every $7.50 in subsidies. Secondly, a major portion of federal urban renewal and public housing dollars is being spent in areas where housing is relatively good and incomes relatively high. To illustrate, in Connecticut and New Jersey where over 70 per cent of the families earn over $4,000 a year and less than 20 per cent of the housing is substandard, federal housing grants are $2,682 and $1,959 for each family with less than $4,000 income respectively. For the country as a whole, the average grant is only $615 per family.

IN ARKANSAS and Mississippi more than 40 per cent of the housing is substandard and over half of the families are in the low income brackets. In fact, Mississippi has 49.2 per cent of its housing rated substandard and 62.8 per cent of its families have low incomes. Yet in these two states the federal housing grants amount to less than $250 per lower family income.

All this is not too surprising to the intelligent well-informed citizen. He realizes that the soundest government is that which is closest to the people. He realizes that the mirage, FREE FEDERAL MONEY, is just that.

Again congratulations to our farsighted local civic leaders who are devoting so much valuable time promoting the West Beach Project the hard way—that is on a local control basis.

Yours very truly,
JOSEPH P. KESLER

Election-Year Paralysis Sets In

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Election-year paralysis, that mysterious force which postpones controversial decisions, has gripped the legislative process earlier than usual this season.

The tip-off came from Senate President Pro Tempore Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno.

Burns, a strong advocate of district reform, acknowledged that is is unlikely the 1964 special-session will have time to resolve differences over educational reforms. Burns wants forced consolidation of school districts.

M'CAULEY

Burns, a realist on problem-solving within the shadows of an election, modifed his position slightly. He indicated he might favor more state aid to schools as a stopgap measure in 1964—prior to 1965 reforms as a result of broad between-sessions' studies. Previously, he demanded reforms be enacted before any new funds are voted.

Thus, educational reforms have been sidetracked for another year due to the 1964 election.

And a whole wave of similar after-election postponements are in the making.

One legislative committee had announced it would hold a series of hearings on pay-television. But with pay-TV a probable hot ballot issue, the Sacramento betting is that it won't be scheduled for a legislative airing until after November.

Also, Assemblyman Lester McMillan, D-Los Angeles, has said he plans to hold a hearing at Seal Beach into senior citizens housing developments. The issue is a hot controversy because of a ruckus over new medical charges at Rossmoor Leisure World. But no hearing date has been slated yet, and the Sacramento speculation is that it won't come till after the election.

Also facing an election heave-ho is a suggestion for placing law enforcement on the special-session agenda of the legislature.

The Republican Assembly caucus, supporting a proposal of Assemblyman C. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, strongly has urged such a special-session call. But Chairman Gordon Winton, D-Merced, of the Assembly Criminal Procedures Committee, opposed it. And Gov. Brown says he won't place the issue on special call, noting that neither Democrats nor law enforcement agencies have made such a request.

However, real reason for the no-crime session is that the special session already includes 51 issues—and that is a long list for a hectic election year.

The June 2 primary is now only weeks off.

That means the 1964 special session could end any time this month. And many of the 1964 controversies will be carried over to other legislative years.

Election-year delays are anticipated. The constitution provides that the general sessions are to occur in odd-numbered years—the ones which don't have the major elections.

Legislative leaders had urged Gov. Brown to hold down agenda items to a minimum. That failed. So an effort now is under way to defer action on some of the more controversial phases of the program.

* * * *

SUCH IS THE plight of California, where an outmoded constitutional provision calls for Assemblymen to face election every two years. It's always election season. And realistically, campaigns and election pressures cut into the efficiency of the legislative process.

Taxpayers would get a better bargain on lawmaking if assemblymen were elected to four-year terms, giving them the same stature as senators. Long Beach, which has two assemblymen but must share a senator with all of Los Angeles County, especially would benefit from enhancing the prestige of Assemblymen and eliminating half the elections. In contrast, senators already are elected for four-year terms.

Cabinet Still Haggling on Wheat Sale

WASHINGTON — Four Cabinet members attended a closed-door meeting with leaders of the longshoremen's and the seamen's unions recently to try to solve the question of shipping wheat to Russia in foreign flag vessels.

The issue involved a sharp conflict between American farmers and American labor since there is a probability that the Soviet will buy more wheat next year if shipment at a low freight tariff is accomplished this year.

PEARSON

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman told labor leaders that Russia was probably in the market for about $200,000,000 worth of wheat next year, if the present contracts are fulfilled. This would mean a big lift to American farmers. However, if the unions force 50 per cent of American wheat to be shipped in American vessels at a higher cost, further grain sales to Moscow are probably off.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk strongly supported Freeman.

Present at the closed-door session, in addition to the Secretary of State and the Secretury of Agriculture, were Luther Hodges, Secretary of Commerce, and Assistant Secretary of Labor James Reynolds. Representing labor were AFL-CIO President George Meany; Joe Curran, president of the National Maritime Union; Teddy Gleason, boss of the International Longshoremen; and Paul Hall, boss of the Seafarers International Union.

"You are putting us on a tough spot," declared Freeman. "If we continue to enforce the 50 per cent restriction, we will sell no more grain to Soviet Russia on nobody's ships. We will have played out our hand." "To put it another way, we will be forced out of the European grain markets," added Secretary Rusk.

"Do you mean to say that you will sell in those markets without the 50 per cent guarantee to protect the jobs of American seamen?" asked Meany.

"Yes, I do," replied Freeman. "There won't be any protection for anyone if we are squeezed out of the market. We have to make up our minds pretty soon. I am looking at this in the national interest. I understand the problems of the maritime industry, but I also must think about our grain surplus."

"That's where you and I differ, Mr. Secretary," snapped Meany.

Joe Curran backed him up. "The real villains in this controversy," he said, "are the grain profiteers, the big private exporters who are not thinking of the national interest. They want to use cheap maritime labor on foreign flagships to transport the grain."

• • • •

CURRAN pointed out that some Liberian and Panamanian vessels were owned by American interests, but were registered under a "flag of convenience," giving them arbitrary powers to fix wages below the American scale. He charged that the State Department had always countenanced this practice.

"Well, I'll have to deny that," bristled Rusk. "The State Department does not approve profiteering of any kind."

He added that his department was trying to move grain to Soviet Russia and its satellites to fulfill a contract and was being seriously hampered by the 50 per cent restriction.

"Unless we remove the restriction, you are throwing the grain shipments up for grabs to the most unscrupulous operators," argued Gleason, head of the International Longshoremen. "What's to stop Russia from trying to use its own ships to carry our grain? My union doesn't make foreign policy, but if that happens let me tell you that our men will never touch a hammer and sickle ship."

• • • •

HALL, THE Seafarers boss, Curran, and Gleason brought out that they agreed to load and operate grain shipments to Russia only because James Reynolds, Assistant Secretary of Labor, had assured them the 50 per cent restriction would be maintained. Reynolds nodded his head in agreement.

Just before the meeting broke up, Gleason remarked to Orville Freeman: "We'll see you on the picket line, Mr. Secretary."

"I've been there before," replied the Secretary of Agriculture.

"And he has too," said Meany.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

We hope very much that this matter can now be taken off the boards and we can get back to normal relationships.

State Department Opposed LBJ's Warm Words to Brazil

By the I. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — When President Johnson sent his "warmest wishes" to the new government in Brazil last week, he did so on the recommendation of highly-respected U.S. Ambassador to Brazil Lincoln Gordon and against the recommendations of the State Department.

One State Department official stressed that the President's effusive greeting to the new government was meant as "welcoming the failure of Communist takeover rather than heralding the new military regime.

"But there is a great deal of unhappiness around the department now about Johnson's statement," one observer said, "especially since the military regime begins to look like a form of dictatorship."

A Brazilian source here agreed with the State Department. "First you Americans praise the military coup for ridding the country of communism, now you are worried that the new leaders will make a dictatorship. What do you want?"

He implied that he, too, was worried about the state of affairs in Brazil. "Let me make this clear," he said. "There is no chaos in Brazil, there is too much order."

He presumably was referring to the new laws recently made in Brazil without the approval or confirmation of the congress.

GOV. William Scranton of Pennsylvania held a press conference at Harrisburg Thursday to announce again that he was not a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination. Under questioning, he said, "I have not ruled out a draft." His supporters here gasped great signs of relief when they heard the news. For the governor was prepared to close the door even on a draft, taking, as the parlance goes, "a Sherman" ("If nominated I will not run and if elected I will not serve"). Extreme pressure was brought to bear on the reluctant Scranton after a story in a Philadelphia newspaper said he would draw out entirely. He was deluged by letters, telegrams and telephone calls and decided, at the last minute, that no American "has the right" to reject a genuine draft.

PIERRE Salinger's departure from the White House to campaign for the Democratic senatorial nomination in California was a hasty thing, done with about two hours notice to the President. This is not a record, however. That must be held by Andy Hatcher, Pierre's assistant at the White House, who left with Salinger to help him with his California campaign. Hatcher has yet to give notice.

'Disarm or Perish' Conferees' Slogan

UPI Foreign News Analyst

PALAIS DES NATIONS, Geneva—Cut in the marble above the doorway to the room through which the delegates to the 17-nation disarmament conference must pass to sit around the rectangle of their green felt-covered desks is a slogan which says:

"Here is a great work for peace in which all can participate. . . . The nations must disarm or perish. Be just and fear not."

The message over the door reminds the delegates of the goal they seek. And around the walls running up to the conference room's 40-foot ceiling are symbolic paintings reminding them of man's long history of inhumanity to man.

This is the setting. Less impressive has been the tortoise-like progress of the conference itself whose members have been at work with various interruptions, since March 14, 1962.

Yet there has been progress.

Chief Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin ended a diatribe against Germany to make the surprise announcement that Russia was ready to negotiate the "hot line" between Moscow and Washington as a measure to prevent war by mistake.

On Aug. 5, 1963 the United States, Britain and Russia signed the limited test ban agreement in Moscow after months of spadework done in Geneva.

In addition, there is the agreement against the placing of weapons in outer space.

In this nuclear era conditions also have changed. It no longer simply is a matter of total and complete disarmament. There also are what are called "collateral" conditions.

In the twice-weekly meetings which the conference holds, one is devoted to total disarmament and the other to the "collaterals."

Taking over from U.S. Disarmament Chief William C. Foster at the conference on March 2 was Adrian S. Fisher, a bluff hearty man with a successful record both as a lawyer and in the State Department, who declares himself not discouraged by the slow pace of progress.

If, at the moment, the chief issues of the disarmament talks can be boiled down to two, they are: The U.S. proposal for three stage disarmament beginning with an across-the-board cut to begin with of 30 per cent, and a Russian proposal for the destruction—without inspection—of all nuclear weapons immediately except for a "nuclear umbrella" of perhaps one per cent of the total which would be left in U.S. and U.S.S.R. hands until the third and final stage of total disarmament.

Between the two there is no meeting of minds. But among the collaterals there may be hope. These include a U.S. proposal for a freeze of fissionable weapons materials, the "bomber bonfire" disposing of obsolescent weapons or any measure which might save the Soviets money. In these the Americans see some hope for something this year.

SERVICE TROPHY ADDS NAMES

6 Jr. Bandsmen Honored

Two new names were added Saturday night to the perpetual trophy for highest service to the Long Beach Junior Concert Band, directed by Marvin Marker.

Winners of the top award, chosen by their fellow band members, were Roy Queen, 18, of 7053 Schroll St., Lakewood, and Bob Woolsey, 19, of 6568 Rosebay St. Runners-up and recipients of an honor award plaque, were Bob Keith, 18, of 2981 Daisy Ave., and Walter White, 19, of 1734 Ximeno Ave. White also won the "Most Popular Boy in the Band" award. Sharon Sees, 18, of 2248 San Vicente Ave., was voted "Most Popular Girl."

The Fagin Memorial Trophy for building band membership was awarded to Russ Futoran, 15, of 3103 Petaluma Ave.

Awards at the 12th annual awards banquet were presented by Mayor Edwin Wade, with Don Gill, executive director of the All-Western Band Review, as master of ceremonies. The awards dinner also celebrated the band's 12th year as official representative and host band for Long Beach.

Rep. Roosevelt Talks Today at Leisure World

Rep. James Roosevelt will address a free Jefferson Day celebration at 2 p.m. today on the 19th anniversary of the death of his father, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the Leisure World Amphitheater, Seal Beach.

A 1:30 p.m. concert by the Long Beach Junior Concert Band will precede the talk. The observance is sponsored by the Seal Beach Democratic Club. Club member Charles Washburn, retired labor leader, will deliver a eulogy of FDR.

The club has invited students of nearby colleges and extends an invitation to senior citizens as well as the general public.

Ice Capades Booked for 27 Performances in L.A. Arena

The 24th edition of the Ice Capades will open a 27-performance run at the Los Angeles Sports Arena April 28 with a sparkling array of new skating talent.

The run of 15 evening performances and 12 matinees will close May 17. There will be no performances on Mondays.

Newcomers in the 1964 "Greatest Show On Ice," include the brother-sister team of Otto and Maria Jelinek, who won the world's pairs figure skating title in Vienna; glamorous Sheila MacFarlane and a not-so-glamorous skating chimpanzee named Spanky. The show-stopping chimp tops off his act with a skating jump over five barrels.

Other stars are World Champion Cathy Machado, soloist Alan Konrad, adagio skaters Phil Romayne and Cathy Steele and comics Johnny LeBrecque, George Bussey and Hans Leiter of Vienna, along with a list of brand-new stars who have moved up from the "sophomore" line.

The Sports Arena box office will open ticket sales April 3.

AWARDS PRESENTED

Area Citizens Feted for Dystrophy Work

Muscular Dystrophy Association of America Inc. has honored Long Beach-area leaders in the fight against the disease.

Awards were presented at a dinner in Long Beach by two Lakewood children who have appeared on posters for the muscular dystrophy fund campaign — 4-year-old Billy Py and 7-year-old Kathy Daniels.

Mrs. Leona Appleby received the area's chairman-of-the-year award for her leadership in the East Long Beach campaign.

The marcher-of-the-year trophy, awarded to an outstanding volunteer worker, went to Mrs. Charles Murray of Long Beach. Mrs. Ralph Means of Lakewood received a trophy for her work as area leader and public information cochairman.

Chi Rho Club of St. Cornelius Catholic Church won the club-of-the-year award. The Harold Hunt family of Lakewood was honored for top family contribution.

The association's 1963 Long Beach-area campaign raised $9,589 to support research, clinics and other projects. One of the research projects is at Long Beach VA Hospital and one of the clinics sponsored by the national group is Long Beach's Tichenor Clinic.

Stary Gange Talk Slated by Chamber

"There'll Be Some Changes Made" will be the theme of the main address at the annual meeting of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce in the Lafayette Hotel April 23rd.

The speaker is Stary Gange, Southern California Gas Co. consultant, who since 1950 has delivered more than 2,000 speeches to business and civic groups in all 50 states.

Gange, a resident of Tulare County for 50 years, has been connected with farming, food processing, marketing and banking. He is a member of the California Chamber of Commerce committees on agriculture and national resources and has participated in congressional hearings on farm and business legislation. He was a director of the National Canners Association and the California State Olive Association.

Gange, long active in service-club work, is a past governor of the California-Nevada-Hawaii District of Kiwanis International.

Cadillac
AN INTERNATIONAL CELEBRITY ARRIVES AT THE FAIR
The occasion is the New York World's Fair . . . the scene is the spectacular General Motors Futurama—and the car, of course, is Cadillac.
And the Cadillac car is a standout attraction even in this distinguished international company. For there is no automobile anywhere that can match Cadillac's reputation for excellence. Drive any of eleven 1964 models and you'll discover why.
There's Cadillac's magnificent and silent power. A 340-horsepower V-8 engine—most powerful in Cadillac history—generates performance so swiftly that we caution even long-time Cadillac owners to mind their speedometers. There is the smoothness of our transmissions—an improved Hydra-Matic or new Turbo Hydra-Matic—which deliver that power to the rear wheels.
There is the luxury of elegantly appointed interiors, together with the great convenience of power brakes and steering (plus power windows on most models) that have turned the 600-mile day into a restful reality.
And there is also investment. Find a fine car, if you can, that returns more than your Cadillac when you choose to sell or trade it.
Isn't it time to drive Cadillac—the one American fine car that enjoys premier rank whenever the world's great automobiles are considered? Visit your Cadillac dealer soon. His selection of international favorites has never been more tempting.

Dodgers vs. Cards Tuesday

By GEORGE LEDERER

Sandy Koufax will complete his sweep of 1963 honors Tuesday night with his first assignment as an opening day pitcher.

The Dodgers' third Cy Young Award winner in the last eight seasons will oppose Bob Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals.

A full house of 55,000 is assured at Dodger Stadium as the world champions enter their diamond jubilee year in the National League.

The Cardinals, who finished six games back as the Dodgers' closest pursuers in 1963, are booked for two games. Cincinnati visits for three games Thursday through Saturday, and the brief home stand closes with Milwaukee Sunday and Monday.

* * * *

THE DODGERS' opening lineup represents a 100 percent turnover from the 1958 crew that brought major league baseball to Southern California. Koufax, Jim Gilliam, Frank Howard and John Werhas are starting changes from 1963. And Werhas will uphold Dodger tradition of a new third baseman in each of their seven years in Los Angeles.

SANDY KOUFAX
Ace for Opener

By ROSS NEWHAN

Lyndon B. Johnson, a righthander from Johnson City, Texas, who now resides in Washington, D.C., will be the starting pitcher for the American League Monday.

Johnson will take a break from his pitch for Civil Rights to deliver the pitch which officially opens the 1964 season.

Washington southpaw Claude Osteen will follow Johnson to the capitol hill and the American League bell will ring when he makes his first offering to the Angels' Albie Pearson.

The Angels-Senators contest will precede by 24 hours the remainder of the American League's inaugural slate and will mark the 42nd opener to be attended by the Chief Executive since William Howard Taft won the starting call in 1910.

* * * *

JOHNSON is the 10th President to hurl the first ball. Vice Presidents have substituted eight times and lesser dignitaries 14 times.

Washington may have again followed the adage "first in war, first in peace and last in the American League" last year, but the Angels will be on the long end of the odds in the opener.

With Presidents present, the Senators have an over-all 22-19 record. With Democrats hurling the first ball, the Senators are 11-10. With Republicans doing the tossing, the Senators are 11-9.

* * * *

WOODROW Wilson was scorned by the elected Senators for his League of Nations, but loved by the baseball Senators. With Wilson pitching, they were 3-0.

Johnson, definitely a control specialist, will do his pitching into the homes of Southland TV viewers. KTLA (5) will colorcast the proceedings at 10 a.m.

Here are the lineups the President will jot on his scorecard.

MEETING OF MASTERMINDS

Managerial minds of world champions and Los Angeles City champions meet when Dodgers' Walt Alston shakes hands with Angels' Bill Rigney.

By ROSS NEWHAN

The Dodgers are ready to seek an armistice in the Civil War.

Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale and Ron Perranoski struck out 14 Angels Saturday night but the Dodgers themselves again struck out in their fourth attempt to defeat the poor side of L.A.'s baseball family.

The Civil War remained the most lopsided contest since Franklin D. Roosevelt whipped Alf Landon. Landon, however, at least captured Vermont—the Dodgers have nothing to show after four ballots with the Angels.

The Cherubs belted Drysdale for all their runs on four doubles and a single in the seventh inning as the Angels retained the Shrine's and Mayor's trophies, emblematic of the city championship, with a 4-3 decision over the world champs before 36,889 hoarse fans.

Angels' manager Bill Rigney permeated the air with World Series atmosphere as he employed six pitchers while displaying mid-season form in his strolls to and from the mound.

* * * *

BARRY LATMAN, Jack Spring and Julio Navarro were the most effective. Spring and Navarro each balled bullpen pals out of trouble while Latman gained the victory, his fourth of the most successful spring ever for the Fairfax High graduate.

Latman stopped at father-in-law Leon Schwabb's pharmacy for a bottle of aspirins on his way to the ball yard and then threw the tablets at the Dodgers. "Shoulders" yielded only two hits and fanned five in a four-inning effort designed to make L.A. fans forget about Leon Wagner.

The issue was decided in the seventh when Drysdale ran into double trouble. Big D had protected a 2-0 advantage through four finely-pitched frames after taking over for Koufax in the third.

* * * *

WHILE Walter O'Malley spent $250,000 on improvements at Dodger Stadium this winter, he apparently forgot to put any of it into the infield and this oversight cost Drysdale dearly.

Charlie Dees opened the frame with a double to left-center which Tommy Davis got a glove on but couldn't hold. After Bobby Knoop had fanned, Tom Satriano, batting for Latman, hit a grounder toward first baseman Ron Fairly. However, the ghost of Joe Pepitone still haunted the area and the ball took a crazy hop off Fairly's shoulder and bounded into rightfield for two bases, scoring Dees.

Albie Pearson then hit another grounder down the first base line which struck the

Fired-Up Palmer Leads by Five

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A gambling, charged-up Arnold Palmer exploded three straight birdies in a thunderclap finish for a three-under-par 69 Saturday and shot into a five-stroke lead with one round to play in the Masters golf tournament.

Channel 2, 1 p.m.

Consecutive rounds of 69-68-69 over the demanding par 72 Augusta National course gave the comeback marvel from Latrobe, Pa., a 54-hole total of 206, 1 under par, and made him a virtual cinch to become the first ever to win four Masters.

A wiry Australian outsider, Bruce Devlin, knocked in an eagle on the 15th hole for a 67 which put him closest to Arnie's heels at 211.

Another of Palmer's sternest challengers, including defending champion Jack Nicklaus, fell by the wayside in an epidemic of late, pressure-proved bogeys — and it looked like a one-man show.

Arnie's Army, making up most of the record throng of 40,000, was delirious.

Nicklaus, his big, booming game wild and unwidely, shot a 71 and found himself tied at 215 with a ghost out of the past, Ben Hogan, who thrilled the gallery with some of his old wizardry for a third-round three-under-par 67.

The new champion and the old had nine strokes and six other players separating them from the front-running Palmer.

Dave Marr, a young pro from New Rochelle, N.Y., was in third place at 212 after a third-round 69, followed by hard-luck Gary Player of South Africa, whose game cracked up on the final two holes to give him a 72, and little known Pete Butlee of Birmingham, England, and Jim Ferrier, each with a 69 for a 213 total.

After firing three birdies on a stretch of five holes on the incoming nine — the 13th through the 16th— which put him within five shots of Palmer, Player suddenly went into a disastrous tailspin.

He bogied the final two holes, bunkering his second at the 17th and hitting a spectator's chair with a drive on the 18th. The ball caromed deep into the woods and all he could do was play it back to the fairway and thank Heaven for a bogey.

Devlin, a 26-year-old master plumber from Canberra, only three years out of amateur ranks, came out of nowhere to move into top contention.

He struck his big blow on the 520-yard 15th where a long drive and four-wood put him on the green 25 feet from the cup. He sank for an eagle.

Palmer, the slumping golfing capitalist who hasn't won a tournament since last October, was slow getting off the mark and had to scramble to play the first seven holes in par.

He rang in his first birdie at the eighth, chipping to within three feet, but lost another shot on the 11th where he duck-hooked his second into the water. He dropped out and chipped to within inches for a bogey that could have been much worse.

His birdie explosion started on the 14th. He ran in a putt from 25 feet.

While the cheers of his vast army was still ringing in his ears, he ripped into the long 15th reaching the green in two and two-putting from 25 feet and added a third straight birdie on the 16th where he ran the ball in from 12 feet.

"I didn't get the ball as close to the hole as I did Friday," he said philosophically. "But I was satisfied with the way I played." Even with his long lead, he never ceased to play bold, gambling golf. He hit all out from the tees, went for the greens even with threatening water staring him in the face.

Asked what his strategy was to keep his big lead, he said: "I went out to make it bigger if I could."

Lederer Picks Dodgers in Dogfight

Yanks to Breeze, Angels to 7th---Newhan

By GEORGE LEDERER

It's spring exam time for baseball prognosticators and, as usual, the National Leaguers are at a disadvantage.

For the sixth consecutive year NL students will be offered a multiple-choice test with six possible answers. Cribbing won't help in making a decision among the Dodgers, Giants, Cardinals, Braves, Reds and Phillies.

Warren Giles, dedicated to the proposition that all NL teams are created equal, already is looking forward to the day he can add the Pirates, Cubs, Colts and Mets to the multiples. Four score and seven years from now he might.

Meanwhile, the American League path leading to fall commencement exercises at Yankee Stadium will be easy because Joe Cronin prefers the essay exam for his literate leaguers.

Even Cassius Clay, though not necessarily in 25 words or less, could complete the sentence: "The Yankees will win the American League pennant because. . ."

For New York writers the assignment is easier yet. They need only 14 words: It's the Yanks in the World Series and the Mets in the World Fair.

The National League quiz involves more than syntax. It requires thumb tacks to hold the windy and ecstatic reports of the clubs' publicity men. It takes a degree in trickonometry and it helps to have a working knowledge of the slide rule (not to be confused with the infield fly rule).

An example of trickonometry was last year's NL race. The Dodgers won it although they were only sixth in the league in fielding, fourth in hitting and sixth in runs scored. They won it with the best pitching plus, perhaps, some sleight-of-hand by manager Walter Alston.

When Alston sewed up his first flag in Brooklyn, he had more stars than Betsy Ross. It wasn't until last year that he added some stripes.

Alston graduated from platoon sergeant to master sergeant the day of the famous bus incident in Pittsburgh. The bus was hot and there were more players than seats. What had been a standing joke for years suddenly became a serious matter.

Alston asserted himself, stopped the bickering and promised to improve conditions. From then on, the Dodgers caught fire on the field and relaxed in large and air-conditioned buses. They became the league's top road club (.605). Philadelphia was the only other club over .500 away from home.

Conditions will be even better this year with a hotel change in Chicago and a new $60,000 air-conditioning unit and self-starter on the Electra II. The self-starter is Walter O'Malley's insurance against having the props knocked from under the world champions.

Thus, the Dodgers figure to substantiate the 6-5 odds posted in Las Vegas, where the sharpies, not to mention the strip hotels, have more than a working knowledge of the club.

The race should be closer than last year when the Dodgers galloped home by six lengths after disposing of the Cardinals in mid-September. Each of the contenders appears to be improved, though not without problems.

The Dodgers may also lead the league in question marks at the start, but there'll be enough exclamations periodically to provide a punctual first-place finish. The No. 1 question is John Roseboro's right knee.

JOHN ROSEBORO
Big Question Mark

If Roseboro is sound and can catch 135 games, as he did last year, any other problems will be minute. The current medical bulletin on Roseboro is optimistic.

Third base is a Dodger problem mainly in numbers. One among John Werhas, Ken McMullen and Jim Gilliam will do a capable job. Should Gilliam be needed at third, Dick Tracewski can step in at second base, as he did so well in the World Series.

In the long run, pitching again will be the key to Dodger success. The best five-man staff in baseball will make Alston the first NL manager to win consecutive pennants since Fred Haney brought home the Braves in 1957 and 1958.

National League summary (clubs listed in order of preference):

1. DODGERS

Strengths — Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale, Johnny Podres, Bob Miller and Ron Perranoski form best five-man pitching staff, accounting for 84 of club's 99 wins last year. Two-time major league batting champion Tommy Davis is still improving. Maury Wills and Willie Davis the top two base-stealers.

Problems—Roseboro's knee. Lack of consistent attack. Defense erratic at times. May be handicapped by keeping three first-year players.

2. GIANTS

Strengths—League's top power club with Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey. Improved bullpen with acquisition of Bob Shaw from Braves. Juan Marichal one of league's outstanding pitchers.

Problems—Must depend on two rookies in starting lineup, Jesus Alou (.324 Tacoma) in right field and Jim Hart (.312 Tacoma at third base).

3. CARDINALS

Strengths—Best infield in league with Bill White, Julian Javier, Dick Groat and Ken Boyer. Deep pitching with addition of Roger Craig.

Problems—Thin in outfield through retirement of Stan Musial and trade of George Altman to Mets. Tim McCarver and White only established lefthanded hitters.

4. PHILLIES

Strengths—Pitching could be outstanding if Art Mahaffey and Dennis Bennett remain healthy and Cal McLish recovers from arm trouble. Jim Bunning is strong addition to staff and Jack Baldschun rates among league's best relievers. Richie Allen could be league's top rookie at third base.

Problems—Will miss Don Demeter's righthanded power. Roy Sievers aging. No experienced replacements in outfield.

5. BRAVES

Strengths—Power from Hank Aaron, Eddie Mathews, Ed Bailey, Joe Torre and Felipe Alou. Top catching in Torre and Bailey. Alou fills long-time gap in center field.

Problems — Thin in pitching behind Warren Spahn. Staff is young and bullpen lacks daily stoppers.

6. REDS

Strengths—Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson solid hitters. Jim Maloney and Jim O'Toole attaining pitching stardom. Team speed may be best in league.

Problems—Bob Purkey and Joey Jay remain questionable regular starters. Robinson can't throw properly because of shoulder injury. Third base unsettled.

7. PIRATES

Strengths — Roberto Clemente one of league's five-star players. Bob Friend a dependable starter, Bob Veale, Al McBean and Tom Sisk younger pitchers of note. Bill Mazeroski still one of best at second base.

Problems—Still too much contrast of age and inexperience at key positions. Don Cardwell has arm trouble and Vern Law must prove comeback.

8. CUBS

Strengths—Dick Ellsworth, Larry Jackson and Lindy McDaniel good pitching nucleus. Ron Santo supplies power.

Problems—Loss of Ken Hubbs at second base. Ernie Banks may be through. Need center fielder.

9. COLTS

Strengths — Eddie Kasko and Nellie Fox will help in infield. Hal Woodeschick one of top relief pitchers. Dick Farrell, Don Nottebart and Ken Johnson dependable starters.

Problems—Outfield and catching inexperienced. Club has no power.

10. METS

Strengths—Shea Stadium.

Problems — Dodgers, Giants, Cards, Phils, Braves, Reds, Pirates, Cubs and Colts.

Giants Tabbed Over Dodgers

A minor mystery to many baseball fans on the eve of regular season play is why the Dodgers aren't distinct favorites to capture the National League pennant.

In some quarters (the I, P-T staff consensus in today's paper, for instance) the Dodgers aren't even favored. Yet, this is the same club that breezed to the '63 league throne by a six-game margin and annihilated the great Yankees four straight in the World Series.

Then, why the reluctance to stamp the 1963 world champions as prohibitive 1964 league favorites? Since I tabbed the Giants to finish over the Dodgers, I'll state my reasoning.

First, it's no secret that the Dodgers were such convincing 1963 winners because of their pitching. They were fourth in club batting and sixth in club fielding.

JOHNNY PODRES
Question Mark?

They were far-and-away the most outstanding team in pitching with a combined earned-run-average of 2.85.

Spring games have indicated that the Dodger hitting and fielding hasn't improved over last season, thus the O'Malleys again will have to rely upon superb hurling to carry them through.

But can it continue? I suspect Don Drysdale and Ron Perranoski will come through again, but I have doubts about Sandy Koufax and Johnny Podres. Podres has been a "money" pitcher in big games, but at the age of 31 has shown signs of floundering. I wouldn't be shocked that the end of the road might be in sight for the gutty southpaw with a history of back trouble.

Koufax was so perfect last season that I'd consider it nigh impossible that he retain that peak during this campaign.

Bob Miller may handle some of the slack, but after him, who else? If somebody like Richert, Willhite, Moeller or Ortega can come through on a CONSISTENT basis, then maybe the Dodgers can breeze again.

In short, I admire the Dodger ability to scramble and battle for that necessary one or two runs, but the club's whole pennant hopes are based on superior pitching. I have a suspicion that the mound corps will not come through as it did in '63.

ANOTHER ITEM that probably hasn't escaped the baseball nut is that the Dodgers' three closest '63 opponents (St. Louis, San Francisco and Philadelphia) all out-hit the O'Malleys last year.

Of most important note is that each of those opponents now boast IMPROVED pitching staffs over last season!

The Giants, a horrible EIGHTH in 1963 team hurling, got rid of some mound deadwood and added two people I think will aid their pennant drive considerably: Bob Shaw and reliefer Bob Hendley. Shaw, for some years on the verge of greatness, sported a nifty 2.66 ERA with Milwaukee last season.

With Mays, McCovey and Cepeda leading their bat brigade, the Giants apologize to nobody in the slugging department.

THE CARDINALS and the Phillies make the N.L. race even more difficult to predict. St. Louis had the best infield in the N.L. in '63 (White, Javier, Groat and Boyer), the top hitting club (they had a big 13-point edge over the power-dripping Giants) and four crack hurlers (Ernie Broglio, Bob Gibson, Curt Simmons and Lou Burdette).

They've got everybody back, PLUS Roger (Hard Luck) Craig to bolster their mound staff.

The Phils have a pitching corps that could rocket them to the top overnight. A wire service writer, who picked the Phils to bag the flag, noted: "Philadelphia has three potential 20-game winners in Dennis Bennett, Art Mahaffey and Jim Bunning. None saw full service with them last year."

Bennett and Mahaffey were injured at least half the season, while Bunning was with Detroit. Add Ray Culp, Chris Short and crackerjack relief man Jack Baldschun to this list . . . and you see why the usually-disdained Phils merit considerable respect this campaign.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE chase looms so tight that in a poll of baseball writers and sports editors EIGHT clubs garnered first-place votes. Yep, some guy even tossed in the Cubs on his ballot. (The only possible person I could conceive responsible for this joke would be Jack Teele, the Ram publicist, but he's not eligible.)

In summary, it's this corner's considered opinion that El Dodger will have considerable difficulty in repeating as N.L. champ. If Walter O'Malley's unrest over spring training procedures and Frank Howard's nervousness over not playing regularly carries over, the Dodgers may be forced to include a horrible enemy (Mr. Friction) into the regular season.

What's that, Clyde? You're wondering about the American League? Oh, I pick Cholly Dressen's Detroit Tigers for second place.

Hasn't the rest of the world already conceded first place in this most unbalanced of all professional circuits?

SPRING DREAMING?

9 Managers Wave Flags!

By Associated Press

It must be the air in Florida and Arizona. Or maybe it's the water. Whatever it is, it sure acts as a tonic to major league managers.

While it was hardly expected that any one of the 20 big league managers would paint a dim picture for his club at this time of the year, there is such a thing as carrying optimism too far.

After all, nine clubs cannot compete in the World Series. And never yet has a pennant race ended with all clubs in the first division.

A poll of the managers showed that nine thought they had a good chance to win the pennant. Eight more believed they would finish in the first division. The remaining three were convinced their clubs were improved over last year.

Here are the capsuled comments:

Yogi Berra, Yankees: "We'll win even if Mickey Mantle doesn't play 100 games. We've got the best eight starting players and our pitching is the best in the league."

Sam Mele, Twins: "We have a real good chance to win if pitchers Jerry Arigo, Jim Roland and Jim Kaat come through."

Charlie Dressen, Tigers: "The Tigers are the most improved club in the league. Our pitching is going to be better."

Al Lopez, White Sox: "I think we can win it. Our pitching and defense is outstanding. Our offense is better than people think."

Hank Bauer, Orioles: "Two weeks ago I picked the Yankees to win and the Orioles to finish third. That's because they have fewer ifs than we do. But if everybody plays up to his capability, we have a good chance to win."

George Strickland, Indians: "We're greatly improved. Leon Wagner gives us more power, our defense should be at least adequate."

John Pesky, Red Sox: "I am hoping our improved pitching could move us into the first division. We lack speed but have good power."

Ed Lopat, A's: "If our big men, Rocky Colavito and Jim Gentile, have the kind of seasons they are capable of having, we could finish as high as fifth."

Bill Rigney, Angels: "We're shooting for the first division and I think we can probably do it. Our strong pitching should help. We are also counting on our extra speed and an improved defense."

Gil Hodges, Senators: "We'll be better. We won't finish last. We have a better mental attitude."

Walt Alston, Dodgers: "I think our chances to repeat are good. Just about every club in the league has strengthened and that includes us. We have every reason to believe four or five of our players should have better seasons."

Al Dark, Giants: "We have a definite shot at the pennant. I've never seen better morale on the team. The least improved of the six leading contenders are the Dodgers."

Fred Hutchinson, Reds: "I think our club is as good as anybody. We have a better mental approach this spring. We had it in 1961 and 1962 but lost it last year."

Gene Mauch, Phillies: "We can win as many games as anybody if we play up to the hilt. The addition of Jim Bunning has improved our pitching."

Johnny Keane, Cardinals: "We have an excellent chance. The race shapes up as so close an injury or two could be the deciding factor."

Bobby Bragan, Braves: "I think we're stronger than in the club's pennant winning years of 1957-58 —with one big exception—pitching."

Danny Murtaugh, Pirates: "We're going to be a much better club. The improvement should come from our second year regulars, Bob Bailey, Donn Clendenon, Will Stargell and Dick Schofield."

Bob Kennedy, Cubs: "I am impressed by the comeback of Ernie Banks and the showing of rookies Jimmy Stewart and Billy Cowan. We must bear down all the way to improve on last year's 82-80 record."

Harry Craft, Colts: "I feel we have improved if our pitching holds up as well as it has the first two years."

Casey Stengel, Mets: "We and the Colts are going to fight it out for the bottom. We ought to do better against that club. They've been lucky against us in the past. We're going to make more runs."

By ROSS NEWHAN

The New York Yankees should end their four-game losing streak on Tuesday when they open the American League season against Boston. That will be the first step in the quickest runaway since the Yankees began their capitalistic ways.

It is a fact of history that New York has never won a pennant in a year which ends in 4. That is the only straw nine managers have to grasp as the entries file into the gate for the Monday-Tuesday opening of the 1964 American League chase.

This won't be the year the Yankees lost the pennant. To dispense with the notion that they face a '4' jinx, the Yankees might possibly win it by the fourth—of July.

Yogi Berra, who enjoys comic books, will be treated to many "laughers" as he guides a team which needs a manager about as badly as the Beatles need more hair.

Yankee pride was severely burned last October and the American League will feel the sting of revenge. It will be a well-balanced, tight race from second through 10th, but as Bill Rigney would say:

"There's only one place to finish. Second isn't worth a damn."

Behind the Yankees, this swami envisions the following finish:

Chicago, Minnesota, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Boston, Kansas City, Washington.

New York didn't learn anything new last October when the Dodgers stuffed pitching down its throat. That's the name of the game the Yankees have been playing ever since they crossed the Harlem River into a home of their own.

Most certainly, there have been sluggers like Ruth, Gehrig, DiMaggio, Mantle, Maris and Berra to break up the close games, but these gentlemen also carried gloves to help such pitching greats as Pennock, Hoyt, Gomez, Ruffing, Chandler, Raschi, Reynolds and Ford with their task.

Power has helped, but pitching and defense have won for the Yankees. Last season, New York was only fourth in team batting. It was, however, second in fielding, second in pitching and first in the number of complete games hurled by its staff.

Ford is back and so are 25-year old Jim Bouton (21 wins)' 22-year old Al Downing (13 wins), 28-year old Ralph Terry (17 wins) and 25-year old Bill Stafford, who won only four games but should be the best pitcher on the staff.

Also back is the glamour infield of Boyer, Kubek, Richardson and Pepitone. This million dollar quartet didn't look worth a cent in the World Series, but four games do not a season make.

The American League is a strengthened circuit. No one, however, has yet reached the Yankees level.

Mr. Charles Dressen of Detroit negotiated some shrewd winter trades which brought him Jerry Lumpe for second base and Don Demeter for leftfield. A flashy rookie, Willie Horton, will be in centerfield and there's a chap named Kaline in right. Detroit, however, lacks pitching.

Mr. Sam Mele of Minnesota will watch his Twins lead the league in home runs and stir excitement everywhere they travel. Camilo Pascaul will win 20 games, but behind Pascaul it is a big step to Jim Kaat and Dick Stigman.

The Twins and Tigers have the best shots at nailing the Yankees, but neither will finish second. That distinction will belong to the consistent Chicago White Sox.

Chicago won't score many runs, but with Gary Peters, Juan Pizarro and Ray Herbert on the mound they won't need many. One more big winner could put the Sox over the top, but bridesmaid Al Lopez will find that pinnacle tougher than Everest.

Kaline will win the batting championship, Harmon Killebrew the home run title, Tony Conigliaro will be rookie of the year, Bobby Rodgers will be comeback player of the year and Ford, Bouton, Pascual, Peters and Ken McBride will be the 20-game winners.

With Mickey Mantle enjoying his final big season, the Yankees will win by 11 games but will lose the World Series to the Giants, 4-2.

Now that the season is over let's go back to Palm Springs. The Angels obviously weren't ready.

VEGAS ODDS 2-5 ON YANKS; DODGERS 6-5

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Want to bet the Yanks will win the pennant? It'll be expensive. To win $2 you'll have to bet $5.

That's the way the odds stood Saturday in this Nevada gaming city, where the town's leading sports book posted the pre-season major league betting odds.

There weren't enough bets to make odds on wagering for the Yankees to finish second and third.

The odds are posted this way: first the figure for how much can be won, then how much has to be bet. They run like this:

Man to Man

WYNN

HANEY

By JERRY WYNN

When your career in baseball has spanned from Ty Cobb to Bo Belinsky, you are entitled to a niche among the game's retired elder statesmen.

But not Fred Haney. The astute general manager of the Angels has the same spark and enthusiasm today as has marked his more than 40 years as a player, coach, manager and executive.

Haney has had more violent ups and downs than an astronaut. The only man to pinch-hit for Cobb, he managed such notoriously inept teams as the 1939-41 St. Louis Browns and 1953-55 Pittsburgh Pirates and such champions as the 1949-52 Hollywood Stars and 1956-58 Milwaukee Braves.

Under Fred's front-office hand, the baby Angels also flip-flopped from a marvelous third place in 1962 to a disappointing ninth last season. Monday, he will be in Washington, D.C., to watch the Angels begin their fourth season.

Where would you like to see the Angels finish in 1964, Fred?

"Our aim is the first division. The way I look at the league, there are four sound clubs—Minnesota, the Yankees, the White Sox and Detroit. The rest of the clubs, you can put in a hat and pick one out for fifth place. We're not a sound club yet, but we're building sound."

You didn't mention the Yankees first. Aren't they going to win the pennant again?

"The Yankees will be strong again, but the other clubs are getting stronger. They are building up to the Yankees. One of these years, and it could be this season, the Yankees are going to be overtaken. We are all pointing in that direction."

Do you think the Angels' third-place finish in 1962 put too much pressure on the club last season?

"Yes. We were tickled to death to finish third, but too much was expected from us last year. A lot of the fellows on the club felt self-satisfied and thought they could coast. Another big factor was the injury to Bob Rodgers. It hurt our batting, fielding and pitching. I've always felt the catcher was the most important man on a ball club. Rodgers has the opportunity to be the No. 1 catcher in our league."

After the success you had in making trades the first few seasons, have the other clubs become wary of dealing with the Angels?

"Not at all. It's our own club that has changed. During the first three years, we had to make trades to improve the club. Now we have reached the point where we are building with youngsters from our farms. It's a very pleasant development."

Do you have a list of "untouchables" on the Angels?

"Yes. Rodgers, Fregosi, Thomas, Pearson, McBride. They are the basis of our club and all are young."

Have you had any offers for Belinsky this year?

"Not recently, and before we turned them down. We have always thought he has the potential to be a great pitcher. But until this year, he hasn't given us the 100 percent effort that it takes to succeed. This year, he has turned about and trained hard. He has the ability."

Do the Angels like the Dodgers?

"Put it this way. We have the toughest competition in baseball. We came in scratch against a very fine established team. We have had to fight for everything. But it's the same wherever you have two teams in one city. Look how the Mets are battling the Yankees for fan support. We've made headway, and I'm certain we'll continue to.

You managed Warren Spahn and Henry Aaron at Milwaukee. Are there any finer players in the game?

"No, they are both keen students of the game and of themselves besides having great ability. I would like to have both of them with me again."

What advice would you give to a youngster with the ambition to become a major leaguer?

"There are three standards I set for a major league player. 1. Love baseball. 2. Desire to continually improve. 3. Have confidence in your ability. A player with these traits will have the respect of everyone in the game."

Is baseball a better game today than it was 40 years ago?

"It was good then, and it is good today. One of the greatest changes has been in the enlargement of club rosters. There used to be a player limit of 18, and today it is 28. Before, we'd play nine players in a game and they were complete players. Today, we often use 18 and they have become specialists. The players are good today, but they aren't any better than the Ty Cobbs and Walter Johnsons were then."

The game may have changed in 40 years, but Fred Haney continues as one of its most prominent members.

Finley to Wage Fight Over 'Pennant Porch'

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—Owner Charles O. Finley of the Kansas City Athletics sat in the bleachers behind his "pennant porch" Saturday during the Kansas City-St. Louis exhibition game, apparently ready to battle American League officials again.

Finley said he would wage a campaign with the baseball rules committee to retain the rightfield fence despite orders from commissioner Ford Frick and American League president Cronin to remove it before Kansas City's opening home game April 21.

The officials notified Finley by telegram that the new fence violated baseball rule No. 1.04.

In New York, Frick had little comment. He confirmed he had "instructed" Finley to delete the fence.

"He has his instructions," Frick said. "I simply pointed out to him that he would be found in violation of baseball rule No. 1.04 if the fence were left standing."

However, Finley said he was within his rights to erect the fence and that he was supported by the rules.

"If necessary, I will go to New York and Boston and explain to Cronin and Frick the meaning of the English language," Finley said.

The voluble owner designed the fence to reduce the distance from home plate to the foul pole to 296 feet, the same length as in Yankee Stadium.

"If an end isn't put to this grossly unfair pennant porch in Yankee Stadium," he said, "it is not possible for other clubs to win the pennant."

Finley said his Athletics would battle the Yankees "down to the wire" if the porch remained in Municipal Stadium.

K. C. HITS ON CURVY IDEA

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Miss America of 1964 will throw out the first ball at the Kansas City Athletics home baseball opener April 21 against the Cleveland Indians.

She is Donna Axum of El Dorado, Ark., a senior at the University of Oklahoma. The Athletics' pitcher and catcher will greet her with roses at the airport, and she will receive an official team jacket and cap.

FINLEY'S ANSWER TO YANKEES

bag, bounced over Fairly's head and tied the score.

WITH Pearson nested on second, Jim Fregosi, who was awake until 6 a.m. Saturday helping usher his 8 pound, 14 ounce baby boy into the world, slammed the fourth double of the inning off the left-centerfield fence, breaking the tie and presenting Jim Jr., with a wonderful "welcome" present. A single to center by Lee Thomas made it 4-2 and was to prove the decider.

Osinski came to the mound to protect that advantage in the eighth and just as quickly left for the showers. A double by Jim Gilliam, a single by W. Davis and a walk to T. Davis loaded the bases with one out.

Rigney then called on southpaw Spring to face Fairly and the move returned dividends as the former Long Beach prep product hit a low liner which Fregosi neatly gloved and doubled W. Davis off second.

* * * *

RIGNEY handed the ball to 41-year-old Art Fowler as the ninth opened and 24-year-old Johnny Werhas promptly planted it in the bullpen corner of the leftfield grandstand.

When John Roseboro followed with his third hit of the game, a single to center, Rigney brought on Navarro. The righthander from Puerto Rico got Wally Moon on a pop to Satriano at third and Maury Wills on a grounder back to the mound, killing the Dodgers' last gasp.

The Dodgers had treated Angel starter Dean Chance to a rude awakening. Willie Davis, the third batter in the first inning, sent a rightfield pavilion fan home with a souvenir as he powered a Chance fastball 400 feet into the bleacher throng.

THE DODGERS clubbed Chance for three more hits and another run in the second. Fairly, Frank Howard and Roseboro delivered the blows which made it 2-0.

Someone apparently forgot to tell Koufax this is April and not October. There weren't any pin-stripes on the Angels' uniforms, but Sandy envisioned the shadow of autumn still clung to Dodger Stadium.

Tuning up for the Dodgers' National League debut with St. Louis Tuesday, Koufax struck out five in two innings. Projected over nine frames, that pace would have netted him 22 or 23 strikeouts and a mag-whifficent new record.

Southpaw swingers Bo Belinsky and Johnny Podres will be the pitching foes when civil war erupts again at 1 this afternoon.

CIVIL WAR POTSHOTS: The Dodgers have purchased the contract of southpaw pitcher Jim Brewer from Spokane of the Pacific Coast League. . . The Angels have claimed the contract of first-year pitcher Tom Hoagland from the Chicago White Sox. . . A 20-year-old southpaw, Hoagland has been optioned to San Jose. . . Doctors are now of the opinion that the Angels' Fred Newman will be able to pitch this season without having his tonsils removed. . . The inflammation has been arrested and Newman will make the road trip. . . Pitching coach Marv Grissom estimates it will be two to three weeks before Newman is ready to start.

Ken McBride, Danny Osinski, Bobby Rodgers and Barry Latman will jet to Washington this afternoon for a full night's rest prior to Monday's season opener. . . The remainder of the Angels head East immediately following the game with an arrival time of 3 a.m. . . With Rodgers absent, Tom Satriano will be behind the plate today. . . Satriano was scheduled to start at first base Saturday night but Rigney decided to take the pressure off the ex-Trojan prior to his catching duties. . . "I like playing first," said Satriano, "it's fun over there. It's like catching. You're in on every play."

Yanks, Dodgers to Win Again

Jinxes to the left of 'em, the unexpected to the right of 'em, the Dodgers and Yankees ride into the valley of the major league pennant races starting Monday . . . and when the firing ends in 5½ months, they most likely will meet once again in the World Series.

Both, of course, will be fighting jinxes. For instance, no team has repeated in the National League since 1958 . . . while the Yankees have not won a pennant in a year ending in four—notably 1934, '44 and '54.

FRANK HOWARD
Key to Dodger Hopes

The Yankees should break their jinx with little trouble. It would take a virtual team collapse to keep them from another title.

Even though some Yankee-haters can see signs that the club could run into some trouble, they still possess the finest blend of pitching, hitting and defense in the American League as well as the most depth.

In fact, Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox was more cautious this spring than ever before in predicting disaster for the Yanks.

Lopez is always the most defiant A.L. manager in his views on the Yankees, but this time he doesn't say that they'll lose the pennant as he usually does.

Instead, he sees some challengers . . . "If they get lucky with their pitching. That includes the White Sox, Tigers and Twins."

However, that's a big order for those clubs. All have problems.

The Yankees look like a cinch—jinx or not.

WHILE THE DODGERS are made to order for the World Series, they must first win the National League pennant to get another chance to pick up all the marbles . . . and this figures to be a much tougher task this trip.

The Dodgers are not a great club . . . certainly not the super team they may have appeared to be in last October's Series sweep of the Yankees.

They take a lot of managing. Walt Alston must constantly maneuver his men according to the situation to get the most out of the club. It was a scramble when the Dodgers won in '59. They scrambled their way to the flag again last year. And it will be a scramble again this time because, as everyone knows, the team is short on power.

Alston is sure of his pitching—barring injuries—and the hurling plus the club's tremendous speed will have to make up for the lack of the consistent big punch.

As a former Dodger player on a rival club sees it . . . "They could win easy, or they could wind up as low as fourth. I can't see any middle ground for them at all. But one thing is for sure. Every game will be a critical one."

KOUFAX, DRYSDALE AND PODRES won 57 games last year . . . could produce as many as 65 or more this season. It is certain, though, that they will have to carry the load.

Alston figures it will take 99 victories to win the pennant, thus he must come up with around 35—more if the "Big Three" falter—from Perronoski, Miller, Richert, Ortega, Moeller, etc. This could well be the "critical area."

In the hitting department, Tommy Davis will be gunning for his third straight league batting crown . . . but the key man at the plate will be Frank Howard and his late-inning home run potential.

The defense is adequate even though the Dodgers have been called by some baseball men . . . "The fastest thumbs in the West."

Although they're saying that the National League will be a six-team race, unless everything breaks right for some other club, it should finally settle down to a two-way battle between the Dodgers and San Francisco Giants. St. Louis could make a fight of it up to the final month, while Cincinnati is the "darkhorse."

BUT IF THE DODGERS are to be beaten, it looks as if the Giants have all the tools to do it.

If the Giant rookies come through at third base and in left field, S.F. could really be tough since manager Alvin Dark frankly admits his pitching staff is deeper than it's been in his four years at the helm. Last season it wasn't so good and the Giants faded to third, 11 games behind L.A.

But they got Bob Shaw and Bob Hendley from Milwaukee to back up such top front-liners as Juan Marichal, Jack Sanford and Billy O'Dell.

With such bombers as Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey, the Giant pitchers, of course, can afford to be a bit shakier than the Dodger hurlers and still win games.

While the Dodgers must win 'em by 1-0, 2-1 or other close scores . . . the Giant power hitters enable their pitchers to survive 9-8 and 10-9 slugfests.

And this could be the decisive factor of the '64 campaign.

CINCY MUST GET big years from both Joey Jay and Bob Purkey . . . and if they do the Reds could be dangerous, especially since everyone will be bearing down to win for "Hutch." The Braves need another 20-win season from Warren Spahn just to stay close even though they have plenty of power in the batting order.

St. Louis' pitching figures to be better with Roger Craig, but the Cards will need another great season from the aging Dick Groat to make a big challenge. Pitching is always at its best after the All-Star break and that's why the Phillies are liked in many quarters to finish high.

The Phil mound staff is solid and if the club can stay close in the first half, it could be tough in the stretch.

But in the end, it still looks like the Dodgers vs. the Yankees!

Ortiz Whips Lane to Retain Crown

SAN JUAN, P. R. (UPI)—Carlos Ortiz used a buzz-saw attack of hooks to body and head to score a unanimous decision over Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., in their 15-round bout Saturday night and retain the lightweight championship of the world.

The bout ended in confusion with the announcer first saying that it was a majority decision and then announcing that referee Peter Pantaneo and judges Rafael Carrasquio and Edmundo Fernandez had all given their votes to the defending champion.

Pantaneo scored the bout for Ortiz, 144-141, Carrasquio had it 147-141 and Fernandez had it 148-144.

There were no knockdowns in the 15-round bout viewed by 20,000 spectators in Hi Bithorn Stadium but Ortiz twice had Lane in trouble. The hard-working champion cut Lane over the right eye in the seventh round and again in the 11th round but could not catch up to the back-pedaling challenger to land a knockout blow.

Although Ortiz pounded away with hooks to Lane's body, his most effective blows were three right crosses in the seventh round that caused Lane to give ground.

Lane had a chance to win the fight on a technical knockout or even a knockout when two jabs cut Ortiz' right eye in the 11th round. But Ortiz bobbed and weaved under Lane's blows from long range and easily stayed out of trouble.

Almost 100 persons stormed past the press rows into the ring and lifted Ortiz, a native Puerto Rican, who now calls New York City his home, to their shoulders in triumph.

"Lane is a good fighter but he ran too much," commented Ortiz after the bout.

Ortiz was making his fourth defense of the lightweight title. He refused to comment in the dressing room over whether he will give Lane a return match.

ARNOLD PALMER, ESCAPE ARTIST

No ordinary sand trap was about to stop Arnold Palmer's drive to five-stroke lead in Masters golf tournament Saturday. Here he blasts out to save par on second hole. He finished with 69 for day.

TRAMP THROUGH GEORGIA

'Charge!' Orders Army; Arnie Does

By JIM BECKER

WITH ARNIE'S ARMY, Tramping Through Georgia (AP)—"Through trees and traps and down-hill lies.

"From tee to one-putt green,

"We will fight out Arnie's battles,

"And never treat him mean."

Dah-da-dah-ta-ta. Charge!

Loyal to a fault, hardy as a pack of Death Valley mules, strong, agile, loud, kind, obedient, reverent and clean, Arnie's Army charged, rolled, swept, cluttered and straggled around the Augusta National Golf Course behind their hero Saturday, as Arnold Palmer clomped out ahead to an untouchable lead in his quest for an unprecedented fourth Masters title.

It was a little awesome to behold.

Sherman, who had some experience with marching in these parts, would have run for cover at the sight of this army.

Recruiting standards seemed to be a little loose. It looked like almost everyone could join, although ideally a member of Arnie's Army should be about the length of Wilt Chamberlain and equipped with non-tiring feet.

"He's so masculine," squealed a lady.

"Go get 'em, Arnie," growled the men as Palmer stalked to the first tee like an angry panther, tugged at his yellow shirt, tugged at his white visor cap, tugged at his low-slung trousers and tugged at the glove of his left hand.

"Go ape, Arnie," a young fellow said.

* * * *

PALMER HOOKED his tee shot into another fairway. The army applauded, anyway, and set out in pursuit.

"Don't run, don't run," said a man, who was nearly run over.

On the long second hole, Palmer took an iron out of his bag for his second shot.

"He's going to play safe," gasped a member of the army. Dozens of heads turned and stared at the heretic.

Palmer put the iron back and took out a wood.

Cheers rang up and down the ranks.

"Go for it, Arnie" came the shout." "Charge," said another. "Charge that pin."

Arnie charged. And the army was right behind.

Blades, Seals Renew War in S.F.

By AL LARSON

Warfare between the Blades and San Francisco shifts to the Cow Palace tonight with the Lester Patrick Cup playoffs all square at one game each. Faceoff is 7 o'clock.

largest crowd ever to attend a WHL playoff match, 11,787. Tonight's crowd should go over the 10,000 mark.

Rival coaches Nick Mickoski of the Seals and Alf Pike of the Blades voiced their opinions Saturday as to the final outcome the best-of-7 series.

"I don't think either club will overpower the other. Actually, hustle and stamina will decide the series," said Mickoski.

Pike pointed out "They're no patsies and we'll have to be at our very best to beat 'em. Remember they are the defending champs.

"We certainly need Solinger (Bob) on the power play. He told me he's ready to play, but I doubt if I'll suit him until Tuesday. I don't know when Young (Howie) will play."

Pike added "both clubs are going pretty good. They checked "H" out of us Friday. They capitalized on their chances in the first two periods and we didn't. If we had it would have been no contest.

"We'll go with the same club Sunday with maybe a change in the goal. I can't blame Norris (Jack). Their scorers were home free most of the time."

Undoubtedly Jimmy McLeod will put on his goalie pads tonight; he's beaten his ex-mates four times in seven starts this season.

In eight playoff games to date L.A. has been assessed 188 minutes in penalties while the Seals have been socked with only 106 in 7 dates.

Leo LaBine leads the Blades' scorers with 6 goals and 9 assists for 15 points while captain Eddie Panagabko has banged in 5 goals and 5 assists for 10 points to top Seal pointmakers.

49ers Sweep Pair From Cal Poly

SAN LUIS OBISPO—Long Beach State College, pushed to the brink of early exclusion from the CCAA baseball race, charged back to win a doubleheader from Cal Poly Saturday, 12-4 and 6-5.

The 49ers got steady pitching from Bill Wilson, who went the distance in the first game, and Bill Bielefeld saved the second victory.

Bielefeld, who had pitched eight innings in Friday's 3-2 conference opening loss, relieved in the fifth inning with the bases loaded and retired the last eight Mustang batters.

Wilson went all the way for the fourth time to bag his seventh win but needed an eight-run explosion in the last inning.

Don Anderson raised his team RBI lead to 31 and his three hits kept him near a .500 average.

HONORS TO BRUIN CAGE CHAMPIONS

The UCLA national championship basketball team and coach of the year John Wooden received the tributes of students, alumni and followers Saturday at the Bruin awards dinner.

A highlight of the affair was the presentation of the United Press International trophy naming UCLA as the national championship team.

The spotlight was on the five graduating seniors headed by guard Walt Hazzard, named to almost every all-America team; Jack Hirsch, Fred Slaughter, Kim Stewart and Mike Huggins. Hazzard was awarded the team's most valuable player.

LBSC Crew Suffers Mishap, Falls to Cal

OAKLAND — Long Beach State's crew teams ran into rugged opposition and adverse conditions on the 2,000-meter Oakland Estuary course Saturday.

The 49ers dropped all three races—varsity, JV and frosh, to a strong Cal aggregation in the Bay Area.

A freak mishap perhaps cost the veteran L.B. crew a win in varsity competition. After a bad start due to a long call by the starter, the 49ers cut a half-length deficit at the half-way point, but lost ground and trailed by nearly one length at the 1,500-meter mark.

* * * *

THERE was considerable debris scattered about the estuary. Entering the final drive all four oars on the 49er starboard side crashed into a wooden box. The seventh man on the crew lost his oar and dived overboard to eliminate any unnecessary weight for the crew.

Long Beach thus finished the race with only seven men and Cal drew out handily for a 20-second victory — 6:18.6 to 6:38.5.

"The crew was very strong, though," said 49er coach Bill Lockyer. "The thing I liked was the stamina of our men. We were stronger in the final drive and had a lot left when the accident occurred."

Cal won the frosh race by one length, 6:41.6 to 6:46.2, while the Bear junior varsity triumphed handily over the 49ers, 6:34.5 to 6:49.5.

32 HITS FOR LBCC

Vikings Barrage SMCC, 17-2, 17-0

By GARY RAUSCH

The battle lasted more than six hours, and when the dust cleared over Blair Field Saturday Long Beach City College had scored 34 runs on 32 hits and sent a band of shell-shocked Corsairs back to Santa Monica with defeats of 17-2 and 17-0.

Jim Parks and Dennis Busch limited SMCC to 13 base raps and held it scoreless for 17 innings. Parks picked up his sixth victory and Busch his fourth.

Bill Hatch sent nine or more of his charges to bat twice in each game and the result was 4, 6, 10 and 5-run innings.

CATCHER Ron Johnston smashed his second home run in as many days in the first game and Bob Larson, working the nightcap, crashed his first round-tripper of the year. Both were leadoff blasts to leftfield.

SHANK BY JACK

TV Scores Near Miss on Palmer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — A bit of golfing courtesy ruined the chances of millions of television viewers to see Arnold Palmer finish his round at the Masters golf tournament Saturday.

Arnold was signing his score card after completing his 18 holes when the cameras were switched on.

Bob Charles, the New Zealand lefthander, allowed Palmer and Gene Littler to play through when he was delayed on the fourth hole. As a result, Palmer finished ahead of schedule.

All you duffers, take heart. Next time you shank a drive, remember it once happened to Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus shanked his 8-iron drive on the 155-yard 12th hole far to the right, bringing an astonished gasp from the gallery who couldn't imagine Nicklaus flubbing a shot.

There's a man in Sydney, Australia, who will be amazed to hear that Bruce Devlin, 26-year-old golfer in his third year on the U.S. tour, shot a 67 Saturday to move into second place.

"He's the fellow who told my father in 1959 that I should give up my golf and stick to plumbing," Devlin grinned.

McCormick Leads by 7

Bill McCormick of Skylinks shot an even-par 72 at Rancho Saturday to maintain his big lead in the 1964 Southern California public links golf championships.

McCormick carries a seven-stroke lead into today's final round slated for Griffith Park. McCormick has put together rounds of 71-72-72—215.

Defending champion Neil Burges of La Mirada moved into a second-place tie with Vince Adamczyk of Brookside, who had the low round of 70. Burges duplicated McCormick's 72. Both stand at 222.

STEVE TIDBALL . . . . Gains Finals

Cortright and Schlicke Star

By JOHN DIXON

Stanford, which hasn't beaten USC's track titans since 1933, kept its record intact Saturday before 98,772 empty seats in the Colliseum.

The score was 9-0 after one event and never got close. But the race finishes were as the terrific Trojans looked terrific for the first time this season.

The University Ave. gang won 13 of 17 events, set two school records and two meet records in the 95-50 frolic, but the stars were a pair of Indians with the unfashionable philosophy that talent is cheap, dedication is expensive.

Paul Schlicke and Steve Cortright are their names—names that may be engraved in the Stanford Hall of Fame before they matriculate to more important accomplishments.

Schlicke, an added starter, won the mile, and he had to run the fastest collegiate time of the year to do it.

He led at the quarter pole in 60.1, trailed teammate Dave Deubner through a 2:02.3 half-mile, regained the lead after three laps in 3:05.8, and then the race really began.

USC's Bruce Bess was the lone challenger, a yard to the rear as the final 440 unfolded, and sophomore Bess wouldn't fold.

* * * *

HE CAME at Schlicke as the last, long turn neared, but that try failed. Bess came on again and again down the long straightaway. But as the race grew throbbingly alive and Schlicke became correspondingly drained, he called on an inner storehouse of courage and became the victor and not the vanquished.

Schlicke's advantage was a step, his time was 4:03.1. Bess was credited with 4:03.2, best of his life and only two ticks off the school record.

Schlicke wasn't through.

A bare hour later he kicked the last lap so hard he must have been wearing horseshoes, coming from well off the pace to win the two-mile in an 8:58.8 sizzler.

* * * *

CORTRIGHT, slowed for a month by a muscle injury, won meet high-point honors with three strong performances.

The former Poly High whippet was second in the triple jump at 46-7¾, second in the high hurdles in 14.3, his quickest clocking of the year, and winner of the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 37.2, second fastest time in the U. S. this year.

Trojan Theo Viltz led Cortright by inches out of the blocks in the 120s and the margin was the same at the tape. Cortright had clinched victory halfway through the 330s and jogged the final 20 yards to the tape.

USC standouts were a pair of pole vaulters.

Mike Flanagan flew over 15-9¼ to set school and meet records, and Bill Fosdick navigated over 15-6 to establish a school frosh standard. Fosdick's previous high was 14-10¾.

* * * *

RINK BABKA was the winner of a special discus throw among Olympic Games candidates, throwing 191-½ to 184-7 for Bob Humphreys.

USC can look forward to Oregon Saturday, Stanford can look back to 1933.

An all-Kathy Tennis Finale Slated Today

By BOB MARTIN

The two Kathys — Harter and Blake—will be at it again today in the finals of the eighth Long Beach Junior Tennis Championships.

Close friends off the court and doubles partners for several years, the talented and attractive pair will clash for the Girls 18 title for the third straight year.

Today's winner will be the first two-time champion here in junior girls, an event which in earlier years was won by such stars as Sally Moore, Karen Hantze and Billie Jean Moffitt.

The match is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. at Lakewood Country Club.

* * * *

MISS HARTER, No. 1 in Southern California and No. 3 in the nation, swept by two exceptionally promising young San Diego area girls Saturday on her home courts. In the quarterfinals she beat Paulette Verzin, 15, who holds the National Hard Court women's doubles title with Darlene Hard, by a 6-3, 6-3 margin. In the semifinals she ousted 14-year-old Val Ziegenfuss, 6-4, 6-1.

Miss Blake, formerly of La Jolla but now of Brentwood, defeated Margaret Fredericks, 6-0, 6-2, and then beat Bonnie Ellis, 6-2, 6-2. Kathy is ranked No. 2 in Southern California and No. 8 in America and is a former national Girls 16 champion.

Vying for the Boys 18 crown at 1 p.m. today will be Tom Karp of Los Angeles and Steve Tidball of Van Nuys. This will be Karp's third appearance in the junior finals. In 1962 he lost to Jerry Cromwell and last year bowed to Bob Lutz. He is Southern California's top-ranked junior.

* * * *

IN SATURDAY'S semifinals, Karp was sharp in whipping Ed Grubb of Santa Monica, the national junior public parks champion, 6-2, 6-1, while Tidball edged out Jim Hobson of Fullerton, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4. Karp-Grubb and Hobson-Tidball reached the doubles finals. The latter pair won the national 16s in 1962.

Steve Derian of Long Beach advanced to the Boys 12 final and will play the sensational Randy Thomas of Imperial Beach, who has yet to lose a game.

Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles, who won't be 13 until next Friday, will be going after her fifth Long Beach singles title today when she faces Janet Mohr in the 14s.

JEROME RUNS 9.3; TIPTON THROWS 263-1½

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Oregon's Harry Jerome turned in a brilliant 9.3 sprint in the 100-yard dash Saturday and teammate Les Tipton hurled the javelin 263-1½ as the Ducks trimmed Washington State, 81-64.

WSU's Terry Lewellyn, who stands 5-8, upset Paul Stuber to win the high jump at 6-9. Cougar Jim Allen was a double winner, taking the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 38.5 and the 440 in 48.8.

Dee Hurt; Rambo Hits 6-10

FRESNO — The loss of Dee Andrews proved costly as Fresno State clobbered Long Beach State 89-56 in a CCAA dual track and field meet in wind-whipped Ratcliffe Stadium Saturday.

Andrews pulled a muscle when he banged into the first hurdle in the 120 highs. He was unable to compete in the 330 intermediate hurdle event.

The Bulldogs displayed their usual mastery in the sprints as Marv Bryant captured the 100 and 220 in times of 9.4 and 21.3. Erratic winds reached 20 mph at times.

Charlie Craig also won a pair for Fresno, taking the 440 in 47.8 and triple jump with a leap of 49½.

Long Beach's Bill Crowley won the mile in 4:18.3, then posted a 9:20.5 in winning the two mile.

13,388 See Goetta Capture Shue Fly

Neck Win by Filly at Alamitos

By DON HARDIN

They used to say "Go Man Go" for the horse of that name a few years back.

Now they're saying Goetta for the swift miss that the great quarterhorse sired.

She wasn't as swift Saturday as she, nor her counterparts, have been in racking up records, but she showed one of the swiftest fields her heels at the finish to win the featured Shue Fly Purse at Los Alamitos Race Course.

Going off as the favorite over Western Stable's Scooper Chick, Goetta won by a neck in the 350-yard event to return $5.40 on the win end. Scooper Chick came on strong to nab second after the early leader, Anna Dial, failed after breaking best of all and taking the early lead.

* * * *

A CROWD of 13,388, pouring $867,351 into the pari-mutuel machines, watched Anna Dial, who beat Goetta in their last meeting in 17.6, take a quick and an apparent clear lead as Goetta drifted slightly toward the rail from her outside post.

But after 150 yards, the Hugh Huntley star, with Charles Smith aboard, straightened and came on fast as did Scooper Chick, upset winner of Jet Deck last fall.

Winning time was 17.9, but each of the 1-2-3 finishers, top betting favorites in that order, had run faster previously. Anna Dial beat Goetta by a half-length in 17.6 March 21 at Sacramento; Scooper Chick has won twice at 17.8 at Sacramento and Los Alamitos, and Goetta last Dec. 14 at Los Alamitos in the Futurity Trial won going away in 17.6.

However, since that race, Goetta had been beaten twice, once by Maggie McGowan, who also ran in Saturday's Shue Fly, and by Anna Dial.

* * * *

BUT Saturday she lived up to her expectations and railbirds still expect her to be one of the outstanding quarterhorses of all time.

Goetta's place and show prices were $3.20, $2.60. Scooper Chick returned $3.60, $2.60 and Anna Dial $2.80.

Liz wasn't around but Eddie was following the second race.

Popular singer Eddie Fisher, ex-hubby of Elizabeth Taylor, adorned the winner's circle after the second race named in his honor and won by Foolish Capers, a horse which on the morning line was 15-1 but who went off as a lukewarm favorite to return $7.60.

Fisher, currently serenading at Melodyland, reportedly made a substantial wager on the eventual winner which may have aided in the sudden odds drop.

Foolish Capers completed a daily double from Raid Bar in the first race for a $59.80 payoff, the lowest yet in the young meeting but still a handsome one for those lucky enough to collect.

Froehling Halts Richey, Grudge Match Today

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—Frank Froehling of Coral Gables, Fla., cut off Cliff Richey's string of upsets Saturday with a powerful game that placed him against Roy Emerson in the grudge-match finals of the St. Petersburg Masters tennis tournament.

The match score was 4-6, 6-4, 6-2, 6-4.

Froehling, third man on the U.S. Davis Cup team, upset Emerson, rated the world's best amateur, in their only other meeting — the U.S. championship at Forest Hills.

BLUE NORTHER WINS

Mongo 5th, But Barnmate Shines

Compiled from Wire Reports

Sheldrake, 3-year-old stablemate to Mongo, won the $25,000-added Senatorial Stakes at Laurel Race Course Saturday while his illustrious barnmate was running out of the money in the Excelsior at Aqueduct.

Jockey Willie Shoemaker deliberately dropped Blue Norther back from an early lead and then booted the Kentucky Derby nominee home in the stretch to win the $25,150-added Ashland Stakes by three lengths at Keeneland, Ky.

The filly, nominated for both the Derby and the Oaks at Churchill Downs, ran the six furlong race in 1:09, just seven-tenths of a second off the track record, even though Shoemaker had dropped her back.

Blue Norther paid $3.00, $2.80 and $2.20. Silver Dollar, who finished second, paid $5.00 and $2.60, while Roman Goddess, third paid $2.20.

* * * *

UPPERCUT pulled away from the field in the stretch at Aqueduct to win the $27,500 Excelsior by three lengths with favored Mongo a poor fifth in the 57th running of the race.

Uppercut paid $11.00, $6.10 and $4.30. Rocky Link paid $6.50 and $4.50 after beating Morry E by a head. Morry E returned $5.60. Uppercut carried only 112 pounds compared to the 129 on Mongo.

Sheldrake, ridden by Ronnie Ferraro, paid $9.20, $4.80 and $3.60.

Hardwick Wins Pin Title Over Marzich

COSTA MESA (UPI)—Billy Hardwick, 22-year-old pro from San Mateo, rolled a 235-game Saturday to capture the deciding game of the $28,000 Southern California Open.

Hardwick defeated Andy Marzich of Long Beach, who rolled a 217, to pick up the $4,000 first-prize money in the nationally televised finals at Kona Lanes.

It was the third Professional Bowlers Association tourney win for Hardwick this year. Hardwick won four tournaments last year and was the leading money-winner on the circuit with $33,265.

The slender 6-footer was first-seeded in the finals of the Southern California Open because he led over the previous 40-game route.

Marzich, a bespectacled bowler who has one tournament win this year, defeated Ray Bluth of St. Louis 218-198 and Johnny King of Chicago, 268-236, in the round robin preceding the final. Bluth defeated King 268-236 for third place.

Hawks Sign Navy Pitcher

By CHUCK MEDICK

The Long Beach Nitehawks have signed pitcher Joe Lynch, a 22-year-old sailor who beat them three times last year.

Nitehawk manager Joe Rodgers was understandably impressed with the righthander, who twice shut out the Hawks while pitching for the USS Sperry team from San Diego. He also defeated every AAA team he faced. Two years ago he led the Sperry to the U.S. Naval title.

* * * *

LYNCH, who makes his home in Nashville, Tenn., will finish his tour of Naval duty next January.

He will join a staff of Nitehawk aces which includes Jack Randall, Eddie Waymire and Hugh Harman.

The Nitehawks start Western Softball Congress play April 30 against the ISC world champion Gardena Merchants.

Weird Weather at Tuna Club Camp

Every Southern California Tuna Club camp at Devil's Cove on Lake Mead provides a lot of fun and often some strange experiences. This year's camp, the sixth annual, topped all for weird weather and, as a matter of fact, there were some weird events.

The camp ended last Sunday and those who left Temple Bar early were fortunate. Those who departed later in the day ran into one of the worst windstorms in the Baker-Barstow area. As a result, several cars are getting new glass and paint jobs this week.

The main camp started on the previous Wednesday and rain began falling the first night. Result: wet tents and some sleeping bags. Hail and high winds and even snow on distant peaks added to the assortment of weather, but yet the 85 persons had their usual good luck with bass. Most of the fish were smaller than in previous years.

Such a camp, 20 miles from Temple Bar by water, requires much advance planning and a work crew usually gets everything in order before the larger group arrives.

General chairman Robert Joy received high praise for the way he organized this year's camp, but he, in turn, gave credit to a score of men who went up a week ahead of the camp opening.

THOSE WHO PREPARED CAMP were president Cliff Brignall, J. S. (Jim) Kuster, Allen Lowe, Warren Merrill, Burr Dilday, Dr. Eugene Jones, John Osler, Lou Wetzel, Lloyd Hunter, Dr. Chester Moore, Dr. Sterling Pillsbury, Mel Masterson, Bob Joy and the hired help, Juel Bosen, who left his delicatessen at 2943 E. Broadway here to cook for the sixth year, and his son-in-law, James Davis.

Sherman Bledsoe and his son, Dave, who have been working for the Temple Bar Corporation, also helped with the heavy work. Joy and Bledsoe put an earth-moving machine on a truck and went around through Las Vegas, beyond the Overton arm of the lake and then found a trail that eventually led to Devil's Cove. Such a trip involves about 200 miles of travel from Temple Bar.

The equipment, which consists of a shovel on one end and a bulldozer on the other, was used to level ground for the tents. It was too heavy to have been barged uplake from Temple Bar.

But it remained for Dr. Moore and Dr. Pillsbury to turn in the oddest list of experiences. Anywhere Dr. Chet Moore goes there is bound to be an experience.

He and Dr. Pillsbury and Mel Masterson and Roy Cabe set out from Long Beach in Chet's reconverted Santa Fe bus, a de luxe camper unit.

THEY LEFT MASTERSON and Cabe at Temple Bar to go uplake by boat, then trailing a Jeep behind the bus, took the same route beyond Las Vegas and Overton. Getting a vehicle that once carried 40 or 45 passengers over almost virgin territory proved to be quite a task.

The dentist and the doctor first had to put out a fire that started in the rear of the bus when a can fell on a storage battery, shorted it and started throwing sparks that ignited rags and timbers.

With that fire out, they resumed their trip. At one point the bus got stuck on a high hump of ground and they got out to shovel underneath. Then they discovered that they had lost the Jeep. Once they got the bus moving again, they retracked their path and found the Jeep two miles away.

They decided to leave the bus there and take to the Jeep but it wouldn't start. Two men in another Jeep (taken in earlier by the work crew) showed up at that moment and started working on the engine. Chet decided to make camp for the night. He took a brazier from the bus, loaded it with charcoal and got ready to broil steaks.

Just about the time he was ready to put the steaks on the fire, the others succeeded in starting the balky Jeep. It was in gear and took off like a scared jackrabbit, right over the brazier, throwing hot coals over the countryside.

JUST WHAT WAS SAID by everyone at that moment isn't quite clear, but I'm sure it couldn't be printed. They finally left the bus about 12 miles from Devil's Cove and the two Jeeps mad trips back and forth carrying, among other equipment, Chet's high-powered radio transmitting station. He was the head of a committee on "global communications."

On the final night he was tried and convicted by a kangaroo court for operating an illegal radio station in Nevada.

Oh, yes, I almost forgot about the Dr. Moore-Dr. Pillsbury experiences on the way home. They got the Jeep hitched on the bus and left early for Las Vegas. About halfway back and in barren country they spotted an animal which calmly walked in front of the bus. It was a mountain lion, a big one, too!

Driving into the hotel parking lot at Las Vegas, the engine of the once-balky Jeep fell out of the frame to the pavement. So part of the Jeep had to ride home inside the bus. But they were lucky. They left early enough and didn't have to fight the vicious windstorm.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Steel, Rails Fail to Shake Mart

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks finished lower in the averages last week, but Wall Streeters were pleased at the sturdiness which the market showed against an adverse news background.

Brokers were considerably surprised by the market's ability to absorb both the indictment of eight steel companies and another close shave with a nationwide rail strike.

* * * *

PRICES rose to their third consecutive high on Monday but drifted lower Tuesday indictments. Prices eased again Wednesday, this time dropping under strike calls against the Illinois Central Railroad.

Prices milled listlessly on Thursday then sold off near the close when it appeared that an immediate solution was not forthcoming. In the final session rails featured the market as prices moved up again.

The economic situation continued to look bright and grows rosier with each incoming earnings report for the first quarter. The basic economic indicators continue to point upward.

Dow-Jones Industrial Average slipped 1.24 to 821.75 and rails lost 0.18 to 195.28. Utilities tacked on 0.01 to 285.78. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index skidded 0.09 to 79.85.

* * * *

VOLUME for the week amounted to 27,416,090 shares compared with 29,689,310 shares a week earlier and 22,175,104 shares in the same week last year. Of the 1,526 issues traded, 737 advanced, 323 to new 1964 highs while 619 declined, 84 to new lows.

Chrysler topped the market in activity, climbing 3⅛ to 48 on a turnover of 499,900 shares. Brokers attributed the strength in the stock to speculation over the company's first quarter earnings statement which is due this week and anticipation of a possible dividend boost.

It was followed in activity by Texas Gulf Sulphur up 3⅛ to 30⅛. Sulphur stocks have been strong since the recent price boost in the industry. Other sulphur companies to show gains were Pan American Sulphur up 2¾ and Freeport Sulphur up 2½.

* * * *

TRANSITRON was third with a gain of 2 1/7 to 6⅞. RCA placed fourth with a gain of ½ to 35⅞ and Fairchild Camera was fifth with a gain of ⅝ to 29¾. Fairchild was strong early in the week after the company announced it had developed a home television tape recorder which could sell for less than $500 if mass produced.

Steels generally were lower and even those who were not named in the indictment suffered.

Among those named in the suit, Bethlehem dropped 1¾, Republic 1⅜, U. S. Steel 1½, Jones & Laughlin ¼, Wheeling ⅝ and Armco ⅞. National Steel was up ¼.

Youngstown Sheet lost 1, Lukens 1½, Allegeny Ludlum 1⅛, and Inland 1⅛.

General Motors gained ⅛, but Ford slipped ⅝ and American Motors gave up ¼. Mack Truck dropped 1¼. Union Carbide jumped 3½ but Du Pont lost 1¼ and Eastman Kodak skidded 1⅜. Commercial Solvents advanced 2⅜ and Witco 4⅝.

* * * *

OILS SHOWED a number of good gains including Standard Oil of Indiana up 3⅞, Pennzoil 2, and Barbar 3. Getty Oil dropped 2⅛ and Pure Oil gave up 2.

IBM lost 1¾ despite a gain of 11¾ in the final session when directors reported first quarter earnings rose $36 million. Per share earnings totaled $4.11 compared with $2.82 a year earlier.

Control Data soared 10⅞, Motorola 4⅝, Texas Instruments 3¾, Electronic Associates 2¾ and High Voltage Engineering 2¾. Minneapolis-Honeywell sank 3¾.

Abbott Labs added 3½ and Bristol-Myers 3. Merck lost 4. Merck earlier last week distributed a 36,000 shares secondary offering.

Anaconda rose 1¼ and Cerro Corp. picked up 2¼. International Nickel slipped 2⅝.

* * * *

AIRLINE shares were hit by profit-taking and many in the section drifted back from their former lofty positions. Pan American dropped 2⅜, United 3, National 2⅞, Northwest 2⅝, Trans World 1¼ and Continental 1⅝. American Airlines rose 1⅜ and Emery Air Freight added 2.

Tobacco shares scored fresh gains on new reports that cigarette sales were again on the upswing. Liggett & Myers gained 2⅜, Philip Morris 1⅝, Reynolds ⅝, Lorillard ⅛ and American Tobacco ½.

Cigar stocks retreated some. General Cigar gave up 2¼ and Bayuk eased 2.

General Cable jumped 7⅛ on a company estimate of record sales and earnings for the first quarter. Celanese picked up 2, also on earnings news.

* * * *

WOOLWORTH shot up 7¼ after directors proposed a 3-for-1 stock split and dividend boost. Elsewhere in the section, Kress jumped 7⅛, but May Department Stores gave up 2½.

Among the rail leaders, New York Central was ahead 1½, Chicago Great Western 1¼ and Atlantic Coast Line 1¾. Nickel Plate dropped ⅞, Chicago & North Western 1¾, Norfolk & Western ½, Baltimore & Ohio ¼, Atchison ⅜ and Union Pacific ⅜.

Financial shares retreated. Financial Federation dropped 6½, First Charter Financial 1⅛, United Financial of California 4½ and Wesco 4.

American Telephone, whose billion dollar rights offering expired at noon Monday, dropped 2⅛. General Electric eased 2⅛. Rohm & Haas gave up 4½.

G. D. Roper pushed ahead 8¼. Du Bois Chemical gained 2. Harris Intertype advanced 4⅜. Polaroid soared 12 but Xerox, its glamor twin, gained only 3½.

Major Firms Report Good Oil Prospects

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Stockholders of most major oil companies are being advised the industry's prospects for 1964 are good.

Most of the annual financial reports being mailed to stockholders are optimistic but warn of continued sharp competition and depressed products prices.

The annual report by the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) summarized the situation this way:

"Prospects for the petroleum industry in 1964 are generally good, even with perennial difficulties with costs, prices and regulations. Even though prices for crude oil and refined products continue under pressure . . . record levels in industry operations, along with further gains in earnings, appear likely."

Socony Mobil Oil Co. emphasized its forecast of a good year by saying it has earmarked a record $475 million for 1964 capital and exploration expenditures.

Texaco Inc. said free world demand for petroleum in 1964 should rise about six per cent —from two to three per cent in the United States and eight to 10 per cent in other areas.

Phillips Petroleum Co. said expanding highway systems, trends to suburban living, increasing pleasure travel, and a rising general economy should cause 1963's strong demand for gasoline to continue.

The Gulf Oil Corp. reported 1963 earnings but said gasoline prices averaged one-half cent below 1954.

"At Gulf's 1963 level of operations in the United States alone, one-half cent a gallon in the price of gasoline is equivalent to more than $24 million a year in operating revenues," the Gulf report said.

Standard Oil Co. of California said there is indication of continued progress and growth in 1964 but such prospects are tempered by price and other industry problems persisting from 1963.

"To lessen the adverse impact of the cost-price squeeze on company earnings, management is expanding and intensifying its various programs for controlling and reducing the costs of doing business," California's report said.

"I WILL NEVER HAVE TO FACE THIS PROBLEM ALONE!"

"When my husband suggested we talk to the Rose Hills man about before-need memorial property, I knew he was thinking of the unnecessary suffering my friends went through because they had not planned ahead.

"We arranged a Family Protection Plan, while we both could choose what we wanted, without emotional pressures. He says he feels ten years younger, with the peace of mind he gained, knowing that I will never have to face this problem alone. He has proven his love beyond mere words.

"We certainly are glad we chose Rose Hills. Its beauty is so natural, with rolling hills, lovely lawns and gardens, and no headstones or monuments, it looks more like a park than a cemetery. There were so many beautiful sections from which to choose, and we found just what we wanted.

"We know, too, that Rose Hills will always be as lovely as it is today for they have that government-supervised Endowment Care Fund.

"By planning ahead, we gained financially, too. We were able to arrange a monthly payment plan that fits our budget perfectly, a plan which minimizes the cost to us.

"And as one of those little extra touches you always appreciate, the Rose Hills man gave us a handy Estate Portfolio for our important papers. It has containers for insurance, real estate papers, stocks and bonds and other vital records, properly catalogued so they are easy to find. He told us this portfolio is free to anyone interested."

This reaction is typical of that of thousands of wives, whose husbands had the foresight to plan in advance. Why don't you talk to the man from Rose Hills soon? Arrange an appointment by phone, or better still, send in the coupon for your free Estate Portfolio.

TO CLASSIFIED

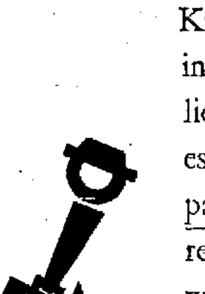
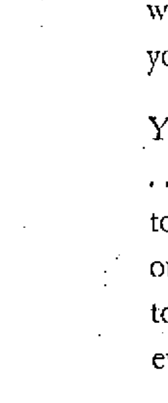
Members of the specially trained, 70-man field auditing staff of the Audit Bureau of Circulations* make regular call on 2,900 publications . . . ours included . . . located in almost as many places.



The ABC auditor's call might last a day, a week, or even several months . . . just as long as it takes him to make a complete audit of our circulation records and obtain the information about our circulation audience that ABC will later publish.

Actually, he is working for you—our readers and our advertisers. Knowing full well that we will stay in business only so long as our publication continues to serve the interests of our readers, this audit of our paid circulation provides us with a regular and objective review of how well you think we are doing.



Knowing full well that sales messages must reach a responsive audience in order to be effective, our advertisers are also interested in the ABC auditor's call. The hard, and sometimes cold, facts he reports about our circulation provide you with an informed basis for investing your advertising money.

Yes, the ABC auditor has been here . . . and he will be here again calling to check on how well we are doing our job and to provide the facts to help us and our advertisers do even better.

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

This publication is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an association of nearly 4,000 publishers, advertisers, and advertising agencies. Our circulation is audited by experienced ABC field auditors. Our ABC report shows how much circulation we have, where it goes, how obtained, and other facts that tell you what you get for your advertising money when you use this publication.

A SUGGESTION

When making a turn, always signal or use turn indicators. Signal well in advance so that drivers behind you are not forced to brake or swerve suddenly. Make sure your turn signals are off at all other times.

400 Realty Appraisers Due at Regional Meet April 23-25

California's blue ribbon experts of real estate evaluation will attend the 14th annual Southwest Regional Conference which will be held April 24-25 in the Newporter Inn at Newport Beach.

Sponsored by the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, Southern California chapter, the conference will attract more than 400 of the nation's elite appraisers who are entitled to use the designation MAI after their names to signify their qualifying status.

The conference theme will eb focused on the significant trends affecting real estate valuation, particularly in the states of Utah, Arizona, California and Hawaii which have enjoyed the greatest attention from investors and developers in the past decade.

* * * *

CONFERENCE calendar calls for registration and an MAI meeting for members and candidates for membership Thursday evening, April 23.

Opening general session will see Stanley Goode, Jr., MAI, president of the host chapter, greeting the conferees, and turning the gavel over to George H. Jones, MAI, conference chairman.

"Appraisers Meet the Press," at 9 a.m. April 24, will bring to the fore for the MAIs and the press many of the knotty problems and their solutions which have become a matter of public concern throughout the Southwest during the past year.

* * * *

REPRESENTING the press on the panel will be Vern Anthony, Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram and Garden Grove Evening News real estate editor; Bryan Taylor, San Francisco Examiner; Henry Fuller, Arizona Republic, Phoenix; Tom Cameron, Los Angeles Times; and Clyde Smith, San Diego Union.

The appraisers will be represented by Richard Robbins, MAI, San Francisco; Stanley Goode, Jr., MAI, Santa Ana; Fred Gebers, MAI, Los Angeles; John Cotton, MAI, San Diego; and Frank Kelly, MAI, Phoenix.

"Trends in Architecture and Construction Methods" will be covered by a panel comprising Arthur Mann, president of the worldwide architectural-engineering firm of Daniel, Mann, Johnson & Mendenhall; Carleton Green, Southern California general manager, Stanford Research Institute; and John B. Kilroy, president of John B. Kilroy Co., industrial realtors and developers. Moderator will be James A. Hooper, MAI, Fresno.

LUNCHEON speaker will be Jesse Tapp, chairman of the board of Bank of America, whose subject has not yet been announced.

This will be followed by "Trends in Land Use and Zoning," which Roger Whitacre, MAI, San Diego, will moderate, with panel members Simon Eisner, of Eisner-Stewart Co., John Beatty, director of planning, Phoenix; and Edward Hearle, research analyst of the Rand Corporation.

National president of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers, Joseph O. Kuehnle, MAI, of Chicago, will present "Challenge of the Present Market" as his late afternoon talk.

* * * *

THIS WILL BE followed by "Trends in Mortgage Lending," with Dr. F. E. Balderston, Savings & Loan commissioner, state of California, and Hubert D. A REAL HONEY OF AN IDEA

Cardboard Sandwich Laced With Glue Is Sweet Money-Saver for Manufacturers

By
VERN ANTHONY

Busy as bees, workers in a plant recently opened in La Mirada by Hexcel Products, Inc., are manufacturing 'honeycomb' made from paper. And, as its name implies, it can be a 'sweet' industrial economy.

Amazingly, the honeycomb provides more strength for its weight than anything now known, when it is sandwiched between nearly any kind of sheet material, the manufacturers say.

* * * *

HEXCEL IS at 15100 S. Valley View Ave. in a building formerly occupied by the Coast Hardboard Co., which has moved to Whittier.

The La Mirada Division, managed by Thomas P. Muchisky, manufactures variations of Kraft liner board (a high quality wood derivative) honeycomb for such applications as interior and exterior walls, roofs, partitions, floors, cabinets, shelving, pallets and doors.

Customers throughout the 15 Western states, including Alaska and Hawaii, are serviced from the new facility.

* * * *

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA is a major market for Hexcel's industrial honeycomb products. Numerous new applications for the material have blossomed in the area, including relocatable residential walls, unusually flat residential doors, and lightweight incombustible walls for commercial buildings.

The relocatable walls, which consist of Kraft honeycomb core and wood veneer facing sheets, are strong but so light that they can be rearranged by a man and a boy.

Henry C. Cox, prominent Santa Ana home builder, introduced such relocatable walls on a mass basis in late 1962.

The primary advantage to the homeowner is that he can change the interior appearance of his home at will and the walls never will take on a "wavy" appearance.

* * * *

ADVANTAGE TO THE BUILDER is that he can sell a home, and wait for the family to make the final decision on where the walls should be placed and how large rooms should be.

The La Mirada plant is Hexcel's fifth manufacturing facility. Other plants are located at Berkeley (headquarters) and Oakland, Calif.; Irving, Tex., and Havre de Grace, Md.

* * * *

THE TERM HONEYCOMB is used to describe specific structure, not any special material; and honeycomb can be made from numerous materials, such as aluminum, fiberglass, plastics, etc.

In tests of strength, a piece of paper honeycomb core only seven inches thick has supported the weight of a 4,800 pound automobile.

Escrow Group to Convene

Presidents and delegates from 11 escrow associations in the state will convene in Long Beach April 18. The Long Beach Escrow Association will host the state meeting, according to Marjorie D. Knox, local unit president.

Plans include a luncheon at Mr. C's restaurant, followed by a business session adjourning at 4:30 p.m. The Long Beach group then will entertain at a cocktail party.

The California Escrow Association group will include presidents and delegates from all local associations in the state.

Decisions made here, it was said, will be of major concern to real estate and escrow business and could play a key part in future legislation in these fields.

Noma Has New Name

The National Office Management Association (NOMA), has changed its name to Administrative Management Society, International President Joseph W. Gawthrop has announced. (NOMA was organized in 1919, and today has 16,000 members in the United States and Canada, plus members at large around the world.

The Long Beach chapter has completed the details involved in making the change-over to Administrative Management Society, according to Norman Greengrove, president of the chapter.

* * * *

THE PURPOSE of any name is meaningful identification. It is simply no longer appropriate to attempt to describe the field of the society's interest with the term "office management," Greengrove said.

The term "Administrative Management" carries with it implications of the broadened scope and the company-wide import of the aggressive profit orientation now increasingly typical of what used to be known as office management operations — and characteristic of the purposes and sense of direction, locally and nationally, of Administrative Management Society.

* * * *

HEAD OFFICES are in Willow Grove, Pa., where the society just completed a new office building to house its professional staff in administering the organization's many activities in the functional areas of personnel, systems, administrative services, advanced management, education and chapter services.

Work on project is under way now at 660 E. Ocean Blvd., just east of another apartment building built by Sassoon and already occupied. The Tower is due for completion by July, 1965. It will be 300 feet high. "Topping out" of the structure is slated next January.

START OF FIVE-STORY PROJECT

Ground-breaking ceremonies for "Verdes West" condominium apartment project in San Pedro launch South Bay's tallest "own-your-own" project. Swedlow, Inc., major aerospace plastics manufacturer, last week officially opened the first unit of its new plant facility on a 22 acre site in the Garden Grove Central Manufacturing District.

Opening ceremonies included a ribbon-cutting, followed by a guided plant tour.

San Pedro to Have High Condominium

Official groundbreaking ceremonies were held recently for "Verdes West," a $3 million five-story condominium apartment project on Western Avenue overlooking San Pedro's Peck Park and Los Angeles Harbor.

The 70-apartment structure will be the tallest condominium in the South Bay area. Construction operations are under way and the building is due to be completed early in 1965.

"Verdes West" is a Price-Shorr project being built by Verdes Development Corp. It is located at the Northwest intersection of Summerland and Western Avenue.

* * * *

EXTENSIVE preparation of the present hill site will place "Verdes West's" first floor at third-story height above Western Avenue. The top floor apartments will enjoy a view equivalent to that of a seven-story building.

The luxury apartment building is a block south of the new Western Plaza shopping area.

1,500 Due at Builder Meeting

Planned developments, condominiums and cluster housing developments in the West in the past year will be reviewed in detail by 30 speakers at the concentrated one-day conference on the three types on May 4 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Hollywood Palladium, according to Robert A. Olin, president of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties, sponsors of the event.

* * * *

OFFICIAL NAME of the one-day meeting is "First Regional Conference on Planned Developments, Condominiums and Cluster Housing."

It is designed to present the newest developments of the three concepts for builders, lenders, architects, planners, city officials, manufacturers, and others in the home building industry in the 11 Western states, Olin said.

Plans have been made for seating 1,500 persons, said Ray A. Watt, of Ray A. Watt Construction Co., Gardena, who is chairman of the HBA Condominium Committee which is directly in charge.

* * * *

"RESERVATIONS will be accepted on a first come, first served basis," said Watt.

"At our very successful How-to-do-it Condominium Conference last year at Disneyland Hotel, we could seat only 1,200 persons because of fire department regulations, we had to turn back 300 requests for reservations and turn away 300 persons at the doors."

Hutton & Co. Notes 60th Anniversary

Long Beach area representatives of E. F. Hutton & Co. are joining in the firm's observance this month of its 60th anniversary.

The company, member of the New York Stock Exchange, recently announced a 10 per cent expansion. Four offices of Baker, Simonds & Co., Inc., headquartered in Detroit, have joined Hutton & Co.; and the latter now has 46 offices in 12 states, according to S. C. Coleman, board chairman and chief executive officer.

* * * *

SIXTY YEARS ago, Edward F. Hutton began business with one office and one partner in New York City.

The firm lays claim to a number of firsts and innovations in its 60 years: 1907, market quotations provided to West Coast newspapers; 1915, suburban offices inaugurated in Los Angeles and San Francisco; 1916, one of the first hotel offices opened in New York's Plaza; 1922, Hutton's "Early Morning Bulletin," a forerunner of today's market letter begun and in the early 1920's Hutton partners made some of the first field reports on industrial companies.

E. F. Hutton today has 2,100 employes, including 650 registered representatives.

SPEEDS UP WORK AT DOUGLAS PLANT

Management Changes Made by McDermott

R. Thomas McDermott, president and founder of J. Ray McDermott & Co., Inc., world-wide off-shore contractors who have done work off California, has been elected to the newly created post of chairman, according to an announcement from New Orleans.

Roger W. Wilson, 56, executive vice president since 1946, was named president.

McDermott, nearing 65, said the management changes were "aimed at shifting the growing management burden to younger shoulders," while broadening the managerial base and streamlining executive procedures.

A. H. Stall, 64, a vice president and director, was elected to additional duties of vice chairman, another new post.

C. L. Graves, 48, a director and former vice president, was appointed executive vice president to succeed Wilson.

Eugene D. Saunders, general counsel, was named a director.

McDermott heads a newly established finance committee, which also includes Wilson and directors Graham D. Mattison and William A. Hobbs.

Firm Buys Guam Base

Smyth Worldwide Movers, Inc., West Coast-based international moving and storage firm, has acquired substantial warehousing, trucking and operating facilities on the island of Guam, in the central Pacific.

Robert Hudak, manager of Smyth's Long Beach branch, said the company has purchased the entire installation of International Sea Van, Inc., at Asan, Guam.

Smyth has other domestic bases at Redwood City, San Francisco, Tacoma, and Seattle, and owns and operates overseas bases at Anchorage, Alaska, Hawaii, Japan, and Okinawa.

James H. Wilson, president of Smyth Worldwide, said the newly-acquired branch will employ 25 people and operate under the name of Smyth Van of Guam.

* * * *

THE PURCHASE includes land, 29 pieces of trucking and loading equipment, and a reinforced concrete warehouse of 10,000 square feet capacity, one of the few buildings to survive typhoon Karen, which devastated Guam in November, 1962.

"In a way, the typhoon is responsible for the company's decision to expand into Guam," Hudak said. "The United States Government recently began a five-year rebuilding program on the island which will involve many thousands of tons of material and equipment. We anticipate a healthy increase in commercial hauling and warehousing in the area."

$2,062 Million Invested in State by Metropolitan

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. assets invested in California amounted to $2,062.2 million at the end of 1963, it was announced Saturday by A. J. Miall, manager of the company's Lakewood office.

Metropolitan contributed significantly to demands for capital in California to finance industrial expansion and research; to help meet the needs of large and small businesses; and to spur the trend towards home ownership, Miall said.

For example, more than $585.3 million was invested in corporate securities in California, and Metropolitan mortgage loans in the state amounted to $1,082.7 million.

The company's holdings of U. S. government bonds alone — apportioned to California on the basis of its population —amounted to $88.5 million. Other Metropolitan assets attributable to California amounted to $305.5 million.

FIRST UNITED STATES FLOATING TRADE FAIR

THIS VESSEL TO BECOME WORLD TRADE SHIP

Fair Trade Ship Will Show Products of Free Enterprise

American products and services ranging from pumps to paint, and from computers to milking machines, will go on sale throughout the world next year via a spectacular floating showcase.

The showcase will be the S. S. Tradefair, the first United States trade fair ship.

Conceived by Trade Fair Ship, Inc., at 46 South St., New York City, the operation is a private, profit-making venture deliberately designed to portray the American concept of the private enterprise system — by private enterprise.

The ship will carry products of American businessmen both large and small.

* * * *

A SERIES of four cruises over a 13 to 18-month period will put the American showcase in 52 ports, each of which has been market researched for an identifiable demand for American products and services.

The four itineraries of the first world cruise are Northern Europe; Southern Europe, the Mediterranean and the Near East; Arabia, the Middle East, India and East Asia; and Australia, South Africa and Latin America.

Admiral John H. Morrill, USN (Ret.), president of Trade Fair Ship, Inc., points out that with more than half of the nations on the globe competing for new consumer markets throughout the world, the American businessman must utilize every known means to expand his markets beyond U.S. borders.

* * * *

THE SHIP has been designed to serve as a business center; a stage for seminars; a forum for exchanging ideas and information on investment and licensing opportunities in the U.S. and abroad; on national customs and marketing procedures; a market place where transactions can be completed on a person-to-person basis by exhibitors and foreign buyers and an arena for commercial diplomacy to strengthen international ties.

An 18 knot, 20,000-ton displacement ship, 525 feet long, is scheduled to go into a yard for a $10 million renovation this spring. She will have 40,000 square feet of exhibit space supplemented by 75,000 square feet of special service areas.

Franchise, Permit Fee Totals Gain

Franchise Taxes and permit fees collected by the Long Beach Bureau of Franchises last fiscal year amounted to $952,448.67, an increase of $17,052.04 over the preceding year.

The figures were disclosed in an annual report by City Auditor Murray T. Courson.

Principal revenue sources were $415,090.49 from the General Telephone Co. franchise, $253,418.33 from Southern California Edison Co. and $209,480.75 from pipeline installations.

The first two showed substantial increases. Pipeline revenues declined because of the city's purchase of a portion of the facilities formerly owned by Southern California Gas, Co.

NEARLY 80 TONS AT A BITE

This gigantic new walking dragline machine can dig and cast about 80 tons of material with every swing of its 60-cubic-yard bucket. It has a 250-foot boom and is able to reach out as far as 246 feet and as deep as 150 feet below its own level. It's the largest machine of its kind ever built by Bucyrus-Erie Co., Milwaukee, and is now at work at a mine in Kentucky. When digging, the machine rests on its circular base 55 feet in diameter, with its "walking shoes" up and out of the way. To move the machine, the shoes are lowered to the ground simultaneously by a rotating cam system. In the same process, the main part of the machine and its base are lifted, moved forward along the ground and then gently lowered to complete a "step" of about seven feet.

Real Pure Water Not for Drinks

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you've never tried drinking "pure" water, try it some time. The chances are you won't like it. Nobody does. Water tastes good because of the mineral content, which varies considerably from one area to another.

Getting the impurities out of water to fit it for industrial use while making it not fit for human consumption is one of the tasks of the Detroit subsidiary of The Grow Corp. of New York, which makes an especially pure water used as a jet airplane fuel additive. The water, mixed with methanol and injected into the engine's fuel stream, provides an extra burst of take-off power.

The rubber and fabric tanks, in sizes up to 100,000 gallons, are produced for a variety of liquid storage and handling assignments. These three tanks, filled with air for test purposes, have 900-, 5,000- and 50,000-gallon capacities. They are made at the firm's Rockmart, Ga., plant.

RICHARD SIRIS
Company President

Siris Furniture Co. Expands Into New Long Beach Store

Richard Siris, president of Siris Furniture Co., today announced the grand opening of the firm's new furniture store at 1235 Long Beach Blvd., directly across the street from its previous location.

"This we firmly believe to be one of the most beautiful furniture stores in the entire harbor area, if not all Southern California," Siris said.

He declared it would be the policy of the store to carry on its "time-honored tradition" of offering finest furniture values to be found anywhere. "In fact," he said, "our furniture will only look expensive in its new surroundings, yet will carry a budget price."

The new store location, formerly an auto sales and service center, has been rebuilt as designed by Siris and architect Stanley Goldin, AIA.

* * * *

THE SIRIS COMPANY was founded in 1925 by Jacob Siris. The business was sold to his son, Irving, in 1944. The father-to-son tradition continued in 1960, when Richard Siris became president. He recently became a member of the National Society of Interior Decorators.

The store's new location provides triple expansion over its previous space. This, Richard Siris remarked, shows confidence that business growth will continue in the Long Beach and Orange County areas.

The new store features homelike groupings of furniture, with lighting suitable to individual displays.

W.U. Autodin Gets New Defense Order

Walter P. Marshall, president of Western Union Telegraph Co., announced signing of a contract with the Department of Defense, involving capital expenditures in excess of $55,000,000, to expand its Autodin Communications System, world's largest and most advanced automatic digital data network.

Scheduled for completion by mid-1966, Autodin's expansion, when additional outstation equipment and circuitry is installed, will provide Western Union with additional private wire revenues approximating $25,000,000 annually.

The present Autodin system, completed by Western Union for the Department of Defense early in 1963, consists of five major switching centers and more than 350 outstations, with revenues of more than $30,000,000 annually. The new contract will add four new switching centers.

* * * *

CAPACITY of the five existing centers will be increased and the enlarged system will have a capability of more than 2,000 outstations, over five times the present number. The new system will absorb many existing nationwide teletype networks.

Autodin is being developed into a global system for the high-speed interchange of vital telecommunications for the Department of Defense, not only between military installations but also with industrial plants which provide direct support for weapons systems.

New passenger car sales by GM dealers during the quarter were 1,013,246 compared to 955,524 the first three months of 1963, the previous high.

Nickel Stainless Steel Sinks Gain in Popularity

That sturdy standby of yesterday, the stainless steel sink, has undergone a dramatic change and is fast becoming the most wanted kitchen helper in America by homemakers demanding the best in today's new homes.

Through addition of nickel to stainless steel, manufacturers have been able to create a major breakthrough toward supplying the kitchen with a sink even more durable than ordinary stainless steel while at the same time making possible a great variety of beautiful and permanent finishes, models and sizes. Nickel also practically elminates any possibilty of corrosion.

A San Fernando manufacturer (Ziegler - Harris Corp.) reports more than 3,500 sinks ordered in the first two months of this year compared to only a scattered few hundred during the similar period last year.

* * * *

IN THE Long Beach area, S and S Construction Co. is using these sinks in the 1,000-unit 2000 Beverly Plaza tract; and Koll Construction Co. is using them in a 400-unit condominium.

The Larwin Group Companies, one of the nation's leading master builders, has nickel stainless steel sinks in its new $18 million, 785 unit home community, Kingspark, in Simi Valley. Michael L. Tenzer, vice president and marketing director for Larwin, announced the sinks are being installed in the entire Kingspark development.

* * * *

NICKEL stainless steel sink manufacturers report more than 20 major residential, condominium and apartment builders have ordered the sinks since Jan. 1. The projects range in location from the San Fernando and Simi Valleys to Lancaster, Santa Barbara, Beverly Hills, Long Beach and Orange County.

A national consumer magazine recently reported that by 1970 more than 70% of all sinks manufactured will be some form of nickel stainless steel. Currently, 29% of all sinks now being made are nickel stainless steel.

Living Expenses Average Near $6,000 in Southland

Southland consumers spent almost $6,000 for current annual living expenses in 1960 and '61, according to government findings.

Results of a survey of expenditures by families and single consumers in the Los Angeles area, including Orange County, were released by Max D. Kossoris, western regional director of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Annual expenditures for current consumption in 1960-61 showed an increase of 44.3 per cent since 1950. At the same time, average money incomes after taxes rose 52.0 per cent.

IN ADDITION to the increased dollar expenditure in all major categories between 1950 and 1960-61, there were significant shifts in the proportion of total current living expenses for different purposes.

Food and beverages declined from 29.9 per cent to 24.9 per cent of current expenditures, and clothing from 10.3 to 9.2 per cent.

But shelter costs (including fuel and utilities) of homeowners and renters increased from 14.4 to 17.7 per cent in 1960-61.

However, the combined share for the three basic categories of family expenses—food, clothing and shelter—declined from 55 to 52 per cent.

Expenditures for the purchase and operation of automobiles also increased, rising from 14.8 to 15.2 per cent, partly because the percentage of families owning automobiles rose from 72 to 84 per cent.

* * * *

MEDICAL CARE and personal care also accounted for a larger share of family spending in the decade since 1950, with 3 out of 4 families reporting payments for medical care insurance in 1960-61.

The increase over the decade brought average expenditures for current living costs to $5,989 in 1960-61.

In addition, Los Angeles consumers made gifts and contributions averaging $296 and put $315 into life insurance and retirement funds.

Their accounts over the year showed savings of $107, on the average, through a net increase of assets over liabilities.

More Distilled Spirits Consumed

NEW YORK (UPI — The U.S. public keeps getting thirstier: 1962's total consumption of distilled spirits set a new high of approximately 254 million gallons, according to Schenley Distillers. This was an increase of about five per cent over 1961's previous record of 240 million gallons; '62 was the eighth consecutive year in which the national rate of consumption increased.

Torrance Firm Has New Chief

TORRANCE—Dr. Donald J. Farmer has been named to succeed Leonard J. Heilman as president of General Technology Corporation here.

Dr. Farmer announced that the company now will concentrate on its proprietary atomic frequency-control instrumentation, high-vacuum components and controlled-atmosphere systems.

This change in emphasis, he pointed out, results from rapidly growing markets for accurate and reliable frequency standards and high-vacuum system components.

General Technology currently is working on a plasma engine for NASA.

West Uses Most Steel in Building

"The construction industry in the West is steel's biggest consumer—and steel has revolutionized its product in the last few years to bring new economies to the big construction jobs just ahead," Jack L. Ashby, president of Kaiser Steel Corp., told the Association of Iron and Steel Engineers western meeting in Los Angeles.

"The West is embarking upon vast new highway, building programs water transportation projects and rapid transit networks. The widespread and judicious application of steel in the design and construction of these facilities can result in more attractive structures, at lower over-all costs and longer lives. Nobody is better equipped to work toward these ends than the iron and steel engineers."

Ashby pointed out that the introduction of oxygen to the steel manufacturing process as well as the development of higher strength steels and new steel products, all within the last few years, allow greater design freedom than is now being utilized.

Celebrate Over 500,000th Pool Built in U.S.

Officials of the Swimming Pool Association of Southern California, Inc., assembled recently at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Frye, Monterey Park, in commemoration of completion of the 500,000th swimming pool constructed in the United States.

Industry spokesmen pointed to the fact that in 1954 there were only an estimated 20,000 swimming pools in the nation. They saw the increase from that number to one half million in 10 years as a miraculous growth pattern that could happen "only in America."

SPA/SC presented Frye with a solid bronze plaque in celebration of the completion of his family pool. Frye is employed in the engineering department of the Southern California Gas Company.

To help celebrate the occasion of this half-millionth pool, the association is presenting a "Pool Owners' Day" at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles. This will be free to the public commencing at 10 a.m., Saturday, April 25.

More Pipelines Seen in Future

HOUSTON (UPI) — Pipelines will become more important to the chemical industry as the need for large-volume bulk chemical transport increases, a pipeline official told a recent meeting of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

$2 Billion Spent Weekly on Personal Progress and Welfare

Public and private expenditures to further the personal progress and welfare of the American people — their education, health, and financial protection for themselves and their dependents against the contingencies of life — have now reached a combined total of more than $100 billion a year, the Institute of Life Insurance has reported.

The aggregate came to more than $104 billion for the 1962-63 fiscal year, or $2 billion a week for every week in the year, according to data obtained from private and government sources, the Institute said.

This represented an increase of $5½ billion over the previous year, and it has been showing a significantly greater rate of growth than that of the economy as a whole over the post-World War II period.

"Indicative of their expansionary trend, education, health and personal protection expenditures taken together came to the equivalent of about 18 cents of every dollar of gross national produce in the fiscal year ended last July," the Institute said.

"The comparable dollar total and proportion just five years before, in the 1957-58 fiscal year, were $71 billion and 16 cents, while back in the 1949-50 fiscal year they were only $36 billion and 13 cents of the product dollar."

Memory Expert Will 'Tell How'

COMPTON — Orville A. Porter, from Hollywood, will be guest speaker at the weekly breakfast meeting of the Compton-Lynwood Board of Realtors Wednesday at 8 a.m. in the Elks Club, 116 N. Rose, Compton, Vern Stone, program chairman, has announced.

Porter's subject will be "How to Remember Names and Faces." He has lectured before numerous realtor boards throughout Los Angeles County as a "memory expert."

H. H. Stratford, president of the local board, will preside at the meeting and Stone will introduce the speaker.

The phone company sent out a repairman to retrieve the wash.

Gottshall, Atlas president and board chairman, is disclosing that contracts have been signed providing for the acquisition by Bethlehem Steel Co. of the Atlas Giant properties near Richmond, Calif. Atlas will receive approximately $13,200,000 in cash and real estate for the former Giant Plant site and adjoining land.

Atlas has conveyed a major portion of the Giant Plant site to Bethlehem for $8,500,000. An additional cash payment of approximately $2,000,000 will be made for the remainder of this site when certain tideland boundaries have been settled.

* * * *

NET GAIN after taxes from the two cash transactions will be $6,600,000, equivalent to approximately $1.90 per share. Net proceeds from the first portion of the transaction are being used to make substantial reductions in the company's debt and to make advance contributions to the Atlas Pension Trust Fund.

The remaining Atlas property adjoining the plant site, now under lease to the Richmond Golf and Country Club, is to be exchanged for several tracts of land in the east suitable for industrial and commercial development. These properties have a fair market value approximating $2,700,000. Closing of this exchange transaction is expected in the next 12 months.

Penney Co. March Sales Set Record

NEW YORK—J. C. Penney Co's March sales, spurred by the early Easter, rose 15.4 percent over a year ago to an all-time record. It was the 12th straight month of sales gains.

The department store chain reported March volume of $141,895,867 against $122,919,584 for the same 1963 month.

Particular sales strength was shown by most units of women's and children's wear, with women's coats and dresses among the more impressive performers.

Sales for the first two months of the 1964 fiscal year which began on Feb. 1 amounted to $249,393,085 compared with $209,614,125 in 1963.

Dividend Deluge

Dividend payments this year will have to go some to top 1963,, when a record $17.6 billion was disbursed to shareholders. But if current patterns of higher earnings sustain themselves, there's a relatively good chance for another all-time peak this year, financial observers say.

Employe Ideas Save Millions of Dollars

Employe suggestions for new ways of doing things at Hughes Aircraft Co.'s ground systems group at Fullerton saved $6 million last year—and one man was responsible for $320,680 of the savings.

Thomas F. Day, supervisor of engineering fabrication in the company's communications division, is 1963's Man of the Year for his suggestions which brought direct savings.

C. Harper Brubaker, general manager of Hughes at Fullerton, said that since the cost improvement program was instituted at Fullerton in January 1958, an audited total savings of $37,707,160 has been realized. Of this, $16,906,395 was in direct savings to customers' contracts, he said.

* * * *

DAY'S SUCCESSFUL cost improvement program suggestions were mainly concerned with improving production costs through installation of new fabrication machinery.

Sixteen others ranked high on the list, Brubaker said.

They included: L. C. Brighton, F. P. Stumbo Sr. and W. H. Vickner, all Garden Grove; J. A. Brogna of Westminster; D. J. Carlson of Torrance; C. H. Clark Jr. and J. A. Haworth, both Buena Park; G. F. Griffin of Culver City; G. C. Matthews and Thomas Palladino, both Santa Ana; D. R. Wagner of Orange; F. A. Smith of Yorba Linda; R. A. Pawlicki of Anaheim; P. F. Messer of La Mirada, and L. E. Ringer and Robert Sage, both Fullerton.

Customs Collections

The federal government collected nearly $1.8 billion in customs receipts last year. The Port of New York accounted for the biggest single chunk — $514 million — but that figure was down from 1962 receipts.

Garden Park Sales Boosted by Location and Quality

A combination of dynamic factors continue to place Garden Park Estates among leaders home in sales volume, say the officials.

A superior Orange County location, quality craftsmanship and materials, a prompt customer service program and a wide selection of attractive and practical floor plans, form the success compound of the walled residential community in Garden Grove.

The homes are handy to major highways and freeways, connecting residents to important employment centers of the Southland. Good schools are in abundance, and the area is renowned for its excellent recreational facilities.

When brand new homeowners develop minor maintenance problems, a skilled staff takes care of the situation. "Residents comment how appreciative they are of this service," the spokesman said. A plaque was recently awarded the builders and contributing to the award's cause was complete service accessible to new homeowners.

* * * *

LARGE one and two-story homes, with three, four and five bedrooms and two baths are offered in the diverse choice.

Lath and plaster walls add to home durability. Other quality products are red cedar shingle or crushed rock roofs; concrete drives and patios; exterior vinyl stucco paint; custom-selected lighting fixtures; color-matched built-in gas range and oven and hood with exhaust fan and light.

Veterans can move in with nothing down, except costs and impounds, with monthly payments from $103.63, including principal and interest. Non-veterans can use lowest FHA down on 30 and 35 year loans. Conventional terms are available and the homes are Cal-Vet approved. Prices start from $19,850.

Interest was not confined to the ladies last Sunday, at the design clinic held by Parisian interior designer Jean Pierre Aubry, reports Baxter Caterson, sales director at Sol Vista International Home Fair, in Westminster. Men and youngsters as well were fascinated by the designer's sketches, with which be illustrated his answers to the many interior design questions of several hundred visitors, Caterson said.

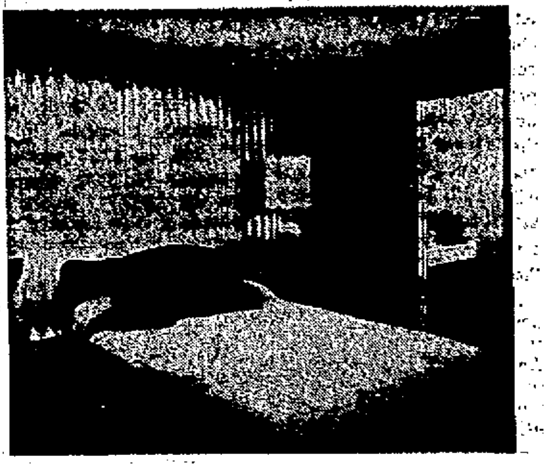
Another Treasure Series of Homes Will Open Soon



LARGE BEDROOMS

Three and four-bedroom homes make most of floor space at Sunkist Plaza Homes in Huntington Beach, where furniture planning is no problem. Bedrooms like this will be found in the new Treasure Series of homes.

The much-awaited grand opening of the Treasure Series of homes is drawing near and plans are presently being readied, according to Sy Bram, executive director of Sunkist Plaza Builders, the firm that built and developed the community.

The plans are based on enthusiastic indications by the homebuying public who attended the preview showing and gave signs of rapid sales, just as in the previous Buccaneer Series, which recently sold out.

This is due to the inclusion in the Treasure Series homes of the same quality materials and workmanship that have zoomed the Sunkist Plaza firm to the higher echelons of the home-building industry. As a result of its voluminous operation and their corresponding acquisition of a mass purchasing power, Sunkist Plaza Builders is able to build into each home more dollar value without an increase in price.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, the large volume of homes built in various locations of Southern California has enabled them to sell the homes with a minimum outlay of cash. An example is the fact that the homes are available to qualified buyers with no down payment—only costs of $150. The homes are priced from $19,750.

The Treasure Series comprises a 72-home development on Springdale St., just south of Westminster Blvd. near vast stretches of ocean in Huntington Beach.

Exemplifying the extra value built into the homes is the inclusion of a complete array of Waste King-Universal built-in kitchen appliances fully color-matched.

The quality residences, which feature a bonus extra, completely fenced rear yards, include a separate utility room, genuine Formica counters, natural ash cabinets, forced air heating with thermostat control, brick fireplaces, aluminum and glass shower doors, sliding wardrobe closets, shades and aluminum screens. In addition, the homes are on 6,000 square foot lots and are on wide paved streets.

To reach models, drive east on Garden Grove Blvd. to Golden West, then right to Bolsa, and right (west) to Springdale, then left to furnished models.

Some Homes for Resale

A limited number of builder's resale homes are being offered in Artesia Wonderland in Artesia, priced at a low $11,950, officials reported.

Two-bedroom dwellings are being presented with like-new terms, they added.

For only $350 down payment (plus costs), qualified buyers can move in one of these homes with monthly payments of $77, including principal and interest.

From Long Beach go east on Seventh St. to Los Alamitos Blvd., then left on 166th Street to 12048 166th St., Artesia.

Fashion Shores Second Unit Opens in Huntington Beach

The first public showing of Fashion Shores second unit will be held this weekend, according to Mervin B. Johnson, builder of the homes, which are located within a three-minute drive of the fine beach at Huntington Beach.

ATTRACTING HUSBANDS are the oversize garages with space for work and hobby benches, the walnut paneled family rooms, the large bathrooms, extra storage space and the fencing that encloses the front, side and rear yards.

The decorated model homes are open daily from 10 a.m. to dusk. From the Long Beach area: Drive east on Seventh St. to Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39). Turn right to Atlanta Ave., then left to Cannery Street, and right to the corner of Cannery and Hamilton and the homes in Huntington Beach.

Want Extra Bathrooms

Addition of a bath is the most frequent project among home owners who are enlarging their houses, according to building experts. Answers to a recent survey showed 25 per cent of those expanding their homes were adding new bathrooms; 24 per cent were adding bedrooms and 18 per cent were installing family rooms.

APPEALING INTERIOR

Naturally finished wood kitchen cabinets flow harmoniously together with elegant dining areas at Springdale South. The newest unit in the Oceana Series will be ready soon.

Springdale South's Newest Unit Nearly Ready to Sell

With the approach of grand opening on the recently previewed Oceana Series of Springdale South Homes in Huntington Beach, a large sales force is preparing to meet the anticipated demands of the new development, according to Sy Bram, executive director of Sunkist Plaza Builders, the developing firm.

The preparations are being taken in view of the enthusiastic response to the preview showing held recently following sellout of the previous Pacifica Series unit, which sold out in record time.

Bram added that the preview showings revealed that high on the popularity list will be the inclusion of a complete array of built-in appliances in the kitchen. They are by Waste King-Universal.

These include built-in range and oven in color, waste disposer, Modernaire range hood and fan in matching color.

* * * *

THE QUALITY-built three and four-bedroom homes with family room and two baths are priced from $18,250. They are offered on terms of no money down to all and all that's needed is $100 total costs.

Additionally, they feature Formica counters, natural ash cabinets, separate utility rooms, vinyl asbestos floor tile, forced air heat, sliding glass doors and custom lighting fixtures. As a bonus feature the rear yards will be fully fenced.

The Oceana Series of Springdale South Homes is located on Edwards Ave. just south of Westminster in Huntington Beach.

To reach the homes, drive east on Garden Grove Blvd. to Golden West; right to Bolsa and right on Bolsa to Edwards and the models.

Suburbia Heights Already Half Sold

Suburbia Heights' first and second units report a 50% sales record, according to Norm Williams, director of sales for the Harry Tancredi Co., developers of the Buena Park project.

Williams attributes a great many of the sales to homebuyers' enthusiastic response to Suburbia Heights' special trade-in plan. He said it is now possible for residents to move into a new Suburbia home without waiting until their present one is sold.

Priced from $33,950, each two-story home includes four or five bedrooms, three bathrooms, family and recreation room, formal dining room and separate breakfast area arranged in more than 2,300 square feet of useable floor space.

Located on the old McComber Ranch at McComber Road and Luitwieler Ave., on and off ramps of the Santa Ana Freeway puts Suburbia Heights within easy access of downtown Los Angeles. And yet its secluded surroundings permit a maximum of quiet leisure to residents.

Showcase Homes Offer Terms to Fit Needs of Individuals

IN IDEAL LOCATION

Showcase Homes, unit 2, a residential development by William Krueger, are located in one of the fastest-growing sections of Orange County close to the new Douglas plant, near excellent schools and shopping centers, and just minutes to the Southland's finest beaches.

There is a select number of two-story, homes available, which feature the growing room, in the second unit of Showcase Homes on Hazard Avenue just east of Hwy. 39 in Westminster, according to William Krueger, builder and developer. Krueger stated that the two-story home may be secured for the price of a single story in that the lower level has approximately 1,500 square feet and is in itself a complete functional home consisting of three bedrooms, two baths, and family/dining room.

Priced from $22,750, various types of financing are available to fit the particular need of the buyer. The rear yard is completely fenced and the front yard landscaped. Offering a choice of varied elevations, the exteriors are enhanced with stone, used brick, and colonial brick.

The growing room, which is upstairs, can be used as a spacious one room family activity center or can be finished as a luxury home with five or six bedrooms and three baths. The builder supplies three different blueprint plans so that the purchaser may finish this room in the future best suited for his particular family's needs.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, APR. 12, 1964 SECTION W

Take the music of Edvard Grieg, adapted by Wright and Forrest for 'Song of Norway,' mix with talents of Civic Light Opera, and it all adds up to a REAL

COMING ATTRACTION!

"I CAN'T DANCE, you can't dance, but yet we're very definitely dancing," sang the lively chorus, whirling into a light-hearted Norwegian folk dance. The number was "Freddy and His Fiddle," adapted from Edvard Grieg's "Norwegian Dance, Op. 35." The rehearsal was for Long Beach Civic Light Opera's production of "Song of Norway," which opens Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium. "Let's run through that again," said George Jack, who is staging the musical numbers. Freddy—Hartley Stevens—picked up his fiddle and the hilarious but strenuous routine began again, telling the story of the young man with the magic violin that can make anybody dance. From 2 in the afternoon to 2:30 next morning the rehearsal swept along. Despite lack of sets, costumes, orchestra and proper lighting, the magic of "Song of Norway" emerged under direction of Lee Murray and his assistant, Betty Kimber, the musical direction of Jack Kroesen, the ballet choreography of June Morris.

When Robert Wright and George Forrest announced that they were adapting Grieg's music and a play by Homer Curran in a musical, skeptics hooted. But San Francisco Light Opera Association opened with "Song of Norway" at the Curran Theater on July 3, 1944. On Aug. 21 it moved to New York's Imperial Theater for a run of 860 performances before it went on to a great success in England.

THE MUSICAL IS built around the life and music of Grieg, who lived from 1843 to 1907. Grieg is played by Ron Hallmark, Long Beach dentist. Other characters are the Norwegian poet, Rikard Nordraak (Bob James), Nina Hagerup (Peggy Olson), whom both men love, and the dramatist, Henrik Ibsen (Stan Throneberry). Laura Killingsworth plays the Countess Le Loup, who lures Grieg from his homeland to the sophistication of Copenhagen and Rome. Arthur Carah acts the role of Count Le Loup. Completing the cast are Joyce Kahle as Mother Grieg, Hal Lowe as Father Grieg, Hartley Stevens in the dual role of Freddy and Tito, Larry Laraway as Father Nordraak, Vince Poilard as Pisoni and Tchouky Mattei as the ballerina, Adelina.

In one scene, the Countess and Adelina engage in a duel of the prima donnas—the Countess with her arias, the ballerina with entrechats, tour jetes and pirouettes.

THE PLAY OPENS with the festival of St. John on Midsummer's Eve in Grieg's native Bergen, when Nordraak predicts that a man will come to combine the music and history of Norway.

The man, of course, is Grieg, who passionately loves his native land and wants it to gain stature and meaning in the world.

His music sings of Norway's deep fjords, its green forest, fertile valleys, snowy mountain peaks, its swift flowing rivers, quiet mountain pastures and sweet clean air. He revels, too, in its folk lore, its trolls, and the simple ways of its country people.

His compositions are basis for melodies in the musical: Prelude and Legend, and Hill of Dreams are themes from Grieg's beloved "Piano Concerto in A Minor."

OTHERS ARE Now, from "Waltz, Op. 12, No. 2" and "Violin Sonata No. 2," Strange Music from "Wedding Day at Troldhaugen," and I Love You from "Ich Liebe Dich."

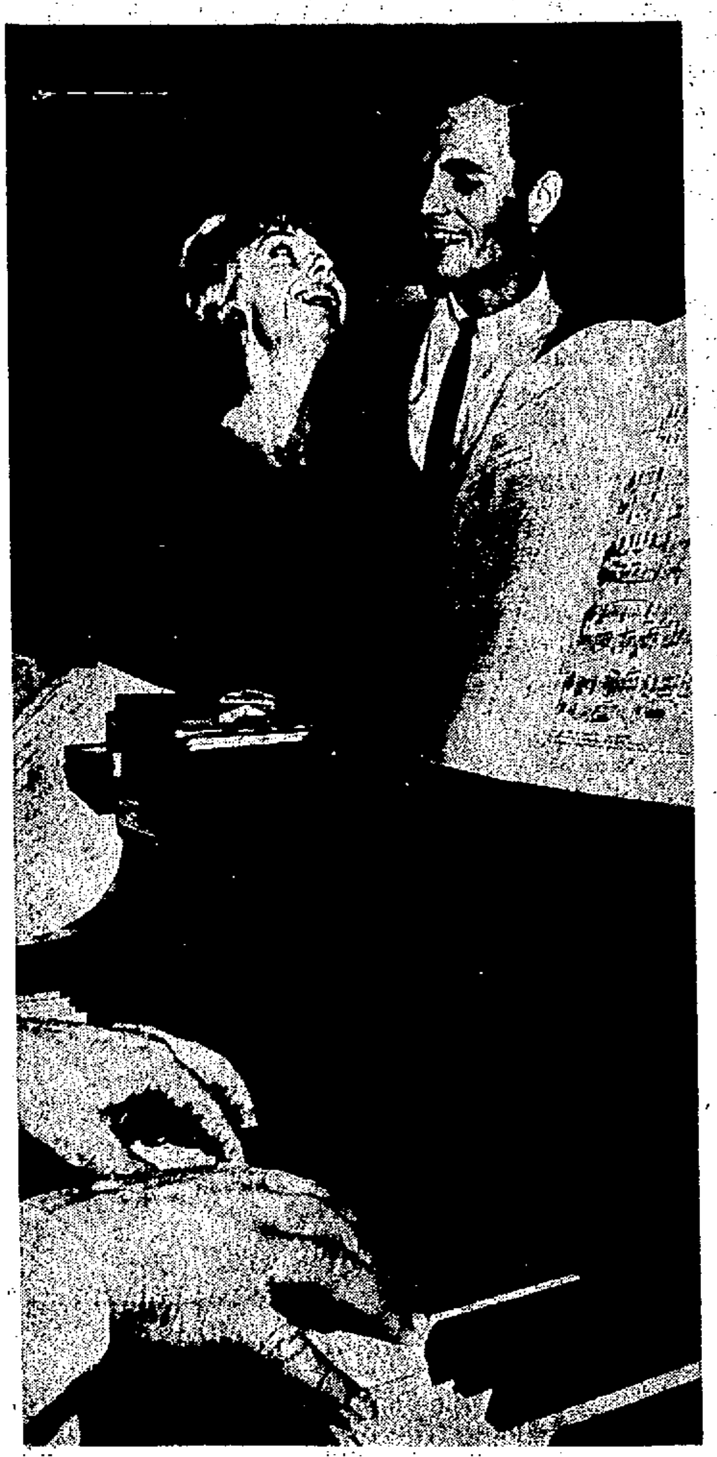
There are more, each adapted from Grieg's own music: "Midsummer's Eve," "March of the Trollgers," "Bon Vivant," "Three Loves," and "At Christmas Time."

The play concludes with the famous concerto.

Costumes and sets are arriving at the Concert Hall, rehearsals are continuing and a beautifully staged, polished musical will be ready for the audience opening night. The show will have 11 performances through April 30. Tickets are on sale at Long Beach Civic Light Opera Association, 518 E. Fourth St.

By Elise Emery Independent, Press Telegram Arts Editor

"FREDDY wouldn't know so, but he's a virtuoso," sings the chorus to Hartley Stevens' spectacular fiddle playing (above).



THE COUNTESS (Laura Killingsworth) beguiles Grieg (Ron Hallmark) into leaving his simple way of life in Norway and going with her to Rome.

BALKY ballerina, Adelina, (Tchouky Mattei) needs helps in executing steps as she competes for attention.

This Strip Wasn't in the Script

AT REHEARSAL (left), when Bob James, Peggy Olson and Ron Hallmark sang "Hill of Dreams," Peggy wore hoops to simulate costume. When she stepped on bench hoops slowly slid to her ankles—but Peggy kept on singing . . . the show must go on!

DON'T CALL them this morning—wait and let them call you. Those flying-for-charity tourists of Operation Amigos—43 strong—are due in from Mexico City at 9:12 a.m. today at International. Which means they had to rustle around lively and early to catch the plane and will probably want nothing quite so much as a nap when they turn keys in front door locks. All this after a breathtaking nine-day tour.

Pictured just before they took off (and in a much more rested condition than now) are Ella (Mrs. Fred) Good and Barbara and Jack London.

These amigos in friendly pre-trip discussion.

The tour, co-sponsored by Junior League and the Children's Dental Foundation, will realize about $1,800 for the foundation.

Co-chairmen of the novel trip to raise funds were Marge (Mrs. Loren) Conley and Loralee (Mrs. Thomas) Turner. In addition to Mexico City, the travelers visited in Cuernavaca, Taxco and Acapulco. And what a combination of things were planned for them—everything from seeing the bullfights to witnessing ballet, to dining in the smartest restaurants, being entertained in homes—and, of course, shopping.

HOME FROM "everywhere" is "Hap" Appleton. He took Moore-McCormack Lines' safari cruise ship SS Brazil out of New York. He was gone 10 weeks and traveled over 40,000 miles. Wonderful, he said. First the ship sailed along the east coast of South America then made the crossing to Africa. After that ports in Europe were visited.

All told, he traveled 32,000 miles by ship and the balance on 18 separate side trips by plane and car. On one of these, he flew into a remote game reserve in Africa and got pictures of 18 different kinds of animals including lions, rhinos, zebras — even a leopard.

At Monte Carlo he broke even, explaining that was because he watched—didn't play.

Sailing back to NY from Lisbon the ship got caught in a real granddaddy of a storm which blew it 150 miles off course. What's more, it was in horrendous seas and gale winds for a full five days during which time passengers weren't allowed out on deck at all. You'd be surprised how hungry you get for a breath of fresh air during that length of time!

YOU'VE OPENED your home for an art patrons tea for 200 guests. In the garden, an 85 piece concert band is set up to entertain, with chairs, instruments, musicians, the whole bit. Then, the rains come. Suddenly, guests, musicians, and instruments are all inside.

IT HAPPENED last Sunday when Virginia and Dr. Franklin Waters "loaned" their Park Estates manse for the membership tea of the Fine Arts Affiliates of California State College, Long Beach. Did it dampen anyone's enthusiasm? Jupiter Pluvius, no! The day was a howling success.

Unable to play a la concert, the band broke down into progressive jazz combos and they were terrific, I'm told. Most perpetually in musical motion and winning fans, right and left, were Rick Mattox, piano, Leo Potts and Dick Jennings, both sax, and Bert Powell, bass.

A few of those filling the charter membership ranks were Ruth Todd, Sam and Addie Pilchman, Katie Boswell, Haldis Hertzog, Dorothy and Lee Wiltse, Betty and Wally Arntzen, Shirley and David Gean, Ruth and Joe Reed, Athena Hall and Jack Van Eden. VIP guests present were patrons of the group, Kitty and Morrie Rosenbaum, Ann and Roy Huddleston and Betty Benwell.

JUST A DAB over the week following major heart surgery, Fred Capouch Sr. was released from the hospital to the TLC (tender, loving care) of wife, Darlene. That was last Sunday. What's more, he and Darlene went to dinner at Charlotte and Dwight Bennett's home Monday. Fred plans to take it easy for a month (but he's grumbling already that it's no easy chore, he feels so good) and then he'll be going full steam.

OBJECTS OF a surprise housewarming last Sunday were Leona and Bill Sheridan, arranged by their daughter and son-in-law, Nancy and Ron Irvin, and Bill's brother and wife, Ed and Mary Lou Sheridan. They timed party date to coincide with Leona's birthday.

Intent on attending an art show he very much wanted to see, and unaware of what was in progress when first guests arrived, Bill was practically insisting he'd get extra tickets so they could go, too. They sidestepped his offer until other guests arrived to spill the beans.

It was a great birthday gift—but the best is still to come. Bill will treat Leona (and himself, naturally) to a tour of Scandanavian countries later this year as his main present. There may be one small hitch. The Sheridans are both as Irish as their names indicate and when they fly over they land first in Shannon. Will they, begorra, be able to drag themselves away from that enchanted spot in the green country?

THE CALLER will do-si-do and suggest that the men "swing their partners" in true western style but—the dancers are more apt to be twostepping, true ballroom style.

Sandlarks are having a chuckwagon dinner dance and roundup Saturday with a bona fide caller. Trouble is, the committee doesn't think very many in the group have the foggiest notion how to trip the western fantastic, except by faking.

Mary Jane (Mrs. Charles) Walker is chairman, assisted by Martha Ford. Affair will take place at that fine old corrall known as Norway Hall! Big money raiser of the spring, members, friends and associates are expected to pack the place in whatever western attire they can assemble. Hi Ho Silver, perhaps its time to get awaaaay!

FEMININE LAUGHTER and chatter were the woof and warp from which the evening was woven when Mil Cameron and daughter, Julie Lawson, entertained at a miscellaneous bridal shower for Susie Granau. Susie, who will become the bride of Ed De Lacy in June, was kept starry eyed and busy as she opened gifts from 30 friends.

A TOAST to the evening which awaits them is enjoyed by Joan (Mrs. Chilton) Mahin, Dr. John Sewak and Claire (Mrs. Donald) Everson. It was during one of the many pre-dinner cocktail parties which dotted town week ago last night prior to Symphony Juniors glamorous Black and White Ball at the Edgewater. The threesome is pictured below at Sewak's home where Wanda and John and Pat and Don Ewing co-hosted a sip hour.

Although a most high fashion night, it was, still and all, a very good humored one as about 500 joined forces for the fun.

And it was the first time in members' memory when all the women wore, according to the party theme, either black or white gowns with not one other shade showing up on the ballroom floor! And long dresses were the vogue, definitely.

Topics of conversation were many. The fact, for instance, that member Nancy McAllister and husband, Dr. Bob, had brought their first child, a girl they named Camilla, home from the hospital that very day.

Acquaintances secretly envied Jan Wilson her wonderful tan, figuring she had been living it up at some delightful resort. Envied her, that is, until they found out her copper skin was gained the hard way, pulling weeds in the yard.

And so sped the evening away, spent in gay talk, small talk, serious conversation, dancing and dining in the heady togetherness of all really sparkly soirees.

Merry start for a long, merrier evening.

If Concern Is Truly for Children, STAY

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

To begin with, I don't love my husband and haven't for a long time. This past summer I had to go to work. I met a fellow my age and we fell in love. He is not married.

My problem is three children and a husband that loves me. I think my husband loves me more than he ever did. We have been married 12 years (he is 31 and I am 29). I want to leave my husband and marry the other man but I don't want to hurt my children. They like this other man a lot but they LOVE their daddy.

What am I going to do? Shall I stay with my husband or leave and try making a happy home with this other man. I know he will make a good husband but we both agree that we should do what is best for the children. We feel they will accept him better while they are young than they might when they are older.—S.T.

DEAR S.T.:

You can make all the excuses in the world but, in your heart of hearts, you know you are cheating on your husband and thinking of breaking up your home. You KNOW it would be better for the children to keep them in a happy home with their own father who loves them—and loves you.

I appreciate the heartache you must feel but why not try for at least a year longer to see if you can't find again the love you once knew with your husband? Why don't you and the gentleman agree not to contact each other during this period? You should at least try. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My wife should have something done with her voice; it's very high-pitched, especially when she raises it for some reason or another. This certainly does not add to her sex appeal, as at times it almost curdles one's blood.

Is there a solution to this? Can a high, thin voice be cultured through vocal exercises, to be made stronger and, hence, more appealing? Except for this she's tops, but this is now beginning to affect our relationship.

I'd sure like to know—and also how to sell the idea to her.—AL.

DEAR AL:

I completely understand your concern. I, too, am often "allergic" to voices.

Quite often bad voices can be VERY considerably helped. I do not live in your immediate vicinity so I can't suggest an exact place.

"However, in most medium-to-large-size communities there are public speaking classes or teachers available. I'm sure such a teacher could suggest a way for you.

My suggestion is to tell your wife, just as simply as you've told me, how you feel. And if need be, just for encouragement, take a few lessons with her. I sincerely wish you luck. —M.M.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Organizing Will Ease the Way for Others

By POLLY CRAMER, NEA

DEAR POLLY — On a sheet of paper titled "Valuable Information" I have listed the banks and account numbers where we have checking and savings accounts, safety deposit box number, titles, insurance policies, real estate information, social security numbers and all addresses of people to be notified should my husband and I both be seriously injured or die.

Also included is the name of our doctor, hospital, mortuary, cemetery, minister, employer and relatives who would be interested. This sheet of paper is kept in a plastic envelope in a desk drawer. Close friends and relatives know where to find it.

The second Pointer was a real helper to my husband while I was too ill to take care of the bills as I usually do. In an account book I have listed all the months with plenty of space between each of them. Under each heading is a list of all bills that come due that month, that is, the ones due quarterly, semiannually or annually. Then there is another list of the regular monthly bills and payments. Nothing is forgotten.

When the bills begin to arrive, they are placed within the pages of this book. I also wrote out instructions should a stranger have to take over this duty.—R.H.M.

GIRLS—How I envy anyone as systematic as R.H.M. Even though such duties, as those in her first hint, are not too pleasant, we should all think ahead and make it as easy as possibly for those who might have to take over for us.—POLLY

* * * *

DEAR POLLY—When the charcoal in our barbecue is slow in starting to burn, my husband connects my hair dryer, turns the control to cold and directs the stream of cold air at the charcoal. It acts like a bellows and in no time we have a beautiful bed of coals.—M. S.

DEAR POLLY—To anchor a blouse that rides up, cut twill tape the length of your waist measurement plus one inch. Stitch the center of the tape to the center back of the blouse at the waist line. Stitch a hook and eye to the ends of the tape. When you dress, fasten the tape around your waist and your blouse will stay put. —MRS. J. E. M.

GIRLS—Tape could be put on the inside of the blouse, like many readymade dresses have it, and then you know it will never show. —POLLY

Share your favorite homemaking ideas . . . send them to Polly in care of this newspaper. You'll receive a bright new silver dollar if Polly uses your idea in Polly's Pointers.

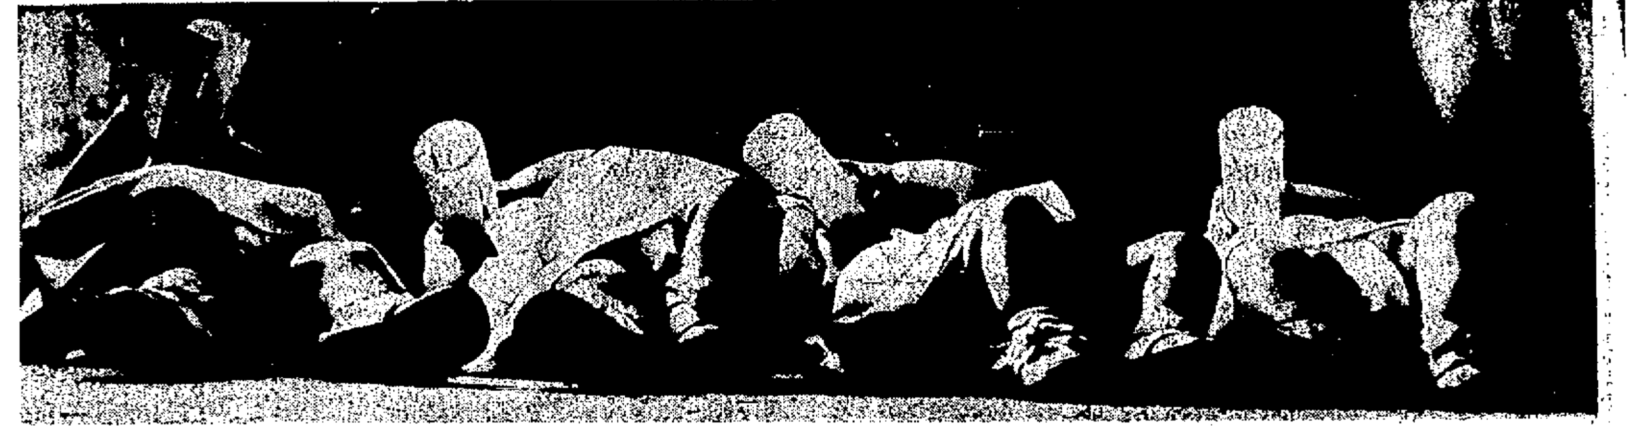
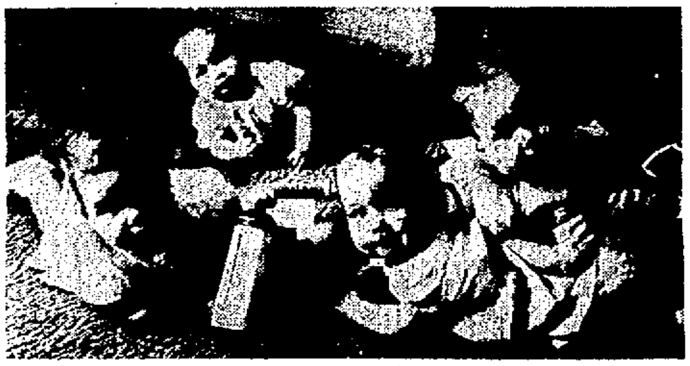
Honeys Come in Bunches



Multiple Births of Four or More Have Made Records in the Past Year in America With 26 Thriving Babies Born at Odds of Multimillion to One. The Four Axe Girls (above) Put Heart and Sole Into Bottoms Up.



MRS. THOMAS Harkins, 27-year-old mother of nine (above), with the happy Harkins quads . . . At left, Mrs. Martin Brecker gets a welcoming smile from one of her first born . . . And the Axe girls (right), on camera this time. Their mother, a registered nurse, calls their playroom "the pediatric ward."

By CURTYNE DRISCOLL

America is having a historic boom in multiple births.

Just a year ago, the Axe family of Lima, Ohio startled the world with the medical miracle of a set of identical girl quadruplets. It was reckoned a multimillion-to-one chance and the Axes became international celebrities.

Before you could say "quadruplets" four times quickly, the news was announced in Chicago that quads had been born there.

WHILE STATISTICIANS were scratching their heads, in one month (September) quintuplets arrived in Maracaibo, Venezuela and Aberdeen, S.D., completely ruining all odds on long shots.

Still the baby boom continued unabated. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harkins of Jackson, Miss., increased the number of their offspring from five to nine with the birth of girl quadruplets.

And in the shadow of the New York World's Fair, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Brecker of Queens welcomed their first born, three girls and a boy.

To the non-medical multiple birth watcher, a surprising fact is that the expectant mother-of-quads-or-quints-to-be often doesn't know that she is expecting such a brood.

Mrs. Brecker, whose family has a history of twins, learned from her doctor in her fourth or fifth month that she was expecting more than one, but didn't know they were quadruplets until delivery time.

Mrs. Harkins also thought she was going to have twins.

THE FATHERS of the quads have a variety of occupations; newspaper promotion executive, grocery store operator and lawyer. They have one thing very much in common, however. They all pitch in and help. It takes more than two hands to cope with four babies, especially on such jobs as feeding four hungry ones simultaneously.

Living with the offspring that have defied mathematical odds has other difficulties—like telling them apart.

Little four-year-old Cathy Axe, who likes to pick up and carry her sisters around (one at a time), for example, finds it necessary to bring her happy burden into the kitchen and ask, "Who have I got now, Mommy?"

Stand by Your Promise

DEAR ABBY: By the time I was 17 I had broken all the Ten Commandments except "Thou shalt not kill." I got into trouble with a boy and he ran away. The Salvation Army took me in and I had my baby at the Booth Memorial Hospital. I decided to keep my little son. I worked as a waitress to support him. I started going with a kind, sober, hard-working man. I told him the truth about myself right off, but he didn't care. He married me and adopted my 10-month-old son. He treats us grand. I don't deserve this kind of happiness. One thing bothers me. Both my husband and I have dark eyes and dark hair. My son has blue eyes and bright red hair. People keep asking us how come. My husband made me promise I would never tell anyone the boy wasn't his. Why can't I say I was married before and the boy is my first husband's?—HATES TO LIE.

ABBY

DEAR HATES: The boy is LEGALLY your husband's son. Blond and brunette parents can produce red-haired offspring. You owe inquisitive friends nothing. You owe your husband a great deal. Keep mum.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: My wife has frequently criticized me for not taking her arm when crossing the street. I say that it's the lady's place to take her escort's arm. All of the pictures I've seen of royalty, or continental personages of good breeding, show the lady taking hold of the gentleman's arm.

I hate to see a great hulk of a man pushing some frail thing around as if she were on casters, or slightly intoxicated. I would appreciate your opinion.—M. K.

DEAR M. K.: The gentleman should offer the lady his arm. If he does not, she may gently take his arm and ask, "May I?"

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: Roger and I were married only 16 months. We decided that our marriage was a mistake, and since there were no children to consider there was no point in spending the rest of our lives in a loveless marriage. We got a divorce. Am I supposed to return Roger's wedding ring? How about my engagement ring? I put them in my drawer and have no desire to wear them. Would it be improper for me to sell the set?—DIVORCED.

DEAR DIVORCED: The wedding ring and engagement ring are yours to do with whatever you wish.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: The woman who wrote to say that her husband took over the grocery shopping reminded me that my husband did that trick almost 30 years ago. He got the bright idea that I was too extravagant in the grocery store. He bought all sorts of silly items and overlooked the essentials. I got disgusted, so I went to his shop (he ran a garage) and started ordering the mechanics around. I made a real nuisance of myself because I didn't know a nut from a bolt. My husband got the idea, and gladly promised to stay out of my business if I stayed out of his.

The new Mrs. Glavinich approached the altar gowned in a white poie de soie bridal dress decorated with Chantilly lace and seed pearls. Her crown was a double tier of pearls and crystal and her veil of fingertip length.

Attending her were Margaret Longo, maid of honor, and Vicky Artinian, Arlene Artinian, Pat Gordon and Terry Ovgan, bridesmaids. Robert Hedger was the best man for the bridegroom, son of the Nick C. Glavinichs of Lakewood.

John Stewart, Les Johnson, James Burkholder and Ronald Longo were ushers.

The new Mrs. Glavinich was graduated from Millikan High and attended Long Beach City College where she was a member of Tabu. The bridegroom attended Cerritos College.

Her husband, also a resident of this city, is the son of Mrs. Alice Mastrion of New York and the late Charles Lueder.

Kathryn Coop served as maid of honor. Laura Edwards, Mary Sue Occhipinti, Michelle Bagley and Jane Ann Madison were bridesmaids.

The new Mrs. Lueder wore a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace decorated with pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of orchids, white roses and stephanotis.

The bridegroom chose David H. Coop as his best man.

Completing the wedding party were Daryl Ellison, Conrad Drummond, Dominic J. Occhipinti and Mark Alan Madison, ushers.

Discard, Not Play Wins

Here is a hand that I first ran across around 1935 or '36. It is a rather tricky problem hand. The question is: Can South make his normal three no-trump contract against perfect defense?

Declarer can count three club tricks, three diamond tricks, two hearts and a spade provided that he can get them all in.

A moderate amount of study will show that one or maybe two duck plays are necessary. Thus, when spades are played, it is essential that South let East's queen hold the first spade trick in order to shut out West's low spades. If hearts are played, it is necessary to duck the second heart lead so as to shut out East's fourth heart.

It wouldn't take a good bridge player long to see all this. After a while he might even be cajoled into betting that he could make the hand. At that point the trap would be sprung, since perfect defense will hold South to eight tricks.

* * * *

THE PLAY starts out simply. The six of spades is opened and East's queen holds the trick. The five of spades is led back. West takes his ace and sets up his last two spades.

Haven't we been over all this before? Won't South go right over to dummy and lead a diamond in order to establish three diamond tricks?

Hasn't a rather obvious play been overlooked? Any East player worth his salt would surely discard his ace of diamonds on the third spade. At least he would do so when he is looking at all the cards. Now the jack of diamonds becomes an entry to the West hand, and South is set.

Plans Ahead

Bathroom planning can be one of the most important phases of building or remodeling a home. Because of the high humidity and condensation problems commonly found in bathrooms, considerable thought should be given to the choice of surfacing materials.

Ceramic tile, long noted for being waterproof, stain-resistant and dimensionally stable, is also preferred for its beauty and wipe-clean quality. For complete protection, even the bathroom ceiling may be tiled.

Solvang Stirs Memories

By RACHEL MORTON
I.-P.-T. Music Critic

Major and Minor Notes

When I was a young woman I made a concert tour of Europe, singing recitals in such cities as London, Paris, Vienna, Berlin, The Hague, Stockholm, etc. One of my happiest memories is of a concert we gave in Copenhagen, Denmark; I remember flying from Templehof Airport in Berlin in a hydroplane and landing on rough water alongside a pier in Copenhagen. Newsmen were there to greet me as I was not expected to arrive because of a very bad storm which had downed a plane due to arrive before mine, and on which all passengers had been drowned. So I made headlines before I had sung a note!

The quaint old, Angleterre Hotel looked out over an attractive square or plaza, which seemed positively alive with bicyclists. We dined that night on the Fisherman's Wharf in one of the gourmet restaurants and a waiter pointed out proudly the crown prince and party dining near us.

Breakfasts in Denmark are something to remember. Served for two in our room was a great silver pot of coffee, six Danish coffee cakes, with about a pound of fresh butter and a great bowl of whipped cream for the coffee.

* * * *

DANISH audiences are most enthusiastic. My program listed Schumann's "Frauenliebe und Leben" (Woman's Love and Life) and Elsa's Dream from "Lohengrin" by Wagner sung in German; French songs, and a group of English songs. The response was so gratifying that the local manager asked me if I would return the next month as soloist with the Copenhagen Symphony Orchestra. I accepted and this time I sang in the beautiful and famous concert hall, Trivoli Gardens.

A party in my honor after the concert lasted well into the early morning when we drove to a fascinating restaurant, whose name I have forgotten, looking far out to sea where we watched the sun rise. There were many guests breakfasting there and I was told that this custom was one of Copenhagen's popular pastimes.

* * * *

WITH ALL these memorier dearly treasured in my heart, it was a real thrill to spend a recent weekend in a little Danish village called Solvang, 29 miles north of Santa Barbara. What a quaint little town it is, and how beautifully situated, snuggled between the Santa Ynez and San Rafael mountains. The kindly people are of Danish descent and in a gala week in September they all wear native costumes. The architecture is copied from that of Denmark and the fascinating restaurants serve Danish food and smorgasbord. Irresistable were the pastry shops where 50 varieties of little iced cakes and tempting coffee cakes made one's mouth water, and also made one forget the diet pledges!

* * * *

THERE WERE intriguing gift shops, with all kinds of imports. And a wee Cheese House lured the visitor with free samples of Danish cheese and crackers. (Of course, after one bite, a purchase was made.)

The Royal Copenhagen Motel where we stayed, is only two years old with all the de luxe features of modern America (even to free coffee and Danish pastries for breakfast), but the decor of the room looking out over the lush, green mountains is distinctly Danish.

Andersen's Restaurant, made famous by its split pea soup, is only three miles away from Solvang and, of course, we had to indulge there. Solvang, by the way, means "Sun valley."

And as we drove away regretfully from the peaceful valley, flooded with sun, we mounted the high hills beyond and found ourselves journeying homeward through the most beautiful high mountain scenery one could imagine over the San Marcos Pass.

"Big" Denmark and "little" Denmark—I have grateful memoriess of you both!

Chorale to Sing Here Tuesday

The Jack Halloran Chorale of Los Angeles will present a concert of sacred, classical and contemporary music Tuesday at 8:15 p.m. at the California Heights Methodist Church, Bixby Road and Orange Avenue. The American Guild of Organists is presenting the group as part of its concert series. The public is invited.

The Halloran singers are best known for the hit Christmas album "The Little Drummer Boy," made in 1957. They have appeared as collaborating artists with numerous well known singers, including Andy Williams, Pat Boone, Frankie Laine, Sammy Davis Jr., Bing Crosby and Frank Sinatra.

Exhibition Designed to Please, Not Shock

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Contemporary Painting" from the collection of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Los Angeles continues at the Long Beach Museum, 2300 East Ocean Blvd., through April 26. The large grouping fills the first floor galleries with the exception of a small portion of the Sage Gallery which is devoted to an exhibit of elegant artifacts of feudal Japan.

The painting collection consists of works from 1924 to 1958, assembled by the then president of the company, Stanley Barbee. His taste reflects a catholic interest in the works of the day, and, as the catalogue states, "considered the diverse tastes of those who might compose a normal business."

INTERESTINGLY enough, the exhibit is dominated by one large work in the vein of abstract expressionism, though there are fine examples of all styles of painting on every side. Michio Takeyo's "The Vine" of 1956 is a bold, abstract statement in blacks on a shimmering white background. The stress of the vine is strongly felt, the composition is completely congruent.

ANOTHER UNUSUAL work is Michael Frary's "Hurricane Warning" of 1959; here several techniques are used; the beach is made of sand the jetty of glued-on small rocks, while the sky and house are in the immaculate "superreal" style and the water and bridges are brushed rather freely.

James Jarvaise's "Bird Collage" is a big, bold creature in primary colors with black. Sueo Serisawa's "Girl and Hoop" of 1948 has great charm. Frederick Wight's "Conversations on the Island" of 1959 implies rhythmic harmony and empathy between Nature and the human figure.

TWO FINE "hard-edge" works by John McLaughlin, "Oil #3" and "Oil #4" give a fine accounting for that school with their simple rectangular compositions done with immaculate precision. A slight departure is Hans Burkhardt's "Guanajanto;" in this instance, the rectangular forms are casas.

This collection is a pleasing one to visit rather than a shocker and meets well the purpose for which it was assembled.

Children Invited to 'Story' Concert

"Music That Tells a Story" will be played by Long Beach Symphony Orchestra at two free concerts for children Saturday at 10 and 11 a.m. in Wilson High School Auditorium.

Lauris Jones, conductor, will direct the orchestra and tell the stories of "Fingal's Cave" by Mendelssohn, "The March to the Scaffold" by Berlioz and "The Moldau" by Smetana.

The Magic Basket Players will perform Dukas' "Sorcerer's Apprentice." The Magic Basket is a gold basket which, the story-teller explains, "holds all the stories ever told so that I can find a story for every child ever born."

ACTUALLY, the gold basket holds props for the performance. When the story-teller takes a prop from the basket, the magic of bringing the music to life begins as she says, "Now here is a story . . ." Laura Olsher, who is the story-teller, also plays the Sorcerer. Nora Jacobs, choreographer for all Magic Basket productions, plays the Apprentice; Roger Barnes is the Broom.

MISS OLSHER and Miss Jacobs currently are starring in the Lindy Opera House production of "Jack and the Beanstalk." Their "Magic Basket" opened in Los Angeles in December, 1960. It is rated excellent by Los Angeles Board of Education, was recommended by Life Magazine and has won the Peabody Award.

This arrangement of "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" first was seen in a performance with the Compton Symphony and since has been performed in Manhattan Beach, La Jolla, San Diego and other parts of California.

ALL CHILDREN are invited to attend the admission-free concert; parents also may attend. Performances are provided with the help of the Long Beach Unified School District and the Recording Industries Trust Fund with the cooperation of Local 353, American Federation of Musicians.

Reservations may be made for groups of 20 or more by phoning the Long Beach Symphony Association, 1935 E. Seventh St.

Auditions Now for May Concert

Auditions are now being held for singers for the Civic Chorus spring concert to be presented May 22 under auspices of Long Beach Recreation Department.

Rehearsals are held Mondays at 7:30 p.m. at Jefferson High School auditorium, with Frank Ahrold as choral conductor. Musicians wishing to audition may report at 7 p.m.

The "Missa Brevis in F Major" by Mozart is the principal work now being rehearsed.

Smith Sr. Lecture Scheduled

Dr. Norman Fruman, associate professor of English at California State College at Los Angeles, will present the sixth annual Bertrand Smith Sr. Lecture at Los Altos Branch Library, 5614 Britton Drive, on Friday at 8 p.m. His subject will be "Critics and Creators."

Dr. Fruman received his M.A. from Columbia University and his Ph.D. from New York University.

The lectures are made possible through an endowment of Smith, Long Beach book store owner since 1926 and donor of many fine and rare books to the Long Beach Public Library. Some will be on display during the evening.

AT 90, MR. Smith still makes frequent treks abroad to buy books. Between times he is busy in his book store which was recently given a rare tribute by writer Ray Bradbury. "I used to come to Long Beach especially to get lost—lost in books in the dusky corridors of Mr. Smith's store."

"Lumberjack in Alaska" will be presented at five local high school auditoriums this week as the final program in the Long Beach City College General Adult Division's International Film Series.

Opening at 8 p.m. Monday in the Wilson auditorium, the film-lecture will be repeated Tuesday at Jordan, Wednesday at Lakewood, Thursday at Polytechnic and Friday at Millikan High School. Tickets will be available at the door each night for those who are not season subscribers.

NARRATOR will be Don Cooper, who began filming "Lumberjack in Alaska" to while away his idle hours in remote logging camps. Cooper has explored some of the wildest parts of Alaska, along with the more settled areas, in producing his documentary.

There is an extensive sequence on pre-earthquake Anchorage and other towns in the present disaster area. One of the most spectacular scenes was shot while Cooper and a friend were trapped in an ice pack off Hubbard Glacier as huge icebergs crashed into the sea all around them.

Lakewood Barrister Knows Law of Caesar

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

He's one Iowan who made a return trip to the old home town before deciding to make Long Beach his permanent home.

Born in Hillsboro, Iowa, a small farm community, today's Chef of the Week, Ted W. Sullivan ("W" for Winton"), first came to Long Beach in 1927, and attended Bryant Elementary School and later Burnett, and Alexander Hamilton Jr. High for a semester. Because of the earthquake and the general depression in 1933, his father sold his cafe here and the family returned to Iowa, where Sullivan finished high school. He then assisted his Dad in the management and operation of a cafe until early in 1941, when he accepted a civil service position as a junior clerk with the Social Security Board in Baltimore, Md.

* * * *

IN 1942 HE entered the U. S. Army Air Corps as an aviation cadet, won his wings as a fighter pilot and was commissioned a second lieutenant at Napier Field, Ala., in October of '43. He participated, as a pilot in combat operations in the European Theatre of operations and was awarded the Air Medal and European Theater of Operations Ribbon with battle star for battle of Central Germany.

Two days after war was over he was the involuntary guest of the Red Army in Berlin for a week. At that time his identity was satisfactorily established and he was allowed to return to his home base in Eschwege, Germany. After serving two months in the Army of Occupation in Germany he returned to the U. S. and was released from active duty three months later. He just recently resigned his commission as Captain in the Air Force Reserves.

In November 1945 he enrolled in USC's College of Commerce, receiving his bachelor of science cum laude in 1948. Two years later he graduated from USC's School of Law.

While at the university he was a member of Alpha Kappa Psi commerce professional fraternity and the national legal fraternity of Delta Theta Phi. He was elected into the Phi Eta Sigma, the Beta Gamma Sigma and the Phi Kappa Phi scholastic honor fraternities.

SULLIVAN passed the California Bar in January of '51, and was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States, and the United States Court of Military Appeals in 1955. After being admitted to the California Bar he was employed by the Automobile Club of Southern California in its legal department.

He opened his own office in Lakewood Village in January of '52. Since '56 he has been law partner with Bigelow of Lakewood.

A past president of the Downey-Los Cerritos Bar Asssociation, and of the Lakewood Junior Chamber of Commerce, Sullivan has served several different times on the board of directors of the Greater Lakewood Chamber of Commerce.

Presently he is a member of the Petroleum Club, serves on the board of directors of Lakewood YMCA, and as a director and chairman of the classification committee of the Lakewood Rotary Club. He has served two years as a lay member of the High School Curriculum Committee and the General Curriculum Committee of the Long Beach Unified School District. Sullivan also teaches a course entitled "Law for Everyday Use" for the adult division of City College.

He and Mrs. Sullivan (Evelyn) have two daughters and a son—Sherryl, 18, a freshman at USC, Doran, 9, and Ward, 8, both pupils at Mark Twain Elementary School.

Attorney Ted W. Sullivan

SULLIVAN'S hobbies are golfing and reading, the latter primarily in the field of international affairs and political science. The latter also, no doubt, explains why, when he undertook to panel his office, the electricity immediately went off, and why he's known as the "unfixit" rather than the "fixit" man. He could, however, open his own hardware store, what with the nuts, bolts and sundry equipment he has stored in his garage.

As a family, the Sullivans are anticipating the arrival of a new ski boat which they recently ordered.

Our "chef" is quite self-sufficient at fixing breakfast. But 10-to-1, he'll serve chocolate Malt-O-Meal. His one company recipe is Caesar Salad, and then he doesn't guarantee his aim when administering the egg.

SULLIVAN'S CAESAR SALAD

1 clove garlic, quartered
¼ cup salad oil
2 cups croutons
1 large head each, romaine and iceberg lettuce (3 quarts)
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup crumbled Blue cheese
½ cup salad oil
1 tsp. Worcestershire
¾ tsp. salt
1 raw egg
2 lemons, halved
1 can anchovies

The night before the party, soak the garlic in ¼ cup of the oil. Wash and drain the lettuce and store in crisper.

Put all the ingredients on a tray, borrow the neighbor's large wooden salad bowl, and then into the dining room. Tear greens int large bite size pieces into the salad bowl; sprinkle the cheese on top; drizzle on the ½ cup salad oil, well mixed with Worcestershire, salt and pepper. Toss gently until every leaf glistens. Break the whole raw egg onto the greens; with a fork, ream the juice from the 2 lemons over all — toss again until all specks of egg disappear. Put the ¼ cup oil (garlic removed) over the croutons; give them a quick toss and sprinkle them on top of the greens.

Mobil Economy Run Ends in New York

Everybody's talking about their cars and how they performed in the Mobil Economy Run

We'd like to talk about our teen-age crew

This year, Chevrolet chose twenty teen-agers to drive its nine-car entry in the Mobil Economy Run. This marked the first time in the Run's history that non-professional drivers had been selected to crew an entire team of cars.

The Chevy Teen Team was chosen through the Junior Achievement program, and came from ten major U.S. cities. They are 18- and 19-year-old college students and secretaries, telephone operators and store clerks. For six weeks prior to the start of the Mobil Economy Run, these teen-age drivers were put through a rigorous training schedule at Arcadia, California. Then they set off on the 3,500-mile Los Angeles-to-New York trek.

Why did Chevrolet rely on twenty teen-agers in an event as tough as the Mobil Economy Run? Because Chevrolet has faith in America's teen-agers, as good drivers and responsible individuals. And we wanted to give them a chance to prove it, in front of the entire nation.

And prove it they did. The Chevy Teen Team came through with flying colors. They showed that the vast majority of America's 6.5 million licensed teen-age drivers are intelligent, capable drivers.

We're proud of the Chevy Teen Team. They set a standard of driving skill and common sense anyone would be glad to follow.

"The Corvair, Chey II's, Chevelles and Chevrolets driven by the Chevy Teen Team in the Mobil Economy Run did remarkably well compared with the Class Winners in overall miles-per-gallon figures. The final results are a tribute to the high degree of driving skill displayed by the Chevy Teen Team Representing the young of America"

OUR COVER

One of Hollywood's youngest and most beautiful stars and also one of its most accomplished veterans—Natalie Wood—is once more in the Oscar orbit. Academy nominations are nothing new to Natalie; in fact, in 1962 she had the unique distinction of receiving two of them. Brown-eyed, chestnut-haired Natalie began her acting career at the age of 4 and is one of the few successfully to make the transition from child performer to adult star. This year's nomination is for her work in "Love With a Proper Stranger," with Steve McQueen. Her first nomination was for her memorable work as the high school girl friend of the late James Dean in "Rebel Without a Cause." For more about the Oscar orbit and Natalie's strong competitors for the little statuettes, turn to Page 7.

NEXT WEEK

Five years of life with the Indians of the Southwest, first with Apaches and later the Mojaves, were years of great unhappiness for a teen-aged white girl. First, there was the slaughter of her parents and four brothers in an attack on the family's immigrant wagon, then the cruelties heaped upon her by the Indians, later the death of her sister in their captivity and deprivation. Finally, she was released and reunited with a brother who survived the Indian attack. The story is told in Southland next week in "The Strange Case of Olive Oatman," by Maymie R. Krythe.

A QUESTION OF SPEEDING

Arrest the President?

By Hoyt McAfee

CHANCES are overwhelming that, as President, Lyndon B. Johnson will never receive a ticket for speeding. It would be just as improbable to suppose that he will be arrested for some infraction of the law. But it could happen!

No provision in the U.S. Constitution exempts the Chief Executive from arrest. Should he exceed the speed limit in some state, run through a red light, or hit a wayward pedestrian, he would be as subject to due process of law as the ordinary citizen.

This subject — of whether the President could be held accountable for a speeding violation — has been very much in the public eye lately. Newspapers across the land continue to express the hope—on their front pages and in their editorial sections—that LBJ, under the wheel of his car, "will take it easy." This concern over his driving started during his abbreviated visit to Johnson ranch in Texas.

FOND OF "making the wide-open spaces sing past me" (as he once phrased it), LBJ climbed into his car and set out to pay a few neighborly calls on old friends. White House correspondents and photographers took off in pursuit of him. According to most accounts since then, they hit the 70-mile-an-hour Texas speed limit—then "lost sight of" LBJ.

Recently, however, the President dismissed the nationwide furore over his "fast driving" as a tempest in a teapot. He specifically disclaimed any knowledge of having driven over 70 miles an hour at any time.

All of which reminds me of the year I spent in Maryland. Dwight Eisenhower occupied the White House during that period. It was common knowledge to any observant reporter—and in fact, it appeared in the newspapers — that Ike sometimes went through Maryland, en route to Gettysburg, Penn., "like the cannonball express."

Two Maryland state policemen confided to this reporter that they once "clocked Ike (the President) going 104 miles an hour." They gave fleeting thought "to the idea of flagging him down, but in the end decided against it." High-speeding White House correspondents, whizzing along well behind the presidential car, were, however, halted and cautioned to stay within the Maryland speed limit.

AT WHICH POINT curiosity prompts the question: Have any U.S. Presidents ever been cited—or arrested—for an infringement of the law? And the answer to that, in

—Associated Press Wirephoto

Furore stirred by alleged speeding on the Texas open spaces by President Johnson raises question whether the President could be arrested.

two specific instances, is yes! Back in 1853, Franklin Pierce, the 14th President, drove in his carriage to call on a friend in Southeast Washington.

As he headed back toward the White House, his spirited horses developed an unruly streak. It was during that unfortunate moment that his carriage struck down an enfeebled woman pedestrian! One Mrs. Nathan Lewis. A Washington constable—Stanley Edelin—hurried to the scene and arrested the President of the United States, Franklin Pierce!

As might be expected, Pierce's position made it imperative that an immediate investigation be conducted. After all the facts were weighed carefully, the charge against President Pierce was dropped. No official, spectator, or newspaper seemed to think that he had been "careless or negligent" in running down the woman. That, summed up, it qualified as an "unfortunate accident."

Ulysses S. Grant, the man who accepted Gen. Robert E. Lee's surrender at Richmond and later became the 18th U.S. President, also had trouble with "frisky horses." He set out one day in his handsome carriage, aiming to "get a little fresh air." Along M Street in Washington, D.C., between 11th and 12th, President Grant's steeds did some fancy sprinting.

SECONDS LATER a voice called out with the ring of authority: "Halt! You're breaking the speed limit." A startled President Grant found himself suddenly confronted by a traffic policeman. As for the latter, he blushed and stammered an apology when he discovered that he had halted the President of the U.S.!

To which Grant responded: "Go ahead, officer—do your duty! Write me a ticket—I'll accept it." He spoke cheerfully, reassuringly; and the embarrassed officer handed President Grant a $20 speeding ticket.

As a matter of record,

The Strange Case of Olive Oatman

By Maymie R. Krythe

IN THE SPRING of 1856, news spread through Southern California — that Olive Oatman, a young girl held captive for years by Mojave Indians, was to be allowed to return to civilization.

She reached El Monte, not far from Los Angeles, where she was reunited with her brother, Lorenzo, the only other surviving member of her ill-fated family, which originally numbered nine persons. The Los Angeles Star printed a detailed account of her family tragedy and of her years of captivity.

In August 1850, Royce Oatman, with his wife and seven children, started in a wagon train from Independence, Mo., to settle in the Yuma region. Ira Thompson, with whom they traveled as far as Tucson, decided to wait, with his cattle, for other trains to come by, to make the journey safer. However, the Oatmans became impatient, and pushed on alone. About 80 miles from the mouth of the Gila River they were attacked by Apaches. The savages killed the parents, four of the children and left one boy, Lorenzo, for dead. They took Olive, aged 13, and Mary Ann, as prisoners. Lorenzo finally reached California, and lived with the Thompsons at El Monte.

THEN THE SISTERS began the captivity that lasted five years for Olive but less time for Mary Ann, as she died for lack of proper food. The Star tells of the beginning of the girls' stay with the Apaches:

> "They traveled all night without resting. At noon, next day, they stopped for a few minutes to breathe, and then hurried on again until nightfall, when they came into camp. She (Olive) thinks they traveled a hundred miles. She was barefooted, and the sharp stones lacerated her feet. . . . Whenever she lagged, they would come behind and beat her, to urge her on. . . . The reason for their hurrying on so rapidly was fear they might be pursued."

The first year with the savages was almost unbearable; the girls' clothes soon dropped off; then Olive matted some bark together for rough garments for herself and Mary Ann. The pair were beaten when they couldn't understand what the Indians wanted them to do.

This tribe lived in poverty and filth; often the girls had nothing to eat but roots. Sometimes they had to go miles to get food and water for their captors. After a year with the Apaches the latter sold the sisters to the Mojaves for two horses, some beads, blankets and vegetables. Luckily, the chief's wife took a liking to the girls and gave them blankets and food. As there was little rain along the Colorado, these savages often died of starvation.

AFTER MARY ANN'S death, the Mojaves wanted to burn her body, but the chief's wife intervened, and the child was buried. Finally, these Indians told Olive she could go back to the white people. But she didn't know the way; and the Mojaves were afraid to guide her, for fear they would be punished.

In 1855, a rumor reached Southern California that Olive had married an Indian chief in the region of the Colorado River. Lorenzo wanted to go to rescue his sister, but didn't succeed in getting help for such an expedition. On Jan. 28, 1856, an Indian told officers at Fort Yuma that a white girl was living among Mojaves "10 days' travel away," and that "for certain considerations" he would bring her to the fort.

A correspondent at Fort Yuma wrote to the Los Angeles Star in regard to Olive Oatman:

> ". . . is rather a pretty girl, 15 or 16 years old. She is fast recovering her English, reads readily. . . . The death of her sister made this girl more of a burden than anything else to the Indians. She was constantly weeping, so they allowed the fact of her being still with them to transpire through a Yuma India."

WHEN OLIVE reached El Monte in April 1856, she denied marrying an Indian, and gave the Star a long account of her days with the savages. Many flocked to see her, and she was described as having "pleasant manners" and "a ladylike deportment." However, the Star stated:

> "Her face is disfigured by tatooed lines on the chin, running obliquely and perpendicularly from her mouth. Her arms were also marked in such a manner by one straight line on each. The operation consisted in puncturing the skin, and rubbing a dye or pulverized charcoal into the wounds."

That same summer, H. B. Oatman, a cousin, came down from Oregon, declared himself their guardian, and took the orphans north with him. As they passed through San Francisco, the papers made much of Olive's captivity and held interviews with her.

LESS THAN a year later, Royal B. Stratton, a minister of Yreka, at Olive's dictation, wrote down her adventures; and a San Francisco publisher got out two editions in 1857. Later, the book was revised, and published in New York, and about 30,000 copies sold in two years. The Democratic State Journal declared:

> "The reader will rise from its perusal with a feeling prompting him to seize the musket and go at once and chastise those inhuman wretches among whom Olive has spent five years. . . ."

After a few months, Olive and Lorenzo returned to California; later she went to New York with the Strattons. At Rochester, in 1865, she married John B. Fairchild; and on March 20, 1903, she died in Sherman, Tex.

Velero IV is a floating marine laboratory, carrying out many scientific missions under the direction of the Allan Hancock Foundation for Scientific Research and USC. She is fifth in series of Hancock vessels.

By Lou Jobst

FROM HER powerful steel bow 120 feet aft to her gleaming white stern, the Velero IV is pound-for-pound, foot-for-foot, the best science boat afloat.

The 510-ton Los Angeles Harbor-based oceanographic research ship—fifth in a line of famous Hancock Foundation cruisers—is virtually chocked, bulkhead to bulkhead, with scientific gear and apparatus.

The Velero, launched in 1948 and often mistaken at sea for a fisher because of her striking resemblance to modern high-speed tuna clippers, has a range of 8,000 miles, carries a crew of nine and has accommodations for a scientific party of 18 persons.

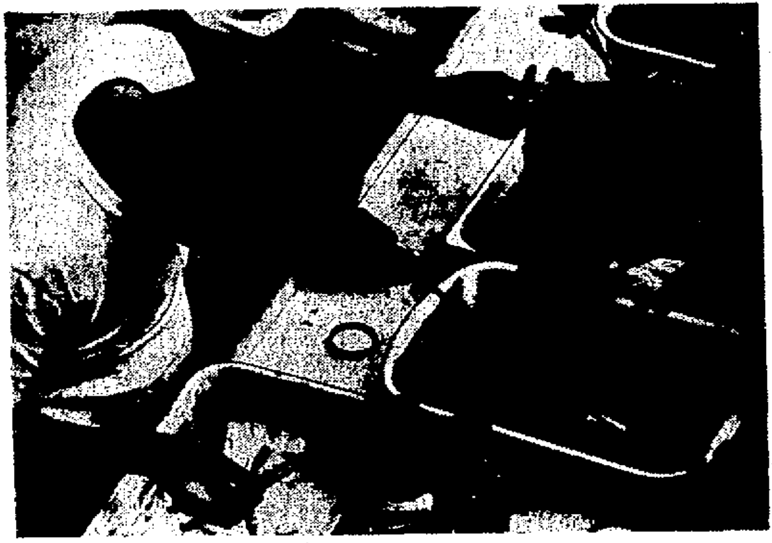
She has two permanent laboratories set up in the No. 1 hold and carries dehumidifying equipment to inhibit deterioriation of expensive electronic, microscopic and other laboratory equipment in tropical climes.

THE VELERO'S operational area is about 30,000 square miles of ocean off California and Mexico, and she carries radar so precise it can navigate in thick fog while tracking a foil-and-metal covered helium balloon in air and wind current tests, a sonar-transducer fathometer built into the steel hull 12 feet below the surface and a bathythermograph, a heavy two-foot, missile-like instrument which can be dropped over the side to measure water temperatures down to 400 feet.

She also carries underwater cameras, dredges and buckets for obtaining bottom samples, coring devices, an inventory of specimen nets, cranes and full equipped photographic, chemical, biological and geographic laboratories including one big open air lab on the fantail.

The all-steel marine laboratory is presently mapping huge sections of the Pacific Ocean floor under a $100,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

THESE MARINE topographical studies are concerned with the 6,000-foot Catalina basin level and the 10,000-foot level along the Continental slope off Point Conception. Directing the operation and a team of 16 researchers is Dr. Donn Gorsline, USC professor of geology and a research fellow of Hancock Foundation for Scientific Research.



Fully equipped laboratories aboard the Velero IV permit study of sea life by students engaged in marine research. Craft has two permanent labs.

The Velero also is presently involved in studies of Southland currents and is using fluorescent-stained sands to trace erosion movements in the Malibu area.

Other contemporary studies also include an exhaustive look at material suspended in the sea in an area up to 70 miles offshore and detailed research and observation of currents and sea organisms in the Redondo Beach district.

IN THE PAST the Velero and her predecessors have done monumental work in identifying, cataloging and monographing marine flora and flauna which inhabit the eastern (or California) Pacific. The ship also has made detailed studies of offshore water pollution, ecological studies of mid-water animals in deep basins and several surveys of military oceanography for the U. S. Navy as well as geological studies for oil companies.

On most operations the Velero stays out no longer than 24 hours, allowing crew and researchers to live at home, but on other occasions has made long-range, sustained voyages.

The Allan Hancock Foundation for Scientific Research (which offers no courses or grants, no degrees and operates solely as an oceanographic research institution) was founded by Capt. Allan Hancock, former president of the Board of Trustees, University of Southern California.

THE FOUNDATION grew out of voyages of Hancock's Velero III, a series of sea expeditions, years 1931-41. So much material was amassed by the expeditions that it became necessary to provide a permanent repository which resulted in the construction of Hancock Hall at USC, and the founding of the institute.

The Velero was designed by G. Bruce Newby, naval architect and marine engineer of Long Beach.

Colorful Coleus

Foliage plants are quite as attractive as flowers in the garden. Coleus is, of course, the plant most gardeners think of first when colorful foliage is mentioned. It is easily grown from seeds and available with many color combinations.

But the big, beautifully marked leaves of caladiums, the feathery green of a new marigold named Irish Lace, and the brilliantly-colored leaves of any of the amaranths are other possibilities.

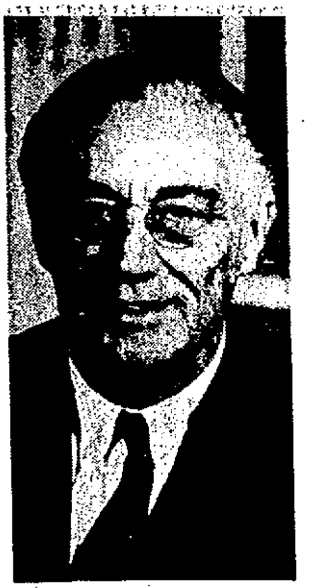
The Day FDR Died

By Hoyt McAfee



Franklin D. Roosevelt's warm personality, his regard for those about him is recalled on the anniversary, today, of his death, April 12, 1945.

IN THE CAROLINAS and North Georgia, it was a spring day — that April 12, 1945 — ideally suited for strolls in the sunshine and picnicking. Franklin D. Roosevelt, pale, drawn, and physically exhausted after his strenuous wartime trip to Yalta, slept late that morning. After a lighter-than-usual breakfast, he still felt tired, depressed, and in no mood for a swim in the beneficial water at Warm Springs.

Planned for that afternoon was an old-style barbecue— one which had been planned for the enjoyment of Roosevelt, Warm Springs polio victims, and White House correspondents. But as the minutes and hours ticked by, FDR's chances of attending it diminished rapidly. Early that fateful afternoon the end came abruptly for him as he languished in his Warm Springs cottage.

Shuddering, he spoke in a hoarse, agonizing voice: "I have a terrific headache!" FDR suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and death followed shortly thereafter.

WORD OF HIS death reached me before it appeared in extra editions of newspapers.

It was relayed by a member of the White House staff to my close friend, U.S. Senator Clyde Hoey of North Carolina. His hands were trembling as he replaced the receiver. Turning to me (I was visiting in his office at the time), Hoey commented:

"My God—I can't believe it! FDR dead, just when victory for America and her Allies seems so near in Europe! This means a terrible loss for freedom-loving people throughout the world. Millions of them thought of Roosevelt as their friend, a world leader in the fullest sense."

There, in his quiet study, Senator Hoey confided to me: "I saw FDR twice after his exhausting journey ot Yalta. Sure, his physical appearance looked disturbing.' But I was confident a long rest at Warm Springs—plus swims in the curative water there—would restore the President's health and physical vigor."

AT THAT MOMENT my thoughts flicked back to a memorable day in my life— Sept. 9, 1936. That was the date on which I, still a greenhorn, fumbling reporter, enjoyed the rare privilege of an undisturbed personal conversation with Roosevelt, during the course of which he dropped an exclusive into my lap!

Over the years, I've attended, at one time or another, the cross-country press conferences held by Presidents Truman, Eisenhower and Johnson. But with FDR, I felt that I had established a measure of rapport.

My totally unexpected meeting with him came about this way: Clyde Hoey, then an attorney and a candidate for governor of North Carolina (with FDR's encouragement), invited me to "take a little trip" with him. He added: "I intend to meet FDR at Clingman's Dome on the North Carolina-Tennessee border. He will proceed from there, via an open motorcade, to the 7-states' Green Pastures rally in Charlotte."

AS A FILLIP, Hoey ventured: "I may be able to wangle something special out of Roosevelt for you." Delighted over that prospect, I accompanied Hoey to Clingman's Dome, high up in the Great Smokies. FDR, riding in an open touring car, arrived there around noontime —and was cheered vociferously by Park Rangers, CCC camp boys and thousands of others.

Doffing his battered campaign hat, he flashed his famous grin and waved heartily. When his official car came to a halt at the CCC camp luncheon site, everybody in the assembled throng had a clear, close-up and unhampered view of him. At FDR'S insistence, Secret Service men stood discreetly off to the side.

He remained through that stop-over and his three-day visit to North Carolina absolutely the most loosely-guarded President I've ever seen moving about the country! And of all our modern-day Chief Executives, he was the undisputed master in meeting the public.

WHEN HOEY stepped forward to shake FDR's hand, I was at his side. Suddenly Roosevelt's golden voice boomed out: "Hello, Clyde— good to meet you up here so close to heaven" (that being a reference to the lofty elevation of Clingman's Dome). Hoey introduced me to Roosevelt thusly:

"I have with me a good friend—a young reporter who started his newspaper career just three months ago." Then he told FDR my name.

Roosevelt smiled, held out his enormous right hand, and addressed me by my first name. For that matter, he— with perfect naturalness— called kings, queens, princes, generals and admirals by their first names. His informality and warmth of friendliness put me completely at ease.

ENCOURAGINGLY, he made no effort to break off his conversation with us. Left to my own devices, I would never have been so thoughtless as to mention FDR's polio affliction. Yet he brought the subject up himself—with a candor that to us was remarkable!

First, he explained—as he pointed to his leg braces— that he couldn't "navigate without them." He also made it clear that he could rise to a standing position and move forward only with assistance. Further, that in delivering his speeches, he had to rest "most of my weight first on my right, then left, elbow. But" —and his chin suddenly shot up—"with determination, you can learn to live with this affliction: even find a way to make it enrich you as a person."

Then he referred to his "displeasure" over recent Supreme Court decisions — in which the stamp of unconstitutionality had been placed on some of FDR's most vital reform measures. In the event of his re-election, he emphasized that he'd push his New Deal program "vigorously— even if it becomes necessary to revitalize the Supreme Court."

THERE IT WAS—the tip-off, real high-voltage stuff! A momentary pause by FDR gave me a chance to ask: "Mr. President, how would you go about revitalizing the Supreme Court?" To show you how ill-prepared I was for that unexpected personal chat with FDR, I had no note paper with me! Clyde Hoey handed me his notebook as FDR revealed that:

(1) He'd launch a series of "Fireside Chats" in the hope of bringing pressure to bear on the Supreme Court.

(2) "As a last resort," he would seek Congressional approval to "broaden the base" of the highest tribunal. (When he proposed this in a message to Congress five months later —in February of 1937—his outspoken critics labeled it "the court-packing plan.")

After Roosevelt had spoken so frankly there at Clingman's Dome, I thought quickly: Just how much of this, if any, can I use? Clyde Hoey came to my rescue by asking: "Mr. President, may my reporter

Decorating Enigma

Five drawings and sketches by John Lincoln and two small figures decorate this wall.

WHEN ROCK is used for wall in living quarters, decorating often proves to be a problem, as in the Lawrence De Carlo home in San Pedro. Art solved the problem here, with five John Lincoln works and two hand-carved Spanish figures placed by interior designer Charlotte Centoz, Walls are softened and the background complements the delicacy of the sketches and drawings.--STELLA GEORGE.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Its Qualities Have Improved With Age

By Stella George

ABOUT 17 YEARS AGO, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Masterson selected the site at 610 Los Altos Avenue in Alamitos Heights and built a two-story home there. Today, the trees surrounding the home are grown, other fine houses are nearby and the residence is one with a past, a present, and a future. Its quality has improved with age.

Trees play an important part in the outdoor landscaping. From her kitchen window, Mrs. Masterson can see a group of trees that is without price. Los Altos Avenue is a quiet street, and birds have long since discovered the tall trees are an excellent housing unit. One colorful finch calls regularly at the Masterson windowsill for meals.

The house has a wide entry that leads to the living room at the right, the dining room left, the den and stairway ahead. Throughout the entire dwelling the floor is covered with thick, soft carpeting of powder-puff texture, dyed a shade of gray-blue—perhaps mist blue describes it.

A SOFA RUNS nearly the entire length of one wall of the living room, facing the fireplace. A conversation grouping in one corner consists of two flowered quilted chairs meeting around a table and lamp. Heirloom pictures are hung in the room.

Color which radiates in the den is flattering both to people and inanimate objects alike, a kind of amber glow. Actually, it is achieved because the color chosen for the fiberglass on the patio roof is a delicate pink, which, penetrated by sunlight, becomes pink-amber. In the Established homes have comfort and beauty, come by only in long occupancy, such as evident in this living room.

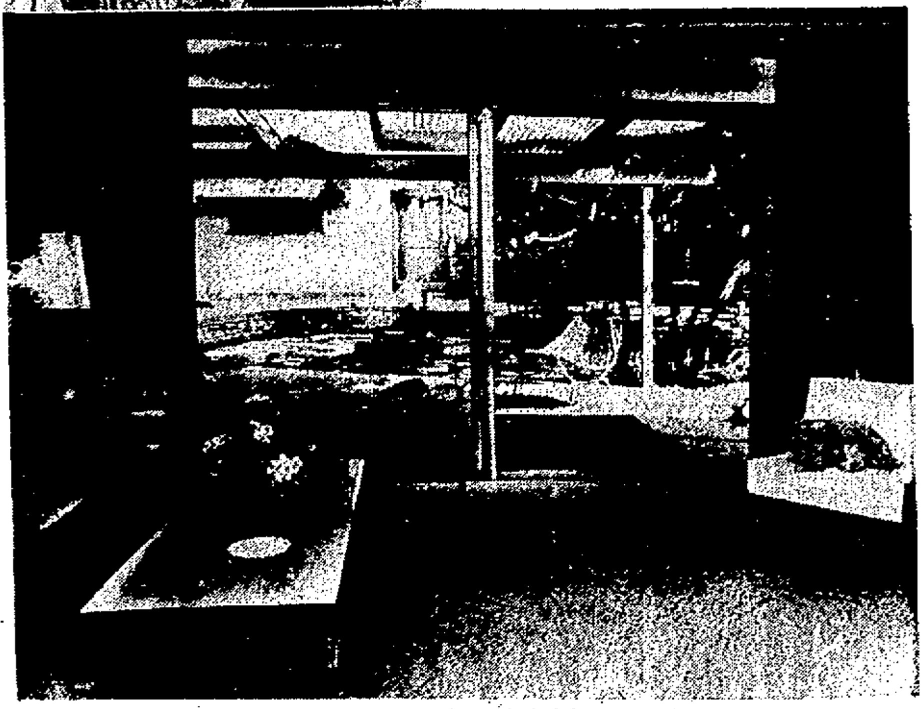
Interesting insert: Glass port (left) looks out from kitchen and dinette spaces to patio, garden.



Glass in a wide expanse serves as one wall of the Mastersons' den, and provides an outlook upon patio and garden. Trees shade the area; barbecue equipment is at hand.

den are a recessed TV with a comfortable sofa across the room and occasional chairs here and there. One entire wall is of glass, looking into the patio and garden.

Patio furnishings are interesting—a Moses basket, for example, an oval-shaped sofa made of wicker. A tree shades much of the area. Barbecue accessories are near at hand. The garden on either side of the cemented patio is luxuriant with outsized plants, carefully tended.

A LARGE glass insert at the far end of the kitchen looks out onto the patio and provides this room with the same pink-amber lighting effect all day long. A small, glass-topped table with white wrought iron chairs is near, viewing the garden beyond.

The dining room is formal with high-backed chairs around an oval table. A cabinet there displays treasures accumulated throughout the years.

Upstairs, the master bedroom is as large as the living room. A second bedroom, no longer used by the Mastersons' son who is now grown, serves as Mrs. Masterson's art studio.

Mrs. Masterson has many fine Provincial and Contemporary pieces in her home. However, she says that she selected furnishings because she liked individual pieces or settings and they seemed to fit into a certain room or portion of a room. Whatever the method she used, the end result is an inviting atmosphere in every room.

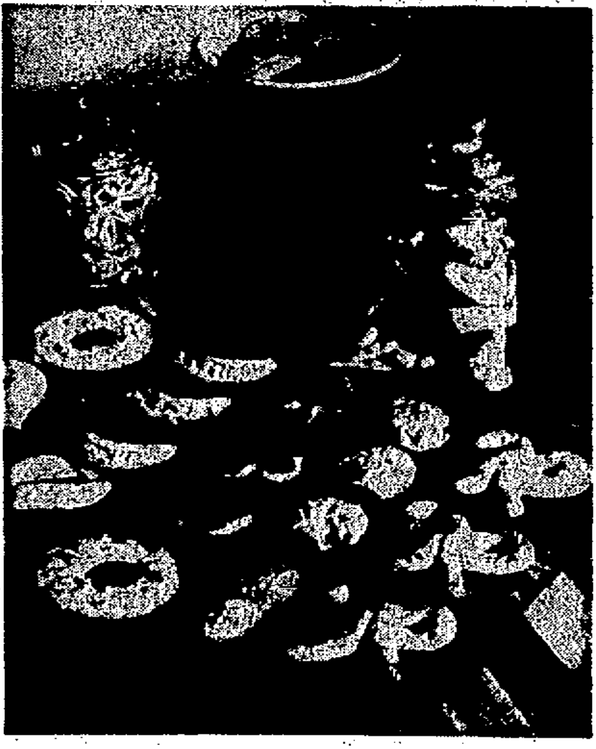
FOOD

Cookies—As You Like Them

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

THIS BEING the year of the Shakespeare quadricentennial, it's only proper to expect a virtual flood of events commemorating the Bard's 400th birthday anniversary April 23. Since food was as popular in the Elizabethan Age as it is today—if in somewhat different fashion—what better touchstone is there to prove the sincerity of a 1964 tribute to the greatest of all English poets?

"As You Like It" Almond Cookies are fanciful enough to have been originated in Arden Forest itself. Crunchy with chopped almonds and as rich as Rosalind's regalia, they are prepared with an easy-to-handle dough which may be shaped just about any way you like before baking. Work with small amounts of dough and keep the rest refrigerated until you need it to mold more cookies.



Shape them as you like them from a basic dough recipe, and you'll have cookies like these for happy feasting.

'As You Like It' Almond Cookies

- ⅔ cup toasted slivered almonds
- ¾ cup butter or magarine
- 1 cup sugar
- 2 eggs
- 1 tablespoon milk
- 1 teaspoon vanilla
- 2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
- 1½ teaspoons baking powder
- ¾ teaspoon salt

Finely chop almonds. In a large mixing bowl cream together butter and sugar, beating until light. Beat in eggs, milk and vanilla. Sift together into creamed mixture flour, baking powder and salt; mix well. Stir in almonds. Chill 2 hours. Shape cookies as desired. Bake on lightly greased cooky sheet in 350-degree (moderate) oven 6 to 8 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on rack. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

'Bows,' 'Rounds,' 'Circle-Bars'

For "Bows," an excellent cooky for a little girl's birthday party, shape the dough into "ropes," each about 12 inches long and ¼ inch thick; lay on a cooky sheet in the shape of bows, brush with slightly beaten egg white, sprinkle with candy dots and bake as recipe directs.

For chubby "Rounds," shape dough into ½-inch balls; roll in slightly beaten egg white, then in finely chopped almonds and bake.

"Circle-Bars" are made by rolling the dough and cutting 1-inch circles; slightly overlap three circles in a straight line for each cooky, sprinkle with chopped almonds—and off to the oven!

'Shamrocks,' 'Doughnuts,' 'Foldovers'

Any would-be leprechauns around your house should soar with delight over "Shamrock" cookies. Roll the dough and cut "leaves" with a 1-inch cutter. Lay a short strip of dough on cooky sheet for "stem" of each cooky and arrange three circles on it. Brush the dough with a mixture of egg yolk and green food coloring, then bake.

For "doughnuts," roll out dough on lightly floured cloth to thickness of 1/8 inch. Cut with doughnut cutter. Sprinkle "doughnuts" with granulated sugar and chopped almonds before baking.

"Foldovers" are assembled by rolling the dough and cutting circles with a 2½-inch cutter; sprinkling circles with chopped almonds; folding them over and baking. When cool, spread one side of each cooky with your favorite chocolate glaze.

'Hearts,' 'Crisscrosses'

Roll dough and cut with a heart-shaped cutter for "Hearts." With a mixture of egg yolk and red food coloring, streak an arrow diagonally across each "heart," then whisk into the oven.

For "Chocolate-Tipped Crisscrosses," roll and cut dough as for the "Doughnuts." Then cut through the circles and cross over ends. Bake, cool and spread chocolate glaze on ends.

Recipe of the Week

VERSATILITY OF HAM in food preparation is called up this week to win $5 for Mrs. Lloyd H. Neumann, 1534 Rose Ave., Long Beach 90813. The recipe:

Ham Loaf

- 2 lbs. cooked smoked ham, ground not too fine
- 2 lbs. raw smoked ham, ground not too fine
- 1½ cups milk
- 4 eggs
- 2½ cups Graham Crackers (rolled)
- Salt and pepper to taste

Combine ingredients and form loaf in baking pan and pour over it the sauce.

Sauce:

- 1 can tomato soup
- ½ cup brown sugar
- 1 tsp. mustard
- ½ cup cider vinegar
- ½ cup water

Pour this over the ham loaf and bake 2 hours at 325 degrees.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

President

Grant made no appearance in court; thus forfeiting his $20 collateral to traffic court. On the other hand, he showed remarkable thoughtfulness by sending a complimentary letter about the arresting officer to the police department. Unsurprisingly, that patrolman—who had expected outright dismissal for his action—called Grant "my favorite President."

Much earlier in our nation's history, Thomas Jefferson, the most versatile of all U.S. Presidents, refused to accept a subpoena which would have required him to go to court and testify in the Aaron Burr treason case. Jefferson regarded that as attempted encroachment by the judiciary upon executive authority.

IN HIS LETTER to U.S. Attorney George Hay, he referred to a situation in which the sheriff of a county might summon a judge to step down from the bench and help quell a riot. "Would he"—Jefferson observed—"abandon major duties to perform lesser ones?" In Jefferson's view, it would be utterly unreasonable to expect him to do so.

For, as he went on to emphasize: "The leading principle of our constitution is the independence of the legislative, executive, and judicial branches of each other. Would the executive be independent of the judiciary if he were subject to the latter? To imprisonment, at the latter's whim, for disobedience?"

In diplomatic language, that was President Jefferson's way of stating: "You have no authority to compel my appearance in court. If I decide to cooperate with you, it will be of my own free will, as the independent Chief Executive!"

But a President who becomes involved in a traffic accident, or who breaks the speed limit, enjoys no immunity under the U.S. Constitution. As was shown in the cases of Presidents Pierce and Grant, he can be halted, questioned, and issued a citation!

Camera Guild

Members of Long Beach Camera Guild this week will be entertained with two special showings of slides, one of vacation activities and accompanied by music by Gerald Church and the other of Alaska by Hazel Vosper. Other members are invited to bring slides of vacation trips to the meeting which is scheduled for 7:45 p.m. Wednesday in Los Altos library.

April contest winners included Catherine Laursen, Lillian Garton, Marion Paglow, Charles Lawson, Hazel Vosper, Chuck Haven, Dick Paglow, Lester Hockney, Fount Clark and Bob Knight, color slides, and Catherine Laursen and Floyd Williamson, stereo. Slides were judged by Cecil Wilson of Jewel City Camera Club, Glendale.

meaning "royal manor house." In 1050, the head or chief of the English Cunninghams traveled to Scotland where he aided the Scotch Prince Malcolm to escape from the notorious King MacBeth. Cunningham concealed Malcolm by forking hay over him in a barn, saving his life. In 1058, Malcolm gained the Scotch throne and rewarded the Cunninghams with a unique, significant armorial emblem, a black hayfork centered on a silver shield, accompanied with the reminiscent motto, "Over, fork, over."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain ZERKLE.—F. Z., Seal Beach.

F. Z.: ZERKLE comes from the old Germanic hero name Sieg-heri, denoting "victorious warrior." Sieg-Heri was greatly abbreviated to Sieger, then to Zer, to which was added the nickname suffix "-kle."

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you explain MARQUETTE.—R.M., Garden Grove.

R.M.: MARQUETTE is French. The name became world famous through Jacques Marquette, born in 1635, explorer of the Mississippi River. Marquette was a nickname form of Marc, meaning "warlike one." The family shield, held by the Marquet branch in the medieval French province of Poitou, is blue, decorated with a gold "X"-shaped cross placed between four gold coins.

For the well-dressed landlubber this summer: Harburt's Hi Tone suit with double breasted blazer, brass buttoned, and straight skirted to combine with sleeveless knit shell in coordinating stripes. The patch-pocketed A-line shift is sailcloth textured.

'All Ashore'

Femininity, 1964, doesn't mean the saccharine little girl with buttons and bows, ruffles and frills. It does mean a softer, more lady-like sportswear approach. Say seersucker, sharkskin, poplin, linen, sail-cloth, denim—the big fabrics of Spring-Summer—and it's difficult to conjure up a more feminine look in sportswear. Add chambray, gingham, dotted Swiss and all the female aspects begin to come through. Harburt's "Old World" concept, originating in Finland and snapped up for import by touring student hostelers from some of our poshest "Ivy" women's colleges, offers a fresh approach to the relaxed shift. Fabrics are home-spun in feeling. Color and patterns adopt the look of hand-screening with unusual design effects achieved by tone on tone overprinting.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Check Eyes, Ears

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Is bad hearing very often a cause of poor work in school?

ANSWER: Yes, often.

Dr. Gwenyth Vaughn, head of the department of speech, pathology and audiology at Idaho State University, reports that seven out of every 100 Americans are born with hearing or speech disorders.

"Many supposedly well-informed people still believe that kids will just 'grow out' of their troubles," states Dr. Vaughn. "This is false. They need help, treatment; they need it when they are young."

Physicians and educators suspect that the physical difficulties of many children go undetected and are directly responsible for low academic achievement.

Have a physician test your child's sight and hearing at least once each year.

A child can't answer a question if he doesn't hear it, or read an assignment if he doesn't see the words.

QUESTION: Do private schools give students better preparation for college than public schools do?

ANSWER: A recent research project indicated that public school students get higher grades than private school students of the same age and intelligence. College freshmen from the public schools in the area where the research was conducted proved superior, on the average, to the private school students of that area. This is not to say, however, that the product of the private school is inadequate.

QUESTION: If you were going to suggest one step to take that might have a beneficial effect on a student's whole performance in school, what would it be?

ANSWER: Improve his reading. How well he does in any subject will depend to a large extent on how well he reads books, assignments, and test questions. When reading improves, academic achievement in general improves.

FDR Death

friend quote any part of this conversation in his write-up?" His response was that I should "express it as my hope (FDR's) that the Supreme Court will revitalize its thinking and consider the urgent needs of the American people—now—today!"

WE THANKED FDR warmly, then joined his colorful motorcade across the Cherokee Indian Reservation; thence into Asheville for an overnight stop. On the following day, Sept. 10, 1936, thousands cheered Roosevelt tumultuously as he passed through towns, villages and finally reached Charlotte in a downpour of rain.

FDR refused to let his aides raise the top of his open touring car. Hence, when he arrived at Charlotte stadium, he—like the thousands already gathered there—was soaking wet. Leaning on an aide's arm, he shuffled forward slowly to the speaker's platform. Everyone in that overflow crowd saw, many for the first time, how difficult it was for FDR, a polio cripple, to move about.

Gazing out over his audience, FDR's finger suddenly shot up and his magnetic voice rang out: "Behold, my friends — a rainbow in the sky!" All eyes turned and looked in the direction Roosevelt had indicated—to view one of nature's loveliest sights.

ON FOUR occasions, in later years, this reporter covered FDR's cross-country political campaigning. With his uncanny knack for remembering names and faces, it surprised me none when he recognized me each time. Once, he motioned me closer to his open car and, with an impish grin, ribbed me:

"I notice that you brought note paper with you this time!"

Sure, I realized a reporter must remain objective and impartial in writing about public officials. But when the President of the U.S. shows you (an everyday reporter) warmth and individual attention, as was FDR's wont, you feel a very personal loss when he dies!

Garden Tips

Garden tips for the week . . . Once more we remind you, prune your fuchsias and geraniums. They will start to grow very soon and you can then start giving plant food.

As the early-flowering iris, Christmas roses and other perennials go out of bloom, lift them and divide.

Now is the time to plant your tuberous and fibrous begonias seedlings. Give them some shade in hotter areas.

Keep weeds removed and don't let them go to seed!

How about some "fresh from the garden" vegetables this summer? Your nurseryman has a good selection of plants already started for you.

Easily built, this greenhouse is a boon to gardening.

By Bill Meyerricks

GREENHOUSE and potting bench, subjects of this simple Sketchbook do-it-yourself project, provide a useful adjunct to the home garden setup. Basic is an uncomplicated A-frame and the whole arrangement is easily constructed. In fact is is one outdoor project that can be built with hand tools only. Its completion is made easier by incorporation of translucent fiberglass in place of ordinary window glass. The type of fiberglass suggested is shatterproof and hailproof. It also produces a glare-free, shadow-free light evenly diffused over the flower growing area inside. It is available in a half-dozen different color shades.

Construction where the plastic panels are utilized makes a compact greenhouse with a 7-foot potting bench along the far end opposite the door. The base of the A-frame is approximately 10 feet square. Height at the ridge is 8½ feet. The foundation can be either poured concrete slab or a foundation curb with a floor of brick set in sand.

To order, specify A-Frame Greenhouse Plan S-156 and send name and address to 50 cents to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Stage for a Bird Show

WITH THIS setting—a stage for birds—you'll find hours of happy showtime. NBC's Sue Wheeler demonstrates how the stage is set just outside the window, with its several kinds of perches, sunken bath with seed bar nearby, plastic covered area for bad weather, holes for providing suet for the non-vegetarians and just about anything a happy bird could want. With a full-sized pattern to follow, this bird stage is easily built in one evening and only scrap wood is needed. Set yourself up for a bird show. Send 50 cents for Bird Stage Pattern No. 341 to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.

Alertness Paradox Revealed

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical-Science Writer

SCIENTISTS have long known that alertness decreases as time passes. But, given certain conditions, alertness may paradoxically increase after a time.

The finding is reported in the Journal of Experimental Psychology.

The experiment that turned up this finding involved 40 males 12 to 26 years old. The subjects were told to record the occurrence of variations in the illumination of a series of lamps.

The experiment lasted 135 minutes.

Twenty of the group were told the length of the experiment and encouraged to glance at their watches from time to time. The others were not informed and, furthermore, were not permitted to wear their watches.

Subjects who knew that the end of their task was approaching showed significant improvement in performance. But the uninformed group's performance did not improve.

IN MEDICAL research circles, Pudgie, a black Labrador retriever, is a VIP —Very Important Pooch.

Pudgie, reports Lab World, has been deaf since birth. She can't bark, for she has never heard what a bark sounds like. She's never heard her five puppies nor the voice of her mistress, 16-year-old Sandi Foerster of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Pudgie is being subjected to studies at Kresge Hearing Research Institute at the University of Michigan in the hope that doctors may acquire new knowledge that may have a direct bearing on the care of the human hard-of-hearing.

GUINEA PIGS are extremely polite when it comes to coughing, a medical researcher has found.

The discovery was made when the researcher blew smoke in the direction of rabbits, rats, hamsters, mice, domestic fowl, pigeons and guinea pigs. Object: to study the cough reflex.

Only the guinea pig showed a cough reflex resembling that of a human when exposed to "an irritating vapor," says Dr. P. R. Peacock of the Cancer Research Department of Glasgow's Royal Beatson Memorial Hospital.

In addition, the guinea pig put its forepaw up to its mouth "in genteel fashion," Dr. Peacock reports in British Medical Journal.

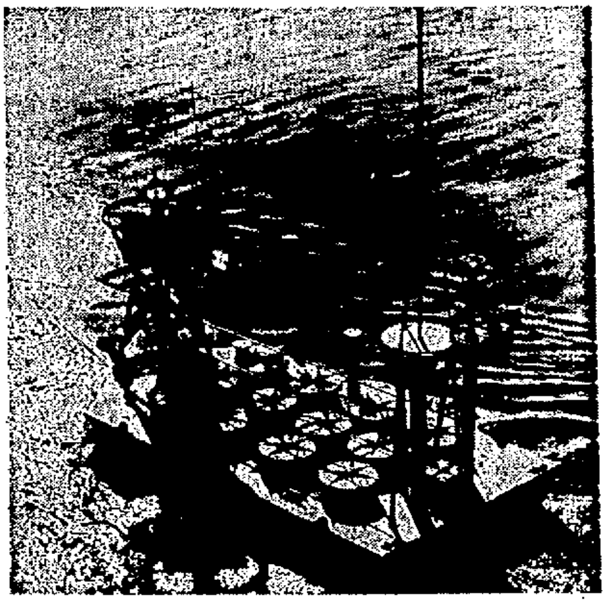
Seagoing 'Weatheman'



Loaded with weather detection, transmission equipment, this raft is a NOMAD, nuclear-powered unit at sea.

By Walter Finch

EVERYONE, the old shoe goes, talks about the weather, but no one does anything about it. No one, that is, but the U.S. Navy.

The Navy and Martin Co. of El Segundo have developed a nuclear-powered weather sentinel system which promises to protect coastal areas such as Southern California from sneak storms.

The new system is called NOMAD for Navy Automatic Weather Station.

The Navy has seven conventionally-powered Nomad stations and one nuclear model now in operation off the East and Gulf coasts, priority areas because of yearly hurricane assaults.

EXPERTS believe Nomads could be put on station off the coast of Baja Lower California and Southern California, a blind spot in the Southland weather detection system through which unexpected storms frequently race into this area.

Whether nuclear or battery powered, Nomad is mounted on a 200-square-foot raft or barge and is equipped with instrumentation to measure air temperature, barometric pressure, wind speed and direction and water temperature. These measurements are taken every three hours under ordinary conditions, but a storm sensor triggers hourly transmissions of this data during severe weather conditions.

The battery-powered Nomads, stationed up to 350 miles at sea, must be serviced and recharged every six months. The nuclear station can operate for 10 years on a single fuel load.

THE STATIONS transmit their data for about 2½ minutes every three hours and a constant appraisal of this information by experts can easily detect storms abrewing hours or even days before the bad weather breaks.

The stations and generators are built to sustain tremendous shocks, including ramming by a 20,000-ton vessel, and continue to operate.

Basket made of green and white tissue paper, with green outside, was filled with candy and presented to an elderly lady.

Sentiment in a Basket

By Anna M. Cowles

CLEVER WAY to say "I love you" is with a May basket.

Here is a quick and easy way to make a pretty basket.

Using your favorite colors, pin two sheets of tissue paper together and use as one sheet until the basket is finished.

Outline a large circle on the sheet with a pencil. A pan lid, 10 to 12 inches in diameter, makes the right size. Cut on the pencil line and lift out the round center piece.

Using a smaller lid, outline a smaller circle two inches inside the edge of the center piece. Sew around the outline with needle and thread.

PULL UP the thread ends carefully and gather the tissue paper, leaving a five-inch opening at the top. Tie the thread and cut off the ends.

To make the handle, use a strip of each colored paper three inches wide. Make one strip six inches longer than the other.

Fold the width of each strip in half, press and fold again, and flatten for a strong handle.

Pin an end of each strip together at an angle. Wrap and press the longer strip around the other. The result is a narrow, flat, angle-stripped handle.

SPACE the gathers evenly around the top of the basket before sewing on the handle at the thread line. Leave an inch of handle below the sewing.

Separate the tissues above the gathers to make a double ruffle.

Fill the basket with jelly beans, candy hearts, or wrapped candies. Arrange spring flowers over the sweets, tuck in a name or a love note, and the basket is ready to give to a friend or hang on a door knob as a surprise for someone within.

BOOK REVIEWS

The Lingerer in the Guest Room

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

WANT to know how to plot a short, compact novel? Want to know how to create characters that live in a few deft strokes?

Sit at the feet of Edwin O'Connor, who can do both as well as any writer alive.

The Pulitzer prize-winning author of "The Edge of Sadness" proves his skill again in "I WAS DANCING" (Atlantic-Little, Brown, $4.75), a novel about an old dancer that catches you by the throat.

Waltzing Daniel Considine, 78, has done his act, a waltzing burlesque of vaudeville, over the world for 50 years. But the shadows grow long for Danny. He thinks of his lawyer son, Tom, 44, whom he had not seen for 20 years when he came home briefly when Tom's mother died.

He wants to end his days in Tom's home. One autumn midnight Danny appears. He stays . . . and stays . . . and stays. He takes over the home and the telephone. He fills the house with his oddball friends, notably Billy Ryan, a a woman-hating priest, and Al Gottlieb, a lugubrious traveler who for years had been one of Dan's sychophantic fans.

At the end of a year, Tom and his wife break the news to Danny that in one month he must go to a rest home called Happy Valley, where Dan's crabbed and whining sister Delia already is ensconced.

The deadline approaches, and Dan plots ways and means to cling to his son's guest room. The climax is a smasher.

The novel has humor, it has compassion, it presents anew the old problems of the old and the young in a family. And it is a work of art. Be sure to read it.

THE PECULIARLY comic relationship of the Anglo-Irish landowners with their native Catholic servants and tenants in the Irish Republic provides the situation on which Honor Tracy, Anglo-Irish herself, has fashioned a rollicking yarn.

Michael Duff, last of a line of landed but impoverished Duffs, struggles along in dilapidated Georgetown, family estate, with the intention of marrying Dulcie Browning, daughter of a neighboring Anglo squire, in order to reduce his debts and chuck the whole boggy mess for life in England.

"THE FIRST DAY OF FRIDAY" (Random House, $495) complicates Duff's endeavor with a servant problem—Atracta Moin Smith, a faithful imbecilic incompetent, the mother of incredible howling triplets who is as meticulous about her Catholic obligations — on her master's time, of course — as she is slovenly in her household chores.

Ignoring 19 dismissals, she brings a lawsuit when Duff fires her for the 20th time, after his demented mother dies of a heart attack while laughing hysterically at Atracta. The lawsuit contends Duff cursed and hurled things at Atracta only as a form of woo. The trial, fortunately for Duff, is prevented by the intervention of Father Behan, a saintly "tall crazy man in shabby black skirts and a most absurd little bonnet on his head."

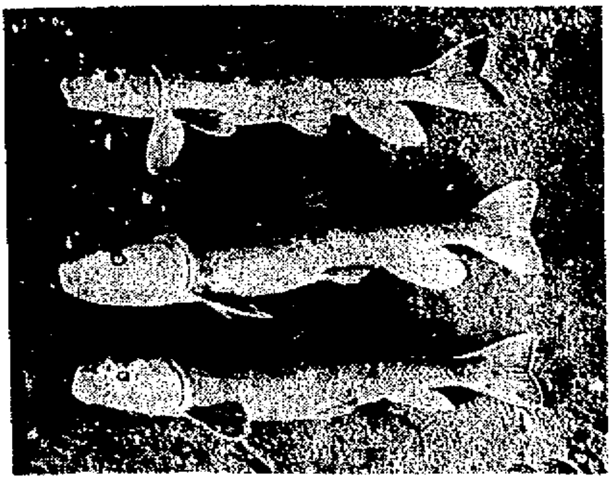
Pleistocene Age Hangover



Survivor of the Pleistocene era is the Cui-Ui, fish that is a denizen of deeps of Pyramid Lake, Nevada.

By Tamara Andreeva

ABOUT 100,000 years ago, most of northern Nevada was under water. In the present location of Reno, and of the beautiful Pyramid Lake 30 miles distant was an endless expanse of the ancient Lahontan Sea. Its banks covered with weird black tufa formation, it presented a sight similar in grimness to a lunar landscape.

Millenniums ticked by. Lahontan Sea began to break up into a series of lakes with islets and sandbars separating them. While cataclysmic changes ate away at the banks, the hot sun did the work of evaporation.

Another 50,000 years went by, and the Lahontan Sea was no more. In its stead was a chain of large lakes of which the present Pyramid was one.

AS THE GEOLOGICAL changes went on apace, there were changes, too, in the life cycle of various animals which inhabited the area. Most of them could not withstand the change, and became extinct. The mastodon, the primeval camel and many other species were snuffed out, But life went on, undisturbed, at great depths. As Pyramid was separated from the rest of the lakes, its life was landlocked, too, forever to remain in this one spot.

And so today, Pyramid Lake boasts Nevada's only living antiquity—a fish that is a hangover of the Pleistocene era. It is about a 20-pound, 18-inch sucker fish known as the Cui-Ui.

The Indians, having found it palatable, and easy to catch have been fishing for it for years. And today, Lake Pyramid being on the Indian (Paiute) reservation, anyone wishing to catch a Cui-Ui must get the permit at the Reservation.

TO A NOVICE it may be well to know that catching a Cui Ui on conventional lures is out of the question. This deep sea fish does not go for any of them. The only way man has been able to get close to it, is during the spawning season some time in early April. At that time the fish moves in large schools toward the shallows to spawn, and is indifferent to intrusion of men. Indians gaff or spear it during this yearly migration. The prize then is either a brownish female or a bluish male with a black stripe on the back. They are said to have the taste of a mackerel.

As a species the Cui-Ui is doomed. Its numbers diminish not only through fishing out, but through its own stubborn adherence to a migration pattern which frequently proves fatal to thousands of its young. As the fish move toward the shallows, these are frequently cut off by sudden sand bars. The fish perish there, unable to get to deeper water.

The Cui-Ui is less a fish than it is a reptile. It does not act as ordinary fish do and its scales are those of a snake.

YOUR GARDEN

Old Favorite Dons New Dress

By Joe Littlefield

BACHELOR'S buttons, blue flowers, were very popular years ago, but — like fashion in clothes and cars, these flowers, too, went out of style. Recently a new introduction of these still-remembered flowers have appeared in the horticultural trade. They are Pink Julep bachelor's-buttons, introduced by Northrup King. The Pink Julep combination without the traditional blue colors is a unique mixture of red, white, pink, and variegated flowers. They are dainty and attractive for color in the garden and may be made up in bouquets or flower arrangements by themselves.

Seeds may easily be sown in the sunny garden right where you want them to grow and bloom for you. Work up the soil as you would for a lawn seed bed. Mix the Pink Julep bachelor's-button seeds in a bucket, the seeds mixed with manure, then the manure-seed mixture hand scattered where you want the plants to grow. The manure keeps the seeds separated so you don't scatter them too thick in some spots, and too thin in other areas. In other words you avoid spotty planting. After seed sowing, rake over lightly, moisten down without puddling. Keep seed area moist. When seedlings develop, scatter snail or slug bait to protect the young plants. When couple of true leaves appear you may dig out the ones that are too close together and replant in the thin spots.

If you like blue bachelor's-buttons, sow them too!

Easily grown and good for bouquets and arrangements, Pink Julep is a new version of bachelor's-button.

"The World of Roses" will be the theme of a rose show Saturday and Sunday in John Anson Ford Regional County Park, 7840 Park Lane (formerly Scout Ave.), Bell Gardens. Show hours will be 2 to 8 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday and the public is invited free of charge.

Photos From Aircraft

To take successful photographs from aircraft aloft, the International Air Transport Association recommends:

1) Shoot at 1/100th of a second or faster, for movies use 24 to 32fps.

2) Don't rest arms or camera against any part of the cabin.

3) Shoot from the window farthest from the sun if possible and guard against reflections.

4) A haze filter probably will be useful.

Find That Bag

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

AN ELECTRONIC baggage tracing system will be inaugurated May 1 by domestic airlines.

To be known as ARCH (Airline Baggage Recovering Clearing House), the system is designed to speed the recovery of misdirected bags which cannot be located by the routine tracing efforts of the airline within 24 hours after the loss is reported.

"Each year," according to Jack M. Slichter, Air Transport Association vice president-traffic, "U. S. airlines handle some 100 million pieces of luggage and, inevitably, a few of these articles are misdirected. At present, about 90 per cent of all misdirected bags are located within 24 hours. The new system is designed to expedite the locating of the remaining 10 per cent, the ones that cause the greatest inconvenience to passengers.

"The new electronic tracing system is designed to find these articles faster and thus minimize passenger inconvenience. ARCH will cut three days or more from the time now required to trace a piece of luggage."

The new system will take advantage of the latest electronic sorting and communications equipment and will be operated for the airlines by Aeronautical Radio, Inc. Since substantially all of the major airlines will be tied into a nationwide teletype hookup, ARCH will allow for rapid exchange of information about lost luggage even when more than one airline is involved in a passenger's trip.

The operation is basically a matching-up process using punch cards and electric sorters. Each airline will transmit daily a list of bags on hand to the clearing house. Each airline will also transmit a list of missing bags. The use of a coding system will allow for an accurate description of the color, type, and even the contents of each bag. The two lists will be matched, the appropriate offices notified by teletype and the bag expedited to its owner.

THIS IS A FINE TIME to go motoring on weekends. Recent rains have given the Southland countryside new color. On top of that, there are many events and things well worth seeing within easy driving distance of Long Beach. For example:

If you like orchids, three events are upcoming: the giant display of cymbidiums which draws crowds from everywhere to Stewart's Nursery (8606 E. Las Tunas Dr., San Gabriel)—April 17 (10 a.m. to 9 p.m.), April 18 (10 a.m. to 6 p.m.), and April 19 (11 a.m.-5 p.m.). San Diego Orchid Show, Balboa Park, April 3-5; and the International Cymbidium Orchid Show, Santa Barbara's Earl Warren Park, April 23-26.

The Ramona Outdoor Play opens its 37th season next Saturday in Hemet, continues April 19, April 25-26, and May 2-3.

Hi Vista, located near wildflower sanctuaries 20 miles east of Lancaster, holds its 32nd annual Spring Wildflower Festival April 25-26, with more than 150 varieties on display.

ONE OF HAWAII'S most brilliant annual spectacles is Kamehameha Day on June 11.

The big event of the celebration is, of course, an hour-long parade in the morning from the Waikiki Beach area to the civic center in downtown Honolulu. Stately Polynesian women will be attired in their finest black holokus, black hats and treasured heirloom jewelry or candlenut leis. Male members of the Order of Kamehameha will wear red and yellow felt capes. Floats—and even the horses—will be decorated with the most brilliant flowers grown on the Islands.

Things actually begin to swing the night before with the Holoku Ball at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

All though the celebration is the time to eat Hawaiian food. There will be poi luncheons or luaus around town—with hulas accompanying the feasting.

ALL ANCHORAGE HOTELS are in operation despite the recent quake, according to Robert Giersdorf, vice president of Alaska Airlines, Inc., who has just returned from an inspection of tourist facilities in the stricken area. Giersdorf said the well-known Westward Inn and Travelers' Inn facilities suffered no damage to their structures and that the 420-room Anchorage Westward Hotel has reopened a portion of the building with restoration of lights and heating, and that the entire hotel will be in operation soon. A new Travelodge Hotel near downtown Anchorage will open on schedule this week.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"Could you suggest some place unusual and interesting for two ladies (alone) to dine in London?"

IN THE VERY respectable Gore Hotel there is the Elizabethan Room, done in the style of the days of Sir Walter Raleigh. Rushes on the floor. A lute player in the long green stockings. Serving wenches with dresses cut down to way down yonder.

Along with this goes food like peacock, salmagundi, Good King William (which turns out to be spinach). Mead and mulled wine and clay pipes for all. I can't bear the food. But it certainly has atmosphere.

If you want to go down by way of Ireland, you can do something of the same in the historic halls of Bunratty Castle. (The O'Briens had their enemies pulled apart by wild horses in the courtyard.) This has even more color. Your airline has to route you through Shannon if you ask. And the total cost of dinner and night's lodging is only $15.

"Can you tell me where good road maps of Europe can be obtained? The free variety would be the nicest if that's possible."

ONCE IN A WHILE I've run into free ESSO maps in those stations. But Europeans don't throw around free maps the way our people do. Also you don't find the super service stations—your gas often comes from a pump on the main street in front of a small garage.

The American Automobile Association has excellent free maps for members. And they have offices in the major cities. The Michelin tire people make fine maps. For sale (not expensive) in all European book stores.

"We will be spending 10 days in Jamaica in April. How would you advise it spent—at one hotel, or break it up at Montego Bay and Ochos Rios and Kingston?"

WITH ONLY 10 days, I'd say one place. If you have a car, Ochos Rios—the former Arawak Hotel that has been taken over by Hilton management. If not, Montego Bay. I didn't think Kingston was too interesting. You get the same duty-free shopping at Montego Bay. And the beaches are better.

"Can you suggest a shop where I can buy a watch in Copenhagen? We will only be in Switzerland on a weekend."

THE AIRPORT at Copenhagen has a duty-free shop with a fair selection of Swiss watches. But you'll find Swiss watches at the Swiss airports, too. I think they'll be open on weekends.

"Where can I buy an electrical converter for European current and outlets?"

There is no standard converter for all things. You can buy electric razors and irons that convert by flipping a switch on them. You can also buy converter plugs — the two-prong type that fit continental outlets. But I've never found the three-prong British kind.

I think these things are a nuisance. I steam my clothes out in hotel bathrooms. Or send them out for pressing if I have to. And I carry a Gillette razor and British Wilkinson blades.

"My husband and I have been doing a study (for a master's degree) on witchcraft and wonder if there is some place we could go to see actual practice . . ."

THE MEXICANS say the town of Dolores de Hildago (near Guanajuato) is bruja country. Also in the back country around Vera Cruz —where they are called hechizeros. I tried to find some witches myself. But all I got was a lady fortune teller with cards. (She said I would be rich and to beware of water.)

In England, I saw a story on a society of witches. The British Tourist Association in New York City ought to be able to dig this up. In fact, I

SANTA BARBARA WEEKEND

Orchids on Parade

ORCHIDS those regal, exotic blossoms bearing the most subtle of hues and hinting origins in far-away tropical lands, will fill the exhibit hall of Santa Barbara's Earl Warren Showgrounds with magic April 23 through 26.

These are the dates for the giant 19th annual Santa Barbara International Orchid Show and should fit into many weekend gadders' plans.

Every year lovers of flowers in general and orchids in particular will flock from all parts of Southern and Central California to the showgrounds at Hwy. 101 and Las Positas Rd. to view these rare and enchanting displays of many species of orchids.

Santa Barbara area, particularly nearby Goleta Valley, to the west, has become a major area for growing orchids. Other growers are in Montecito and Carpinteria Valley east of Santa Barbara.

THE LARGEST orchid farm in the world is located at Rancho Dos Pueblos, at Ellwood, some 17 miles west of Santa Barbara, it is pointed out. Oil magnate Samuel B. Mosher started a 4,500-acre flower farm at Dos Pueblos in 1946. He hired experts who produced exquisite new species, and set up a completely equipped modern scientific laboratory for the culture and breeding of orchids.

Thirteen years ago, Dos Pueblos orchid farm manager Kermit Hernlund turned all his green-thumbed talents to the raising and development of cymbidium orchids. Larger, higher quality blooms resulted from the years-long effort.

Now Dos Pueblos — which attracts thousands of tourists who wish to see acres of blooms each spring — turns out the smaller, delicately hued cymbidiums by the thousands and joins with other Santa Barbara growers in operating the Santa Barbara Orchid Exchange. The exchange daily takes orders from flower markets throughout the country and ships out the blooms in water-filled, cushined tubes.

The show will have its premiere April 23 at 7 p.m. Other show hours are April 24 and 25, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. The show closes on Sunday, April 26, when show hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

SONNY HENSON
No Strings Attached

THEY'RE NOT pea pickers. They're pea pluckers. And there's a world of difference between the two.

Pea pluckers are friendly guests and employes who like to gather in the kitchen at the tropical Leilani Restaurant, 5236 E. Second St., and help chef Ray Lee pluck the strings from the delicate Chinese snow peas which are a feature of the restaurant's Cantonese cuisine. Each day Lee removes the strings from hundreds of these tiny tender peas, imported from Mexico. The monotonous work is made lighter by the assistance of Lee's friends who enjoy chatting with him while they destring.

One of the chief assistant pea pluckers is Sonny Henson, man Friday to owner Don May. Sonny, a pleasant, warmhearted man, has been at the Leilani for 24 years, performing as waiter, maitre d' on occasion and doing numerous other chores. Children whom Sonny waited on many years ago have grown up, married and now bring their own children in to meet him and enjoy his smiling personality.

Those wonderful little green peas are just one of the features of the Leilani's famous Celestial Dinner ($7.50 for two persons), an amazing, lavish spread of exotic Cantonese dishes. They're also included with the teriyaki steak ($3.50), a superbly marinated beef masterpiece served with soup, salad, rice, tea or coffee. Other marvelous treats are the a la carte lobster Cantonese ($2.75) and chicken almond ($1.90). Many couples order a plate of each and share them. Also outstanding are the big American dinners, priced from $1.95, for the fine northern halibut, to $3.95 for the choice Kansas City sirloin and $4.25 for the New York cut steak. All include soup, salad, beverage, dessert.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

The Rand
Quicker Than Eye

(See Page 9)

'The Lieutenant' and His Company

GARY LOCKWOOD, title star of NBC-TV's "The Lieutenant," gets a personal inspection from Barbara Lyon. He passed with flying colors. Situation well in hand.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

THE MUD ON HIS khaki uniform looked sticky and the spot of makeup blood on his forehead bandage appeared fresh.

Gary Lockwood had come straight from the jungles of Viet Nam—the TV version of them—into the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer commissary.

As he sat down at the immaculate table, you expected the Marine would haul a can of C-rations from his pocket and hack it open with a penknife.

Instead, the title hero of "The Lieutenant" carefully spread his napkin over his lap, then ordered a cottage-cheese salad with a ground-round patty, medium-rare.

Lockwood, himself, is a medium-rare sort of guy.

He brings with him an intensity of craft, a brooding spark of creativity, a turbulence that, like a dam, is capped but ready to explode if the wall crumbles.

He has magnetism and that intangible, undefinable something—perhaps it's caring intensely—that is the mark of greatness in an actor.

IT IS A MARK of greatness that won't be back for a second season in the form of "The Lieutenant."

The series has not been renewed for the fall season.

That fact doesn't make a great deal of difference to bachelor Lockwood.

"Anyone of 100 actors could have done what I'm doing," he said. "The series, for me, involved limited demands, not very pressing problems.

"Oh, there were, on a few occasions, a couple of stories that were good. And people said, 'Gee, maybe that guy can act.' "

That's what he wants to do—act.

He hopes, with the wind-up of the series, to take only those parts that will help his image "as an actor with my particular personality."

His particular personality, as he sees it, is that of a fairly rugged young man, "long, lithe and confused."

THE PARTICULAR personality of the former football player and stunt man includes a financial astuteness.

"I'm financially capable now," he said. "I don't have to take roles I don't want just to be able to exist."

It's a financial capability that includes:

A major interest in an Imperial Valley produce brokerage.

An interest in an investment corporation.

A quarter ownership of a large ranch.

An interest, as promotion manager, for a new operation, "Tele-Cake"—wire her a cake on her birthday.

"In other words," he said, "I no longer have to take supporting roles to Elvis Presley and stand around admiringly while he beats up beach bums."

HE'S NOT A "STAND-AROUND" person, even while waiting for the role he wants.

There's a movie script he's written that he can spend some time polishing up.

There's his 30-foot cabin-cruiser and fishing. There's his painting and his sports car.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Gary Ready, but Waiting

"I've got a bougainvillea in my garden," he said. "One of my projects of the year is to make it grow."

One of Lockwood's perpetual projects is to make himself grow.

"An actor learns until he dies," he said. "It's not just feeling emotion—acting can be technical.

"You feel happy, like Rod Steiger said, when you think you're important enough to argue about a scene. That's right.

"But it still is the play that is the thing.

"You may create on the set, but it is the story that is all-important."

* * * *

LOCKWOOD'S NOT ABOUT to break out the crying towels for the demise of "The Lieutenant."

It's another "near miss" of which television has so many.

In his opinion, television is financially ruled. There's no way to blast a show off the air if it's No. 1 rated.

He's not particularly arguing with the system. That's the way it is and so be it.

But his own system now is to wait for the role he wants.

"It will come," he said. "I've always felt it, but I just don't know where or when."

When it does come and establishes his personality, his business—show business—will recognize him. There will be more of his kind of roles.

It's more than a matter of self-confidence. It's financial astuteness.

"Look at it this way," he said. "The more success my business gets out of me, the more I get out of it."

In the meantime, while Lockwood is waiting for his role, wire her a cake for her birthday.

So he can eat bread.

"I TRIED THIS--THE DISHES ARE O.K.--BUT THEY DIDN'T HAVE ROOM LEFT TO PUT ANY SOAP IN THE BOX!"

SPECIAL

1964—The fourth and final chapter in the distinguished "Saga of Western Man," which fell under the combined talents of the Clampetts and Marineland's sea "critters" on its first run, is repeated in color at 12 noon, ch. 7. Program begins with the voice of JFK, and contrasts affluence and poverty, productivity and obsolescence, eager youth and useless aged, power that can save or destroy.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE—Fourth and last of the full-hour specials, at 6 p.m., in color, ch. 4, is a repeat of the dramatization of "Robin Hood," written and staged especially for young viewers in primary grades of grammar school. Dan Ferrone plays the title role in a version whose format gives youthful viewers opportunity to participate.

ED SULLIVAN—The one-show United Nations this time devotes its entire hour to the world-famed Moscow State Circus, taped last fall during its visit as part of a U.S.-USSR cultural exchange. The American touring version (the London company, totally different, appeared last fall) features renowned clown Oleg Popov throughout the program at 8 p.m., ch. 2. Also featured are performing bears, high-wire walkers, Cossack riders, gymnasts, dogs, acrobatic strongmen and teeterboard acrobats.

THE ESTABLISHMENT—A repeat of last Monday's satirical revue is offered at 9 p.m., ch 11. Written by Peter Cook, hour features Peter Bellwood, Francis Bethencourt, Alexandra Berlin, Roddy Maude-Roxby, Carole Simpson and the Marian McPartland Trio.

CARNY—Sally Rand, who has been fan-dancing ever since she won acclaim at the 1933 Chicago World's Fair, is hostess and narrator for an hour-long look at the flavor, color and excitement that keeps 550 different carnivals in business around the country, playing to more people than professional baseball, basketball and football combined. Chet Hagan is writer-producer-director for the 10 p.m., ch. 4, color special, covering the midway exhibitions, the concessions and the amusement rides—showing the carnies on the lot, on the road and off season, at home.

Pan and Fan Mail

Last Sunday, you had a story about Donald O'Connor and the Long Beach earthquake.

You said his mother took him to lunch when the earthquake hit.

His mother must have been an odd character taking her little boy to lunch at 6 p.m. because that's about the time the quake hit.

Mrs. G. Breeste,
Bellflower

I know some people in show business who eat breakfast at 6 p. m. However, in fairness to Donald's mother, I checked my notes and found that she had taken him to dinner, not lunch. It's my goof, not her's.

* * * *

I was shocked and outraged by what was billed satirical entertainment, "The Establishment," on channel 11 last Monday.

Satire is, by definition, "used to expose or discredit vice or folly."

Considerable time, blatantly and by innuendos, was given to "exposing and discrediting" religion. Not one particular religion, but an impartial treatment of all religions.

For whom, then, was this hour-long program of derisive songs and lewd antics geared? For athesists? Agnostics?

No, they, too, must have felt their sensibilities assaulted.

Americans have been accused of losing their ability to become angry. Viewers will have an opportunity to check themselves on this score. This same show of British talent will be re-broadcast on the next Lord's Day, Sunday, April 12 (9 p.m. today, channel 11).

Mrs. Loretta Anderson,
Long Beach

You make your point, Mrs. Anderson. But I wonder if, like banning books in Boston, we're actually promoting increased viewing of this program.

Is it possible for you to find out the address for the "Let's Make a Deal" show?

S. Charlesworth, Long Beach

It's possible and it's a deal. The address is "Let's Make a Deal," care of NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda, Burbank, Calif. Sorry, I've forgotten the zip number.

BASEBALL, 10:30 a.m., ch. 5, with Don Wells and Buddy Blattner in Washington for the season opener between the Angels and the Senators. Traditionally, Pres. Johnson will toss out the first ball, with Ken McBride slated to take the mound for the Angels. (Telecast will be repeated at 11:15 p.m.)

SPECIAL

OSCAR AWARDS — "Oscar," a 36-year-old, 7-lb., 13½-in. figure, worth about $60 with his tin and copper composition brilliantly gold-plated, takes the spotlight at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium at 7 p.m., ch. 7, as 26 or more celebrities thank all those who made possible their taking him home. Oscar-winner (1955) Jack Lemmon, who proved his ad-lib talent in handling tongue-twisting Italian names as a 1962 presenter, will emcee, possibly brushing up on British names this year. James Darren, Harve Presnell, Katyna Ranieri, Debbie Reynolds and Andy Williams sing the 5 nominated songs, with Sammy Davis Jr. in a specialty number. Rock Hudson plays host in the lobby, and the top acting awards are presented by last year's winners, Gregory Peck, Anne Bancroft, Ed Begley and Patty Duke. Other presenters include Julie Andrews, Anne Baxter, Rita Hayworth, Hudson, Shirley Jones, Shirley MacLaine, Sidney Poitier, Donna Reed, Edw. G. Robinson, Frank Sinatra and Fred MacMurray.

Fan Dancer Hosts Special on Carnivals

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Sally Rand is coming to television, but she's not bringing her famous fans with her.

Sally did more for plumes during the 30s and 40 than a barnful of peacocks and, surprisingly, is still fluttering her exotic feather in a night club act. Surprising because Sally will soon be 60 years old.

NBC-TV has signed the blonde fan dancer to play hostess for a special hour-long show on barnstorming carnivals at 10 p.m. today, channel 4, in color.

* * * *

THOUGH she won't throw a competitive scare into Tuesday Weld, Sally was a hit recently at the Colony Club in nearby Gardena where she performed her fan dance four times nightly to a packed house.

Her act has changed very little from the days when she was arrested for wearing nothing but the fans.

Asked if she still dances in the nude, Miss Rand demurely replied, "You'll have to see the act. The Rand is still quicker than the eye."

Sally lives in Glendora with her mother, a brother, and her 15-year-old son, Sean. She is unmarried now, although she was at one time Mrs. Turk Greenough, Mrs. Harry Finklestein and Mrs. Fred Lall. Her real name is Helen Gould Beck.

* * * *

"NOTHING changes," she said. "Least of all my act. It has always been choreographed to Chopin and Debussy. And I still use ostrich feathers."

Sally and her fans gained fame at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933 and added lustre at the San Francisco Exposition in 1938-39.

Sally continues to import her fans from Africa. She says they cost $500 a pair, three times as much as she spent for them in the old days. Due to her exertions on stage, they wear out after only 100 performances.

"All my imitators have faded away," Sally said happily.

"Most girls are not equipped to handle fans because they don't have the chest and arm muscle development. The fans weigh seven pounds each,

"Well, when you think of all the air pressure against them when you're waving them in the breeze, you can really feel their weight."

Sally says she has always been confused with strip teasers, a notion she abhors. "They make a mockery of sex," she explained. "My dancing is nothing like that at all."

Televiewers will never have a chance to find out. When the "Carny" special hits the air, Sally will be fully dressed and the only fans in the studio will be the electric variety.

THE NAME is Sally Rand, poetically attuned to fan, an occupational trademark for much of her 60 years. The plumes won't bloom, however, when Sally (right) dresses up for her hostess duties at 10 p. m. today (Sunday) for a carnival special in COLOR on channel 4.

A Small Man with a Giant-Size Sense of Decency

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)— Ernie Stern once wired the boss of a hotel chain: "Call me collect at your hotel." When the executive called, Ernie told him there were two dirty blankets on his bed and it was a heck of a way to run a place.

Another time, Ernie bought a new car and when one of the doors squeaked, he pointed it out to the dealer. The dealer just laughed. Ernie immediately wired the president of the company in Detroit. The next day the dealer was in Ernie's office, hat in hand, making amends.

The chances are you never heard of Ernie, for anonymity usually accompanies those in his line of work. Ernie was the publicity chief here for CBS-TV. When he died of a heart attack last week at the age of 48 there was an overflow turnout at the chapel where services for him were held.

* * * *

THERE WERE good reasons for that turnout. I think you might be interested in some of them and in Ernie. He was a small man physically, slight of build, quiet by nature, intelligent and tasteful, with a giant-sized sense of competence and decency. But above all he had a sense of indignation against "The System" and wrongs that were docilely accepted, and when this feeling was aroused he revealed a personal flamboyance far more legitimate than that of most of the performers he had to promote.

Once, at CBS-TV's main office and studio building here, a top star didn't like a picture of himself that was displayed on one of the hallway walls. He tore it down. Ernie heard about it, marched down to the studio where the star was visiting a friend and ordered him out of the building.

* * * *

ERNIE ALSO had a sense of conscience toward television that many producers would do well to emulate. He was personally proud of such shows as "The Defenders" and "CBS Reports," and he would tell you which ones he wasn't proud of too. We watched Princess Grace's CBS tour of Monaco together and shook our heads simultaneously. If he didn't agree with you, he would tell you that too, loud and clear, newspaper outlet or not.

As an editor, he once noticed that the pictures being sent out by a major film studio were of bad quality. He sent this wire to the studio head: "I'm tired of getting complaints about you—take better pictures."

* * * *

ERNIE came out of long duty in World War II as a tech sergeant, and, as in his attitude toward television, he was conscientious as a citizen too. As a Boy Scout leader, he resigned with a letter to the head office complaining about how things were being run. The Scouts sent a representative from New York to Los Angeles to take him to lunch and work things out.

He hated meetings though he worked in a business that may be described as a series of meetings occasionally interrupted by creativity. A sign on his wall said: "No creative idea ever came from a meeting—creating ideas is a lonely thing."

Ernie was a good man.

Video Specials with 'King'

ABC is now talking with Nat "King" Cole about doing a series of specials next season. There are other possibilities for more exposure for the great pop singer. Nat is happy about this, but he wants them to understand one thing:

"I want to be hired to do a show not because I am a Negro but because there is an audience which wants to see me. If I don't cut it, if the ratings are low—drop me.

"The networks are in television to make money. It's a business. I don't expect them to put me on to please their consciences, but to please their business senses."

THIS voice of reason is raised by an intelligent man who knows what discrimination is, but has learned to live with it, if not to accept it.

"The civil rights fight," he says, "hasn't done much for me, professionally. But it's done a lot emotionally. Sometimes too much.

"And times I get angry at people on both sides. I think some people on both sides are using this to exploit things.

BOB THORNDIKE
Owner, Meat Dept.
Cherry Ave. Food & Liquor Mart

Folks, here's the inaugural number in a series of informal chats with you. We're using it to tell you about what we feel is the friendliest food shopping place in the Long Beach area . ... we believe those of you who have already discovered it and shop here in our modern, cheery store will agree.

We hope to combine a bit of humor now and then with some helpful suggestions on how to enjoy better meals at lower cost (by shopping here, natch!) For one thing, you can shop and save here MORE days than just about anywhere else. Cherry Food & Liquor Mart is one of the few complete one-stop food markets open 365 days a year, from 8 a.m. till 10 p.m. EVERY DAY.

In our spic 'n' span meat department, where the hours are 9 a.m. till 7 p.m. (9:30 to 5 Sundays), we're probably most well-known for our home-made pork sausage. It's the real old-fashioned "country style" sausage, with just the right amount of the right spices added to pure fresh lean corn-fed pork for the finest breakfast treat your mouth ever watered over. And don't forget our sandwich shop in our parking lot, for a delicious inexpensive snack or meal anytime. We'll be talking to you again soon!

Hair Expert Speaks

"I find that the chief cause of BALDNESS today is simply neglect! Failure on the part of a balding person to see a specialist before it is too late!"

So says S. I. Turoff, California's leading hair expert. This specialist has administered over one million treatments in 10 busy Turoff clinics throughout California. For many years, hair-worried Californians have brought their problems to him to solve. The satisfaction of thousands of clients reflects in the tremendous growth of the Turoff organization.

And Turoff further states, "It is surprising the number of old-fashioned ideas people still cling to, regarding their hair. For instance, many believe that baldness is inherited. If this were true, why should a person have hair for — say 30 years — before he started to lose it? We may inherit a tendency to baldness, not baldness itself. Some people believe it is 'natural' to get bald with age. This, too, is wrong. Science has proven that hair grows fastest between 35 and 60 years of age. However, the most foolish belief of all regarding baldness is that nothing can be done. Turoff records with thousands of clients prove that we can help 95 per cent of those we examine. Hair can be thickened where the roots are still alive. If a person is slick bald, we do not accept him for treatment."

What to Expect

Turoff continued, "If you are accepted for Turoff treatment, the causes of your unhealthy scalp will be removed, we will save and thicken your hair. The free examination will reveal just how much thicker you can expect it to be. Your hair will improve wonderfully and you will see it do so quickly. Furthermore, we will teach you to maintain a head of hair permanently! The cost for treatment is very reasonable. Remember, we cater to working people—Mr. and Mrs. Average Person. It's easy to make the time for treatment, our hours are: 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., daily and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays. Thursdays 4 to 8 p.m. No appointment needed—[illegible] in anytime. Don't wait! Baldness can get to be hopeless.

Q. The famous line by the late President Kennedy: "Ask not what your country can do for you but what you can do for your country"—wasn't that line written by speechwriter Ted Sorensen?—David Small, Baltimore, Md.

A. No, it was written by Kennedy and first used by him in a campaign speech in Juneau, Alaska. Sorensen liked the line so much that he suggested the President include it in his inaugural address, and Kennedy did.

Q. I understand that when German magazines now run cover pictures of Adolf Hitler they purposely blur the portraits. Is this so, and if so, why?—Willa Wagner, Hanover, N.H.

A. It is so. The objective is to make the cover shots unprintable for framing, so that portraits of Adolf Hitler are no longer hung throughout Germany.

Q. Does Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, play any musical instrument?—N. Knox, Chicago, Ill.

A. Charles plays the trumpet.

Q. Do the Beatles wear wigs?—Enid Brinkman, El Paso, Tex.

Q. Was the Liston-Clay fight a fix? How come Liston's company made a re-match deal with Cassius one day before Cassius took the title? — Elley Rich, Las Vegas, Nev.

A. Liston owns 22 per cent of a company called Intercontinental Promotions, Inc. One day before the Liston-Clay fight, Intercontinental signed a deal with Clay (above) giving Intercontinental the right to promote Clay's first defense of the title for $50,000. Jack Nilon, Liston's manager, is also a large shareholder of Intercontinental. Bill Cherry, the company's lawyer, says: "We took a gamble. There was nothing illegal about it. We were just being smart businessmen. We made the agreement, which gives us a 365-day option, until February 25, 1965, just in case Clay should become champion—which he did." Liston has two of five votes on the board of directors at Intercontinental. The three other are controlled by Bob Nilon, Jack Nilon and Cherry himself.

THREE YEARS AFTER THE BAY OF PIGS, OF A KEY EVENT IN THAT DISASTER: THE

This week will mark the anniversary of the ill-fated disaster at the Bay of Pigs. It is exactly three years since Fidel Castro's regime threw back an exile-manned, U.S.-supported attempt to invade Cuba.

The story of that debacle has been repeatedly discussed since. It has been the subject of Congressional and executive investigations and of partisan political recrimination.

Yet one of the most important details of that Cuban defeat has not previously been revealed. It is an event that may have been the whole key to the Bay of Pigs tragedy; and its occurrence—or failure to occur—had a profound effect on the invasion itself and on subsequent history. And although it has not publicly been acknowledged, long and painstaking investigation by this reporter has documented this event.

Carried out on the highest levels of Cuba's revolutionary government, it was an attempt to assassinate Fidel Castro. And it came within a cat's whisker of success.

This plot, of course, was not the first against Castro's life, nor has it been the last. One of the records of which the bearded revolutionary leader is least proud is the number of times he has been the target of nearly successful assassination attempts.

Before detailing that most important plot, let's look at a few others. The most recent try came just before the celebrations in Havana last January commemorating the victory over Batista. U.S. security boats intercepted two speedboats crammed with anti-Castro conspirators and hundreds of petacas, plastic bombs to blast Castro from his reviewing stand.

Plotter of Castro assassination attempt, Sori Marin (In glasses and uniform) stands next to leader at parade.

The U.S. government, worried about the Caribbean aftermath of a successful assassination, is not happy about such attempts. But American nervousness has not been able to do too much about it. Some of the attempts have come so close to success that Castro has been left with the apprehensive wariness of a lone fox in a hunting preserve.

An early try at an ambush was engineered by the sinister Col. Johnny Abbes, formerly intelligence chief of the Dominican Republic. Abbes, working on orders of Dominican strongman Rafael Trujillo—himself the victim of assassination—hired a swashbuckling American adventurer, Alex Rorke, son-in-law of New York's famed restaurateur, Sherman Billingsley, to pilot a speedboat that landed eight men before dawn in eastern Cuba. The plan was to ambush Castro on his way to speak at a service at the Santiago cemetery.

Through a pouring rain, Trujillo's Tommy gun team spotted Castro's chief bodyguard, Capt. Alfredo Gamonal, in the second jeep of a caravan.

The killers assumed Castro was in the back seat, and their bullets chewed up Gamonal, the superintendent of cemeteries and the jeep driver. Castro, riding in the next-to-the-last jeep, was unhurt.

"He may have nine lives," Abbes told Rorke, who returned to Ciudad Trujillo complaining of Castro's charmed life. "But if so, I'll try a tenth time."

Abbes acquired an apartment in Havana overlooking the CMQ television studios, where Castro appeared frequently to deliver his nation-wide harangues. Another American adventurer, a one-time top competition sharpshooter, was retained by Trujillo on a down payment of $25,000 and the promise of a cool million if he managed to score a clean hit on his moving target.

The marksman said he could do it, but demanded a special weapon—a bench-adjusted telescopic carbine with a nondeflecting muzzle silencer.

SAVED BY TRUJILLO

"Dominican ordnance experts immediately went to work to produce the rifle," former Dominican State Security Minister General Arturo Espaillat recalls. "The weapon was completed and en route to Cuba, when Trujillo canceled the project . . . He was afraid of Washington's fury. I really think that Fidel would be dead today if the plot had not been called off."

Prior to that attempt, another American, Alan Robert Nye, a 31-year-old Chicagoan, was convicted in Havana for conspiring to kill Castro. Fee: $100,000. Although a Cuban court had signed, sealed and delivered the order for his execution, Nye was allowed to leave the country for the U.S.

There have been far too many of these attempts to detail here; although men like Alex Rorke, and Paul Hughes, a former American Navy jet pilot, have lost their lives because of them, Castro cannot rest easy.

Before embarking on an airplane trip, he usually inspects the plane from tip to tail. During the warm-up, he once spotted flames belching from the engine exhaust. Castro ordered the ignition cut and both pilots back into the cabin, where they explained for a half-hour that burning exhaust was normal and that it did not prove the plane booby-trapped.

During his visit to New York to attend the United Nations in 1960, Castro's food problems were magnified by his methods of selecting restaurants. A brace of bodyguards was ordered to go out and buy food from a restaurant—but never from the hotel kitchen or from the restaurant nearest the hotel. On each occasion, Castro would call out a number to his two messengers — say, "Three!" or "Five!" which meant they had to count off three or five restaurants before they could enter the next one, thus having presumably eluded the potential poisoners.

His security chief also carried sensitive white mice—"to detect assassination attempts by radiation or nerve gas," chief bodyguard Gamonal explained.

Conspirator Alan Robert Nye of Chicago was found guilty of trying to kill Fidel Castro, then allowed his freedom.

But the only security measure Castro really has faith in is the one he learned in his two years of guerrilla warfare: never let anyone know where you'll show up next. In the Sierra Maestra, when Castro and his little band were making their revolution against Batista, no one but Fidel knew exactly where the day's march route would end.

The habit persists. When he made his first visit to Moscow, he left Havana and returned to it as secretly as an enemy infiltrator. No one in Cuba knew when to expect the Premier home. When his Russian airliner finally landed, there was nobody to welcome him except some startled airplane mechanics. Grinning, Castro borrowed a coin, dropped it into the nearest pay phone to let Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos know he was back.

But it was the assassination attempt just before the Bay of Pigs that was the most significant of all. It involved several senior commanders of the Cuban Revolutionary Armed Forces as well as key civilian leaders.

The Central Intelligence Agency, which had received absolutely reliable reports that a conspiracy to assassinate Castro was developing among his top lieutenants, decided to contact the plotters, because the U.S. was already training its own anti-Castro

HERE IS THE FIRST FULLY DOCUMENTED STORY

ATTEMPT TO ASSASSINATE CASTRO

by ANDREW ST. GEORGE

force in Guatemala. CIA agents discovered the conspiracy had a wealthy contact man in Miami, a former sugar cane grower, Alberto Fernandez.

With CIA's tacit approval, Fernandez bought a converted subchaser, the Texana III, and had it outfitted with concealed deck armaments, 50-cal. machine guns, two 57-mm. recoilless rifles and a pair of small speedboats with muffled interceptor engines.

OPERATIONS BEGIN

Now began one of the most daring and extraordinary secret intelligence operations ever attempted. Shuttling in the dark of night between Marathon Key and the north coast of Cuba, the Texana III was the link between the Cuban conspirators and the U.S.

Its two deck boats skimmed up to shore less than a dozen miles from Havana to pick up their unusual passengers: Cuban rebel comandantes in full uniform and government functionaries carrying brief cases.

Before the sun came up, the travelers were in U.S. waters, where they held quick conferences with American agents, sped back to Cuba the next night.

The tricky and hazardous process went on for a couple of months, and the U.S. learned more and more about the murder conspiracy headed by cool, brainy Comandante Humberto Sori Marin, a hero of the Castro revolution. Other top-level men involved astounded the Americans: Secret Police Chief Aldo Vera; Comandante Julio Rodriguez, deputy commandant of the San Antonio de los Banos air base; several Navy flag officers; the military superintendent of Camagüey Province; the president of the Cuban Sugar Institute; and the undersecretary of finance. They were determined to act early in 1961. The plot was to kill both Castros and touch off a general uprising.

Convinced that, regardless of what the U.S. did, the conspirators meant business, the CIA decided to capitalize on the plot without actually participating in it. Officials readied the landing forces to go ashore at the same time. Agents began a series of secret meetings in Havana with the conspirators to coordinate their plans.

Dominican plotter Col. Johnny Abbes arranged at least two nearly successful attempts to assassinate Castro.

Then, just before the target date, there occurred one of those impossible mistakes nobody ever believes. A crucially important secret conference was being held with most of the top conspirators. They met in a house of known safety in Havana's Miramar suburb on a tranquil street, Calle Onze. It was a large, yellow, somnolent building, lived in and owned by a respectable retired sugar engineer and his wife.

In the front patio, the engineer played gin rummy with his wife and led by many points. In the back of the house, the plotters gathered around a heavy refectory table covered with street maps, pinpointing the massive incendiary attack against the crowded downtown district of "Old Havana," which was to touch off the uprising. The Texana III had already shipped in hundreds of petacas.

Several blocks away, a militia security patrol stopped in front of another house, then entered to search it. A nervous woman in a back room fled from a rear door with her small daughter. She ran beneath garden walls and ducked into the rear entrance of the large yellow house of the engineer, an old friend.

The street was deserted. But one militiaman watched as she ran to the yellow house. So, under the blazing sky of a spring afternoon, in Miramar, the security unit walked down the street to that yellow house, that sleepy, yellow house. . . .

The pity of it was that the nervous woman who ran did not have to. The security police were on a routine search. She was suspected of nothing; if she had remained, nothing would have gone wrong.

The 11 key figures of the Sori Marin conspiracy were caught in a single sweep. The four men who had been sent in by the CIA might have gotten away; they were all Cubans and carried such perfectly forged papers that two were subsequently shot under their assumed names.

But Sori Marin had no chance whatever. As the milicianos burst into the room, his pistol leaped into his hand. But the security men's snub-nosed Czech Tommy guns chattered and Sori Marin crumpled as he tried to crash through a window.

And it was all a mistake. The militia walked in by mistake. The woman ran away by mistake.

TOO LATE TO STOP INVASION

Washington, working with fragmented information, decided it was too late to halt the invasion troops staging for departure in Guatemala. There was no way to know just how badly the conspiracy had been crippled; there was a possibility that many of its members had not been identified and would thus be able to carry out the plans.

It was a forlorn hope. April 17, at dawn, the first of the invasion troops splashed through the surf onto Giron Beach. April 17, at dawn, the seven top conspirators, led by Sori Marin, wounded, and supported by his guards, but still wearing his uniform, were executed in Havana. Within the next few hours they were followed to the wall by the captured CIA men. The rest, the slaughter at the Bay of Pigs, is history.

Cluster of bodyguards surround assassination-conscious Castro (back to camera) at a recent parade in Havana.

U.S. security and intelligence agencies are now more worried about the possibility of a successful assassination. For Washington—which once gave tacit support to Sori Marin—now feels that a real explosion involving Castro could trigger the most unpredictable chain reaction of the coming year, a chain reaction that conceivably could turn into World War III.

The current approach was pointed up in a quiet sort of way the day Allen Dulles—whose own job as head of the CIA ended a short time after that ill-starred invasion—appeared in public for the first time to talk about it on Meet the Press.

"Mr. Dulles," the moderator asked, "in launching the Bay of Pigs invasion, you were obviously expecting a popular uprising to support it. Yet none occurred. How could you have been so wrong?"

"A popular uprising?" Mr. Dulles puffed on his pipe. "That's a popular misconception—but no, I wouldn't say we expected a popular uprising. We were expecting something else to happen in Cuba . . . something that didn't materialize."

As this is written, U.S. intelligence is still expecting it to happen, but the expectation has now turned to a nervous and gnawing worry.

■ While Castro was making his revolution, Andrew St. George spent more time with him in the mountains than any other American journalist. They were close friends—Castro once awarded him a medal, ordered him released when he was arrested. Since Castro's open avowal of Communism, however, St. George has maintained close contact with anti-Castro Cuban groups.

TIPS FOR YOUR TRIP TO THE FAIR

by E. D. FALES, JR.

A few days from now, the New York World's Fair will open for a two-year stand as one of the nation's top tourist attractions. All summer long, millions of American families are expected to flock to it—most of them by car.

Before you set out for the Fair, however, there are things you ought to know about traveling by auto in 1964. Recent highway and safety research has given a new slant on several aspects of driving—and car maintenance.

Here's new information you should have:

THE IMPORTANCE OF LOADING. It used to be that families just piled the luggage in the trunk, seated people in the car and set out. Then they wondered why the car seemed to lean backwards, why it wandered and dragged and why they were so exhausted. Now experts know that proper load balance makes for safety, comfort and easier driving. To get it, you should:

Move some of the luggage out of the trunk and into the back seat; put heavy adults (or big children) in front; keep your gas tank half-full; and rent—or buy—a rooftop carrier. But be sure to locate it well forward—over the driver's head—and to rainproof it adequately.

THE DANGERS OF WEATHER. Everyone has always known that driving in summer cloudbursts is dangerous, but until recently no one knew just how dangerous. National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineers found that in heavy rain your tires actually lose contact with the road. With a half-inch of rain, you begin to lose contact at 30 mph; at 60 mph you're running entirely on water—like a boat! The NASA men's advice: in downpours, pull over, stop and wait.

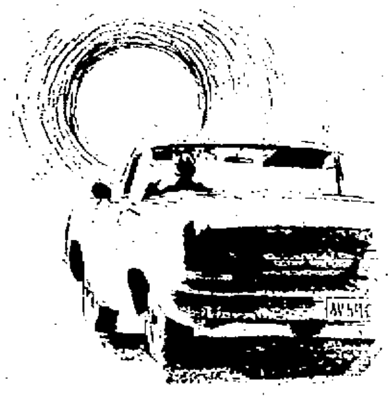
BEST TIME TO TRAVEL. It used to be said that drivers ought to start early in the day, and quit early, too, to stay out of the heat and get early lodging. But now experts know that your driving schedule should vary with your direction. Heading north and east, you should start and stop late; otherwise you'll be heading into the slanting rays of the morning sun. If your direction is south or west, an early start and an early stop are better.

WHERE THE WEAR COMES. Emergency crews on eastern express highways—the ones which will carry most of the visitors to the Fair—say there are five reasons for breakdowns on their highways. They are flat tires; broken belts for fan, generator or power steering; ignition system failures; overheated engines; and—strange as it may seem in this age of a gas station on every corner—running out of gas.

Before setting out to drive on today's highways, emergency crews suggest these steps:

(1) Check the tires. If tires are bald, or treads thin, replace them. (2) Look over belts for fan, generator, power steering, for dryness, cracks, slippage. (3) Investigate cooling system. Make sure winter thermostat is out, that fan doesn't wobble, that hoses are new. (4) Check generator. Many turnpike service areas aren't equipped to repair generators or replace brushes. (5) Look at spark plugs, points, condenser. Check them all, and, if necessary, replace.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN EVER. With 50 million headed for the Fair, it's more important than ever to think ahead, make reservations, eat at off-hours, lay out an itinerery and stick to it. And it's less costly and less exhausting, too. Best rule is to stay fresh, not drive more than 350 miles a day. Remember, the Fair is running next year, too!



Avoid driving into the sun by gearing your schedule to the direction you're traveling.

My Favorite Jokes

by Ray Walston

Editor's note: Ray Walston, star of My Favorite Martian TV show, was a printer in Houston, Tex., when Margo Jones, a renowned figure in the American theater, gave him his first chance to act. In the play High Tor, staged in the Houston Community Playhouse, Walston muttered one word—"Hello." Apparently that one line was enough to make Walston stage-struck. He abandoned printing and gradually worked his way up to become one of the top actors on Broadway. Hollywood eventually beckoned, and between film features, Walston appeared in a number of TV shows. Last year he was offered the starring role in his first TV series, My Favorite Martian. Ray is married, has one daughter, Kate, 9 years old, on whom he tries out such jokes as these:

A man who escaped from jail had previously been photographed by the police, and the pictures were well circulated throughout the area in an attempt to effect his capture.

The chief in a near-by small town wrote a letter to headquarters one Monday morning, in which he said: "I duly received the pictures of the six miscreants whose capture is desired. I have arrested five of them; the sixth is under observation and will be taken soon."

A spaceship landed near a New York delicatessen, but as it hit ground, a small circular piece broke off the landing gear. So, a couple of spacemen from Mars got out of the ship and started looking in the shops for a part to replace it. One of them suddenly pointed to the delicatessen window and said, "There it is—just what we're looking for." Then they went in and told the clerk they wanted to buy the piece of landing gear in the display.

"You guys must be crazy," said the clerk. "That's a bagel. If you don't believe it, here, taste one."

The first Martian took a bite out of the bagel and smacked his lips. "You know," he said, "that would go real good with lox!"

Two small girls were playing together one afternoon in the park.

"I wonder what time it is," said one of them.

"Well, it can't be four o'clock yet," replied the other with magnificent logic, "because my mother said I was to be home at four—and I'm not."

When you are dealing with scientific or so-called "unknown" matters, people are strange. If you tell a man that there are 270,678,934,341 stars in the universe, he'll believe you. But if a sign says "Fresh Paint," that same man has to make a personal investigation.

A clerk in a general store was serving a customer. The manager was at a desk some distance away, but he overheard the clerk say: "No, madam, we haven't had any for a long time."

Dismayed that his clerk should give way so easily to failure, the manager rushed over to be of help. "Oh, yes, we have," he interrupted. "I'm sure that if Mr. Johnson here sends a boy to the warehouse, he can locate what you want and have it brought over immediately."

The lady laughingly thanked him, turned and left the store.

"Never refuse anything," he admonished the startled clerk. "Always send out for it."

"Well, you see," replied the young man timidly, "she was just saying to me that we hadn't had any rain lately."

Paderewski, the late famous pianist, once praised a young polo player for his clever playing.

The young man replied modestly that it was quite different, indeed, from a performance by Paderewski.

"Oh, the difference between us is perfectly clear," answered Paderewski. "You are a dear soul who plays polo, while I am a poor Pole who plays solo."

A teacher was telling her class about the discovery of the law of gravity.

"Sir Isaac Newton was sitting on the ground looking at a tree," she explained. "An apple fell on his head, and from that, he discovered gravitation. Wasn't that wonderful?"

"It sure was," piped a small lad in the back of the room, "and if he had been sittin' in a school lookin' at his books, he wouldn't have discovered nothin'!"

PARADE'S SPECIAL

TELLIGENCE REPORT

Because of mail volume, PARADE cannot answer queries about this column.

RETURNING PEACE CORPSMEN. Come summer, approximately 4,000 Peace Corps volunteers will have completed their overseas duties. Where will they go from there? On the basis of a study of the first 550 returnees, about 50% will return to college, 15% will enter business, 13% will teach, 12% will enter government service and the remainder will travel or get married and settle down.

WHITE-COLLAR CRIME. Most crime in the U.S. is not committed by professional criminals. Each day, according to insurance companies, white-collar bandits -- office employees, executives, salesmen and the like -- steal $4 million from their employers. This adds up to more than $1 billion a year. Many of the largest thefts are pulled by executives or supervisory personnel with no previous theft record. For the most part these people are opportunists who find the opportunity to steal so easy and simple it becomes irresistible.

RUSSIAN WEEKEND. There is no single word in the Russian language for Saturday and Sunday. As a result, the Russians now use the English word "weekend." Until recently most prominent Russians spent their weekends in the country at their dachas, country homes. But recently Khrushchev has come out with a one-family-one-home edict. Multiple home ownership in the Soviet Union, plagued by a desperate housing shortage, is now regarded as unpatriotic. To date, however, Mr. K. has not given up his dacha.

REX HARRISON AND LIZ TAYLOR IN CLEOPATRA. SO FAR, FILM IS BOX-OFFICE DISAPPOINTMENT.

CLEOPATRA SLIPPING. Despite inflated publicity figures released by its New York drumbeaters, it looks very much as if Cleopatra, the celluloid extravaganza starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, will have to play for years before 20th Century-Fox recoups the $44 million the motion picture cost. To date, after its first highly ballyhooed run at roadshow prices both in this country and abroad, the film has grossed $15 million. Word-of-mouth advertising on the film is only so-so. Much of the epic is considered a bore. Added to this is the mounting antagonism women of the nation feel toward Elizabeth Taylor, plus the fact that Richard Burton is competing against himself by appearing in other films such as Becket and the soon-to-be-released Night of the Iguana. Honest theater managers who have played Cleopatra admit to Parade that the film has fallen far short of original financial expectations.

BUSINESS IN S. A. Many South American government officials decline to award government contracts unless bank accounts are first opened for them in Switzerland. When a corporation deposits money in such a numbered account and the bank book is given to the government purchasing agent, the deal is on.

Box office champions Doris Day and Rock Hudson are shown in scene from Lover Come Back. Like Pillow Talk and Send Me No Flowers, the film features "clean sex" comedy.

Rock Hudson and Doris Day THEY

HOLLYWOOD.

Tomorrow evening when the Academy Awards are handed out here for the 36th time, Doris Day and Rock Hudson, both 41, will receive from their colleagues the same acting honors each has been accorded in the past—nothing.

For this, rest assured, Doris and Rock will shed no tears.

Sixteen years ago both entered the motion picture business, not because they were driven by any artistic compulsion to act—at the time Doris Kappelhoff Jordon Weidler was a former band singer down on her luck, and Roy Scherer a truck driver trying to make a dollar—but because each wanted to earn a fortune. One of the quickest ways to achieve that goal is to become a movie star.

Today, Doris Day and Rock Hudson are not only multimillionaires but undoubtedly two of the most profitable screen attractions in the world.

In Hollywood's most valid and vital appraisal of movie star popularity, an annual poll of 18,000 theater-owners and film distributors who judge on the basis of box office grosses, Day and Hudson boast the following hard-to-beat 5-year record:

1959: Hudson, No. 1; Day, No. 4
1960: Day, No. 1; Hudson, No. 2
1961: Hudson, No. 2; Day, No. 3
1962: Day, No. 1; Hudson, No. 2
1963: Day, No. 1; Hudson, No. 3

THE THIRD TEAM COMEDY

Last week, Doris and Rock finished their third "clean sex" screen comedy together, Send Me No Flowers. If their two previous ones, Pillow Talk (1959) and Lover Come Back (1961), are any evidence of drawing power, Send Me No Flowers, based on a one-set 1960 Broadway play, should gross anywhere from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, with each of the two stars banking a million dollars.

stars of their magnitude, reports that Pillow Talk cost approximately $2,000,000 to produce. Lover Come Back cost $2,500,000. Thus far at the global box office, the two films have grossed a total of $25,000,000 and are still in hinterland release.

Why have Doris Day and Rock Hudson become so popular with moviegoers? And is it a good idea to team them?

One Universal executive says: "For my money Doris and Rock are en route to becoming the greatest box office team in the history of the industry—greater than Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Pola Negri and Rudolph Valentino, greater even than Greta Garbo and John Gilbert. What these two have that the others lacked is a sense of humor. They make sex funny—not tragic."

Rock Hudson and Doris Day attribute their popularity to other reasons.

"I think," says Hudson, "that first of all, people like us. Possibly they find us physically attractive and, I guess, photogenic. I'm dark-haired, and Doris is blonde. We both come from the Midwest—Chicago and Cincinnati. We're simple, not very complex, and people can identify with us.

"I tell you this," Hudson avers. "I don't care how much money Doris and I mean at the box office. If I didn't work well with her, I'd call it quits. As it is, it's a plus. We spark each other."

Doris confirms that view. "The lucky thing," she explains, "is that Rock and I like each other off-camera and on-camera. I like him because his sense of humor matches mine. That's a great advantage when you're making comedies. Sometimes you work with an actor—please don't ask me to mention names—and the two of you come in on different wave lengths. Nothing clicks; then it's murder. With Rock it's always fun, because we see eye-to-eye on the script. He knows when the emphasis should be on me, and I know when it's his turn.

TO EARLY TO TELL?

"They say we make a great team," Doris continues, "because we've been hot at the box office. Isn't it a little too early to tell? I've been with Rock in three of my last seven pictures. I've also made two with James Garner. Does the public go for Rock and me as a team, or do they watch our films because they like the subject matter? I think the most profitable films today are comedies. Movie-goers want to see happy pictures about happy people. That's the kind Rock and I make.

"Let's face it—motion pictures are a business. I love sports—baseball, basketball, football—but I wouldn't invest in any sports film. They're practically never successful at the box office. Romantic comedies generally are. Audiences today are both discriminating and sophisticated. They not only buy cast but also comedy. It's difficult to answer which comes first."

Ever since commercial motion pictures began, audiences have patronized and cultivated star teams. Most movie-goers are intellectually lazy. They attend films for relaxation and entertainment, not challenge. To them, Astaire and Rogers once meant dancing and music. Garbo and Gilbert signified tempestuous love. Today, Day and Hudson are equated with modern, sophisticated sex comedy.

Norman Jewison, the young Canadian who directed the pair in Send Me No Flowers, describes the Day-Hudson filmfare as "comedy of a high caliber."

WITTY, MATURE, SPARKLING

"Look at the three films they've made," he declares. "All are witty, mature, sparkling comedies of quality. Doris and Rock are no fools. They won't do inferior scripts. They've got enough money, enough power, to be choosy. They want only the best. They insist that the public get its money's worth. They're both stars in their own right. One doesn't need the other. When they get together in a film, it's only because each feels the other is right for the part. They insist on the proper chemistry, and that's where they're clever.

"People go for them," Jewison maintains, "because their names on a theater marquee now mean quality comedy. Beyond that, they are two handsome, pleasant, uncomplicated personalities. They both represent the fruition of the American dream, the rise of Horatio Alger, the personification of the Cinderella legend.

"Both came from broken Midwestern homes. Both were raised by their mothers. Both came from the middle class or even the lower middle class. Both came to Hollywood with nothing but hope. Today they're the biggest. If it could happen to them, it could happen to me. That's what the audience thinks subconsciously when they see Doris and Rock up there on the screen. These two aren't college graduates. They don't come out of the Actors Studio. They're not intellectuals. They're not method actors. They don't appear week after week on television. They're just the tall, good-looking boy and the sunny, freckle-faced girl next door who made good in a big, big way. You look at them, and they make you smile or laugh or feel good all over. That's why they're each worth a million a picture, and that's why people are willing to pay good money to see them together. In this day and age, an evening's hearty laughter is easily worth two bucks."

FABULOUS COMMAND

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Long Beach and a good share of the Western Hemisphere live under peaceful conditions made possible in part by lean, athletic, 57-year-old three-star General Archie J. Old Jr.; and the deterrent force poised by the Fifteenth Air Force he commands from nearby March Air Force Base. This article, and one next Sunday on "Combat Control Center" will summarize the potent force on the economic life of the Pacific Coast and the freedom of the nation played by General Old and the Fifteenth Air Force.)

By EVERETT W. HOSKING
I. P-T Sunday Editor

The general has stars in his eyes as well as on his shoulders—

He's got IBM for a brain, ITT for a voice, and, at his fingertips he has the safety of a good-sized portion of the free world.

Under his thumb, he has a $6-billion empire that, from 20 or more major air bases, exerts a tremendous effect on the economic life of the Pacific Coast.

The general is Lt. Gen. Archie J. Old Jr., Commander, Fifteenth Air Force, with headquarters at nearby March Air Force Base.

Even without the mechanized aids of a computerized era, Gen. Old would be a pretty fabulous person.

And that is the reason for the stars in his eyes. The forceful, three-star general is rated a better than even chance to add a fourth star to his uniform in the not too distant future.

The odds are based on his experience, demonstrated ability and the fact that he has held one of the Air Force's top commands for such a long period—nearly nine years.

Some astute military observers feel that he is the logical man to step into command of the globe-circling Strategic Air Command when its present commander, Gen. Thomas S. Power, retires in November.

As Commander, Fifteenth Air Force, Gen. Old combines the understanding of a family counselor with the canny skill of a Wall Street broker in managing a $6-billion organization that includes a substantial portion of the force that keeps the free world free.

• • • •

GEN. OLD was responsible for the development of SAC's first mixed force of missiles and bombers into a potent fighting machine that can react immediately should an attack be made against us.

In addition to its B52 bombers—each one carrying more lethal power than all the bombs dropped during World War II—Gen. Old's Fifteenth Air Force operationally pioneered all intercontinental ballistic missiles—Atlas, Titan I, Titan II and Minuteman—into the SAC inventory. Each of these can be fired within the warning time of our early warning system.

Gen. Old bosses major air bases and missile installations at 20 or more locations in the United States and Alaska.

Operating from these installations are several hundred B47 and B52 bombers and approximately 400 ICBM's poised and ready to be fired should the need ever arise.

FUTURE IN SPACE, maybe even in a "flying saucer" seems pretty important to Jefferey Franklyn Vaill as he relaxes comfortably in the arms of his famous grandfather, Lt. Gen. Archie J. Old Jr., commander of the Fifteenth Air Force. The tot will be one year old today.

LBJ Lauds K's Talk; Summit Is Doubtful

'RIGHTS' PROBE HALTED

Portugal Expels Ex-Judge Kenny as a 'Disrupter'

LISBON (UPI)—Four foreign attorneys, including two Americans, who had scheduled a news conference Saturday on "Human Rights in Portugal," were "politely invited" to leave the country. Security police saw that they accepted the invitation.

Security police descended on the Tivoli Hotel minutes before the news conference was to have begun and asked them to report to police headquarters where officials said they were "courteously invited to leave the country." Police then escorted them to the airport.

The two Americans are Robert E. Treuhaft of San Francisco, husband of Jessica Mitford who wrote the best-selling "The American Way of Death," and Robert Walker Kenny, 62, Los Angeles, long a colorful figure in California politics.

Ordered out with them were Conrado Gomez of Mendoza, Argentina, and Norman A. Endicot who has a law practice in Toronto and who was en route home from a lawyers' conference in Budapest.

A Portuguese Foreign Ministry statement accused the four lawyers of interfering in Portugal's internal affairs and disrupting the "public order in conditions which are not permitted in any country."

Treuhaft was the first to leave. He boarded a plane for New York. Kenny and Gomez said they were flying to Paris, and Endicot booked passage on an Air Canada flight for Toronto. All were expected to be out of Portugal by 9 p.m. Saturday.

(Treuhaft arrived in New York by jetliner Saturday afternoon and said he was "stunned" by his ejection from Portugal. He said that after the press conference was called off he and the others went to the hotel bar for a drink.

("Shortly after, six of those tight-suited guys from the Portuguese secret police, showing their muscles, walked into the bar, asked us for our passports

Old Hero Finally Resting

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)—An old soldier found rest Saturday. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, a tireless campaigner in three wars who served his country with distinction in the remarkable postwar occupation of Japan, was caissoned under a blue Virginia sky on the final slow journey of the military dead.

The body of the 84-year-old general of the Army was entombed in the rotunda of the General Douglas MacArthur Memorial, the building in which are displayed his papers, decorations, his honors, and such mementoes as the crushed gold-braid cap and the long-bowl corncob pipe.

It was in Norfolk that his mother and father were married, and his mother came from a long line of Virginians. It was the general's own choice to return to Virginia in death. He had called Norfolk "my spiritual home."

Standing beside the bier when the final note of taps faded through new-budding trees was Jean Faircloth MacArthur, the widow, who escaped with him from Corregidor in one of the memorable episodes of World War II.

She blinked at the last long note. Then she wept silently, a slightly bent figure standing beside a shining gray coffin. On the marble wall behind her were etched the three words the

CDC Board Refuses to Back Unruh

Bane and Wilson Endorsements Also Withheld

FRESNO (UPI) — The board of directors of the politically powerful California Democratic Council (CDC) voted unanimously Saturday to withhold its endorsement of Assembly Speaker Jesse Unruh's campaign for re-election.

The action had been expected because the controversial speaker had been increasingly at odds with the CDC, Gov. Brown and other state Democratic leaders. He also has met with disfavor among the state's labor leaders and the AFL-CIO recently refused to endorse him.

• • • •

THE VOTE came shortly after State Controller Alan Cranston, the founding president of the CDC and its choice for the Democratic nomination for the U.S. Senate, told the board to "keep cool" and remember the central issues during the current campaign. He said these issues were peace, maximum employment and civil rights.

Unruh has praised Sen. Clair Engle, one of Cranston's opponents for the nomination and has said nothing uncomplimentary about the other major candidate, former presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger.

• • • •

BEFORE the vote on Unruh's endorsement, the board withheld its backing from two other Unruh supporters and opponents of the CDC, Assemblyman Tom Bane, D-Los Angeles, and Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Los Angeles. Bane is running for Congress and Wilson is seeking re-election.

Bane was endorsed by his local CDC group only three days after 27th Congressional District Incumbent Everett G. Burkhalter announced he would run again. The board cited this short time lapse and the fact that the local endorsing convention was held on the same day as the Long Beach statewide convention in February as reasons for withholding its endorsement.

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — The two astronauts who will make the nation's first manned Gemini space flight will be announced at 12 noon CST Monday at the Manned Spacecraft Center.

Center officials announced Saturday both the primary and backup crews for the first Gemini flight will be revealed. The first manned Gemini flight is scheduled for the last quarter of this year.

Praises 'Role of Peace'

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Saturday Soviet Premier Khrushchev is "seeking to preserve peace in the world." Johnson said that so long as Khrushchev "talks in peaceful terms, he will always have our ear."

This was Johnson's response, at another unannounced Saturday news conference, to a request for comment on Khrushchev's recent kind words about the American President and Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

"I am glad to see," said Johnson, "that Mr. Khrushchev is playing the role of peace and seeking to preserve peace in the world. That certainly is the desire of this country. When he talks in peaceful terms, he will always have our ear."

• • • •

AT THE SAME TIME, the President gave scant encouragement to any who would call for an early summit meeting.

Johnson said that because of the forthcoming election, his newness in office, the absence of a vice president, and a multitude of foreign policy problems, he does not plan to leave the continental United States this year.

The only things that could take him abroad, he said, would be an unforseen emergency or "some feeling that great advances could be made."

• • • •

THIS DID, HOWEVER, leave the door slightly ajar for a possible 1964 summit session.

Aides said that in his response about Khrushchev, Johnson was not trying to get into the Sino-Soviet dispute on Moscow's side. The Kremlin accuses the Chinese of advocating nuclear war instead of Khru-

Hayden One of 250 Held as 'Sitters'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Police arrested 250 civil-rights sit-in demonstrators Saturday, including red-bearded actor Sterling Hayden, in a traffic-clogging demonstration on San Francisco's automobile row. Hayden was carried out.

Police cleared some 300 persons from showrooms of the Big Three of motordom—Ford, General Motors and Chrysler. The arrested were charged with disturbing the peace, unlawful assembly and disobedience. Bail was set at $276 each.

A spokesman for General Motors, which operates the Cadillac agency showroom, said GM had refused to sign a statement "which would require a quota of nonwhite employes."

REPORTERS CROSSED UP AGAIN

Johnson Invites Tourists to Take Stroll With Him

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson interrupted a quiet stroll around the White House grounds Saturday to order the gates opened and a flock of tourists admitted to join him on his trek.

Johnson left his office, headed for lunch, about 2:30 p.m. when, as he later told it, aide Bill Moyers suggested they take a walk.

With a handful of Secret Service agents and assistants in tow, Johnson headed down the asphalt driveway behind the White House. Nearby was a wrought-iron gate behind which shouting tourists were massed.

The President ordered the gates opened and some 100 sightseers found themselves suddenly propelled into the usually unoccupied lawns at the south of the executive mansion, facing the Washington Monument.

With Johnson in the lead, the visitors made a slow tour of the circular drive behind the White House, winding up at the same gate through which they had entered so unexpectedly.

Johnson, full of the same good spirits he displayed Friday in entertaining farm leaders, rail negotiators and poet Carl Sandburg, set up an informal receiving line at the gate as his surprised guests left.

For each he had a smile, a handshake, a few words and, occasionally an autograph.

Some of the tourists were too stunned to speak as they shook the President's hand. But most responded with such remarks as "Thank you very much, sir," "A pleasure," and "Nice meeting you."

As the last of the group departed, Johnson said, "I enjoyed being with you."

One gray-haired man, a camera dangling from his neck, walked up to Johnson during the tour and, waving toward the White House acres, inquired, "Do you cut this grass yourself?"

"No, sir," replied the President, "I don't. But I'd probably feel better if I did."

Turning, Johnson spotted one of the reporters who regularly cover the White House and exclaimed, "You don't belong here. If you want to march, you ought to join the Army."

"I've already done that," the newsman replied.

Johnson was well

L.A.C. Says:
No Law Can Correct This

As the Civil Rights debates progress and demonstrators seek laws to give equal rights to all our citizens—an example of the futility of laws was given in Olathe, Kansas. It was a warning that there must be a greater tolerance among the people if our racial problem is to be solved. None of the laws now on the books or to be enacted, would have solved the tragic Olathe incident.

It involved a young Negro couple who had rented a duplex in one of the all-white areas of the town. The young Negro is an Air Force lieutenant. He was assigned to the Olathe Air Base as a radar officer. It is apparent he had the educational and personal qualifications to be an officer and a gentleman—equal in ability to other officers of his rank.

The young couple rented the duplex in a new subdivision after searching two weeks for a nice place to live. They moved in on a Thursday—and moved out on Friday. Reason for moving out was that the neighbors showed their resentment over having Negroes as their neighbors. The young Negro said he was disappointed and "we are financially able to live in a nice place—if all we wanted was a roof over our heads, we could have found that."

There was no law violated. Apparently, the landowner willingly had rented the duplex to the young couple. But the attitude of the white people who also are renters was so unpleasant the Negroes decided they would not endure it. So they are forced to seek another home. It is hoped they will find another nice place to live where the neighbors will not be so intolerant—but that is questionable.

Many provisions of the Civil Rights bill before Congress need to be enacted. The long-established method of depriving Negroes of voting privileges in some Southern states is a travesty on law. Negroes with education equal to, or higher than, most of the whites, are refused this privilege by subterfuges. Negro children still are deprived of the right to attend schools with whites—and equal use of public transportation is denied Negroes in many places.

These are fundamental rights that must be provided for all our citizens. There must be provisions to protect them from discrimination in employment and places that provide services for the public as a whole. But there are also provisions in the bills that go far beyond Civil Rights in that they deprive people of their property rights if they exercise these rights in choosing to whom they may rent, sell or lease their private property.

It is a tragic debate and situation. No law can change the personal attitude of people. Only their own conscience can do that. The people as a whole must accept the responsibility to help change this discrimination. They must come to accept the fact that an intelligent, clean and decent Negro family has a right to decent housing in an area and atmosphere that matches their education and desire for a better life. How to achieve this without destroying other basic civil rights is the great problem. The sad experience of the young Negro Air Force officer is an example of the cruelty of the discrimination that exists in the North as well as the South. It cannot be corrected by laws. It must be corrected in the hearts and minds of the people.—L.A.C.

Belgian MDs Assailed for 'Brutality'

BRUSSELS, Sunday (UPI)—Talks aimed at ending a strike by 10,000 Belgian doctors collapsed early today despite the spur provided by the threat of an epidemic of highly infectious children's diseases in the country.

Prime Minister Theo Lefevre, following a marathon bargaining session which started Saturday, warned Belgium "is now entering a period of brutality."

• • • •

THE STRIKE, against a new national health-insurance law, swung into its 12th day.

Lefevre immediately called his cabinet into an emergency session to deal with the situation.

He said representatives of the striking doctors had refused to accept compromise proposals put forth by the government.

"We do not want a period of brutality," the prime minister said. "One brutality leads to another and this is a terrible thing."

• • • •

EDMOND LEBURTON, the minister of Social Security, charged the doctors had presented what amounted to an ultimatum at the meeting. "They have shown an utter lack of fair play," he said.

Even Saturday, it became apparent that tempers were rising because of the crisis caused by the medical walkout. At one point, the talks were suspended in anger.

"I hope that this will not become known as the time of the assassins," Lefevre had commented.

Clean-Up Week Set May 10-17

Long Beach has proclaimed May 10-17 as Clean-Up, Paint-Up, Fix-Up Week, a project spearheaded by the civic beautification committee of the Women's Division of the Chamber of Commerce.

In a drive to stimulate upgrading of buildings and property, awards will be given those businesses and organizations showing the greatest improvement.

Mrs. Francis Merchant, chairman of the project, asked that nominations be sent, this week, to the Women's Division, Chamber of Commerce, 121 Linden Ave.

Categories for the competition will include industrial, business, commercial and professional buildings, churches, schools, clubs and public agencies; lumber, brick and sand storage yards; wrecking and second-hand lots; service stations, drive-ins, auto washes and parking lots; parks, golf courses and recreation areas.

Winners will be announced and honored at the civic beautification committe's awards dinner in May.

FLIER ROWS GIRL HOME

A Marine Corps lieutenant took his girlfriend for an airplane ride Saturday — but, they ended up rowing.

Lt. Stephen Majias had to ditch his single-engine plane a half-mile offshore from Aliso Canyon south of Newport Beach. He and Susan Rutan, 22, of San Diego, were paddling toward shore in a life raft when a fishing boat picked them up.

Lt. Majias told Orange County Harbor Department officials the engine on his plane suddenly quit as they were returning to Capistrano Airport about 2:30 p.m.

and told us that we would have to leave the country immediately," Treuhaft said.

("It was apparent to me that we were under arrest when I refused to give them my passport. I was grabbed and hacked across the arms. One of the men reached in my pocket and forcibly removed my passport.")

Trehauft said he was then ordered to start packing for the trip home. The attorney said a representative of the U.S. embassy "looked after us" before the flight to New York.

Before Treuhaft left, the four men were seen lunching in an airport restaurant, a plainclothesman at their sides.

The attorneys earlier told newsmen arriving for the conference that Portuguese security police had forbidden them to hold it.

Before the P. I. D. E. (security) police arrived, Kenny told newsmen, "There will be no press conference because police told us we cannot hold it." He said his group was not even permitted to hand out a press release on their studies of the enforcement of human rights in Portugal.

"We came to Portugal as individuals and not as members of any organization," Kenny said.

The Foreign Ministry communique repeated that the four attorneys had been invited to leave Portugal and said the action was taken after they entered the country as tourists and "started investigations on problems concerning the Portuguese jail system, which concerns only the internal policy of Portugal, trying to inquire into the Portuguese life and disrupt the public order in conditions which are not permitted in any country."

One of the attorneys told newsmen they had contacted families of political prisoners in their study. The Foreign Ministry said this was an attempt to interfere in Portugal's internal affairs and criticize the decision of competent Portuguese authorities.

L.B. Couple Gravely Hurt; 4 Killed in Arizona Crash

WICKENBURG, Ariz. (UPI)—A San Francisco family, including two children, perished in a grating two-car collision Saturday afternoon, halfway between here and Blythe, Calif., on U. S. 60.

The victims have been identified as Salvador and Sadie Cobos, 31, of San Francisco, and their two children whose names and ages were not immediately available.

Arizona highway patrolmen said the east-bound Cobos vehicle swerved on the highway for unknown reasons, spinning broadside into the path of a west-bound car driven by Donald Harry Elza, 60, of Long Beach, Calif. Elza and his wife La Verne, also 60, were reported in serious condition in a hospital in Blythe, Calif.

Navy 'Bugs' Sea Floor in Weapons Test

By LOU JOBST
I.-P-T Marine Editor

SAN CLEMENTE ISLAND—Like much of modern naval warfare, weapons testing is going underwater.

Engineers have laid out a subsurface test range which extends five miles to sea from the southern shoreline of this Navy-controlled channel island.

At its deepest point this underwater 'Cape Kennedy' is 3,600 feet.

• • • •

THE RANGE, developed and tested by engineers of the ocean systems division of Lockheed-California Co., comprises measured distances and sea-bottom-mounted electronic listening devices called hydrophones.

Known as Lobal, for long base line tracking system, the 'phones in recent tests detected signals from a submarine at a slant range of 15,000 feet and more than half a nautical mile down.

This is believed to be an all-time record for picking up underwater signals.

• • • •

UNLIKE SONAR, the engineers say, Lobal is not an active detection system but is designed solely to measure effectiveness of underwater weapons.

Lobal, they claim, will pick up the course of signal-sending vehicles underwater just as ground equipment tracks radio-transmitting test rockets.

The range was established with the assistance of the Naval Ordnance Test Station which maintains this island 60 miles from Long Beach as a base.

• • • •

LONG A surface bombardment range and navy airfield, San Clemente Island more recently was used in development and testing of the submerged launching mechanism for the Polaris missile and testing of ASROC (anti-submarine rocket) and SUBROC (submarine rocket). This test work has been done in water down to 200 feet.

Electronic-eavesdropping Lobal, the engineers believe, can be used to check programmed performance and course of new underwater weapons and counter-weapons, assist in calibrating sonar systems, track ships and weapons for research purposes and aid in anti-submarine warfare evaluation and in data correction for Navy training exercises.

Placed 3,300 yards apart in a triangular pattern, the Lobal hydrophones were linked by separate cables to data processing and computer units on the island.

• • • •

TO ACTIVATE Lobal for the tests, radio synchronized devices simultaneously pulsed signals aboard a submarine and at the shore-based processing equipment.

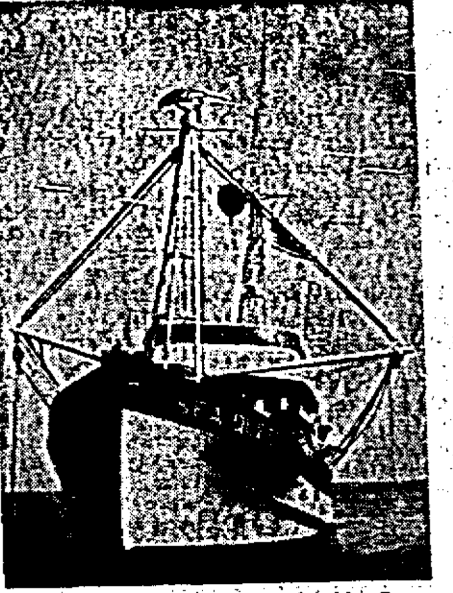
Signals from the sub picked up the electronic listening devices, amplified and transmitted to the shore computers. There the sound pulses were reconstructed, processed into written language and translated by the computer into three-dimensional coordinates. A plotter then mapped the sub's course and position. Tracking accuracy was to within 10 feet.

• • • •

THE SYSTEM also filtered out surrounding ocean sounds, accepting only signals of predetermined characteristic and timing. This is an absolute prerequisite of any underwater test system.

In addition to the submarine, the Lockheed oceanographic research ship Sea Quest and a Navy destroyer participated in the tests.

NOTS, with headquarters in Pasadena, has a support installation at Reeves Field, Terminal Island, and spent $4½ million at the Long Beach Naval Shipyard for construction of three ships and equipment for the Polaris test work.



OCEANOGRAPHIC research ship Sea Quest sends signals (via sound projector on boom extended over the starboard side) to underwater hydrophones in test of underwater test range recently off San Clemente Island.

7 Maritime Academy Trustees Quit in Row

PORTLAND, Me. (UPI) — Seven members of the 12-man board of trustees of the Maine Maritime Academy resigned Saturday after refusing to act on Gov. John H. Reed's request to replace controversial academy superintendent Frank C. Rodway.

The trustees, including chairman Ralph Leavitt of Portland, sent their resignation to Reed in a telegram two hours before a scheduled meeting of the entire board to act on the governor's request to remove Rodway.

Rodway's appointment to the $15,000-a-year post last January resulted in a wide-ranging controversy over his qualifications as head of the military-type institution at Castine.

• • • •

RODWAY, who vowed to fight Reed's efforts to oust him, was elected on a 7-5 vote of the trustees.

Resignation of the seven members who voted in favor of Rodway's appointment apparently was done without the knowledge of the other five trustees.

A spokesman said the other five had not arrived at the trustee meeting when the resignations were announced.

• • • •

REED HAD asked that Rodway, a Falmouth real estate dealer, be replaced on grounds that he was not qualified.

Earlier, the U.S. Maritime Administration in Washington had ruled that Rodway, a lieutenant in the U.S. Naval Reserve, was not qualified.

The federal agency agreed to grant a waiver of the requirements but at the same time gave no assurances about some $300,000 in federal funds earmarked for the academy.

TRAIN NOW FOR AUTOMATION

FOR A BETTER PAYING POSITION

Charles E. Wolff, Educational Director of AUTOMATION INSTITUTE states: "As an educator, I know an investment in education is buying stock in yourself. If done wisely, it will • PAY DIVIDENDS— • ASSURE GROWTH— • BRING SECURITY." Use this checklist to compare Business Automation with other opportunities:

QUESTION: Is Field of AUTOMATION Growing Sufficiently to Assure Opportunity, Advancement & Job Security?
ANSWER: Business Automation is America's second fastest growing field. You can look ahead to excellent opportunities, either thru advancement in IBM Machine Operation, or supervision, or in related management fields.
QUESTION: How Much Will I Need To Invest All Totaled?
ANSWER: The tuition for the course you select includes your texts and supplies normally required. Statistically, the majority of Automation Institute graduates earn more than the total educational investment within less than 2 months on the first job. Each month thereafter yields a big profit. Budget tuition plans make it possible to delay part of your investment until after graduation. The sooner you train, the quicker you will improve financially.
QUESTION: How Certain Am I Of Getting A Good Job?
ANSWER: Guarantees of employment are illegal and unrealistic. Your job position depends on your "know how". AUTOMATION INSTITUTE is America's largest, oldest, and best recognized independent specialists in the IBM training field. You will learn from leaders in this field, using the latest equipment. There are no short cuts to success . . . only proven paths.
QUESTION: Does The School Have NATIONWIDE Acceptance?
ANSWER: Yes. AUTOMATION INSTITUTES have trained & placed more people nationwide in new IBM careers than any other private school. In all principal cities there is an Automation Institute to help and serve you. More companies hire A. I. graduates than from any other private school in the Automation field.
QUESTION: Is Experience Required?
ANSWER: NO. AUTOMATION INSTITUTES place hundreds in new careers at the beginning level. Advancement training is an integral part of your course. You are thus assured of the best possible opportunities for immediate employment and advancement.
QUESTION: How Does The Placement Service Work?
ANSWER: Our Placement Director is in constant contact with Business, Government, and Industrial IBM installations. Individual attention is given both the graduate and the employer regarding the employment objectives and desires. No fee is charged either the graduate or the employer.

Rail Walkout Leaders Go Back on Job

OAKLAND (UP)—A number of Southern Pacific switchmen remained off "sick" Saturday night at Oakland while striking switchmen at the Roseville yards returned to work. All Oakland freight, however, was moving normally, SP said.

Earlier Saturday, the Roseville switchmen, leaders in the stoppage, had threatened to fire their union officers rather than comply with the 15-day nationwide rail strike postponement obtained by President Johnson.

• • • •

THE MORE than 200 switchmen had walked out Thursday before SP could carry out its announced intent to post new work rules—target of the threatened strike.

SP said it had managed to keep its freight and passenger trains rolling on schedule despite spread of the Roseville stoppage to other Northern California yards.

Friday, SP got a federal injunction in San Francisco. It charged the stoppages violated the President's agreement.

• • • •

FRIDAY NIGHT, when J. Frank Young, chairman of switchmen's union Local 263, urged the Roseville switchmen back to work, some 250 members voted at a meeting to oust their local officers.

Saturday, Young called another meeting, said the members had acted improperly, insisted he still was their chairman and asked them as a personal favor to report for afternoon duty.

"I am proud to say they agreed," Young said.

• • • •

IN WASHINGTON, Johnson underscored anew his deep desire that railroad and union negotiators end by collective bargaining the recurring threat of a national rail shutdown.

THAT TOUR GUIDE LOOKS FAMILIAR
In a surprise gesture Saturday, President Johnson ordered the gates to the White House grounds opened and conducted a group of flabbergasted sightseers on tour. President pointed out sights and signed autographs.

President Invites 100 Tourists for Stroll on White House Lawn

launched on his conducted 15-minute tour of the backyard when newsmen and photographers heard about the walk. Pell Mell, they dashed from the lobby of the White House office wing and raced through the rose garden to join the hikers.

When half a dozen photographers arrayed themselves across the driveway ahead of the President and his visitors, to get a good vantage point for pictures, Johnson called out, "Now don't you-all mess this up. Get out of the way."

Many of those who went walking with Johnson introduced themselves as visitors from foreign lands.

Johnson had an extended conversation with one student from India, reminiscing about his visit there as vice president.

It was so international a gathering that, as the sightseers departed, the chief executive exclaimed:

"I know so many people over in Finland, Denmark, the Philippines and Japan. I feel like I've been on a tour."

Jokingly, the President said to his parting guests, "I didn't think you-all would come through the gate."

Reporters asked Johnson about his weekend plans.

He said he expected to remain at the White House except for a visit later in the day with Felix Frankfurter, the ailing retired Supreme Court justice, and a trip to church today.

Then he disappeared into the White House for a mid-afternoon lunch. Later in the afternoon he went golfing at Burning Tree Club in nearby Maryland.

shchev's "peaceful coexistence."

Johnson was referring to "complimentary" remarks—as the questioner put it—which Khrushchev made during his Hungarian tour, the aides said.

• • • •

KHRUSHCHEV said in a speech last Monday that "the United States is an imperialist country but its government judges the world situation soberly."

Johnson also made an announcement that touched upon the technological rivalry between the United States and the Soviet Union. He said:

"The world record for aircraft speed, currently held by the Soviets, has been repeatedly broken in secrecy by the United States aircraft A-11."

• • • •

THE CHIEF Executive said secrecy wraps will be stripped from the high-flying A-11 to permit an official bid by the reconnaissance interceptor craft for acknowledgment as the world record-holder.

Relations with the Soviet Union also came up during the 20-minute Cabinet Room conference when Johnson was asked for a progress report on withdrawal of Soviet troops from Cuba.

"There are still some troops there," he said, "but the number has declined substantially." He said he didn't "want to get in any numbers game."

• • • •

THE PRESIDENT opened the session by reading a statement in which he said emergency White House negotiations aimed at avoiding a national rail strike represented "collective bargaining in the truest sense of the word." He said his aim is "to get consent rather than to get coercion."

Domestic politics also figured in the news conference, with the first major question dealing with the future of Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to Viet Nam who is regarded as a potential Republican opponent for Johnson in November.

Johnson said he knows of no possibility of Lodge resigning, that "his services there have been very satisfactory and he has done a very constructive job."

• • • •

THEN someone wanted to know about the President's reaction to the 260,000 votes collected by Alabama's segregationist Gov. George C. Wallace in Wisconsin's Democratic primary last Tuesday.

"Gov. Wallace got 25 per cent of the votes and 75 per cent voted against him," said Johnson.

ALEUTS' TEACHER BARELY ESCAPES DEATH IN TIDAL WAVE

L.B. Girl Sees 23 Friends Killed

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

KRISTINE MADSEN
World Falls Apart

In earthquake-ridden Alaska, on a remote island just seven miles long, Kristine Madsen's one-teacher schoolhouse still stands.

But Kristine is back home in Long Beach today — because there are no students left on Chenaga Island.

Only the white, frame school building, sitting high on a hill, remains as a grave reminder that a native fishing village once threaded its way along the narrow strip of coastline below.

Here lived native Aleuts who fished the seas and hunted the mountains, who worshiped at their Russian Orthodox church on Sundays and sent their children to Kristine's school on weekdays.

They lived simple, happy, uncomplicated lives in their rigorous paradise. Their only contact with the outside world was a mailboat that arrived once every two weeks.

BUT CHENAGA'S native fishing village is no more.

It was swallowed up by the sea—along with 23 of its 70 villagers — on the day the worst quake in North American history cracked, crumpled and buckled Alaska.

Swept away by a tidal wave were the crudely picturesque houses, the church, the piers.

With it, too, went the mainstay of the village's economy — its small fleet of fishing boats.

The 90-foot wall of water also washed away, at least for the moment, the adventuresome twinkle in the eyes of 23-year-old Kris Madsen of Long Beach, who last year went to Alaska to teach and to find her new frontier.

• • • • •

STILL STUNNED, she finds the terrifying events of that Good Friday difficult to describe.

"The whole world seemed to fall apart before my eyes," she recalls.

The only nonnative in the village ("I was quite an oddity with my bright red hair"), Kris often opened the school building to villagers for family-night social events.

The night the quake hit they were to have watched a movie at the school. Its title, ironically: "The House on Haunted Hill."

At the zero hour, Kris—who had been down to the village making arrangements for the gala evening — was climbing the long zig-zaggy stretch of wooden stairs to the school building.

"All of a sudden the earth began to shake, houses moved from their foundations, the trees crackled and groaned," she recalls. "It was virtually impossible to stand up or to walk."

Simultaneously, the ocean was sucked back from the shoreline almost as if to gain momentum for its death blow.

Aware of impending danger, villagers began a mass retreat to high ground, sweeping Kris with them. From the hills, they watched their houses, their church, their boats fly into the air—then disappear.

The waves swallowed up those not lucky enough to get away. Two of the 23 lost were Kris's students—a first-grade girl and a fourth-grade girl.

• • • • •

UP ON THE RIDGES, survivors spent the night in subzero weather, warmed only by Kris's clothes and blankets salvaged from the school building which also served as Kris's living quarters.

Some of the survivors were gashed and bruised by flying debris. One was a 20-year-old mother whose twin daughters had been swept from her arms by the wave.

Survivors were evacuated by plane the next day in relay flights to Cordova, a coastal town of 1,100 population, 90 miles away. Kris was among the last to leave.

• • • • •

PLANS, at first, were to keep the families and Kris's remaining 12 students together. She was to have conducted classes in Cordova to complete the school year.

It since has been decided, however, that survivors will be moved to the villages of Tatilek and Alamar, where the Red Cross and the Bureau of Indian Affairs will aid in their rehabilitation.

None will return to Chenaga Island. The village will not be rebuilt.

Before returning to Long Beach, Kris had one last look at the now-deserted island—the island where, in eight months, she had learned to love the people, where her students had participated joyfully in school activities, where life had been calm and peaceful.

With five of the villagers, she returned by boat to help search for bodies, to scan the debris for belongings, to remove supplies from the school building and to find her dog who had been left behind.

The half-collie, half-Labrador puppy (she named him TLO) had been given her at the beginning of the school year by friends in Anchorage. He had been her constant companion.

She found TLO alone on the island, dazed and injured. He had to be shot.

Of the 23 villagers killed, only four bodies were recovered—two of them were found on an island eight miles away.

Also found there was the upper story of a house that had been swept from Chenaga. Contents were dry and undamaged — the beds were still neatly made.

• • • •

"THE RETURN TRIP was the eeriest, the saddest day of my life," says Kris, now safely home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Michelsen of 3191 Oak Grove Road, Rossmoor. (Her mother teaches first grade at Starr King Elementary School.)

"Even though I saw the village, now just rubble and debris, it all seems like a dream."

What's in the future for Kris?

"I don't know yet," says she. "Perhaps I'll teach next year in California. Perhaps I'll do some substituting now." She doesn't know if her savings, deposited in a bank in Anchorage, were saved.

But right now the money is of no concern. Her concern is with the villagers, left penniless and homeless, who must carve a new life in far-away Alaska.

Alaska High Tides Viewed Anxiously

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (UPI)—Earthquake-jittery coastal residents south of here were warily watching the tides Saturday as water began creeping up on homes, canneries, warehouses and other buildings.

Flooding is feared in low-lying areas of the Kenai Peninsula, Kodiak Island and possibly at Valdez, southeast of Anchorage, where the March 27 earthquake is believed to have caused the land to sink from three to more than six feet.

A peninsula official, after touring the area Friday, said high-tide seawater already had reached its previous highest level for this time of year, and still has three feet to go before hitting its seasonal peak Monday and Tuesday.

• • • •

CHAIRMAN Harold Pomeroy of the peninsula borough said the water has been lapping over Homer Spit near the end of the coastal arm, and neared the English Bay and Seldovia airstrips.

The Red Cross said it was prepared to open new refugee shelters if necessary. The agency said there still are nine shelters housing 900 persons evacuated in the earthquake and tidal waves.

Later Red Cross damage figures show 3,319 families were affected in the disaster. The quake and ocean waves it caused were said to have destroyed 546 homes and damaged 1,246 others.

The latest casualty count from the emergency health office listed 55 known dead and 59 missing and presumed dead. The over-all total has remained at 114, and officials slowly are confirming the deaths of many on the missing list.

State Civil Defense said the new flooding threat could send seawater over a fourth of a 2,500-foot runway at Seward, but probably will not reach the 5,000-foot main runway.

• • • •

AT KODIAK, police said water already has flooded Marine Way — once the city's main waterfront road, but the town's lower business district was virtually wiped out by March 27 waves, leaving little left for any flood damage.

The lower areas of Seward and Valdez also were destroyed.

Officials have said it may be necessary to relocate business districts on higher ground when they rebuild if the land has sunken and the high tides continue to threaten.

Pomeroy said it might cost several million dollars to relocate or elevate buildings.

Precautionary steps — including diking and lifting of buildings — were being taken in some of the threatened areas. Otherwise, residents were waiting to see what happens.

Sen. Smith Spurns Veep Suggestion

MOLINE, Ill. (UPI)—Sen. Margaret Chase Smith said Saturday she is definitely running for the Republican presidential nomination and not for the vice president spot on the GOP ticket.

The Maine Republican criticized a magazine article which said: "It is the vice presidency she is after."

Mrs. Smith is the only opponent to Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., on the ballot for the Illinois presidential preference primary Tuesday.

'Fireball' Shot Will be Tried Again Monday

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—The space agency Saturday rescheduled the twice-postponed Project Fire spacecraft launching for 3:30 p.m. EST Monday.

The 200-pound craft is to plunge downward into the earth's atmosphere at 25,000 miles an hour to provide information on heat which will scorch manned spaceships returning from the moon.

Unfavorable weather in the re-entry area forced a postponement last Monday and a combination of bad weather and technical troubles wiped out the Atlas-boosted shot Friday.

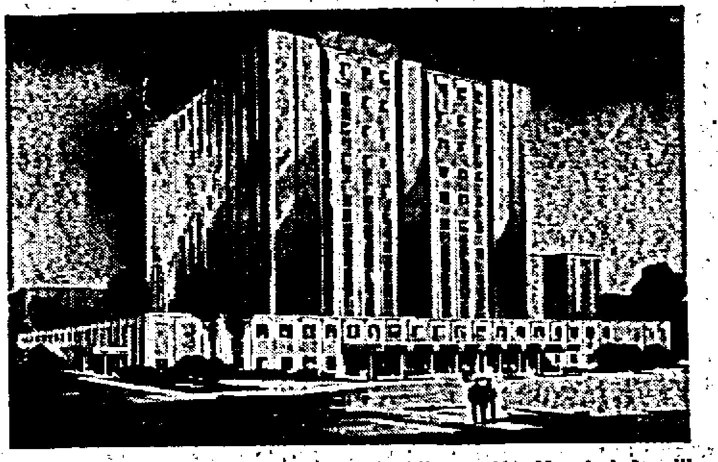
$18-Million Addition to Veterans' Hospital to be Started in July

By BEN ZINSER
I. P-T Medical-Science Editor



CLOSEUP OF NEW 11-story "tower" building at VA Hospital. It will be in front of existing main building.

Plans have been completed for an $18-million construction program at Long Beach Veterans Administration Hospital.

The program features an 11-story tower building in front of the existing main building and a new psychiatric building that will double the size of the hospital's psychiatric service.

Also slated is renovation of existing buildings.

The Los Angeles architectural firm of Adrian Wilson and Associates has designed the tower and drawn up plans for renovation. This part of the project will cost $14 million, according to Dr. Michael L. Matte, hospital director.

• • • •

WORK IS scheduled to start in July.

A new two-story psychiatric building, with 120 beds on each floor, is slated for completion in one year and will be used to house medical patients during what Dr. Matte calls "the transition period."

The hospital will maintain its 1,600-bed capacity during the over-all construction period, expected to require 30 months.

When the tower building is completed, VA Hospital will then have a bed capacity of 1,725, Dr. Matte said.

The tower, to be built of reinforced concrete, will front the present main building and face Seventh Street. VA Hospital occupies 110 acres at the corner of Bellflower Boulevard and Seventh Street.

• • • •

BECAUSE of the construction program, plans for a contemplated 120-bed nursing service have been postponed, Dr. Matte said.

Three unoccupied wards of wooden construction will be reopened on the north ramp while construction is in progress, Dr. Matte said.

The construction program will require the razing of four cantonment-type wards on what is called the X ramp.

Other patients will be temporarily reassigned to existing permanent buildings.

The new psychiatric building will be located just north of the hospital's 564-bed wing, completed in 1958.

Dr. Matte said the new tower building will be occupied as follows:

Basement: Dietetic service, central linen service, radioisotope treatment clinic and cobalt "bomb" for radiation therapy.

First floor: Main lobby, admitting service, outpatient clinics, registrar, diagnostic radiology.

Second floor: Administrative offices, including those of hospital director, assistant director, chief of staff, chief of nurses, fiscal officer, supply officer, personnel and engineering; dental service and laboratory service.

Third through 10th floors: 80 patient beds a floors.

Eleventh floor: 40 patient beds and a 16-bed intensive-therapy unit.

Patients in the tower building will be mainly those assigned to the pulmonary-disease service, general medicine, cardiology, gastroenterology and geriatrics.

First floor of the existing main building will house, when construction is complete, the canteen, medical illustration department, pharmacy, clinics and some administrative offices. Second floor will quarter a recreational area, the auditorium and the medical library. On the third floor will be the chapel and a 42-bed ward. Another 42-bed ward will be on the fourth folor. The fifth floor will continue to house a conference room.

• • • •

THE WEST wing of the existing main building will house dermatology patients on the first floor, allergy on the second and hematology on the third. The east wing of this structure will quarter polio patients on the first and rehabilitation service floor, physical medicine on the second and surgical patients on the third.

In the wing completed in 1958 the spinal-cord-injury service will continue to occupy the basement and first floor. Neurology will be on the second floor and surgical patients on the third.

The pitch-and-putt golf course on the north grounds, which was to have been declared surplus property, will be retained to provide a recreational area for psychiatric patients, Dr. Matte said.

House Votes Public Land Development

By BILL BROOM
I. P-T Washington Bureau

Legislation opening up millions of acres of public lands in California for community development has cleared the House and is headed for the Senate.

The measure would give the Interior Department long-sought authority to sell small tracts for residential, commercial and industrial development. Its sponsors say built-in safeguards have been provided to prevent speculation and profiteering.

The bill gives the authority for three years while an interim commission decides on a permanent arrangement for disposing of tracts.

• • • •

AT PRESENT, such sales are subject to extensive red tape. On occasion, special legislation from Congress is needed to authorize disposals. Years are sometimes required, and prospective buyers become discouraged.

Much of the land available is in the desert area of Southern California, where extensive residential developments are under way on privately-owned lands. Some of the land to be freed is adjacent to communities which want it for residential expansion or new industrial plants.

The federal government currently holds 25,795 acres in Los Angeles County, 7,354,363 acres in San Bernardino County, 254,764 in San Diego County, 1,435,320 in Riverside County and 641,624 in Imperial County. Not all of this is suitable for development.

• • • •

SAFEGUARDS provided for disposal require extensive public advertisement of pending applications to buy, and competitive biddings after appraisals of fair market value. Tracts sold would be limited to 5,120 acres.

The Bureau of Land Management of the Interior Department believes the new offerings will relieve population pressures which are beginning to build up on desert lands.

The measure passed the House of Representatives on the consent calendar, without debate and without opposition.'

Mosk Speaks to Solons on Water Bills

WASHINGTON (AP)—Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk of California pledged his support Saturday to the proposed Central Arizona Water Project if Congress gives existing projects in the lower Colorado basin a prior water right.

"Great projects, supporting millions of people, already have been built by those who thought — and reasonably thought—that the law protected those projects in the water they used," Mosk said. "The law to be fashioned should accord with that understanding."

He told the Senate reclamation subcommittee this is the sole purpose of an amendment he drafted for Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif.

The amendment could be added, he said, to either the Central Arizona Project authorization bill introduced by Arizona's two senators or to a pending draft bill to authorize Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall's broad Pacific Southwest water plan, which would include the Central Arizona Project.

Quake at A-Plant Feared by Engle

WASHINGTON (AP)—Expressing fear of an earthquake-triggered atomic blast, Sen. Clair Engle, D-Cal., urged Saturday that Congress delay construction of a nuclear power plant at Bodega Head in Sonoma County.

Engle announced through his office the preparation of a resolution for the Senate to direct the Atomic Energy Commission to withhold a permit for the plant until the AEC can certify to Congress "with reasonable scientific assurance, the geologic adequacy and seismic safety of said site."

The resolution says Pacific Gas & Electric Co. has spent nearly $4 million for excavation and development of a site within 1,000 feet of the rift zone of the San Andreas Fault which caused the 1906 San Francisco earthquake.

It cited two reports of geological survey investigators. One by Dr. J. P. Eaton last September concluded that Bodega Head "is not an adequately safe location for a nuclear power plant." The second, in December by Drs. Julius Schlocker and Manuel G. Bonilla, said that if a future earthquake near Bodega Head caused fault displacements comparable to those of 1906, "rupturing of near-surface granitic bedrock would be expected somewhere at Bodega Head."

9 CANDIDATES VIE FOR 3 POSITIONS

Hill Elects Councilmen Tuesday

Signal Hill voters Tuesday will elect three city councilmen from among nine candidates, including two incumbents.

Each incumbent, Paul S. Kemner and Thomas W. Denham Sr., is in a three-candidate slate. With Denham are William C. Probert, retired steelman, and M. F. (Buzz) McCallen, owner of Hilltop Auto Sales. The slate with Kemner, a former mayor, includes Morris L. Shoup, former councilman and mayor, and George E. Papadakis, chairman of the city planning commission.

The three unaffiliated candidates are attorney Norman D. Causey, realtor Verne Morrill and the controversial Tod C. (Kid Mexico) Faulkner.

Backgrounds and platforms of the candidates, as supplied by them, are as follows:

PAUL S. KEMNER

Kemner, 43, of 2096 St. Louis Ave., is a painting contractor. He is a graduate of University of California at Berkeley and attended Long Beach City College. Affiliations include Boy Scout work, P-TA.

G. E. PAPADAKIS

Papadakis, 36, of 2131 E. 21st St., teaches school in Torrance. He is past treasurer of Torrance Education Association, board member of the Greek Orthodox Church, an Elk and former United Fund captain. He and his wife, Colleen, have three children. He has been on the Planning Commission three years.

Shoup, 49, won a recall election in 1959, served a year as mayor and was defeated in the 1962 council election. He is shipping-dock superintendent of an express firm and is active in Monte Vista Masonic Lodge.

The Kemner - Papadakis - Shoup platform includes: opposition to "very real threat posed by 'organized gambling interests;'" a balanced city budget; land acquisition for water and public parks; industrial development to broaden tax base; support of the city's general plan; efficiency study of city operations; resistance to "any form of metropolitan control" while cooperating with other agencies, and offer of "proven leadership" with 8 years of civic government experience.

T. W. DENHAM SR.

Denham, 58, of 1825 E. Hill St., is a builder and developer. He is a Shriner and a member of El Bekal Temple and of the Guiding Light Tabernacle in Signal Hill.

M. F. McCALLEN

McCallen, 43, of 1790 E. Burnett St., has lived in Signal Hill for a quarter of a century. He has memberships in Rotary Club and Signal Hill Chamber of Commerce.

W. C. PROBERT

Probert, 69, of 2068 St. Louis St., is a retired owner of a metals distributing firm. He is an active Mason, including Calvary White Shrine among his memberships. His son is city administrative officer of San Gabriel.

The platform of this slate provides pledges of strong local government and representation of the city "with dignity, honor and consideration for all citizens;" maximum services for every tax dollar; completion of citywide lighting program; opposition to condemnation of private property for uses not beneficial to the people; balanced budget; opposition to "any form of commercial gambling;" their "most thoughtful consideration" of Signal Hill development, and preservation of self-government to promote Signal Hill as "the best city in which to live."

N. D. CAUSEY

Causey, 33, of 1999 Junipero Ave., ran unsuccessfully for council in two previous elections. His affiliations include a number of legal groups. His platform supports all three propositions on the ballot. He says the office of city attorney should also be elective and councilmen should be elected by district rather than at large.

VERNE MORRILL

Verne Morrill, 60, of 2225 Cherry Ave., describes his candidacy as non-political. He cites long activities for Signal Hill, World War II scrap metal drive and victory gardens, fund-raising for the first city ambulance and bringing many realty developments to the city. Among affiliations are nine years with Long Beach District Board of Realtors, Armed Services YMCA Committee and National Conference of Christians and Jews. His 17-point platform includes opposition to repeal of the residency requirement for employes, but support for the other two ballot propositions.

Faulkner, 63, of 2332 Cerritos Ave., lists himself as retired businessman, property owner and professional boxer, only fighter ever to hold three state titles, bantam-, welter- and middleweight. Platform includes general support of master planning and zoning with avoidance of "reckless enthusiasm" to hold tax rate "at rock bottom," but advocates building a municipal auditorium "in time for the World's Fair," among other recreational developments.

Hill's Long Residency Battle Coming to Vote

Legislative measures before Signal Hill voters as propositions on Tuesday's ballot include the long-standing issue of whether civil service employes should be required to live within the city's boundaries.

The issue long has been fought by Signal Hill firemen, many having regularly secured exemptions from the existing ordinance on grounds they are unable to find suitable homes at a cost they can afford in Signal Hill. The city council has followed an interim policy of granting these extensions of time automatically pending a decision by the voters.

The firemen now have been joined in the campaign for approval of proposition 1, which would repeal the ordinance, by the Signal Hill Police Officers' Association.

• • • •

THE POA wrote the formal argument in favor of the proposition that accompanies sample ballots. The argument cited difficulty of finding homes either to rent or buy "out of wages paid in our various city departments," particularly for families with children.

The argument against repeal was written by Mrs. Nellie J. Combellack, president of the Taxpayers Association and formerly the mayor for many years, who also is author of the arguments against the two other propositions.

The other measures would change the elective offices of clerk and treasurer to positions appointed by City Council.

• • • •

MRS. COMBELLACK'S argument for keeping the residency requirment says employe families living outside "are responsible for a decline in city funds from the state." This is based on the fact that some state funds, such as allocations from sales tax revenues, are based on population. Her argument also says employes "are paid top wages," ought to live "where they receive their paychecks and states the Taxpayers Association unanimously opposes outside residence.

Mrs. Combellack's arguments on the other propositions call on the voters not to give up their right of electing clerk and treasurer, which they have done since the city's incorporation in 1924. They point out that if these officials fail to properly perform their duties, they now can be removed by the people through recall, and cites unanimous votes by the Taxpayers Association against both propositions.

In the campaign for repeal of the residency requirement, the Signal Hill Firefighters Association has distributed material that lists 26 businesses in the city as "prominent taxpayers" who "fully endorse" the repeal proposition.

The firefighters say apartment restrictions, high property cost and minimum choice of location "make it extremely difficult for employes to reside in Signal Hill" and that repeal will permit "the possibility for each person to locate within his financial means."

The official arguments for making the clerk and treasurer positions appointive come from the council itself. They call the propositions "non-controversial" and say they "do not reflect on the present office-holders" but are proposed in the best interests of the city.

RADIO FAULTY

Joan Delayed at Calcutta, Jerrie Ahead

A blonde Ohio housewife appeared to have taken an unbeatable lead Saturday over Joan Merriam Smith of Long Beach in their respective bids to be the first woman to fly solo around the world.

Mrs. Jerrie Mock, 38, landed on Guam while Mrs. Smith, 27, was grounded with a faulty radio several thousand miles away at Dum Dum Airport outside Calcutta. Mrs. Mock planned to stay overnight at Guam, then fly to Wake Island.

Mrs. Smith expects to take off today on the next leg of her flight, tracing the course followed 27 years ago by Amelia Earhart on her ill-fated flight. Mrs. Mock plans to fly from Wake Island to Honolulu, then on to San Francisco to complete her circuit.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

South Carolinian Is Mrs. America

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (UPI)—Mrs. South Carolina, eseree Jenkins, was crowned Mrs. America of 1964 Saturday night.

DESEREE JENKINS

The 34-year-old mother of two from Columbia was picked from 10 semifinalists.

When the panel of judges announced the winner of the week-long contest, Mrs. Jenkins looked stunned. Then a broad smile flashed across her pretty face and tears streamed from her big brown eyes.

When she regained her composure, Mrs. Jenkins said she was "shocked, but overjoyed" that she had won.

"I couldn't move when I heard my name. I didn't believe it.

"But when they handed me my crown and robe and a big bunch of flowers, I knew it was true," she said.

Her husband Joe charged through the crowd, hugged her and said:

"Baby, I love you."

Mrs. Jenkins, who had won the good grooming competition earlier, said she had had no hope of winning the contest. "I was just proud to get that one title," she said.

Fliers Rescued After Ditching

HONOLULU (UPI)—Two fliers were rescued from rough seas northeast of Hilo Saturday about six hours after ditching their crippled twin-engine aircraft with a cheerful "Here we go for a ride."

The survivors, neither of them injured, were in good spirits when taken aboard the Cape Small, a Coast Guard patrol vessel. The Cape Small also picked up three other men—an Airforce paramedic team—who parachuted from planes at daybreak to attend the airmen.

Aboard the ditched Lockheed Ventura were pilot Blaine Gardner, owner of Aero Service Corp. at Manila, and co-pilot Vic Koss, 38, of Hayward, Calif., an aircraft inspector at Alameda Naval Air Station.

Brazil Coup Leader Named President

BRASILIA (UPI)—The army general who led the successful military coup against Joao Goulart's government was named interim Brazilian president Saturday night in a drab, spiritless congressional election.

GEN. HUMBERTO BRANCO

The nearly-unanimous vote for Gen. Humberto Castello Branco was marred by a low-keyed but nevertheless dramatic show of defiance by Goulart's Labor Party which abstained from the roll call vote in the Chamber of Deputies.

The combined Congress — Chamber and Senate — gave Castello Branco 361 votes out of 438 present. There were 72 abstentions and 37 congressmen were absent.

Christian Democrat Deputy Juarez Tavora received three votes and retired Marshal Eurico Gaspar Dutra two. Duta is a former Brazilian president.

Castello Branco will serve out what was left of the ousted Goulart's term—until Jan. 31, 1966, when a full-term president to be elected in October, 1965 will take over.

L.A. Mob Tosses Rocks at Crash Scene

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—One man was killed Saturday in a bus-auto collision in the south-central part of the city and an unruly crowd gathered and threw bottles and rocks at policemen investigating the accident.

Police said an ambulance and a patrol car were damaged by the flying debris.

The incident took place in the same general area where a riot occurred among 2,000 high school students Friday at the end of a track-and-field meet between Jlferson and Manual Arts High Schools.

Police said about 250 persons gathered at the accident scene. One arrest was made. Police booked Bill Ray Bagby, 19, on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon. Officers said he was observed throwing pieces of cement.

Killed in the crash was Myles Evans, 28, Los Angeles, driver of the car.

Prisoners Tear Up Miami's New Jail

MIAMI (UPI)—Rioting prisoners smashed windows in Dade County's modernistic new jail Saturday, flooded cells and corridors and hurled garbage and flaming debris through the broken windows to the yard below.

Peace was restored after 4½ hours, with 15 alleged leaders in solitary confinement. No injuries were reported to either officers or prisoners. Damage was estimated at $1,000.

Barry Aide Sees Rumford Act Repeal

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The financial coordinator for Sen. Barry Goldwater's California campaign Saturday predicted voters would repeal the Rumford Housing Act this November.

"The initiative is going to carry by the largest majority of any initiative in the history of California," said former Assemblyman Joseph C. Shell.

Shell spoke at an afternoon session of the board of directors of the California Young Republicans Organization.

Louisiana's Block-LBJ Bid Fails

BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI)—The Democratic State Central Committee refused by a single vote Saturday to knock out a move for independent presidential electors that could keep President Johnson off the Louisiana ballot in November.

Arch-segregationist Leander H. Perez, victorious after complicated struggle over parliamentary procedure, said it was not a rebuff of Johnson, considered the probable party nominee.

But, he said, "it will force . . . Johnson to come to Louisiana and tell the voters what he's going to do for them—and then the voters will give him a kick in the pants."

Salinger Says Water Top Issue

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Pierre Salinger, seeking the Democratic senatorial nomination, listed California's water problems Saturday as one of the issues he'll hit hardest.

"There cannot be a more important statewide issue," Salinger said. "Our lives for the next 100 years will be affected by the decisions soon to be made about water."

SAC Chief Says Pentagon Is Forcing His Retirement

OMAHA, Neb. (UPI)—Gen. Thomas Power, head of the Strategic Air Command, said Saturday in a copyrighted story in the Omaha World-Herald he is being forced to retire on schedule Nov. 30.

"I'm not quitting," Power said. "They're asking me to leave." He has been commander-in-chief of SAC since July 1957.

He said he plans to publish "Design for Survival," a book which he said has been ordered withheld from print by a Defense Department order for more than five years.

FABULOUS COMMAND: THE 15TH AIR FORCE

$6-Billion Composite of Men, Machines Keeps Freedom Free

Despite the fact that he is a staunch advocate of a mixed force of bombers and missiles, Gen. Old is a heavy-bomber man since long before World War II.

Today, he'll grin slightly and tell you that despite the ever-increasing number of missiles, most of Fifteenth Air Force's lethal destructive power is carried in the bomb bays of his B52s.

Professional management of men, money and machinery is the cornerstone on which the success of the Fifteenth, as well as SAC, rests.

"Management is everything," Gen. Old says flatly, "in operations as well as administration."

• • • •

THE GENERAL is speaking as a big businessman, operating a business solely designed to prevent war but operated in such a manner that should an aggressor start a war the attack could be absorbed and the enemy defeated.

He heads a "corporation" that is composed of more than 77,000 people including 10,000 officers, 61,000 airmen and 6,000 civilians.

Assets of this carefully managed business run by Gen. Old total around $6 billion. Included are equipment valued at more than $500 million and supplies totaling $175 million. Its real property adds up to more than $1½ billion and its aircraft and other weapons to almost $4 billion.

And, like any other growing concern, Gen. Old and his Fifteenth Air Force have to spend money to stay in business; a lot of money. Pay for officers, airmen and civilians alone comes to almost $300 million a year. Then other items such as subsistence for personnel, medical services, etc., add up to approximately $500 million each year.

• • • •

THERE are other dollars spent—for fuels.

Weapons use a lot of fuel these days and the fuels are varied.

For example, because of high altitudes at which aircraft fly today, liquid oxygen is vital. Almost 6 million gallons were used last year. Both Atlas and Titan I missiles use large quantities of this oxygen or LOX as it is called.

The Minuteman is a solid-fuel missile and Titan II uses a special type of storable fuel.

Helium is also used, about 37 million cubic feet a year. Nitrogen needed in the Atlas and Titan I totals more than 7½ million gallons a year.

Jet bombers, tankers, and other planes consumed about 635 million gallons of kerosene (JP4) last year which cost $63 million. Other fuels and LOX and nitrogen cost about 3½ million a year.

Much of the liquid oxygen and nitrogen is manufactured in plants operated by the Fifteenth Air Force. Each missile base has a plant with a capacity of 5,000 gallons a day for either LOX or nitrogen.

• • • •

IN ADDITION, Gen. Old manages 15 B52 and 9 B47 jet-bomber squadrons, plus 13 KC135 jet-tanker squadrons. Bomber, tanker and missile-combat crews work more than 74 hours a week on an average work schedule.

By last summer there were 22 operating ICBM squadrons capable of launching missiles against an aggressor, 16 of them in the Fifteenth Air Force.

The boss of this far-flung empire, Gen. Old, like the majority of successful executives of the nation's major corporations, is a perfectionist.

As a youngster in Farmersville, Texas, in college at Trinity University and Texas University, and through aviation cadet days in the old Army Air Corps, Gen. Old always left his mark for getting the most out of everything he did.

His never-ending demand for efficiency has enabled him to put several outstanding accomplishments into the history of military aviation.

• • • •

ONE OF his prime efforts was the first round-the-world flight of three Boeing B52 heavy bombers in 1957.

When the historic project was given the Fifteenth Air Force by the Strategic Air Command, Gen. Old delegated it to the 93rd Bombardment Wing at Castle Air Force Base near Merced but let it be known that he would fly in the lead airplane.

After careful perusal of all phases of planning, Gen. Old took off from Castle Air Force Base on Jan. 16, 1957, and circled the globe in his B52, a total distance of 24,325 miles, in 45 hours and 19 minutes, landing at March Air Force Base.

Perfectionist Old refused to get excited when he was greeted after landing. He had reviewed the operation many times before taking off and knew that it could be done. He told reporters that the flight was merely a routine SAC mission and that "the planning and preparation that went into the aerial circumnavigation were identical to what is remanded every day in the Fifteen Air Force and the Strategic Air Command."

• • • •

THE TRIM general is keen on physical conditioning and works out in the base gymnasium every chance he gets. He usually skips lunch and spends the noon hour in the gym.

He is an expert golfer, playing in major amateur tournaments whenever his busy schedule will allow. He carries a high average as a bowler, like hunting and fishing when he has time, and is considered a gin rummy expert.

He is known as a tough taskmaster, but on the other hand, will fight for his men with higher headquarters even more enthusiastically than the higher headquarters may like. "We keep our troubles in the family," he says grinning. "To the outside world we present a solid front."

A staff officer at Fifteenth Air Force headquarters last week noted that "General Old is a pilot's pilot. With his experience as a combat pilot and flying know-how, his is fully acquainted with all operational and technical requirements facing his command. He is demanding but asks nothing of his staff officers which he cannot do himself.

• • • •

"BRIEFLY, under the outside toughness is a warm human being whose concern for his men is as important as the mission."

Gen. Old, in a interview with The Independent, Press-Telegram, was equally emphatic about his interest in his men.

"They're the best," he says. "While we take advantage of every—and I mean every—scientific device that comes along, the mechanical brain or gadget is only as good as the man who runs it.

"There will never be a mechanical substitute for man's ingenuity, dedication, courage and reliability as typified by our SAC personnel.

"Our men are the greatest force for peace in the world today.

"Their willingness to put in a 74-hour work-week, to spend days at a time away from their families, and their ability to maintain a constant state of alert is the major deterrent—the critical factor that would make it profitless for anyone to attack us.

• • • •

ALERT is a way of life for Gen. Old and all his men. The general himself, or his deputy, is always on instant call.

In addition to communication systems in his office and in his car, Gen. Old carries a radio on his belt so he can be summoned at any time.

Even in his more relaxed moments recalling his days in Europe with Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, then the commander of the Eighth Air Force and now the Air Force's chief of staff, Gen. Old is only a telephone ring from instant action.

His belt radio is with him on the base golf course. He knows that even as he answers it, his staff car will be careening down the fairway to pick him up and speed him to his command post.

Instant communications are vital to him. A 30-second delay in a call is 30 seconds too long.

"When your phone rings," says one key staff officer, "you damn well better pick it up on the first ring. There just aren't any excuses.

"Oh, its a little different at home when you're off duty—You're allowed up to six rings then—but you better not take 'em all."

That's life in SAC—

And, particularly, that's life in Fifteenth Air Force under Gen. Old.

One ring from "go".

CROCKETT (UPI) — Union workers at the California and Hawaii sugar plant here went on strike Saturday after negotiations on a new contract deadlocked.

Missile Contract Awarded by Army

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army has awarded a $15,222,358 contract to General Dynamics, Pomona, to begin production of Redeye missiles, the office of U.S. Sen. Clair Engle said.

The shoulder-fired Redeye is designed to destroy low-flying enemy aircraft.

Automaton Roams Johns Hopkins Corridors and Offices

BALTIMORE (AP)—An automation that roams halls and offices is giving the jitters to scientists at the Johns Hopkins University applied physics laboratory.

The 100-pound robot, dubbed the Beast, sends staff members scurrying to slam their doors when they hear its buzzing approach, lest it pop into their offices.

The robot, which looks like a huge hatbox on wheels, is the only one in the world that can survive in a natural environment — in this case a maze of corridors and offices at the lab.

Hopkins scientists have given the beast a computer brain and an electrical sense of touch that enable it to replenish its energy and cope with obstacles.

When its 12 silver cadmium batteries start to run down, the Beast feels its way along a corridor until it finds an electrical outlet. Microswitch fingers on the end of its arm can sense the contours of a regular electric socket. When contact is made, the robot inserts two prongs into the outlet and recharges the batteries. Then it pulls out the prongs and moves on.

The machine steers itself by using its arm and microswitches built into its wraparound bumper to feel its way along corridors cluttered with soft drink machines, stair wells, office doors and people.

Occasionally, its arm gets caught in a stair railing or an electrical cord and has to extricate itself.

"To survive, it has to be able to recognize that it is not getting anywhere," said George Carlton, the scientist who heads the laboratory's adaptive machines group.

The robot moves back and forth, shaking its arm to disentangle it. If that doesn't work, it does a pirouette. If it is still caught, it tries backing straight away. With built-in persistence, it keeps wiggling until it is free.

Soon, Hopkins scientists will equip the Beast with an echo-ranging device so it can roll straight down hallways and an electric eye for spotting wall plugs.

Eventually, scientists hope to develop more complicated models that can be used for space and underwater exploration.

MacArthur Entombed in Norfolk Memorial

general had held to be the highest human aspiration: "Duty, Honor, Country."

Perhaps she remembered the day nearly two years ago when, already tiring and sensing that his life was drawing to a close, he stood at West Point and told the cadet corps: "The shadows are lengthening for me . . . I listen vainly, but with thirsty ear, for the witching melody of faint bugles blowing . . ."

At her left stood their tall, dark-haired son, Arthur, 27. At her right stood Douglas II, the general's nephew, who formerly was ambassador to Japan and to Belgium.

Mrs. MacArthur was entirely composed—as she had been throughout — when she was handed the folded U.S. flag that had covered the casket. She thanked the escort commander, Maj. Gen. Hugh M. Exton, when he presented the Flag to her, and then clasped it to her breast with black-gloved hands.

That was the end of funeral services that began at the rotunda, went in solemn military procession to ancient St. Paul's Episcopal Church, two blocks away, for a half-hour ceremony, and returned to the Memorial for the burial rites.

The services lasted an hour and 20 minutes, ending at 10:40 a.m. The family received condolences from friends and old military comrades inside the memorial after that. When Mrs. MacArthur, her son, and Douglas II emerged at 11:25 a.m., she still was clutching the Flag.

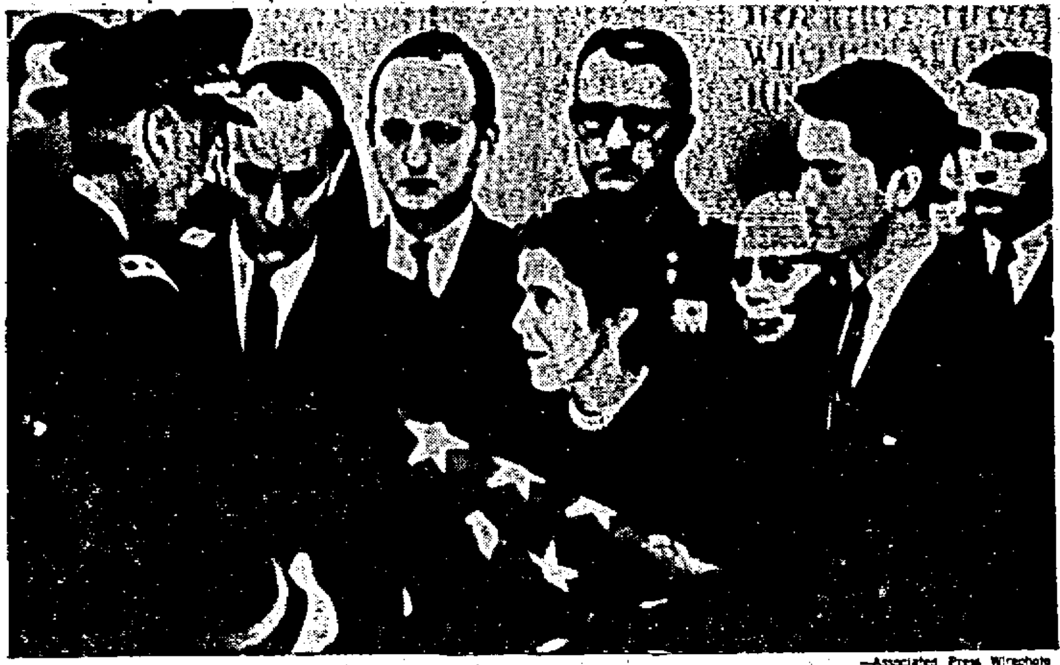
Midway down the front steps of the columned, 114-year-old building, she stopped and handed the colors—folded to a small triangle, with the stars showing—to Norfolk City Manager Thomas Maxwell. It will be put in the Memorial.

Mrs. MacArthur and Arthur left immediately for New York by plane from the Naval Air Station here.

The casket rested on a platform that had been built over a circular, depressed crypt area, 36 feet in diameter, in the middle of the rotunda. Late in the afternoon, in private, the coffin was lowered into its tomb. Beside it is another tomb, for Mrs. MacArthur.

The walls of the rotunda bear the flags of the many units that fought under MacArthur. They are lettered with excerpts from his speeches, and high up in the rotunda are printed the names of his campaign, from Vera Cruz to the Yalu.

It was in this setting that more than 60,000 persons filed past the bier to view the body from 6 p.m. Thursday until 7 a.m. Saturday, when the Memorial was closed to prepare for the services.



—Associated Press Wirephoto

MRS. DOUGLAS MacARTHUR accepts flag that covered casket of Gen. MacArthur during services in the MacArthur Memorial at Norfolk, Va. Making presentation is Maj. Gen. H. M. Eaton. Next to him is former ambassador Douglas MacArthur, the general's nephew. At right is general's son Arthur.

POOCH IS A REAL WAG

We've Had Cat Burglars; Now -- You Guessed It

ST. JOSEPH, Mich. (UPI)—Police advised a St. Joseph couple Saturday to put their money in a bank—or get a new watchdog.

Officers received a telephone call Friday night reporting $10,400 missing from the pair's home.

A thorough search of the house turned up the money. Some was hidden under the bed and the rest was stashed behind the toilet.

The couple's pet dog apparently had a busy night lugging the money bags from one part of the house to another.

Police declined to identify the couple for fear a real burglar would get wind of the easy pickings.

Petty Officer Uniform Put to the Test

SAN DIEGO (UPI)—Testing has begun at North Island Naval Air Station on a new type uniform for Navy First and Second class petty officers.

Fifty petty officers have been selected to try out the uniform, a replica of the chief petty officers' uniforms except for insignia.

A Navy spokesman said 1,000 of the new uniforms would be tested throughout Navy commands to determine whether morale, recruitment and retention of Navy personnel are improved.

A poll of chief petty officers last year indicated they were against lower petty officers having the same uniform, but a similar poll of enlisted men indicated dissatisfaction with their uniforms.

Posh Ceremony to Unite Irene, Prince Carlos

PARIS (UPI)—The wedding of Princess Irene of The Netherlands and Prince Carlos de Bourbon-Parma will be "a grand and splendid ceremony" celebrated by "hundreds" of Spanish Carlists, a spokesman for the prince said Saturday.

The spokesman laughed at rumors around Europe that "La Princesse Terrible," as the French press calls Irene, and the prince, son of the Carlist pretender to the Spanish throne, already have wed in secret.

"That is absolutely false," the spokesman said. "When they marry, no matter where, there will be a grand and splendid ceremony which will attract without doubt hundreds and perhaps thousands of Carlists from all over Spain.

RICHARD STRAUSS'S LAST OPERA GLORIOUS

USC Gives 'Love of Danae' U.S. Premiere

By RACHEL MORTON

Walter Ducloux has added still another star to his crown of musical achievements as head of the music department of USC. On Friday night in Bovard Auditorium the USC Opera Theater presented the American premier of "The Love of Danae," the last opera written by Richard Strauss.

Ducloux staged and conducted the performance which will be repeated tonight and Tuesday night.

After hearing this masterpiece by one of the greatest composers of our time, it is hard to understand why it has been so shamefully neglected in our country for so long a time. (It was composed between 1938 and 1940 and Strauss died in 1949.) To Ducloux and USC we owe our profound gratitude for the privilege and honor of having this opera premiered in our midst.

The music of Richard Strauss, like that of the other genius, Richard Wagner, is heavily orchestrated in the richest of colors. Frequently one heard familiar Wagnerian influence as in the music of Jupiter's Soliloquy, so like Wotan's Farewell and in the music of the fall of Valhalla, home of the gods, requires great performers.

Ducloux, with college material both in the orchestra and among the singers, shaped a performance Friday night that was nothing short of astonishing. The large augmented orchestra played the difficult score like a professional organization and the young singers amazed us with performances near perfection.

The story concerns the unsuccessful suit of the god Jupiter for the hand of the beautiful mortal Danae.

A really great artist was discovered in Genevieve Weide, soprano, who sang the role of Danae. Her beautiful voice was voluptuously warm in color, dazzling in the upper range and faultlessly produced. To this rare vocal gift was added beauty in appearance and tender womanliness in her acting. Miss Weide should go to the very top in opera.

Richard Riffel was a handsome Midas in his tunic of gold. His powerful tenor voice found no hazards in the difficult music and there was nobility and persuasiveness in his acting. His was a professional performance of distinction and one could easily visualize in him a future Siegfried.

Another handsome figure in a tunic of blue and silver was tenor Richard Robinson as Mercury, whose vocal virility was matched by his spontaneous acting. The important and taxing role of Jupiter was sung by George Gibson. His baritone voice was not big enough for the enormous demands made upon it and his acting, though sincere, was not that of a god of Olympus.

A quartet of beautiful voices was heard in the thrilling music of the ensembles sung by the "four wives," Karla Nelson, Linda Sue Marks, Gloria Hodes and Lucille Anderton. Equally impressive were the four nephews of the king, sung by William Ghent, Peter Lau, French Tickner and Dennis Dalsimer.

Gene Allen sang well the role of the embattled Pollux and Carol Plantamura was a sympathetic Xanthe with a lovely voice.

The stage and lighting effects were exceptionally dramatic, as in the slant-shower of golden rain . . . the student appearance of the phantom ship bearing Jupiter to earth . . . the dramatic changing of Danae to a statue of gold, and the gleaming golden coins that Jupiter tossed high in the air to the milling crowds.

The costumes in different tones of gold which the principals wore in the second act were gorgeous. It was a pity that at the very end Midas did not rush dramatically on stage into the arms of his faithful wife, as the music so overwhelmingly depicted.

But above and beyond all was the soul-stirring music of Richard Strauss as Ducloux unfolded it in superb orchestral playing.

Spying Trial May 25 for GI Deserter

KANSAS CITY (UPI) — George John Gessner, a 28-year-old Army deserter charged with passing military secrets to the Russians, Saturday was found mentally competent to stand trial, and trial was set for May 25.

Federal District Judge Arthur Stanley Jr. said Gessner is "mentally competent to understand the charges against him and assist in his defense."

Gessner, born in Homestead, Pa., was brought here for his third mental competency hearing since he was charged March 16, 1962, with passing U.S. missile and nuclear weapons secrets to Soviet agents at the Russian Embassy in Mexico City.

Stanley ordered Gessner held without bail at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth.

Dr. George S. Parlato, psychiatrist at the U.S. Medical Center at Springfield, Mo., testified as to Gessner's mental competency at the brief hearing.

He said requests should be in by then so arrangements can be made with the Civil Service Commission for candidates to participate in examination which will be given locally on July 13.

Hosmer said he requires these examinations because his designations are made partly on the basis of grades received. He said those wishing to compete in the designating examination should send their requests to him. The address: Room 530, House Office Building, Washington 25, D.C.

C. C. Prof Authors Cook Book

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I.-P.-T. Food Editor

No avocation would be more apropos of an English and literature professor than writing a cookbook. And no one would be better qualified to write a cook book than Dr. George C. Booth, "prof" at Long Beach City College.

To say that Dr. Booth is a "prof" is understating the facts. Thirty years ago he started his career at Long Beach City College as instructor and faculty adviser of journalism. His colleagues and students proclaim him one of the most popular professors on the campus, and one whose classes are unique and wonderfully interesting.

• • • •

A FREELANCE writer and photographer, Booth has, since 1936, made many trips to Mexico, and while on sabbatical leave in '58-'59, he and Mrs. Booth took up residence there. He speaks the language like a native.

The book now completed, and been published by the Ward Ritchie Press, will be available in Long Beach on April 20 at Buffums book department. Called "The Food and Drink of Mexico," it is chock full of authentic and exceptional dishes. It is a book of Mexican cookery which will delight and intrigue those interested in distinctive and unusual food, with drink recipes from all Latin America. He was inspired to write the book when he became aware that the food in Mexico is much more than beans and tamales.

Johnson Calls on Old Friend Frankfurter

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson paid a 20-minute call Saturday on retired Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter and said he intends to return from time to time.

The President described the 81-year-old Frankfurter as a "genuine and very dear friend." He said he had been corresponding with Frankfurter and when an opening developed on his schedule decided to visit him at his apartment in northwest Washington.

Frankfurter suffered a stroke-like illness two years ago and remains partly paralyzed. He greeted the President in a business suit and sat in a desk chair as they conferred in the study of his second floor apartment.

UNUSUAL CAR DEALER TELLS STORY OF HUGE PRICE CUTTING

"1964 AUTOMOBILE DISCOUNT SELLING ANGERS COMPETITORS IN LONG BEACH

"A most unusual car dealer" as Bill Whitledge is know in automotive circles, said yesterday that his low cost 1964 automobile selling program has caused some strong protests from other Long Beach dealers.

"I can't help it if they get mad," says Bill with a friendly smile, "this is a highly competitive business, if I'm offering the buyer a better deal, why, naturally he'll buy from me" but Whitledge's Village Motors dealership is not without considerable respect from the majority of car dealers in and around Long Beach. His long-standing reputation in the area has been a large factor in the success which he has enjoyed.

We Sell Them Low Because They're "Used"

Although the many 1964 cars have much of the new car warrantee and other guarantees, the Village Motors' policy insists that they be "used cars" even if they still smell brand new and may have as little as 1,500 miles on them. "If a man wants to buy a car that looks new, drives new, but costs the same as a used car then he'll wind up at Village Motors," according to Whitledge. "We've got mostly 64s, 63s' and 62s, none of those old-timers." It may be significant that most buyers are looking for something a little better than they're presently driving, consequently they may be looking for a very late model, like a 1964, during the same year.

Shrewder Buyers Impressed by Savings

"Car buyers are much more attentive to the small details about buying a car nowadays" asserts Whitledge, "they shop around more, compare cars and prices more, and I think they get more for their money" he continues, "at least they do at Village."

Profit Margin Not a Factor

"The way we work it, we'll take a particular car, say a 1964 Ford, we'll spotlight this car for a month and sell as many as we can, then we'll go to Pontiacs or Oldsmobiles. "Of course, we get the cream of the crop, they're real clean so they move fast." Evidently they do move as fast as Villages says, because the volume of our business is phenomenal. "We move so darn many cars that we can cut our mark-up way down." When asked how it was possible to sell so many cars, Whitledge replied: "we've got ways to finance people so that they have the smallest down payment possible, and our prices are so low that monthly payments are quite small too." To be specific, he pointed out that "we'd rather make $50 a car on fifty cars, than make $400 a car on five cars, this way, we sell lots of clean cars for low prices to people who really appreciate the savings, we make some good money, and the buyers give us lots of referrals."

Even Offer Six Month Guarantees

"When we sell a car, we sell security and confidence with it as well," continues Whitledge, "if a car does not happen to have a balance of new car warranty Village Motors backs it up and guarantees the engine, transmission and differential of all our cars for ninety days, plus we warrantee all parts and labor for six months at our cost." This unusual dealer, with his high volume of late model near-new cars will bear watching.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

LBJ Gains Respite in 1st Labor Crisis

By SAM FOGG
United Press International

President Johnson encountered his first major labor crisis last week and only through personal persuasion averted an immediate nationwide railway strike.

With less than two hours to go before a one-minute-after-midnight deadline, Johnson wrung from both sides late Thursday an agreement to postpone the looming showdown for 15 days. It took all of the carrot-and-stick skills the President learned in three decades of Capitol Hill experience to gain the respite.

* * * * *

THERE STILL was no assurance that he could prevent a coast-to-coast railroad tie-up which has threatened to erupt during the prior administrations of both Dwight D. Eisenhower and John F. Kennedy.

Yet Johnson was exerting the strong psychological and public pressures of the presidency to win some sort of willingness from the union and management antagonists to avoid an outright strike.

After winning the 15-day breathing spell, he set up a five-man team of presidential negotiators to work with both sides in the cabinet room of the White House which is but a few paces from his own office.

* * * *

AND WHILE expressing confidence that steps toward settlement would be taken by the bargainers, Johnson served blunt notice that if need be he would ask an exasperated Congress to pass emergency legislation to prevent a crippling strike should the mediation collapse.

As matters now stand, the federal government has exhausted all legal machinery to block a rail strike under the National Railway Labor Act. In addition, legislation passed late last session which compelled the first peacetime compulsory arbitration in railroad history expired on Feb. 28.

At issue was the complex maze of new work rule changes the railroads want to institute.

The courts and a series of mediation boards have given the carriers the right to put the rules into effect, but management representatives and spokesmen for the five major rail unions have been plodding away in the hope of amicable settlement.

* * * * *

THE TRUCE fell apart last week when 7,200 workers went on strike against the Illinois Central Railroad that serves a 14-state region stretching from Lake Michigan to the Gulf Coast.

Members of the Association of American Railroads promptly countered with a declaration that the carriers would impose the new work rules at 12:01 a.m. EST Friday.

At Johnson's behest, Labor Secretary W. Willard Wirtz summoned both sides to Washington in a fruitless effort to restore peace. At 6 p.m. Thursday with the hours ticking off, Johnson swung into action.

* * * *

HE CALLED the union and management to a personal conference in the cabinet room and tried to win agreement for a 20-day strike moratorium.

It was not until after another three and a half hours of personal bargaining by the President that the moratorium of 15 days was agreed to and the time-bomb of a strike defused—for the time being at least.

From a domestic standpoint, Johnson fared better legislatively last week when the House in a burst of post-Easter recess activity passed both a wheat-cotton farm bill and a food stamp plan he had advocated. The action was marked by a rare demonstration of solidarity between Northern and Southern Democrats.

But the sectional divisiveness that afflicts the Democratic Party was underscored Tuesday in Wisconsin's presidential primary balloting. Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, entered as an outright segregationist in the Northern state, polled more than 264,000 votes or about 34.1 percent of the Democratic balloting.

Wallace, who also is an entry in coming primaries in Indiana and Maryland, ran far behind the administration's "favorite son" candidate, Gov. John W. Reynolds. But the size of his vote stirred discernible signs of concern from Northern political figures who are battling for passage of the civil rights bill by the Senate.

Throughout the week, the nation paid final tribute to Gen. Douglas MacArthur who died last Sunday. He lay in state for viewing by mourning thousands in New York City, the rotunda of the Capitol in Washington and at Norfolk, Va., his final resting place.

The passing of the 84-year-old hero of three wars marked the end of an epic military career. It also stirred a residue of controversy when two interviews he granted 10 years ago were published after his death.

In one of them—with Scripps-Howard correspondent Jim Lucas—the general was quoted as bitterly charging that the British government had betrayed him by leaking secrets of his Korean war strategy to the Chinese Communists.

Lord Attlee—the British prime minister during Korea—denied the allegation. MacArthur's long-time aide, retired Maj. Gen. Courtney Whitney, asserted many of the statements attributed to MacArthur in the Lucas interview were "pure fantasy."

But Whitney acknowledged that MacArthur felt that two British defectors, Guy Burgess and Donald McClean, had been responsible for giving the Reds top allied military information during the Korean War.

And another long-time MacArthur associate, Maj. Gen. Charles A. Willoughby (ret.), who was the general's intelligence chief said he was in "substantial agreement" with the Lucas account.

FOREIGN PRESS VIEWS

Fulbright, Wallace Placed in the European Spotlight

By United Press International

European newspapers commented the past week on American home and foreign affairs, ranging from policy speeches by Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., to the Wisconsin primary.

The Times of London said, "What the senator said in his two recent speeches is not new, yet it will undoubtedly stand out as a landmark in the evolution of American policy. . .

"In effect, Sen. Fulbright is asking the American people to become less hypnotized by the threat of communism, more aware of the changes and diversity within the Communist world, and more concerned about the quality of American life.

"It would be wrong of foreigners to be patronizing about this . . . nevertheless, it is no use denying that in recent years those who have looked to the United States for enlightened leadership as well as military protection have been worried that attitudes have not changed fast enough," the Times said.

Le Monde of Paris said Alabama Gov. George Wallace's sudden entry in the Wisconsin primary "constituted a clever maneuver on the part of those who support racial segregation.

"It was aimed to prove that not only the South was against the civil rights act but also large portions of the populations in north east urban centers."

The Austrian Die Presse, commenting on the 15th anniversary of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO), said:

"NATO has fulfilled its main tasks . . . in the first decade of the alliance, U.S. power and purposefulness consolidated Europe, saved it from succumbing to Soviet pressure, and closely linked Europe with America by means of a network of military, political and economic organizations. . .

"This Europe now calls for an increased share of political and military responsibility. There will hardly be a NATO after 1969 if this development continues in the next five years and if Europe becomes even more self-confident and stronger, thus prompting the United States and the Soviet Union to look for . . . joint guarantees against such a Europe."

The East Berlin newspaper Berliner Zeitung said, "Farmers are the poorest Americans. Although $10,000 a year is necessary on the farm for normal needs there are 350,000 farm families with an annual income of only $438."

CAN CURE LEANING TOWER OF PISA

'It's a Pushover,' Says L.B. Man

By GEORGE ERES

A Long Beach man is willing to bet the Italian government he can straighten out the leaning Tower of Pisa.

"If we can't do it, it won't cost them a cent," said Robert E. Lenihan of Lenihan & Stephenson, soil stabilizers, of 1234 W. Cowles St.

"Of course, they don't want it straightened entirely, but we can bring it back to the degree of tilt they want and it won't cost any $3.2 million—the figure reported in newspaper stories out of Italy. We figure it can be done in about four months for about $250,000," said Lenihan.

Lenihan has written the Italian Ministry of Works, offering to come to Italy at his own expense to discuss the project.

• • • •

IF HE says he can do it, maybe he can. After all, his firm raised an entire mountain top.

"We were the only firm in the U.S. to bid on the job of raising the missile tracks at Hurricane Mesa, Utah. We lifted 16 to 40 feet of bedrock—not just one spot, but the whole mass about 70 feet wide and 3000 feet long—and raised it as much as three inches to conform with the curvature of the earth. We did the job, about four years ago, to correct a subsidence problem, and did it to less than one-sixteenth of an inch tolerance. It took us four months."

• • • •

LENIHAN, a crew cut, leather-tanned, self-styled "madman" at 58 has been in the construction business for 35 years and for the 15 years he has been straightening out people's sinkage problems.

"I started with sidewalks and patios and sections of highway," Lenihan said. "It's a very simple method—so simple that people used to refer to me as that 'crazy guy' over in Gardena."

ROBERT E. LENIHAN
Modern-Day Atlas

It wasn't until he tackled and lifted the Bureau of Power & Light steam plant in Wilmington that the engineers began "talking to him."

"They didn't think I could do it," said Lenihan. "Oh, they figured I could raise the corners. But they said, 'just wait till you get to the slab with all those big condensers.'"

Lenihan not only leveled the cracked slab but raised it to its former level with its more than 100 tons of equipment in place.

• • • •

LENIHAN moved to his present site in Long Beach about eight years ago and seems to have a corner on the market on the service he deals in. He holds contracts with the Port of Long Beach, Long Beach Oil Development Co., Richfield Oil Co., Cal Vet, Union Pacific Railroad and others for soil conservation work.

"The problem of picking up something that has sunk is simple," he said. "All you need is a controllable material to pump underground. I have such a grout—a material that can be used to correct soil conditions that result from lack of compaction. There's no secret to the method: you simply improve the density of the soil and bring it to 100 percent compaction. The secret is in finding the grout that has no shrinkage. Cement and water has not proven satisfactory for this type of work."

Only two men know the proportions of the material used by the firm, Lenihan and his partner, Joe Stephenson.

"The ingredients themselves are no secret," he said. "People have samples and I suppose they've subjected them to analysis, but so far no one has been able to duplicate our material. I experimented with various proportions for three years before I hit on the right formula."

• • • •

ITALIAN engineers and geologists have been warned that the eight-story white marble tower of Pisa originally started in 1174 and completed in 1350, is leaning more and more and by 2100 will topple unless steps are taken to correct the problem. It now is more than 16 feet off perpendicular and is tilting a quarter of an inch each decade.

"We can straighten out the Tower of Pisa and raise it for them if they like," said Lenihan. "But they don't want it straightened altogether. We can not only do that but guarantee them that there will be no further settlement. We've stopped the settling of more than 250 structures. I'd sure like to cure that tower. I'd like to do it even if we don't make a nickle on it."

Promote Deputy City Attorneys

Two Long Beach deputy city attorneys have been promoted in a staff reorganization revealed Saturday by City Atty. Leonard Putnam.

In a letter to the City Council Putnam named Malcolm E. Uptegraff as assistant city attorney and Harold A. Lingle as chief deputy. Both will serve in the city hall office.

The title of Philip J. Brady, head of the harbor branch of the Law Department, will be changed from assistant to chief deputy.

• • • •

PUTNAM will seek council confirmation Tuesday. The reorganization, he said, will effect a "definite chain of command and responsibility" at the city hall office.

Uptegraff joined the city attorney's staff in 1958. He has lived in Long Beach since 1926, graduating from Poly High School and Long Beach Junior College (now City College).

After receiving his law degree from Southwestern University Law School and serving 56 months in the Army, he entered private practice here in 1946.

He and his wife, Marie, reside at 1520 E. Second St. Their son, Michael, attends the University of California Medical School.

• • • •

LINGLE, a Long Beach native, also graduated from Poly as well as the University of Oregon. He received his law degree from Harvard Law School in 1948.

Appointed a deputy in 1956, the new chief deputy has been assigned in recent years to the drafting of tideland oil contracts and related unitization agreements. In this capacity he has appeared many times before the State Lands Commission and other state officials.

Red Cross Fund Drive Push Due

An all-out effort is announced for this week's extension of the fund campaign of Long Beach Chapter, American Red Cross.

"Our March coverage of the city and branches was considerably retarded by Easter week vacations and by chapter work load related to the Alaskan earthquake," said James A. Willingham, fund chairman.

He made a call for potential contributors to mail in their checks or telephone the chapter at 319 W. Broadway for someone to pick up uncollected funds.

"Making contacts is our major campaign problem," he emphasized.

• • • •

WILLINGHAM summarized last week's results:

Collections of $260,000 were tallied toward the overall goal of $387,974.

Artesia and Bellflower branches both passed last year's totals on their climbs to top their goals.

Collections above last year were reported by Long Beach postal employes, Ocean Center building, Los Altos and North Long Beach.

"Dramatic and continued needs in Alaska and other stricken areas in this year of tragic disasters make it imperative that American Red Cross reach its financial goals," said Willingham.

Safe Ejection of Pilots Possible at Ground Level

By LEE CRAIG
Aerospace Editor

As recently as 1955, most military pilots who ejected from disabled aircraft below 2,000 feet need not have bothered. Nearly 90 percent of them were killed.

In a relatively few years, however, the minimum altitude for safe ejection has shrunk down to ground level. And, with the latest systems, the aircraft can be at a standstill on the runway.

Three generations of these aerial lifesavers built by engineers at Douglas Aircraft Company's Long Beach plant were dramatically demonstrated last week at a seminar sponsored by the Naval Parachute Facility at El Centro.

• • • •

LIFE-LIKE DUMMIES were ejected from a low-flying airplane and from fixed stands on the ground, all providing graphic proof of the ability to rocket pilots to safety from situations which would have been fatal a few years ago.

More than 1,500 of Douglas' oldest system, called ESCAPAC I, are installed aboard the Navy's Douglas A-4 Skyhawk attack aircraft, providing safe escape at ground level and at speeds from 70 to 600 knots.

Also demonstrated was a "souped-up" version, ESCAPAC I-C, which offers safe ejection from a standstill at ground level and in flight at all speeds up to 600 knots.

• • • •

THIS SYSTEM IS especially applicable for vertical takeoff and landing aircraft and was chosen for the Lockheed XV-4A Hummingbird VTOL research plane and the Ling-Temco-Vought XC-142A VTOL aircraft.

The third version of the Douglas ejection seat, ESCAPAC II, also has a zero speed-zero altitude capability, with an additional margin of safety provided by a unique parachute which is literally exploded open to deploy the canopy four times as fast as conventional methods.

A charge fires the chute out to the length of the shroud lines, where a second charge fires, ejecting 14 weights attached to the skirt of the canopy. The process pops the parachute open in less than half a second, compared to about two seconds for the conventional method under zero speed conditions.

Beach Combing

With Malcolm Epley

FROM Newcastle, Eng., comes Peter Stattersfield. This personable British bachelor has been visiting at the Procter and Gamble plant here (he's a P and G man in England) and his presence afforded me a chance to probe for some British impressions of the U.S. and interesting experiences of a foreign visitor.

Let's start with an amusing experience Peter had in San Francisco, where he went to see a play and unexpectedly learned about a U.S. service club whose name was new to him.

He got the last seat, in the middle of the 13th row. He immediately realized that all of the people around him were acquainted with each other, and before curtain there was a great deal of jovial talk and quip exchange buzzing around his head.

Presently a lady next to him asked his name and introduced him to her husband. Peter commented that he seemed to be in the middle of a group and the lady said yes, he was.

"We're all Lions," she said. "What are you?"

"A Christian," said Peter, whose name, perhaps, ought to be Daniel.

THE visitor is much interested in U.S. politics and is glad his first visit here was timed with the opening of the campaign.

"I arrived in the U.S. just a couple of days before the New Hampshire primary," he said. "Everybody I talked to told me that to watch for that vote because it would be highly significant.

"Then they held the election, and immediately people began telling me it didn't mean a thing. Evidently the significance of a primary election over here depends on whether you like the result."

THE talk in our little group at the Petroleum Club veered around to the U.S. role in international affairs and a couple of Americans decried what they described as Uncle Sam's timidity in dealing with other nations and U.S. fears of offending somebody.

In Britain, Stattersfield said, there is no such impression of the U.S. The British are inclined to look upon us as pretty progressive and powerful people, and fear the possibility that some hotheaded U.S. act might start a big war with Britain caught in the crossfire. He made it plain that was the widely held view, not necessarily his.

He said most British are rather surprised at expressions of dissatisfaction by some Americans over the outcome of the Cuba confrontation of 1962. They thought that came out pretty well, whereas they hear Americans who complain that the U.S. should have gone into Cuba at the time and knocked Castro over.

THE genial Englishman, in our area for the first time, said he finds freeway traffic startling, but not terrifying. He is impressed by the tendency in this area for structures to run to one and two stories — the widespread, low-rise development that has marked the region but, as we told him, may not be so commonplace here in the future.

He is fascinated by the oil wells dotting this area and in this connection offered a comparison that was a new one on me.

He said that when he was in San Francisco someone took him over to South Tahoe for a look at the gambling casinos.

"When I got down here," he said, "those steadily rocking oil pumping units reminded me of the people I saw up there pulling the handles of slot machines."

THE Newcastle man, I could see, was a little weary of quips about taking coal to his home town. There are coal mines in the area, he said, but there's also a big Procter and Gamble plant, which obviously meant more to him.

More of Same?

WILL THE RESULT of the revolution in Brazil merely be the exchange of one form of tyranny for another?

The rebels toppled the government of President Goulart on the well-documented charge that he was turning Brazil into a Communist state.

No one in the free world wept to see Goulart deposed, but there's not much to cheer in the developments in the Brazilian government under the new leaders.

The revolutionary leaders, bypassing the Brazilian Congress, have empowered themselves to suspend political rights in Brazil for 10 years. They have granted sweeping powers to an interim president not yet selected. They have imposed censorship on the press. And they have frankly admitted: "It remains very clear that the revolution does not seek to legitimize itself through Congress."

In brief, they have taken the familiar preliminary steps toward totalitarian government.

Perhaps it is their sincere intention to relinquish power in good time and hand the reins to democratic government. History, however, offers few examples of despotic governments deliberately giving way to less arbitrary forms.

The revolution offered Brazil a chance to save itself. But the question remains to be answered whether the Brazilian government will be something better or just more of the same—whether the new leaders, succumbing to the temptations which Goulart found irresistible, will commit the very mistakes against which they rebelled.

Drafts Take Work

GOV. WILLIAM W. SCRANTON of Pennsylvania says he is not a candidate for President, that he will not campaign for the nomination, but that he would accept a draft call if it came from the hearts of the people.

Perhaps it's possible for a man to get the nomination in this manner, but the chances are against it. Candidates who said approximately what Scranton is saying have obtained the nomination—but only because, contrary to their utterances, they worked hard to get it.

In politics, drafts are rarely spontaneous. They are made by opening doors and operating the bellows of propaganda. When the draft appears spontaneous, it is because of the smoothness of the techniques used to create it.

If Gov. Scranton gets the nomination, it will be almost certainly because he committed himself to that end and worked in some fashion to attain it. One might add, perhaps, that the man who is unwilling to do so does not deserve the prize.

Recipe for Chaos

AT FIRST BLUSH, one is inclined to admire the spunk of folk singer Joan Baez for refusing to pay that portion of her income tax which goes for purposes with which she does not agree.

But on second thought, it is clear that if followed by any substantial number of citizens, her example would lead to anarchy and chaos.

Just as Miss Baez dislikes federal military expenditures, others may protest agricultural subsidies, aid to education, and any number of programs of government.

A person may question the wisdom of certain government projects, but obviously he cannot be permitted to choose which projects he shall support.

The survival of organized, democratic government hangs on the thread of mutual compromise. Miss Baez no doubt benefits from many a federal program which others find objectionable.

An Ike Vote to Lodge Would Close Books on a '52 Favor

I, P-T Political Editor

HOUSER

RECIPROCAL TRADE may prove to be the fattest issue in next July's selection of a Republican presidential ticket—not reciprocal trade in the traditional context, but rather in the trading of political favors and prestige.

The story started 12 years ago. Henry Cabot Lodge was a chief persuader of Gen. Dwight Eisenhower to run for president. Lodge even went so far as to assure Americans that the hero-general would come home from his foreign billet, discard his unifrom and be available.

Lodge was joined by Washington public relations man Robert R. Mullen in working for Ike in that faraway New Hampshire primary. The effort succeeded in knocking down an odds-on conservative favorite, Robert A. Taft. The man from the foreign outpost, thousands of miles away, came home and won.

In late 1963 Ike urged Lodge to make himself available. Although Ike's was not an exclusive endorsement, it touched off the little blitz which won Lodge a smashing victory in the latest New Hampshire primary against an odds-on conservative favorite—Barry Goldwater—and has him today leading the polls.

MULLEN NOW is the national coordinator of the Draft Lodge campaign. Lodge is now the man thousands of miles away. And although Ike has not completed the parallel of 1952 by assuring America that Lodge will return, Mullen, in his own way has, in these words:

"We know that if the clear call is sounded, he will report for duty, and that he will report with the full elan of a good soldier, full of fight and spirit, and with the smell of victory in the air. His own commitment to an all-out campaign is the least of our worries."

Lodge, incidentally, is a major general in the Army Reserve.

There is certainly no lack of debate on Lodge's capabilities in the field of foreign policy, an area which opponents of the Johnson administration say promises to be the best point of attack for Republicans.

The range of this debate varies from the recently publicized pamphlet of a group backing Goldwater which implies Lodge is soft on communism to the estimate of a national pundit that Lodge's experience as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations make him "more qualified for the presidency than any other candidate."

A Saturday Evening Post editorial two months before the New Hampshire primary noted Lodge's international reputation gained from his conduct of the UN office. It said:

He discarded the cautious routine of waiting for instructions from the State Department before replying to Russian attacks. In its place he established a policy of refuting the Russians point by point on the spot.

"IN HIS EIGHT years at the UN, the U.S. did not lose a major clash with the Russians in the Security Council or the General Assembly."

If the polls are accurate, the GOP candidates at home and working face—strangely—an uphill fight against this illustrious absentee. But they apparently do not want for ammunition. They note Lodge's losses to John F. Kennedy for the Senate and on the Nixon presidential ticket. They accuse him of campaigning on bankers' hours in the 1960 national race and of actually being responsible for the miniscule deficit by which the GOP failed in that election.

IKE MAY yet be the biggest factor for Lodge in the convention showdown so widely forecast. If Ike, reinforced by stunning primary performances of Lodge's stateside campaign guerillas, is called upon, or insists upon shaping platform and ticket towards a best-prospect chance for the GOP, whom will he recommend?

July, 1964, may be the closing point of the full circle of the Lodge-Eisenhower reciprocal trade.

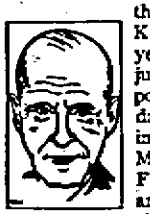
Korean War Review Offers Reminder of U.N. Weakness



LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The controversy again emerging over the obstacles faced by Gen. MacArthur in trying to win the war in Korea 13 years ago is just as important today as it was in April and May of 1951. For when an international armed force is mobilized to maintain peace anywhere in the world, the United Nations appears to have no effective system that will enable its agent—the armed forces of the United States, in the case of Korea—to win the victory by using the normal methods of military strategy. As a consequence, American lives were sacrificed in Korea, and Red China was not punished for her aggression.

When the crisis did arise in Korea in 1951, American forces were held back from winning the victory because our European allies—Great Britain and France—did not wish to take the risk involved in pushing the war vigorously against the Red Chinese.

Gen. MacArthur's disappointment that he was not permitted to carry out his plan to win the war was the direct outgrowth of a situation on which, while in the Far East, he was not adequately informed. It was a contest going on behind the scenes in and around the United Nations itself. The weakness in trying to adjust military facts to diplomatic theories continues to exist today.

The U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff here had unanimously supported Gen. MacArthur's recommendation that the Chinese air bases in Manchuria, north of the Yalu River, should be bombed. In fact, the Joint Chiefs, 90 days before Gen. MacArthur was relieved of his command in Korea, explicitly approved the entire military plan he espoused—namely, to use the Chinese Nationalist troops and some American divisions to impose a military and economic blockade against the common enemy and to permit air reconnaissance over Manchuria and China.

• • • •

AS FOR AN economic boycott—a problem somewhat similar to the one that arose recently in the Cuban situation—it so happens that countries which were members of the Security Council itself engaged in trading with the enemy during the Korean War. It was disclosed early in 1951 that 120,000 tons of rubber had been sent to the Communists through the British port of Hong Kong after the war began in June 1950—four times that what was shipped in 1949 through British sources. Oil, steel, aluminum, electrical equipment, copper wire and other strategic materials also were being shipped to the Chinese Communists.

When Gen. MacArthur testified before the Senate Armed Services and Foreign Relations Committees on May 4, 1951, he made this significant statement.

"One of the great weaknesses of the United Nations effort as a United Nations effort there is that it was not well balanced. Almost the entire burden of blood and effort and money is confined to two countries—the native country of the Koreans, and ourselves. . . .

"The relativity of authority in making international decisions should be based in some degree upon the responsibilities of the agents that carry it out. And if one nation carries 90 per cent of the effort, it's quite inappropriate that nations that only carry a small fraction of the efforts and the responsibility should exercise undue authority upon the decisions that are made."

The most sensational proof of how the United States government was forced to accede to the allied wishes is also to be found in the testimony before the Senate Committees which revealed that the United States Department of State on March 20, 1951, had requested Gen. MacArthur to agree to deploy his troops in such a way as to avoid "any advance with major forces North of the 38th Parallel." He was instructed to "permit sufficient freedom of action for next few weeks to provide security for U.N. forces and maintain contact with enemy," so as to give time "to determine diplomatic reactions and permit new negotiations that may develop." This was the beginning of the appeasement and compromise in Korea—the acceptance of an armistice that that has to this day not been followed up by the signing of any peace treaty.

The Socialist Labor government was in power in Great Britain at the time when the trading with the enemy of the U.N. was going on. In the British Parliament, the "left wing" of the Labor Party even introduced a motion in the House of Commons calling for an expression of "no confidence" in Gen. MacArthur.

• • • •

SEVERAL days before Gen. MacArthur was relieved of his command, this correspondent wrote in a dispatch that President Truman was being urged to reprimand the general and that demands for this action were coming from London particularly. Gen. MacArthur had publicly appealed to the United Nations for military help. He had asked for reinforcements again and again, to no avail. He sought the right to bombard the Communist bases from which the Chinese were coming to attack his forces, but the British publicly denounced him—and kept on trading with the enemy.

A general election is to be held in Great Britain this autumn, and undoubtedly the foreign policy of the British Labor party, as revealed in the campaign, will be watched with much concern on this side of the Atlantic in view of the record made by the Laborites in the Korean War.

Election-Year Paralysis Sets In

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO — Election-year paralysis, that mysterious force which postpones controversial decisions, has gripped the legislative process earlier than usual this season.

The tip-off came from Senate President Pro Tempore Hugh M. Burns, D-Fresno.

Burns, a strong advocate of district reform, acknowledged that is is unlikely the 1964 special-session will have time to resolve differences over educational reforms. Burns wants forced consolidation of school districts.

M'CAULEY

Burns, a realist on problem-solving within the shadows of an election, modifed his position slightly. He indicated he might favor more state aid to schools as a stopgap measure in 1964—prior to 1965 reforms as a result of broad between-sessions studies. Previously, he demanded reforms be enacted before any new funds are voted.

Thus, educational reforms have been sidetracked for another year due to the 1964 election.

And a whole wave of similar after-election postponements are in the making.

One legislative committee had announced it would hold a series of hearings on pay-television. But with pay-TV a probable hot ballot issue, the Sacramento betting is that it won't be scheduled for a legislative airing until after November.

Also, Assemblyman Lester McMillan, D-Los Angeles, has said he plans to hold a hearing at Seal Beach into senior citizens housing developments. The issue is a hot controversy because of a ruckus over new medical charges at Rossmoor Leisure World. But no hearing date has been slated yet, and the Sacramento speculation is that it won't come till after the election.

Also facing an election heave-ho is a suggestion for placing law enforcement on the special-session agenda of the legislature.

The Republican Assembly caucus, supporting a proposal of Assemblyman C. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, strongly has urged such a special-session call. But Chairman Gordon Winton, D-Merced, of the Assembly Criminal Procedures Committee, opposed it. And Gov. Brown says he won't place the issue on special call, noting that neither Democrats nor law enforcement agencies have made such a request.

However, real reason for the no-crime session is that the special session already includes 51 issues—and that is a long list for a hectic election year.

The June 2 primary is now only weeks off.

That means the 1964 special session could end any time this month. And many of the 1964 controversies will be carried over to other legislative years.

Election-year delays are anticipated. The constitution provides that the general sessions are to occur in odd-numbered years—the ones which don't have the major elections.

Legislative leaders had urged Gov. Brown to hold down agenda items to a minimum. That failed. So an effort now is under way to defer action on some of the more controversial phases of the program.

• • • •

SUCH IS THE plight of California, where an outmoded constitutional provision calls for Assemblymen to face election every two years. It's always election season. And realistically, campaigns and election pressures cut into the efficiency of the legislative process.

Taxpayers would get a better bargain on lawmaking if assemblymen were elected to four-year terms, giving them the same stature as senators. Long Beach, which has two assemblymen but must share a senator with all of Los Angeles County, especially would benefit from enhancing the prestige of Assemblymen and eliminating half the elections. In contrast, senators already are elected for four-year terms.

(1) "Abolish all millionaires and divide the money equally among the people."

(2) "Have our government deposit $1,000,000 in the banks for every citizen and they can live on the interest."

(3) Every citizen out of a job, to be paid a handsome salary for life."

Since everyone is striving for less work and more pay, why not do the job right? Abolish all work and pay every citizen $10,000 per week for life and no tax. Our government would have nothing to do but print money.

What about the economy of our country? Just forget it. What of the monotony of such a system? Simple, monotony has no effect on stupidity. Under such systems, we would have nothing to worry about except population explosions. Utopia would be just around the corner.

We could turn our churches into dance halls, because religion would be an extra burden under such systems. Our schools could be used for gambling halls, and think of the happiness, peace and contentment we could enjoy. We would learn war no more and we could live on isles of golden dreams, until we were awakened to the realization of the fact that we had been enshrined in Mr. Khrushchev's temples of atheism.

'Free Money' Just a Mirage

EDITOR:

The question of the West Beach Project was studied by the Shoreline Development Committee during the recent Long Beach Chamber of Commerce Congress For Progress. It was brought out at that meeting that the Chamber was 100 per cent for the re-development but 100 per cent opposed to the use of federal subsidies for such an undertaking. We hope that this is the feeling of the Re-development Agency. Long Beach is fortunate to have such farsighted men who are able to see through the fallacies of federal subsidies.

The National Chamber has recently completed a major examination of the Federal Urban renewal and Public Housing Programs. This study is most astonishing. In the first place, the federal government's "take" on these programs is approximately 13 per cent. In other words, it costs the local tax payer about $1 control cost for every $7.50 in subsidies. Secondly, a major portion of federal urban renewal and public housing dollars is being spent in areas where housing is relatively good and incomes relatively high. To illustrate, in Connecticut and New Jersey where over 70 per cent of the families earn over $4,000 a year and less than 20 per cent of the housing is substandard, federal housing grants are $2,682 and $1,959 for each family with less than $4,000 income respectively. For the country as a whole, the average grant is only $615 per family.

• • • •

IN ARKANSAS and Mississippi more than 40 per cent of the housing is substandard and over half of the families are in the low income brackets. In fact, Mississippi has 49.2 per cent of its housing rated substandard and 62.8 per cent of its families have low incomes. Yet in these two states the federal housing grants amount to less than $250 per lower family income.

All this is not too surprising to the intelligent well-informed citizen. He realizes that the soundest government is that which is closest to the people. He realizes that the mirage, FREE FEDERAL MONEY, is just that.

Again congratulations to our farsighted local civic leaders who are devoting so much valuable time promoting the West Beach Project the hard way—that is on a local control basis.

Yours very truly,
JOSEPH P. KESLER

Cabinet Still Haggling on Wheat Sale

WASHINGTON—Four Cabinet members attended a closed-door meeting with leaders of the longshoremen's and the seamen's unions recently to try to solve the question of shipping wheat to Russia in foreign flag vessels.

The issue involved a sharp conflict between American farmers and American labor since there is a probability that the Soviet will buy more wheat next year if shipment at a low freight tariff is accomplished this year.

PEARSON

Secretary of Agriculture Orville Freeman told labor leaders that Russia was probably in the market for about $200,000,000 worth of wheat next year, if the present contracts are fulfilled. This would mean a big lift to American farmers. However, if the unions force 50 per cent of American wheat to be shipped in American vessels at a higher cost, further grain sales to Moscow are probably off.

Secretary of State Dean Rusk strongly supported Freeman.

Present at the closed-door session, in addition to the Secretary of State and the Secretary of Agriculture, were Luther Hodges, Secretary of Commerce, and Assistant Secretary of Labor James Reynolds. Representing labor were AFL-CIO President George Meany; Joe Curran, president of the National Maritime Union; Teddy Gleason, boss of the International Longshoremen; and Paul Hall, boss of the Seafarers International Union.

"You are putting us on a tough spot," declared Freeman. "If we continue to enforce the 50 per cent restriction, we will sell no more grain to Soviet Russia on nobody's ships. We will have played out our hand." "To put it another way, we will be forced out of the European grain markets," added Secretary Rusk.

"Do you mean to say that you will sell in those markets without the 50 per cent guarantee to protect the jobs of American seamen?" asked Meany.

"Yes, I do," replied Freeman. "There won't be any protection for anyone if we are squeezed out of the market. We have to make up our minds pretty soon. I am looking at this in the national interest. I understand the problems of the maritime industry, but I also must think about our grain surplus."

"That's where you and I differ, Mr. Secretary," snapped Meany.

Joe Curran backed him up. "The real villains in this controversy," he said, "are the grain profiteers, the big private exporters who are not thinking of the national interest. They want to use cheap maritime labor on foreign flagships to transport the grain."

• • • •

CURRAN pointed out that some Liberian and Panamanian vessels were owned by American interests, but were registered under a "flag of convenience," giving them arbitrary powers to fix wages below the American scale. He charged that the State Department had always countenanced this practice.

"Well, I'll have to deny that," bristled Rusk. "The State Department does not approve profiteering of any kind."

He added that his department was trying to move grain to Soviet Russia and its satellites to fulfill a contract and was being seriously hampered by the 50 per cent restriction.

"Unless we remove the restriction, you are throwing the grain shipments up for grabs to the most unscrupulous operators," argued Gleason, head of the International Longshoremen. "What's to stop Russia from trying to use its own ships to carry our grain? My union doesn't make foreign policy, but if that happens let me tell you that our men will never touch a hammer and sickle ship."

• • • •

HALL, THE Seafarers boss, Curran, and Gleason brought out that they agreed to load and operate grain shipments to Russia only because James Reynolds, Assistant Secretary of Labor, had assured them the 50 per cent restriction would be maintained. Reynolds nodded his head in agreement.

Just before the meeting broke up, Gleason remarked to Orville Freeman: "We'll see you on the picket line, Mr. Secretary."

"I've been there before," replied the Secretary of Agriculture.

"And he has too," said Meany.

WHAT OTHERS ARE SAYING

We hope very much that this matter can now be taken off the boards and we can get back to normal relationships.

State Department Opposed LBJ's Warm Words to Brazil

By the I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — When President Johnson sent his "warmest wishes" to the new government in Brazil last week, he did so on the recommendation of highly-respected U.S. Ambassador to Brazil Lincoln Gordon and against the recommendations of the State Department.

One State Department official stressed that the President's effusive greeting to the new government was meant as "welcoming the failure of Communist takeover rather than heralding the new military regime.

"But there is a great deal of unhappiness around the department now about Johnson's statement," one observer said, "especially since the military regime begins to look like a form of dictatorship."

A Brazilian source here agreed with the State Department. "First you Americans praise the military coup for ridding the country of communism, now you are worried that the new leaders will make a dictatorship. What do you want?"

He implied that he, too, was worried about the state of affairs in Brazil. "Let me make this clear," he said. "There is no chaos in Brazil, there is too much order."

He presumably was referring to the new laws recently made in Brazil without the approval or confirmation of the congress.

GOV. William Scranton of Pennsylvania held a press conference at Harrisburg Thursday to announce again that he was not a candidate for the GOP presidential nomination. Under questioning, he said, "I have not ruled out a draft." His supporters here gasped great signs of relief when they heard the news. For the governor was prepared to close the door even on a draft, taking, as the parlance goes, "a Sherman" ("If nominated I will not run and if elected I will not serve"). Extreme pressure was brought to bear on the reluctant Scranton after a story in a Philadelphia newspaper said he would draw out entirely. He was deluged by letters, telegrams and telephone calls and decided, at the last minute, that no American "has the right" to reject a genuine draft.

PIERRE Salinger's departure from the White House to campaign for the Democratic senatorial nomination in California was a hasty thing, done with about two hours notice to the President. This is not a record, however. That must be held by Andy Hatcher, Pierre's assistant at the White House, who left with Salinger to help him with his California campaign. Hatcher has yet to give notice.

'Disarm or Perish' Conferees' Slogan

UPI Foreign News Analyst

PALAIS DES NATIONS, Geneva—Cut in the marble above the doorway to the room through which the delegates to the 17-nation disarmament conference must pass to sit around the rectangle of their green felt-covered desks is a slogan which says:

"Here is a great work for peace in which all can participate. . . . The nations must disarm or perish. Be just and fear not."

The message over the door reminds the delegates of the goal they seek. And around the walls running up to the conference room's 40 foot ceiling are symbolic paintings reminding them of man's long history of inhumanity to man.

This is the setting. Less impressive has been the tortoise-like progress of the conference itself whose members have been at work with various interruptions, since March 14, 1962.

Yet there has been progress.

Chief Soviet Delegate Semyon K. Tsarapkin ended a diatribe against Germany to make the surprise announcement that Russia was ready to negotiate the "hot line" between Moscow and Washington as a measure to prevent war by mistake.

On Aug. 5, 1963 the United States, Britain and Russia signed the limited test ban agreement in Moscow after months of spadework done in Geneva.

In addition, there is the agreement against the placing of weapons in outer space.

In this nuclear era conditions also have changed. It no longer simply is a matter of total and complete disarmament. There also are what are called "collateral" conditions.

In the twice-weekly meetings which the conference holds, one is devoted to total disarmament and the other to the "collaterals."

Taking over from U.S. Disarmament Chief William C. Foster at the conference on March 2 was Adrian S. Fisher, a bluff hearty man with a successful record both as a lawyer and in the State Department, who declares himself not discouraged by the slow pace of progress.

If, at the moment, the chief issues of the disarmament talks can be boiled down to two, they are: The U.S. proposal for three stage disarmament beginning with an across-the-board cut to begin with of 30 per cent, and a Russian proposal for the destruction—without inspection—of all nuclear weapons immediately except for a "nuclear umbrella" of perhaps one per cent of the total which would be left in U.S. and U.S.S.R. hands until the third and final stage of total disarmament.

Between the two there is no meeting of minds. But among the collaterals there may be hope. These include a U.S. proposal for a freeze of fissionable weapons materials, the "bomber bonfire" disposing of obsolescent weapons or any measure which might save the Soviets money. In these the Americans see some hope for something this year.

SERVICE TROPHY ADDS NAMES

6 Jr. Bandsmen Honored

Two new names were added Saturday night to the perpetual trophy for highest service to the Long Beach Junior Concert Band, directed by Marvin Marker.

Winners of the top award, chosen by their fellow band members, were Roy Queen, 18, of 7053 Schroll St., Lakewood, and Bob Woolsey, 19, of 6568 Rosebay St. Runners-up and recipients of an honor award plaque, were, Bob Keith, 18, of 2981 Daisy Ave., and Walter White, 19, of 1734 Ximeno Ave. White also won the "Most Popular Boy in the Band" award. Sharon Sees, 18, of 2248 San Vicente Ave., was voted "Most Popular Girl."

The Fagin Memorial Trophy for building band membership was awarded to Russ Futoran, 15, of 3103 Petaluma Ave.

Awards at the 12th annual awards banquet were presented by Mayor Edwin Wade, with Don Gill, executive director of the All-Western Band Review, as master of ceremonies. The awards dinner also celebrated the band's 12th year as official representative and host band for Long Beach.

Rep. Roosevelt Talks Today at Leisure World

Rep. James Roosevelt will address a free Jefferson Day celebration at 2 p.m. today on the 19th anniversary of the death of his father, Franklin D. Roosevelt, in the Leisure World Amphitheater, Seal Beach.

A 1:30 p.m. concert by the Long Beach Junior Concert Band will precede the talk. The observance is sponsored by the Seal Beach Democratic Club. Club member Charles Washburn, retired labor leader, will deliver a eulogy of FDR.

The club has invited students of nearby colleges and extends an invitation to senior citizens as well as the general public.

Ice Capades Booked for 27 Performances in L.A. Arena

The 24th edition of the Ice Capades will open a 27-performance run at the Los Angeles Sports Arena April 28 with a sparkling array of new skating talent.

The run of 15 evening performances and 12 matinees will close May 17. There will be no performances on Mondays.

Newcomers in the 1964 "Greatest Show On Ice," include the brother-sister team of Otto and Maria Jelinek, who won the world's pairs figure skating title in Vienna; glamorous Sheila MacFarlane and a not-so-glamorous skating chimpanzee named Spanky. The show-stopping chimp tops off his act with a skating jump over five barrels.

Other stars are World Champion Cathy Machado, soloist Alan Konrad, adagio skaters Phil Romayne and Cathy Steele and comics Johnny LeBrecque, George Bussey and Hans Leiter of Vienna, along with a list of brand-new stars who have moved up from the "sophomore" line.

The Sports Arena box office will open ticket sales April 3.

AWARDS PRESENTED

Area Citizens Feted for Dystrophy Work

Muscular Dystrophy Association of America Inc. has honored Long Beach-area leaders in the fight against the disease.

Awards were presented at a dinner in Long Beach by two Lakewood children who have appeared on posters for the muscular dystrophy fund campaign — 4-year-old Billy Py and 7-year-old Kathy Daniels.

Mrs. Leona Appleby received the area's chairman-of-the-year award for her leadership in the East Long Beach campaign.

The marcher-of-the-year trophy, awarded to an outstanding volunteer worker, went to Mrs. Charles Murray of Long Beach. Mrs. Ralph Means of Lakewood received a trophy for her work as area leader and public information cochairman.

Chi Rho Club of St. Cornelius Catholic Church won the club-of-the-year award. The Harold Hunt family of Lakewood was honored for top family contribution.

The association's 1963 Long Beach-area campaign raised $9,589 to support research, clinics and other projects. One of the research projects is at Long Beach VA Hospital and one of the clinics sponsored by the national group is Long Beach's Tichenor Clinic.

Cadillac
AN INTERNATIONAL CELEBRITY ARRIVES AT THE FAIR
The occasion is the New York World's Fair . . . the scene is the spectacular General Motors Futurama—and the car, of course, is Cadillac.
And the Cadillac car is a standout attraction even in this distinguished international company. For there is no automobile anywhere that can match Cadillac's reputation for excellence. Drive any of eleven 1964 models and you'll discover why.
There's Cadillac's magnificent and silent power. A 340-horsepower V-8 engine—most powerful in Cadillac history—generates performance so swiftly that we caution even long-time Cadillac owners to mind their speedometers. There is the smoothness of our transmissions—an improved Hydra-Matic or new Turbo Hydra-Matic—which deliver that power to the rear wheels.
There is the luxury of elegantly appointed interiors, together with the great convenience of power brakes and steering (plus power windows on most models) that have turned the 600-mile day into a restful reality.
And there is also investment. Find a fine car, if you can, that returns more than your Cadillac when you choose to sell or trade it.
Isn't it time to drive Cadillac—the one American fine car that enjoys premier rank whenever the world's great automobiles are considered? Visit your Cadillac dealer soon. His selection of international favorites has never been more tempting.
MORE TEMPTING THAN EVER—AND JUST WAIT TILL YOU DRIVE IT—SEE YOUR AUTHORIZED CADILLAC DEALER

Dodgers vs. Cards Tuesday

By GEORGE LEDERER

Sandy Koufax will complete his sweep of 1963 honors Tuesday night with his first assignment as an opening day pitcher.

The Dodgers' third Cy Young Award winner in the last eight seasons will oppose Bob Gibson and the St. Louis Cardinals.

A full house of 55,000 is assured at Dodger Stadium as the world champions enter their diamond jubilee year in the National League.

The Cardinals, who finished six games back as the Dodgers' closest pursuers in 1963, are booked for two games. Cincinnati visits for three games Thursday through Saturday, and the brief home stand closes with Milwaukee Sunday and Monday.

• • • •

THE DODGERS' opening lineup represents a 100 percent turnover from the 1958 crew that brought major league baseball to Southern California. Koufax, Jim Gilliam, Frank Howard and John Werhas are starting changes from 1963. And Werhas will uphold Dodger tradition of a new third baseman in each of their seven years in Los Angeles.

SANDY KOUFAX
Ace for Opener

By ROSS NEWHAN

Lyndon B. Johnson, a righthander from Johnson City, Texas, who now resides in Washington, D.C., will be the starting pitcher for the American League Monday.

Johnson will take a break from his pitch for Civil Rights to deliver the pitch which officially opens the 1964 season.

Washington southpaw Claude Osteen will follow Johnson to the capitol hill and the American League bell will ring when he makes his first offering to the Angels' Albie Pearson.

The Angels-Senators contest will precede by 24 hours the remainder of the American League's inaugural slate and will mark the 42nd opener to be attended by the Chief Executive since William Howard Taft won the starting call in 1910.

• • • •

JOHNSON is the 10th President to hurl the first ball. Vice Presidents have substituted eight times and lesser dignitaries 14 times.

Washington may have again followed the adage "first in war, first in peace and last in the American League" last year, but the Angels will be on the long end of the odds in the opener.

With Presidents present, the Senators have an over-all 22-19 record. With Democrats hurling the first ball, the Senators are 11-10. With Republicans doing the tossing, the Senators are 11-9.

• • • •

WOODROW Wilson was scorned by the elected Senators for his League of Nations, but loved by the baseball Senators. With Wilson pitching, they were 3-0.

Johnson, definitely a control specialist, will do his pitching into the homes of Southland TV viewers. KTLA (5) will colorcast the proceedings at 10 a.m.

Here are the lineups the President will jot on his scorecard.

Saucy Angels Bounce Mighty Dodgers, 4-3

By ROSS NEWHAN

The Dodgers are ready to seek an armistice in the Civil War.

Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale and Ron Perranoski struck out 14 Angels Saturday night but the Dodgers themselves again struck out in their fourth attempt to defeat the poor side of L.A.'s baseball family.

The Civil War remained the most lopsided contest since Franklin D. Roosevelt whipped Alf Landon. Landon, however, at least captured Vermont—the Dodgers have nothing to show after four ballots with the Angels.

The Cherubs belted Drysdale for all their runs on four doubles and a single in the seventh inning as the Angels retained the Shrine's and Mayor's trophies, emblematic of the city championship, with a 4-3 decision over the world champs before 36,889 hoarse fans.

Angels' manager Bill Rigney permeated the air with World Series atmosphere as he employed six pitchers while displaying mid-season form in his strolls to and from the mound.

• • • •

BARRY LATMAN, Jack Spring and Julio Navarro were the most effective. Spring and Navarro each bailed bullpen pals out of trouble while Latman gained the victory, his fourth of the most successful spring ever for the Fairfax High graduate.

Latman stopped at father-in-law Leon Schwabb's pharmacy for a bottle of aspirins on his way to the ball yard and then threw the tablets at the Dodgers. "Shoulders" yielded only two hits and fanned five in a four-inning effort designed to make L.A. fans forget about Leon Wagner.

The issue was decided in the seventh when Drysdale ran into double trouble. Big D had protected a 2-0 advantage through four finely-pitched frames after taking over for Koufax in the third.

• • • •

WHILE Walter O'Malley spent $250,000 on improvements at Dodger Stadium this winter, he apparently forgot to put any of it into the infield and this oversight cost Drysdale dearly.

Charlie Dees opened the frame with a double to left-center which Tommy Davis got a glove on but couldn't hold. After Bobby Knoop had fanned, Tom Satriano, batting for Latman, hit a grounder toward first baseman Ron Fairly. However, the ghost of Joe Pepitone still haunted the area and the ball took a crazy hop off Fairly's shoulder and bounded into rightfield for two bases, scoring Dees.

Albie Pearson then hit another grounder down the first base line which struck the

Fired-Up Palmer Leads by Five

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — A gambling, charged-up Arnold Palmer exploded three straight birdies in a thunderclap finish for a three-under-par 69 Saturday and shot into a five-stroke lead with one round to play in the Masters golf tournament.

Channel 2, 1 p.m.

Consecutive rounds of 69-68-69 over the demanding par 72 Augusta National course gave the comeback marvel from Latrobe, Pa., a 54-hole total of 206, 1 under par, and made him a virtual cinch to become the first ever to win four Masters.

A wiry Australian outsider, Bruce Devlin, knocked in an eagle on the 15th hole for a 67 which put him closest to Arnie's heels at 211.

Another of Palmer's sternest challengers, including defending champion Jack Nicklaus, fell by the wayside in an epidemic of late, pressure-proved bogeys — and it looked like a one-man show.

Arnie's Army, making up most of the record throng of 40,000, was delirious.

Nicklaus, his big, booming game wild and unwidely, shot a 71 and found himself tied at 215 with a ghost out of the past, Ben Hogan, who thrilled the gallery with some of his old wizardry for a third-round three-under-par 67.

The new champion and the old had nine strokes and six other players separating them from the front-running Palmer.

Dave Marr, a young pro from New Rochelle, N.Y., was in third place at 212 after a third-round 69, followed by hard-luck Gary Player of South Africa, whose game cracked up on the final two holes to give him a 72, and little known Pete Butlee of Birmingham, England, and Jim Ferrier, each with a 69 for a 213 total.

After firing three birdies on a stretch of five holes on the incoming nine — the 13th through the 16th — which put him within five shots of Palmer, Player suddenly went into a disastrous tailspin.

He bogied the final two holes, bunkering his second at the 17th and hitting a spectator's chair with a drive on the 18th. The ball caromed deep into the woods and all he could do was play it back to the fairway and thank Heaven for a bogey.

Devlin, a 26-year-old master plumber from Canberra, only three years out of amateur ranks, came out of nowhere to move into top contention.

He struck his big blow on the 520-yard 15th where a long drive and four-wood put him on the green 25 feet from the cup. He sank for an eagle.

Palmer, the slumping golfing capitalist who hasn't won a tournament since last October, was slow getting off the mark and had to scramble to play the first seven holes in par.

He rang in his first birdie at the eighth, chipping to within three feet, but lost another shot on the 11th where he duck-hooked his second into the water. He dropped out and chipped to within inches for a bogey that could have been much worse.

His birdie explosion started on the 14th. He ran in a putt from 25 feet.

While the cheers of his vast army was still ringing in his ears, he ripped into the long 15th reaching the green in two and two-putting from 25 feet and added a third straight birdie on the 16th where he ran the ball in from 12 feet.

"I didn't get the ball as close to the hole as I did Friday," he said philosophically. "But I was satisfied with the way I played."

Even with his long lead, he never ceased to play bold, gambling golf. He hit all out from the tees, went for the greens even with threatening water staring him in the face.

Asked what his strategy was to keep his big lead, he said: "I went out to make it bigger if I could."

Yanks to Breeze, Angels to 7th---Newhan

By GEORGE LEDERER

—It's spring exam time for baseball prognosticators and, as usual, the National Leaguers are at a disadvantage.

For the sixth consecutive year NL students will be offered a multiple-choice test with six possible answers. Cribbing won't help in making a decision among the Dodgers, Giants, Cardinals, Braves, Reds and Phillies.

Warren Giles, dedicated to the proposition that all NL teams are created equal, already is looking forward to the day he can add the Pirates, Cubs, Colts and Mets to the multiples. Four score and seven years from now he might.

Meanwhile, the American League path leading to fall commencement exercises at Yankee Stadium will be easy because Joe Cronin prefers the essay exam for his literate leaguers.

Even Cassius Clay, though not necessarily in 25 words or less, could complete the sentence: "The Yankees will win the American League pennant because. . ."

For New York writers the assignment is easier yet. They need only 14 words: It's the Yanks in the World Series and the Mets in the World Fair.

The National League quiz involves more than syntax. It requires thumb tacks to hold the windy and ecstatic reports of the clubs' publicity men. It takes a degree in trickonometry and it helps to have a working knowledge of the slide rule (not to be confused with the infield fly rule).

An example of trickonometry was last year's NL race. The Dodgers won it although they were only sixth in the league in fielding, fourth in hitting and sixth in runs scored. They won it with the best pitching plus, perhaps, some sleight-of-hand by manager Walter Alston.

When Alston sewed up his first flag in Brooklyn, he had more stars than Betsy Ross. It wasn't until last year that he added some stripes.

Alston graduated from platoon sergeant to master sergeant the day of the famous bus incident in Pittsburgh. The bus was hot and there were more players than seats. What had been a standing joke for years suddenly became a serious matter.

Alston asserted himself, stopped the bickering and promised to improve conditions. From then on, the Dodgers caught fire on the field and relaxed in large and air-conditioned buses. They became the league's top road club (.605). Philadelphia was the only other club over .500 away from home.

Conditions will be even better this year with a hotel change in Chicago and a new $60,000 air-conditioning unit and self-starter on the Electra II. The self-starter is Walter O'Malley's insurance against having the props knocked from under the world champions.

Thus, the Dodgers figure to substantiate the 6-5 odds posted in Las Vegas, where the sharpies, not to mention the strip hotels, have more than a working knowledge of the club.

The race should be closer than last year when the Dodgers galloped home by six lengths after disposing of the Cardinals in mid-September. Each of the contenders appears to be improved, though not without problems.

The Dodgers may also lead the league in question marks at the start, but there'll be enough exclamations periodically to provide a punctual first-place finish. The No. 1 question is John Roseboro's right knee.

If Roseboro is sound and can catch 135 games, as he did last year, any other problems will be minute. The current medical bulletin on Roseboro is optimistic.

JOHN ROSEBORO

Third base is a Dodger problem mainly in numbers. One among John Werhas, Ken McMullen and Jim Gilliam will do a capable job. Should Gilliam be needed at third, Dick Tracewski can step in at second base, as he did so well in the World Series.

In the long run, pitching again will be the key to Dodger success. The best five-man staff in baseball will make Alston the first NL manager to win consecutive pennants since Fred Haney brought home the Braves in 1957 and 1958.

National League summary (clubs listed in order of preference):

1. DODGERS

Strengths — Sandy Koufax, Don Drysdale, Johnny Podres, Bob Miller and Ron Perranoski form best five-man pitching staff, accounting for 14 of club's 99 wins last year. Two-time major league batting champion Tommy Davis is still improving. Maury Wills and Willie Davis the top two base-stealers.

Problems—Roseboro's knee. Lack of consistent attack. Defense erratic at times. May be handicapped by keeping three first-year players.

2. GIANTS

Strengths—League's top power club with Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey. Improved bullpen with acquisition of Bob Shaw from Braves. Juan Marichal one of league's outstanding pitchers.

Problems—Must depend on two rookies in starting lineup. Jesus Alou (.324 Tacoma) in right field and Jim Hart (.313 Tacoma at third base).

3. CARDINALS

Strengths—Best infield in league with Bill White, Julian Javier, Dick Groat and Ken Boyer. Deep pitching with addition of Roger Craig.

Problems—Thin in outfield through retirement of Stan Musial and trade of George Altman to Mets. Tim McCarver and White only established lefthanded hitters.

4. PHILLIES

Strengths—Pitching could be outstanding if Art Mahaffey and Dennis Bennett remain healthy and Cal McLish recovers from arm trouble. Jim Bunning is strong addition to staff and Jack Baldschun rates among league's best relievers. Richie Allen could be league's top rookie at third base.

Problems—Will miss Don Demeter's righthanded power. Roy Sievers aging. No experienced replacements in outfield.

5. BRAVES

Strengths—Power from Hank Aaron, Eddie Mathews, Ed Bailey, Joe Torre and Felipe Alou. Top catching in Torre and Bailey. Alou fills long-time gap in center field.

Problems — Thin in pitching behind Warren Spahn. Staff is young and bullpen lacks daily stoppers.

6. REDS

Strengths—Frank Robinson and Vada Pinson solid hitters. Jim Maloney and Jim O'Toole attaining pitching stardom. Team speed may be best in league.

Problems—Bob Purkey and Joey Jay remain questionable regular starters. Robinson can't throw properly because of shoulder injury. Third base unsettled.

7. PIRATES

Strengths — Roberto Clemente one of league's five-star players. Bob Friend a dependable starter. Bob Veale, Al McBean and Tom Sisk younger pitchers of note. Bill Mazeroski still one of best at second base.

Problems—Still too much contrast of age and inexperience at key positions. Don Cardwell has arm trouble and Vern Law must prove comeback.

8. CUBS

Strengths—Dick Ellsworth, Larry Jackson and Lindy McDaniel good pitching nucleus. Ron Santo supplies power.

Problems—Loss of Ken Hubbs at second base. Ernie Banks may be through. Need center fielder.

9. COLTS

Strengths — Eddie Kasko and Nellie Fox will help in infield. Hal Woodeschick one of top relief pitchers. Dick Farrell, Don Nottebart and Ken Johnson dependable starters.

Problems—Outfield and catching inexperienced. Club has no power.

10. METS

Strengths—Shea Stadium.

Problems — Dodgers, Giants, Cards, Phils, Braves, Reds, Pirates, Cubs and Colts.

Giants Tabbed Over Dodgers

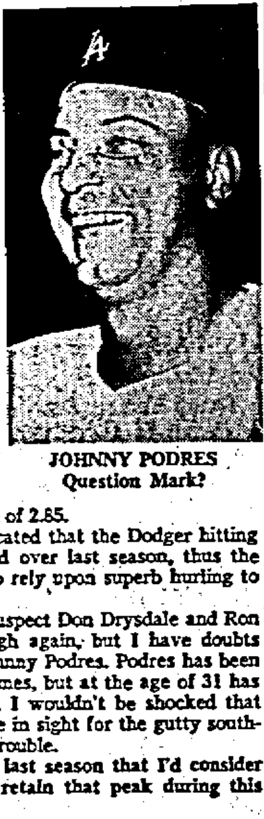
A minor mystery to many baseball fans on the eve of regular season play is why the Dodgers aren't distinct favorites to capture the National League pennant.

In some quarters (the I, P-T staff consensus in today's paper, for instance) the Dodgers aren't even favored. Yet, this is the same club that breezed to the '63 league throne by a six-game margin and annihilated the great Yankees four straight in the World Series.

Then, why the reluctance to stamp the 1963 world champions as prohibitive 1964 league favorites? Since I tabbed the Giants to finish over the Dodgers, I'll state my reasoning.

First, it's no secret that the Dodgers were such convincing 1963 winners because of their pitching. They were fourth in club batting and sixth in club fielding.

They were far-and-away the most outstanding team in pitching with a combined earned-run-average of 2.85.



JOHNNY PODRES
Question Mark?

Spring games have indicated that the Dodger hitting and fielding hasn't improved over last season, thus the O'Malleys again will have to rely upon superb hurling to carry them through.

But can it continue? I suspect Don Drysdale and Ron Perranoski will come through again, but I have doubts about Sandy Koufax and Johnny Podres. Podres has been a "money" pitcher in big games, but at the age of 31 has shown signs of floundering. I wouldn't be shocked that the end of the road might be in sight for the gutty southpaw with a history of back trouble.

Koufax was so perfect last season that I'd consider it nigh impossible that he retain that peak during this campaign.

Bob Miller may handle some of the slack, but after him, who else? If somebody like Richert, Willhite, Moeller or Ortega can come through on a CONSISTENT basis, then maybe the Dodgers can breeze again.

In short, I admire the Dodger ability to scramble and battle for that necessary one or two runs, but the club's whole pennant hopes are based on superior pitching. I have a suspicion that the mound corps will not come through as it did in '63.

ANOTHER ITEM that probably hasn't escaped the baseball nut is that the Dodgers' three closest '63 opponents (St. Louis, San Francisco and Philadelphia) all outhit the O'Malleys last year.

Of most important note is that each of those opponents now boast IMPROVED pitching staffs over last season!

The Giants, a horrible EIGHTH in 1963 team hurling, got rid of some mound deadwood and added two people I think will aid their pennant drive considerably: Bob Shaw and reliefer Bob Hendley. Shaw, for some years on the verge of greatness, sported a nifty 2.66 ERA with Milwaukee last season.

With Mays, McCovey and Cepeda leading their bat brigade, the Giants apologize to nobody in the slugging department.

THE CARDINALS and the Phillies make the N.L. race even more difficult to predict. St. Louis had the best infield in the N.L. in '63 (White, Javier, Groat and Boyer), the top hitting club (they had a big 13-point edge over the power-dripping Giants) and four crack hurlers (Ernie Broglio, Bob Gibson, Curt Simmons and Lou Burdette).

They've got everybody back, PLUS Roger (Hard Luck) Craig to bolster their mound staff.

The Phils have a pitching corps that could rocket them to the top overnight. A wire service writer, who picked the Phils to bag the flag, noted: "Philadelphia has three potential 20-game winners in Dennis Bennett, Art Mahaffey and Jim Bunning. None saw full service with them last year."

Bennett and Mahaffey were injured at least half the season, while Bunning was with Detroit. Add Ray Culp, Chris Short and crackerjack relief man Jack Baldschun to this list . . . and you see why the usually-disdained Phils merit considerable respect this campaign.

THE NATIONAL LEAGUE chase looms so tight that in a poll of baseball writers and sports editors EIGHT clubs garnered first-place votes. Yep, some guy even tossed in the Cubs on his ballot. (The only possible person I could conceive responsible for this joke would be Jack Teele, the Ram publicist, but he's not eligible.)

In summary, it's this corner's considered opinion that El Dodger will have considerable difficulty in repeating as N.L. champ. If Walter O'Malley's unrest over spring training procedures and Frank Howard's nervousness over not playing regularly carries over, the Dodgers may be forced to include a horrible enemy (Mr. Friction) into the regular season.

What's that, Clyde? You're wondering about the American League? Oh, I pick Cholly Dressen's Detroit Tigers for second place.

Hasn't the rest of the world already conceded first place in this most unbalanced of all professional circuits?

SPRING DREAMING?

9 Managers Wave Flags!

By Associated Press

It must be the air in Florida and Arizona. Or maybe it's the water. Whatever it is, it sure acts as a tonic to major league managers.

While it was hardly expected that any one of the 20 big league managers would paint a dim picture for his club at this time of the year, there is such a thing as carrying optimism too far.

After all, nine clubs cannot compete in the World Series. And never yet has a pennant race ended with all clubs in the first division.

A poll of the managers showed that nine thought they had a good chance to win the pennant. Eight more believed they would finish in the first division. The remaining three were convinced their clubs were improved over last year.

Here are the capsuled comments:

Yogi Berra, Yankees: "We'll win even if Mickey Mantle doesn't play 100 games. We've got the best eight starting players and our pitching is the best in the league."

Sam Mele, Twins: "We have a real good chance to win if pitchers Jerry Arigo, Jim Roland and Jim Kaat come through."

Charlie Dressen, Tigers: "The Tigers are the most improved club in the league. Our pitching is going to be better."

Al Lopez, White Sox: "I think we can win it. Our pitching and defense is outstanding. Our offense is better than people think."

Hank Bauer, Orioles: "Two weeks ago I picked the Yankees to win and the Orioles to finish third. That's because they have fewer ifs than we do. But if everybody plays up to his capability, we have a good chance to win."

George Strickland, Indians: "We're greatly improved. Leon Wagner gives us more power, our defense should be at least adequate."

John Pesky, Red Sox: "I am hoping our improved pitching could move us into the first division. We lack speed but have good power."

Ed Lopat, A's: "If our big men, Rocky Colavito and Jim Gentile, have the kind of seasons they are capable of having, we could finish as high as fifth."

Bill Rigney, Angels: "We're shooting for the first division and I think we can probably do it. Our strong pitching should help. We are also counting on our extra speed and an improved defense."

Gil Hodges, Senators: "We'll be better. We won't finish last. We have a better mental attitude."

Walt Alston, Dodgers: "I think our chances to repeat are good. Just about every club in the league has strengthened and that includes us. We have every reason to believe four or five of our players should have better seasons."

Al Dark, Giants: "We have a definite shot at the pennant. I've never seen better morale on the team. The least improved of the six leading contenders are the Dodgers."

Fred Hutchinson, Reds: "I think our club is as good as anybody. We have a better mental approach this spring. We had it in 1961 and 1962 but lost it last year."

Gene Mauch, Phillies: "We can win as many games as anybody if we play up to the hilt. The addition of Jim Bunning has improved our pitching."

Johnny Keane, Cardinals: "We have an excellent chance. The race shapes up as so close an injury or two could be the deciding factor."

Bobby Bragan, Braves: "I think we're stronger than in the club's pennant winning years of 1957-58 —with one big exception—pitching."

Danny Murtaugh, Pirates: "We're going to be a much better club. The improvement should come from our second year regulars, Bob Bailey, Donn Clendenon, Will Stargell and Dick Schofield."

Bob Kennedy, Cubs: "I am impressed by the comeback of Ernie Banks and the showing of rookies Jimmy Stewart and Billy Cowan. We must bear down all the way to improve on last year's 82-80 record."

Harry Craft, Colts: "I feel we have improved if our pitching holds up as well as it has the first two years."

Casey Stengel, Mets: "We and the Colts are going to fight it out for the bottom. We ought to do better against that club. They've been lucky against us in the past. We're going to make more runs."

By ROSS NEWHAN

The New York Yankees should end their four-game losing streak on Tuesday when they open the American League season against Boston. That will be the first step in the quickest runaway since the Yankees began their capitalistic ways.

It is a fact of history that New York has never won a pennant in a year which ends in 4. That is the only straw nine managers have to grasp as the entries file into the gate for the Monday-Tuesday opening of the 1964 American League chase.

This won't be the year the Yankees lost the pennant. To dispense with the notion that they face a '4' jinx, the Yankees might possibly win it by the fourth—of July.

Yogi Berra, who enjoys comic books, will be treated to many "laughers" as he guides a team which needs a manager about as badly as the Beatles need more hair.

Yankee pride was severely burned last October and the American League will feel the sting of revenge. It will be a well-balanced, tight race from second through 10th, but as Bill Rigney would say:

"There's only one place to finish. Second isn't worth a damn."

Behind the Yankees, this swami envisions the following finish:

Chicago, Minnesota, Detroit, Baltimore, Cleveland, Los Angeles, Boston, Kansas City, Washington.

New York didn't learn anything new last October when the Dodgers stuffed pitching down its throat. That's the name of the game the Yankees have been playing ever since they crossed the Harlem River into a home of their own.

Most certainly, there have been sluggers like Ruth, Gehrig, DiMaggio, Mantle, Maris and Berra to break up the close games, but these gentlemen also carried gloves to help such pitching greats as Pennock, Hoyt, Gomez, Ruffing, Chandler, Raschi, Reynolds and Ford with their task.

Power has helped, but pitching and defense have won for the Yankees. Last season, New York was only fourth in team batting. It was, however, second in fielding, second in pitching and first in the number of complete games hurled by its staff.

Ford is back and so are 25-year old Jim Bouton (21 wins)' 22-year old Al Downing (13 wins), 28-year old Ralph Terry (17 wins) and 25-year old Bill Stafford, who won only four games but should be the best pitcher on the staff.

Also back is the glamour infield of Boyer, Kubek, Richardson and Pepitone. This million dollar quartet didn't look worth a cent in the World Series, but four games do not a season make.

The American League is a strengthened circuit. No one, however, has yet reached the Yankees level.

Mr. Charles Dressen, of Detroit negotiated some shrewd winter trades which brought him Jerry Lumpe for second base and Don Demeter for leftfield. A flashy rookie, Willie Horton, will be in centerfield and there's a chap named Kaline in right. Detroit, however, lacks pitching.

Mr. Sam Mele of Minnesota will watch his Twins lead the league in home runs and stir excitement everywhere they travel. Camilo Pascual will win 20 games, but behind Pascaul it is a big step to Jim Kaat and Dick Stigman.

The Twins and Tigers have the best shots at nailing the Yankees, but neither will finish second. That distinction will belong to the consistent Chicago White Sox.

Chicago won't score many runs, but with Gary Peters, Juan Pizarro and Ray Herbert on the mound they won't need many. One more big winner could put the Sox over the top, but bridesmaid Al Lopez will find that pinnacle tougher than Everest.

Kaline will win the batting championship, Harmon Killebrew the home run title, Tony Conigliaro will be rookie of the year, Bobby Rodgers will be comeback player of the year and Ford, Bouton, Pascual, Peters and Ken McBride will be the 20-game winners.

With Mickey Mantle enjoying his final big season, the Yankees will win by 11 games but will lose the World Series to the Giants, 4-2.

Now that the season is over let's go back to Palm Springs. The Angels obviously weren't ready.

VEGAS ODDS 2-5 ON YANKS; DODGERS 6-5

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Want to bet the Yanks will win the pennant? It'll be expensive. To win $2 you'll have to bet $5.

That's the way the odds stood Saturday in this Nevada gaming city, where the town's leading sports book posted the pre-season major league betting odds.

There weren't enough bets to make odds on wagering for the Yankees to finish second and third.

The odds are posted this way: first the figure for how much can be won, then how much has to be bet. They run like this:

WYNN

Man to Man

HANEY

By JERRY WYNN

When your career in baseball has spanned from Ty Cobb to Bo Belinsky, you are entitled to a niche among the game's retired elder statesmen.

But not Fred Haney. The astute general manager of the Angels has the same spark and enthusiasm today as has marked his more than 40 years as a player, coach, manager and executive.

Haney has had more violent ups and downs than an astronaut. The only man to pinch-hit for Cobb, he managed such notoriously inept teams as the 1939-41 St. Louis Browns and 1953-55 Pittsburgh Pirates and such champions as the 1949-52 Hollywood Stars and 1956-58 Milwaukee Braves.

Under Fred's front-office hand, the baby Angels also flip-flopped from a marvelous third place in 1962 to a disappointing ninth last season. Monday, he will be in Washington, D.C., to watch the Angels begin their fourth season.

Where would you like to see the Angels finish in 1964, Fred?

"Our aim is the first division. The way I look at the league, there are four sound clubs—Minnesota, the Yankees, the White Sox and Detroit. The rest of the clubs, you can put in a hat and pick one out for fifth place. We're not a sound club yet, but we're building sound."

You didn't mention the Yankees first. Aren't they going to win the pennant again?

"The Yankees will be strong again, but the other clubs are getting stronger. They are building up to the Yankees. One of these years, and it could be this season, the Yankees are going to be overtaken. We are all pointing in that direction."

Do you think the Angels' third-place finish in 1962 put too much pressure on the club last season?

"Yes. We were tickled to death to finish third, but too much was expected from us last year. A lot of the fellows on the club felt self-satisfied and thought they could coast. Another big factor was the injury to Bob Rodgers. It hurt our batting, fielding and pitching. I've always felt the catcher was the most important man on a ball club. Rodgers has the opportunity to be the No. 1 catcher in our league."

After the success you had in making trades the first few seasons, have the other clubs become wary of dealing with the Angels?

"Not at all. It's our own club that has changed. During the first three years, we had to make trades to improve the club. Now we have reached the point where we are building with youngsters from our farms. It's a very pleasant development."

Do you have a list of "untouchables" on the Angels?

"Yes. Rodgers, Fregosi, Thomas, Pearson, McBride. They are the basis of our club and all are young."

Have you had any offers for Belinsky this year?

"Not recently, and before we turned them down. We have always thought he has the potential to be a great pitcher. But until this year, he hasn't given us the 100 percent effort that it takes to succeed. This year, he has turned about and trained hard. He has the ability."

Do the Angels like the Dodgers?

"Put it this way. We have the toughest competition in baseball. We came in scratch against a very fine established team. We have had to fight for everything. But it's the same wherever you have two teams in one city. Look how the Mets are battling the Yankees for fan support. We've made headway, and I'm certain we'll continue to.

You managed Warren Spahn and Henry Aaron at Milwaukee. Are there any finer players in the game?

"No, they are both keen students of the game and of themselves besides having great ability. I would like to have both of them with me again."

What advice would you give to a youngster with the ambition to become a major leaguer?

"There are three standards I set for a major league player. 1. Love baseball. 2. Desire to continually improve. 3. Have confidence in your ability. A player with these traits will have the respect of everyone in the game."

Is baseball a better game today than it was 40 years ago?

"It was good then, and it is good today. One of the greatest changes has been in the enlargement of club rosters. There used to be a player limit of 18, and today it is 28. Before, we'd play nine players in a game and they were complete players. Today, we often use 18 and they have become specialists. The players are good today, but they aren't any better than the Ty Cobbs and Walter Johnsons were then."

The game may have changed in 40 years, but Fred Haney continues as one of its most prominent members.

WHO'S WHO? FANS TO KNOW

CINCINNATI (UPI)—The Cincinnati Reds have decided to have the names of the players on the back of their uniforms, both at home and on the road.

"We've had a tremendous amount of mail requesting this," club president Bill DeWitt said, "and we are happy to accede to the fans wishes."

Finley to Wage Fight Over 'Pennant Porch'

KANSAS CITY (UPI)—Owner Charles O. Finley of the Kansas City Athletics sat in the bleachers behind his "pennant porch" Saturday during the Kansas City-St. Louis exhibition game, apparently ready to battle American League officials again.

Finley said he would wage a campaign with the baseball rules committee to retain the rightfield fence despite orders from commissioner Ford Frick and American League president Cronin to remove it before Kansas City's opening home game April 21.

The officials notified Finley by telegram that the new fence violated baseball rule No. 1.04.

In New York, Frick had little comment. He confirmed he had "instructed" Finley to delete the fence.

"He has his instructions," Frick said. "I simply pointed out to him that he would be found in violation of baseball rule No. 1.04 if the fence were left standing."

However, Finley said he was within his rights to erect the fence and that he was supported by the rules.

"If necessary, I will go to New York and Boston and explain to Cronin and Frick the meaning of the English language," Finley said.

The voluble owner designed the fence to reduce the distance from home plate to the foul pole to 296 feet, the same length as in Yankee Stadium.

"If an end isn't put to this grossly unfair pennant porch in Yankee Stadium," he said, "it is not possible for other clubs to win the pennant."

Finley said his Athletics would battle the Yankees "down to the wire" if the porch remained in Municipal Stadium.

K. C. HITS ON CURVY IDEA

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Miss America of 1964 will throw out the first ball at the Kansas City Athletics home baseball opener April 21 against the Cleveland Indians.

She is Donna Axum of El Dorado, Ark., a senior at the University of Oklahoma. The Athletics' pitcher and catcher will greet her with roses at the airport, and she will receive an official team jacket and cap.

FINLEY'S ANSWER TO YANKEES

bag, bounced over Fairly's head and tied the score.

WITH Pearson nested on second, Jim Fregosi, who was awake until 6 a.m. Saturday helping usher his 8 pound, 14 ounce baby boy into the world, slammed the fourth double of the inning off the left-centerfield fence, breaking the tie and presenting Jim Jr., with a wonderful "welcome" present. A single to center by Lee Thomas made it 4-2 and was to prove the decider.

Osinski came to the mound to protect that advantage in the eighth and just as quickly left for the showers. A double by Jim Gilliam, a single by W. Davis and a walk to T. Davis loaded the bases with one out.

Rigney then called on southpaw Spring to face Fairly and the move returned dividends as the former Long Beach prep product hit a low liner which Fregosi neatly gloved and doubled W. Davis off second.

• • • •

RIGNEY handed the ball to 41-year-old Art Fowler as the ninth opened and 24-year-old Johnny Werhas promptly planted it in the bullpen corner of the leftfield grandstand.

When John Roseboro followed with his third hit of the game, a single to center, Rigney brought on Navarro. The righthander from Puerto Rico got Wally Moon on a pop to Satriano at third and Maury Wills on a grounder back to the mound, killing the Dodgers' last gasp.

The Dodgers had treated Angel starter Dean Chance to a rude awakening. Willie Davis, the third batter in the first inning, sent a rightfield pavilion fan home with a souvenir as he powered a Chance fastball 400 feet into the bleacher throng.

THE DODGERS clubbed Chance for three more hits and another run in the second. Fairly, Frank Howard and Roseboro delivered the blows which made it 2-0.

Someone apparently forgot to tell Koufax this is April and not October. There weren't any pin-stripes on the Angels' uniforms, but Sandy envisioned the shadow of autumn still clung to Dodger Stadium.

Tuning up for the Dodgers' National League debut with St. Louis Tuesday, Koufax struck out five in two innings. Projected over nine frames, that pace would have netted him 22 or 23 strikeouts and a mag-whiffcent new record.

Southpaw swingers Bo Belinsky and Johnny Podres will be the pitching foes when civil war erupts again at 1 this afternoon.

CIVIL WAR POTSHOTS: The Dodgers have purchased the contract of southpaw pitcher Jim Brewer from Spokane of the Pacific Coast League. . . The Angels have claimed the contract of first-year pitcher Tom Hoagland from the Chicago White Sox. . . A 20-year-old southpaw, Hoagland has been optioned to San Jose. . . Doctors are now of the opinion that the Angels' Fred Newman will be able to pitch this season without having his tonsils removed. . . The inflammation has been arrested and Newman will make the road trip. . . Pitching coach Marv Grissom estimates it will be two to three weeks before Newman is ready to start.

Ken McBride, Danny Osinski, Bob Rodgers and Barry Latman will fly to Washington this afternoon for a full night's rest prior to Monday's season opener. . . The remainder of the Angels head East immediately following the game with an arrival time of 3 a.m. With Rodgers absent, Tom Satriano will be behind the plate today. . . Satriano was scheduled to start at first base Saturday night but Rigney decided to take the pressure off the ex-Trojan prior to his catching duties. . . "I like playing first," said Satriano. "It's fun over there. It's like catching. You're in on every play."

Yanks, Dodgers to Win Again

Jinxes to the left of 'em, the unexpected to the right of 'em, the Dodgers and Yankees ride into the valley of the major league pennant races starting Monday . . . and when the firing ends in 5½ months, they most likely will meet once again in the World Series.

Both, of course, will be fighting jinxes. For instance, no team has repeated in the National League since 1958 . . . while the Yankees have not won a pennant in a year ending in four—notably 1934, '44 and '54.

The Yankees should break their jinx with little trouble. It would take a virtual team collapse to keep them from another title.

FRANK HOWARD
Key to Dodger Hopes

Even though some Yankee-haters can see signs that the club could run into some trouble, they still possess the finest blend of pitching, hitting and defense in the American League as well as the most depth.

In fact, Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox was more cautious this spring than ever before in predicting disaster for the Yanks.

Lopez is always the most defiant A.L. manager in his views on the Yankees, but this time he doesn't say that they'll lose the pennant as he usually does.

Instead, he sees some challengers . . . "If they get lucky with their pitching. That includes the White Sox, Tigers and Twins."

However, that's a big order for those clubs. All have problems.

The Yankees look like a cinch—jinx or not.

WHILE THE DODGERS are made to order for the World Series, they must first win the National League pennant to get another chance to pick up all the marbles . . . and this figures to be a much tougher task this trip.

The Dodgers are not a great club . . . certainly not the super team they may have appeared to be in last October's Series sweep of the Yankees.

They take a lot of managing. Walt Alston must constantly maneuver his men according to the situation to get the most out of the club. It was a scramble when the Dodgers won in '59. They scrambled their way to the flag again last year. And it will be a scramble again this time because, as everyone knows, the team is short on power.

Alston is sure of his pitching—barring injuries—and the hurling plus the club's tremendous speed will have to make up for the lack of the consistent big punch.

As a former Dodger player on a rival club sees it . . . "They could win easy, or they could wind up as low as fourth. I can't see any middle ground for them at all. But one thing is for sure. Every game will be a critical one."

KOUFAX, DRYSDALE AND PODRES won 57 games last year . . . could produce as many as 65 or more this season. It is certain, though, that they will have to carry the load.

Alston figures it will take 99 victories to win the pennant, thus he must come up with around 35—more if the "Big Three" falter—from Perronoski, Miller, Richert, Ortega, Moeller, etc. This could well be the "critical area."

In the hitting department, Tommy Davis will be gunning for his third straight league batting crown . . . but the key man at the plate will be Frank Howard and his late-inning home run potential.

The defense is adequate even though the Dodgers have been called by some baseball men . . . "The fastest thumbs in the West."

Although they're saying that the National League will be a six-team race, unless everything breaks right for some other club, it should finally settle down to a two-way battle between the Dodgers and San Francisco Giants. St. Louis could make a fight of it up to the final month, while Cincinnati is the "darkhorse."

BUT IF THE DODGERS are to be beaten, it looks as if the Giants have all the tools to do it.

If the Giant rookies come through at third base and in left field, S.F. could really be tough since manager Alvin Dark frankly admits his pitching staff is deeper than it's been in his four years at the helm. Last season it wasn't so good and the Giants faded to third, 11 games behind L.A.

But they got Bob Shaw and Bob Hendley from Milwaukee to back up such top front-liners as Juan Marichal, Jack Sanford and Billy O'Dell.

With such bombers as Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda and Willie McCovey, the Giant pitchers, of course, can afford to be a bit shakier than the Dodger hurlers and still win games.

While the Dodgers must win 'em by 1-0, 2-1 or other close scores . . . the Giant power hitters enable their pitchers to survive 9-8 and 10-9 slugfests.

And this could be the decisive factor of the '64 campaign.

CINCY MUST GET big years from both Joey Jay and Bob Purkey . . . and if they do the Reds could be dangerous, especially since everyone will be bearing down to win for "Hutch." The Braves need another 20-win season from Warren Spahn just to stay close even though they have plenty of power in the batting order.

St. Louis' pitching figures to be better with Roger Craig, but the Cards will need another great season from the aging Dick Groat to make a big challenge. Pitching is always at its best after the All-Star break and that's why the Phillies are liked in many quarters to finish high.

The Phil mound staff is solid and if the club can stay close in the first half, it could be tough in the stretch.

But in the end, it still looks like the Dodgers vs. the Yankees!

Ortiz Whips Lane to Retain Crown

SAN JUAN, P.R. (UPI)—Carlos Ortiz used a buzz-saw attack of hooks to body and head to score a unanimous decision over Kenny Lane of Muskegon, Mich., in their 15-round bout Saturday night and retain the lightweight championship of the world.

The bout ended in confusion with the announcer first saying that it was a majority decision and then announcing that referee Peter Pantaneo and judges Rafael Carrasquio and Edmundo Fernandez had all given their votes to the defending champion.

Pantaneo scored the bout for Ortiz, 144-141, Carrasquio had it 147-141 and Fernandez had it 148-144.

There were no knockdowns in the 15-round bout viewed by 20,000 spectators in Hi Bithorn Stadium but Ortiz twice had Lane in trouble. The hard-working champion cut Lane over the right eye in the seventh round and again in the 11th round but could not catch up to the back-pedaling challenger to land a knockout blow.

Although Ortiz pounded away with hooks to Lane's body, his most-effective blows were three right crosses in the seventh round that caused Lane to give ground.

Lane had a chance to win the fight on a technical knockout or even a knockout, when two jabs cut Ortiz' right eye in the 11th round. But Ortiz bobbed and weaved under Lane's blows from long range and easily stayed out of trouble.

Almost 100 persons stormed past the press rows into the ring and lifted Ortiz, a native Puerto Rican who now calls New York City his home, to their shoulders in triumph.

"Lane is a good fighter but he ran too much," commented Ortiz after the bout.

Ortiz was making his fourth defense of the lightweight title. He refused to comment in the dressing room over whether he will give Lane a return match.

ARNOLD PALMER, ESCAPE ARTIST

No ordinary sand trap was about to stop Arnold Palmer's drive to five-stroke lead in Masters golf tournament Saturday. Here he blasts out to save par on second hole. He finished with 69 for day.

TRAMP THROUGH GEORGIA

'Charge!' Orders Army; Arnie Does

By JIM BECKER

WITH ARNIE'S ARMY, Tramping Through Georgia (AP)—"Through trees and traps and down-hill lies,

"From tee to one-putt green,

"We will fight out Arnie's battles,

"And never treat him mean."

Dah-da-dah-ta-ta. Charge!

Loyal to a fault, hardy as a pack of Death Valley mules, strong, agile, loud, kind, obedient, reverent and clean, Arnie's Army charged, rolled, swept, cluttered and straggled around the Augusta National Golf Course behind their hero Saturday, as Arnold Palmer clomped out ahead to an untouchable lead in his quest for an unprecedented fourth Masters title.

It was a little awesome to behold.

Sherman, who had some experience with marching in these parts, would have run for cover at the sight of this army.

Recruiting standards seemed to be a little loose. It looked like almost everyone could join, although ideally a member of Arnie's Army should be about the length of Wilt Chamberlain, and equipped with non-tiring feet.

"He's so masculine," squealed a lady.

"Go get 'em, Arnie," growled the men as Palmer stalked to the first tee like an angry panther, tugged at his yellow shirt, tugged at his white visor cap, tugged at his low-slung trousers and tugged at the glove of his left hand.

"Go ape, Arnie," a young fellow said.

• • • •

PALMER HOOKED his tee shot into another fairway. The army applauded anyway, and set out in pursuit.

"Don't run, don't run," said a man, who was nearly run over.

On the long second hole, Palmer took an iron out of his bag for his second shot.

"He's going to play safe," gasped a member of the army. Dozens of heads turned and stared at the heretic.

Palmer put the iron back and took out a wood.

Cheers rang up and down the ranks.

"Go for it, Arnie" came the shout." "Charge," said another. "Charge that pin."

Arnie charged. And the army was right behind.

SHANK BY JACK

TV Scores Near Miss on Palmer

AUGUSTA, Ga. — A bit of golfing courtesy ruined the chances of millions of television viewers to see Arnold Palmer finish his round at the Masters golf tournament Saturday.

Arnold was signing his score card after completing his 18 holes when the cameras were switched on.

Bob Charles, the New Zealand lefthander, allowed Palmer and Gene Littler to play through when he was delayed on the fourth hole. As a result, Palmer finished ahead of schedule.

All you duffers, take heart. Next time you shank a drive, remember it once happened to Jack Nicklaus.

Nicklaus shanked his 8-iron drive on the 155-yard 12th hole far to the right, bringing an astonished gasp from the gallery who couldn't imagine Nicklaus flubbing a shot.

There's a man in Sydney, Australia, who will be amazed to hear that Bruce Devlin, 26-year-old golfer in his third year on the U.S. tour, shot a 67 Saturday to move into second place.

"He's the fellow who told my father in 1959 that I should give up my golf and stick to plumbing," Devlin grinned.

McCormick Leads by 7

Bill McCormick of Skylinks shot an even-par 72 at Rancho Saturday to maintain his big lead in the 1964 Southern California public links golf championships.

McCormick carries a seven-stroke lead into today's final round slated for Griffith Park. McCormick has put together rounds of 71-72-72—215.

Defending champion Neil Burges of La Mirada moved into a second-place tie with Vince Adamczyk of Brookside, who had the low round of 70. Burges duplicated McCormick's 72. Both stand at 222.

Blades, Seals Renew War in S.F.

By AL LARSON

Warfare between the Blades and San Francisco shifts to the Cow Palace tonight with the Lester Patrick Cup playoffs all square at one game each. Faceoff is 7 o'clock.

largest crowd ever to attend a WHL playoff match, 11,787. Tonight's crowd should go over the 10,000 mark.

Rival coaches Nick Mickoski of the Seals and Alf Pike of the Blades voiced their opinions Saturday as to the final outcome the best-of-7 series.

"I don't think either club will overpower the other. Actually, hustle and stamina will decide the series," said Mickoski.

Pike pointed out "They're no patsies and we'll have to be at our very best to beat 'em. Remember they are the defending champs.

"We certainly need Solinger (Bob) on the power play. He told me he's ready to play, but I doubt if I'll suit him until Tuesday. I don't know when Young (Howie) will play."

Pike added "both clubs are going pretty good. They checked "H" out of us Friday. They capitalized on their chances in the first two periods and we didn't. If we had it would have been no contest.

"We'll go with the same club Sunday with maybe a change in the goal. I can't blame Norris (Jack). Their scorers were home free most of the time."

Undoubtedly Jimmy McLeod will put on his goalie pads tonight; he's beaten his ex-mates four times in seven starts this season.

In eight playoff games to date L.A. has been assessed 188 minutes in penalties while the Seals have been socked with only 106 in 7 dates.

Leo LaBine leads the Blades' scorers with 6 goals and 9 assists for 15 points while captain Eddie Panagabko has banged in 5 goals and 5 assists for 10 points to top Seal pointmakers.

49ers Sweep Pair From Cal Poly

SAN LUIS OBISPO—Long Beach State College, pushed to the brink of early exclusion from the CCAA baseball race, charged back to win a doubleheader from Cal Poly Saturday, 12-4 and 6-5.

The 49ers got steady pitching from Bill Wilson, who went the distance in the first game, and Bill Bielefeld saved the second victory.

Bielefeld, who had pitched eight innings in Friday's 3-2 conference opening loss, relieved in the fifth inning with the bases loaded and retired the last eight Mustang batters.

Wilson went all the way for the fourth time to bag his seventh win but needed an eight-run explosion in the last inning.

Don Anderson raised his team RBI lead to 31 and his three hits kept him near a .500 average.

HONORS TO BRUIN CAGE CHAMPIONS

The UCLA national championship basketball team and coach of the year John Wooden received the tributes of students, alumni and followers Saturday at the Bruin awards dinner.

A highlight of the affair was the presentation of the United Press International trophy naming UCLA as the national championship team.

The spotlight was on the five graduating seniors headed by guard Walt Hazzard, named to almost every all-America team; Jack Hirsch, Fred Slaughter, Kim Stewart and Mike Huggins. Hazzard was awarded the team's most valuable player.

32 HITS FOR LBCC

Vikings Barrage SMCC, 17-2, 17-0

By GARY RAUSCH

The battle lasted more than six hours, and when the dust cleared over Blair Field Saturday Long Beach City College had scored 34 runs on 32 hits and sent a band of shell-shocked Corsairs back to Santa Monica with defeats of 17-2 and 17-0.

Jim Parks and Dennis Busch limited SMCC to 13 base raps and held it scoreless for 17 innings. Parks picked up his sixth victory and Busch his fourth.

Bill Hatch sent nine or more of his charges to bat twice in each game and the result was 4, 6, 10 and 5-run innings.

• • • •

CATCHER Ron Johnston smashed his second home run in as many days in the first game and Bob Larson, working the nightcap, crashed his first round-tripper of the year. Both were leadoff blasts to leftfield.

LBSC Crew Suffers Mishap, Falls to Cal

OAKLAND — Long Beach State's crew teams ran into rugged opposition and adverse conditions on the 2,000-meter Oakland Estuary course Saturday.

The 49ers dropped all three races—varsity, JV and frosh, to a strong Cal aggregation in the Bay Area.

A freak mishap perhaps cost the veteran L.B. crew a win in varsity competition. After a bad start due to a long call by the starter, the 49ers cut a half-length deficit at the half-way point, but lost ground and trailed by nearly one length at the 1,500-meter mark.

• • • •

THERE was considerable debris scattered about the estuary. Entering the final drive all four oars on the 49er starboard side crashed into a wooden box. The seventh man on the crew lost his oar and dived overboard to eliminate any unnecessary weight for the crew.

Long Beach thus finished the race with only seven men and Cal drew out handily for a 20-second victory — 6:18.6 to 6:38.5.

"The crew was very strong, though," said 49er coach Bill Lockyer. "The thing I liked was the stamina of our men. We were stronger in the final drive and had a lot left when the accident occurred."

Cal won the frosh race by one length, 6:41.6 to 6:46.2, while the Bear junior varsity triumphed handily over the 49ers, 6:34.5 to 6:49.5.

STEVE TIDBALL . . . . Gains Finals

Cortright and Schlicke Star

By JOHN DIXON

Stanford, which hasn't beaten USC's track titans since 1933, kept its record intact Saturday before 98,772 empty seats in the Colliseum.

The score was 9-0 after one event and never got close. But the race finishes were as the terrific Trojans looked terrific for the first time this season.

The University Ave. gang won 13 of 17 events, set two school records and two meet records in the 95-50 frolic, but the stars were a pair of Indians with the unfashionable philosophy that talent is cheap, dedication is expensive.

Paul Schlicke and Steve Cortright are their names—names that may be engraved in the Stanford Hall of Fame before they matriculate to more important accomplishments.

Schlicke, an added starter, won the mile, and he had to run the fastest collegiate time of the year to do it.

He led at the quarter pole in 60.1, trailed teammate Dave Deubner through a 2:02.3 half-mile, regained the lead after three laps in 3:05.8, and then the race really began.

USC's Bruce Bess was the lone challenger, a yard to the rear as the final 440 unfolded, and sophomore Bess wouldn't fold.

* * * *

HE CAME at Schlicke as the last, long turn neared, but that try failed. Bess came on again and again down the long straightaway. But as the race grew throbbingly alive and Schlicke became correspondingly drained, he called on an inner storehouse of courage and became the victor and not the vanquished.

Schlicke's advantage was a step, his time was 4:03.1. Bess was credited with 4:03.2, best of his life and only two ticks off the school record.

Schlicke wasn't through.

A bare hour later he kicked the last lap so hard he must have been wearing horseshoes, coming from well off the pace to win the two-mile in an 8:58.8 sizzler.

* * * *

CORTRIGHT, slowed for a month by a muscle injury, won meet high-point honors with three strong performances.

The former Poly High whippet was second in the triple jump at 46-7¾, second in the high hurdles in 14.3, his quickest clocking of the year, and winner of the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 37.2, second fastest time in the U. S. this year.

Trojan Theo Viltz led Cortright by inches out of the blocks in the 120s and the margin was the same at the tape. Cortright had clinched victory halfway through the 330s and jogged the final 20 yards to the tape.

USC standouts were a pair of pole vaulters.

Mike Flanagan flew over 15-9¼ to set school and meet records, and Bill Fosdick navigated over 15-6 to establish a school frosh standard. Fosdick's previous high was 14-10¾.

RINK BABKA was the winner of a special discus throw among Olympic Games candidates, throwing 191-½ to 184-7 for Bob Humphreys.

USC can look forward to Oregon Saturday, Stanford can look back to 1933.

JEROME RUNS 9.3; TIPTON THROWS 263-1½

EUGENE, Ore. (AP)—Oregon's Harry Jerome turned in a brilliant 9.3 sprint in the 100-yard dash Saturday and teammate Les Tipton hurled the javelin 263-1½ as the Ducks trimmed Washington State, 81-64.

WSU's Terry Lewellyn, who stands 5-8, upset Paul Stuber to win the high jump at 6-9. Cougar Jim Allen was a double winner, taking the 330-yard intermediate hurdles in 38.5 and the 440 in 48.8.

Dee Hurt; Rambo Hits 6-10

FRESNO — The loss of Dee Andrews proved costly as Fresno State clobbered Long Beach State 89-56 in a CCAA dual track and field meet in wind-whipped Ratcliffe Stadium Saturday.

Andrews pulled a muscle when he banged into the first hurdle in the 120 highs. He was unable to compete in the 330 intermediate hurdle event.

The Bulldogs displayed their usual mastery in the sprints as Marv Bryant captured the 100 and 220 in times of 9.4 and 21.3. Erratic winds reached 20 mph at times.

Charlie Craig also won a pair for Fresno, taking the 440 in 47.8 and triple jump with a leap of 49½.

Long Beach's Bill Crowley won the mile in 4:18.3, then posted a 9:20.5 in winning the two mile.

JOHN RAMBO set a meet record when he cleared 6-10. It marked the fourth consecutive dual meet high jump mark for the 49er star.

Fresno's Sid Nickolas long jumped 25-6½ while Andrews hit 24-11 earlier in the day.

An all-Kathy Tennis Finale Slated Today

By BOB MARTIN

The two Kathys — Harter and Blake—will be at it again today in the finals of the eighth Long Beach Junior Tennis Championships.

Close friends off the court and doubles partners for several years, the talented and attractive pair will clash for the Girls 18 title for the third straight year.

Today's winner will be the first two-time champion here in junior girls, an event which in earlier years was won by such stars as Sally Moore, Karen Hantze and Billie Jean Moffitt.

The match is scheduled for 11:30 a.m. at Lakewood Country Club.

* * * *

MISS HARTER, No. 1 in Southern California and No. 3 in the nation, swept by two exceptionally promising young San Diego area girls Saturday on her home courts. In the quarterfinals she beat Paulette Verzin, 15, who holds the National Hard Court women's doubles title with Darlene Hard, by a 6-3, 6-3 margin. In the semifinals she ousted 14-year-old Val Ziegenfuss, 6-4, 6-1.

Miss Blake, formerly of La Jolla but now of Brentwood, defeated Margaret Fredericks, 6-0, 6-2, and then beat Bonnie Ellis, 6-2, 6-2. Kathy is ranked No. 2 in Southern California and No. 8 in America and is a former national Girls 16 champion.

Vying for the Boys 18 crown at 1 p.m. today will be Tom Karp of Los Angeles and Steve Tidball of Van Nuys. This will be Karp's third appearance in the junior finals. In 1962 he lost to Jerry Cromwell and last year bowed to Bob Lutz. He is Southern California's top-ranked junior.

* * * *

IN SATURDAY'S semifinals, Karp was sharp in whipping Ed Grubb of Santa Monica, the national junior public parks champion, 6-2, 6-1, while Tidball edged out Jim Hobson of Fullerton, 6-2, 4-6, 6-4. Karp-Grubb and Hobson-Tidball reached the doubles finals. The latter pair won the national 16s in 1962.

Steve Derian of Long Beach advanced to the Boys 12 final and will play the sensational Randy Thomas of Imperial Beach, who has yet to lose a game.

Pam Teeguarden of Los Angeles, who won't be 13 until next Friday, will be going after her fifth Long Beach singles title today when she faces Janet Mohr in the 14s.

13,388 See Goetta Capture Shue Fly

Neck Win by Filly at Alamitos

By DON HARDIN

They used to say "Go Man Go" for the horse of that name a few years back.

Now they're saying Goetta for the swift miss that the great quarterhorse sired.

She wasn't as swift Saturday as she, nor her counterparts, have been in racking up records, but she showed one of the swiftest fields her heels at the finish to win the featured Shue Fly Purse at Los Alamitos Race Course.

Going off as the favorite over Western Stable's Scooper Chick, Goetta won by a neck in the 350-yard event to return $5.40 on the win end. Scooper Chick came on strong to nab second after the early leader, Anna Dial, failed after breaking best of all and taking the early lead.

* * * *

A CROWD of 13,388, pouring $867,351 into the pari-mutuel machines, watched Anna Dial, who beat Goetta in their last meeting in 17.6, take a quick and an apparent clear lead as Goetta drifted slightly toward the rail from her outside post.

But after 150 yards, the Hugh Huntley star, with Charles Smith aboard, straightened and came on fast as did Scooper Chick, upset winner of Jet Deck last fall.

Winning time was 17.9, but each of the 1-2-3 finishers, top betting favorites in that order, had run faster previously. Anna Dial beat Goetta by a half-length in 17.6 March 21 at Sacramento; Scooper Chick has won twice at 17.8 at Sacramento and Los Alamitos, and Goetta last Dec. 14 at Los Alamitos in the Futurity Trial won going away in 17.6.

However, since that race, Goetta had been beaten twice, once by Maggie McGowan, who also ran in Saturday's Shue Fly, and by Anna Dial.

* * * *

BUT Saturday she lived up to her expectations and railbirds still expect her to be one of the outstanding quarterhorses of all time.

Goetta's place and show prices were $3.20, $2.60. Scooper Chick returned $3.60, $2.60 and Anna Dial $2.80.

Liz wasn't around but Eddie was following the second race.

Popular singer Eddie Fisher, ex-hubby of Elizabeth Taylor, adorned the winner's circle after the second race named in his honor and won by Foolish Capers, a horse which on the morning line was 15-1 but who went off as a lukewarm favorite to return $7.60.

Fisher, currently serenading at Melodyland, reportedly made a substantial wager on the eventual winner which may have aided in the sudden odds drop.

Foolish Capers completed a daily double from Raid Bar in the first race for a $59.80 payoff, the lowest yet in the young meeting but still a handsome one for those lucky enough to collect.

BLUE NORTHER WINS

Mongo 5th, But Barnmate Shines

Compiled from Wire Reports

Sheldrake, 3-year-old stablemate to Mongo, won the $25,000-added Senatorial Stakes at Laurel Race Course Saturday while his illustrious barnmate was running out of the money in the Excelsior at Aqueduct.

Jockey Willie Shoemaker deliberately dropped Blue Norther back from an early lead and then booted the Kentucky Derby nominee home in the stretch to win the $25,150-added Ashland Stakes by three lengths at Keeneland, Ky.

The filly, nominated for both the Derby and the Oaks at Churchill Downs, ran the six furlong race in 1:09, just seven-tenths of a second off the track record, even though Shoemaker had dropped her back.

Blue Norther paid $3.00, $2.80 and $2.20, Silver Dollar, who finished second, paid $5.00 and $2.60, while Roman Goddess, third paid $2.20.

* * * *

UPPERCUT pulled away from the field in the stretch at Aqueduct to win the $27,500 Excelsior by three lengths with favored Mongo a poor fifth in the 57th running of the race.

Hardwick Wins Pin Title Over Marzich

COSTA MESA (UPI)—Billy Hardwick, 22-year-old pro from San Mateo, rolled a 235-game Saturday to capture the deciding game of the $25,000 Southern California Open.

Hardwick defeated Andy Marzich of Long Beach, who rolled a 217, to pick up the $4,000 first-prize money in the nationally televised finals at Kona Lanes.

It was the third Professional Bowlers Association tourney win for Hardwick this year. Hardwick won four tournaments last year and was the leading money-winner on the circuit with $33,265.

The slender 6-footer was first-seeded in the finals of the Southern California Open because he led over the previous 40-game route.

Marzich, a bespectacled bowler who has one tournament win this year, defeated Ray Bluth of St. Louis 218-198 and Johnny King of Chicago, 268-236, in the round robin preceding the final. Bluth defeated King 268-236 for third place.

By CHUCK MEDICK

The Long Beach Nitehawks have signed pitcher Joe Lynch, a 22-year-old sailor who beat them three times last year.

• • • •

LYNCH, who makes his home in Nashville, Tenn., will finish his tour of Naval duty next January.

He will join a staff of Nitehawk aces which includes Jack Randall, Eddie Waymire and Hugh Harman.

The Nitehawks start Western Softball Congress play April 30 against the ISC world champion Gardena Merchants.

Weird Weather at Tuna Club Camp

Every Southern California Tuna Club camp at Devil's Cove on Lake Mead provides a lot of fun and often some strange experiences. This year's camp, the sixth annual, topped all for weird weather and, as a matter of fact, there were some weird events.

The camp ended last Sunday and those who left Temple Bar early were fortunate. Those who departed later in the day ran into one of the worst windstorms in the Baker-Barstow area. As a result, several cars are getting new glass and paint jobs this week.

The main camp started on the previous Wednesday and rain began falling the first night. Result: wet tents and some sleeping bags. Hail and high winds and even snow on distant peaks added to the assortment of weather, but yet the 85 persons had their usual good luck with bass. Most of the fish were smaller than in previous years.

Such a camp, 20 miles from Temple Bar by water, requires much advance planning and a work crew usually gets everything in order before the larger group arrives.

General chairman Robert Joy received high praise for the way he organized this year's camp, but he, in turn, gave credit to a score of men who went up a week ahead of the camp opening.

THOSE WHO PREPARED CAMP were president Cliff Brignall, J. S. (Jim) Kuster, Allen Lowe, Warren Merrill, Burr Dilday, Dr. Eugene Jones, John Osler, Lou Wetzel, Lloyd Hunter, Dr. Chester Moore, Dr. Sterling Pillsbury, Mel Masterson, Bob Joy and the hired help, Juel Bosen, who left his delicatessen at 2943 E. Broadway here to cook for the sixth year, and his son-in-law, James Davis.

Sherman Bledsoe and his son, Dave, who have been working for the Temple Bar Corporation, also helped with the heavy work. Joy and Bledsoe put an earth-moving machine on a truck and went around through Las Vegas, beyond the Overton arm of the lake and then found a trail that eventually led to Devil's Cove. Such a trip involves about 200 miles of travel from Temple Bar.

The equipment, which consists of a shovel on one end and a bulldozer on the other, was used to level ground for the tents. It was too heavy to have been barged uplake from Temple Bar.

But it remained for Dr. Moore and Dr. Pillsbury to turn in the oddest list of experiences. Anywhere Dr. Chet Moore goes there is bound to be an experience.

He and Dr. Pillsbury and Mel Masterson and Roy Cabe set out from Long Beach in Chet's reconverted Santa Fe bus, a de luxe camper unit.

THEY LEFT MASTERSON and Cabe at Temple Bar to go uplake by boat, then trailing a Jeep behind the bus, took the same route beyond Las Vegas and Overton. Getting a vehicle that once carried 40 or 45 passengers over almost virgin territory proved to be quite a task.

The dentist and the doctor first had to put out a fire that started in the rear of the bus when a can fell on a storage battery, shorted it and started throwing sparks that ignited rags and timbers.

With that fire out, they resumed their trip. At one point the bus got stuck on a high hump of ground and they got out to shovel underneath. Then they discovered that they had lost the Jeep. Once they got the bus moving again, they retracked their path and found the Jeep two miles away.

They decided to leave the bus there and take to the Jeep but it wouldn't start. Two men in another Jeep (taken in earlier by the work crew) showed up at that moment and started working on the engine. Chet decided to make camp for the night. He took a brazier from the bus, loaded it with charcoal and got ready to broil steaks.

Just about the time he was ready to put the steaks on the fire, the others succeeded in starting the balky Jeep. It was in gear and took off like a scared jackrabbit, right over the brazier, throwing hot coals over the countryside.

JUST WHAT WAS SAID by everyone at that moment isn't quite clear, but I'm sure it couldn't be printed. They finally left the bus about 12 miles from Devil's Cove and the two Jeeps mad trips back and forth carrying, among other equipment, Chet's high-powered radio transmitting station. He was the head of a committee on "global communications."

On the final night he was tried and convicted by a kangaroo court for operating an illegal radio station in Nevada.

Oh, yes, I almost forgot about the Dr. Moore-Dr. Pillsbury experiences on the way home. They got the Jeep hitched on the bus and left early for Las Vegas. About halfway back and in barren country they spotted an animal which calmly walked in front of the bus. It was a mountain lion, a big one, too!

Driving into the hotel parking lot at Las Vegas, the engine of the once-balky Jeep fell out of the frame to the pavement. So part of the Jeep had to ride home inside the bus. But they were lucky. They left early enough and didn't have to fight the vicious windstorm.

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Steel, Rails Fail to Shake Mart

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks finished lower in the averages last week, but Wall Streeters were pleased at the sturdiness which the market showed against an adverse news background.

Brokers were considerably surprised by the market's ability to absorb both the indictment of eight steel companies and another close shave with a nationwide rail strike.

• • • •

PRICES rose to their third consecutive high on Monday but drifted lower Tuesday indictments. Prices eased again Wednesday, this time dropping under strike calls against the Illinois Central Railroad.

Prices milled listlessly on Thursday then sold off near the close when it appeared that an immediate solution was not forthcoming. In the final session rails featured the market as prices moved up again.

The economic situation continued to look bright and grows rosier with each incoming earnings report for the first quarter. The basic economic indicators continue to point upward.

Dow-Jones Industrial Average slipped 1.24 to 821.75 and rails lost 0.18 to 195.28. Utilities tacked on 0.01 to 285.78. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index skidded 0.09 to 79.85.

• • • •

VOLUME for the week amounted to 27,416,090 shares compared with 29,689,310 shares a week earlier and 22,175,104 shares in the same week last year. Of the 1,526 issues traded, 737 advanced, 323 to new 1964 highs while 619 declined, 84 to new lows.

Chrysler topped the market in activity, climbing 3⅛ to 48 on a turnover of 499,900 shares. Brokers attributed the strength in the stock to speculation over the company's first quarter earnings statement which is due this week and anticipation of a possible dividend boost.

It was followed in activity by Texas Gulf Sulphur up 3⅛ to 30⅛. Sulphur stocks have been strong since the recent price boost in the industry. Other sulphur companies to show gains were Pan American Sulphur up 2¾ and Freeport Sulphur up 2½.

• • • •

TRANSITRON was third with a gain of 2 1/7 to 6⅞. RCA placed fourth with a gain of ½ to 35⅞ and Fairchild Camera was fifth with a gain of ⅝ to 29¾. Fairchild was strong early in the week after the company announced it had developed a home television tape recorder which could sell for less than $500 if mass produced.

Steels generally were lower and even those who were not named in the indictment suffered.

Among those named in the suit, Bethlehem dropped 1¾, Republic 1⅝, U.S. Steel 1½, Jones & Laughlin ¼, Wheeling ⅝ and Armco ⅞. National Steel was up ¼.

Youngstown Sheet lost 1, Lukens 1½, Allegeny Ludlum 1⅛, and Inland 1⅛.

General Motors gained ⅛, but Ford slipped ⅜ and American Motors gave up ¼. Mack Truck dropped 1¼.

Union Carbide jumped 3½ but Du Pont lost 1¼ and Eastman Kodak skidded 1⅜. Commercial Solvents advanced 2⅝ and Witco 4⅝.

• • • •

OILS SHOWED a number of good gains including Standard Oil of Indiana up 3⅞, Pennzoil 2, and Barbar 3. Getty Oil dropped 2¼ and Pure Oil gave up 2.

IBM lost 1¾ despite a gain of 11¾ in the final session when directors reported first quarter earnings rose $36 million. Per share earnings totaled $4.11 compared with $2.82 a year earlier.

Control Data soared 10½, Motorola 4⅝, Texas Instruments 3¾, Electronic Associates 2¼ and High Voltage Engineering 2⅝. Minneapolis-Honeywell sank 3⅛.

Abbott Labs added 3½ and Bristol-Myers 3. Merck lost 4. Merck earlier last week distributed a 36,000 shares secondary offering.

Anaconda rose 1¼ and Cerro Corp. picked up 2¼. International Nickel slipped 2⅝.

• • • •

AIRLINE shares were hit by profit-taking and many in the section drifted back from their former lofty positions. Pan American dropped 2⅞, United 3, National 2⅞, Northwest 2⅝, Trans World 1¼ and Continental 1¾. American Airlines rose 1⅜ and Emery Air Freight added 2.

Tobacco shares scored fresh gains on new reports that cigarette sales were again on the upswing. Liggett & Myers gained 2⅝, Philip Morris 1⅝, Reynolds ⅝, Lorillard ⅛ and American Tobacco ½.

Cigar stocks retreated some. General Cigar gave up 2⅛ and Bayuk eased 2.

General Cable jumped 7⅛ on a company estimate of record sales and earnings for the first quarter. Celanese picked up 2, also on earnings news.

• • • •

WOOLWORTH shot up 7¼ after directors proposed a 3-for-1 stock split and dividend boost. Elsewhere in the section, Kress jumped 7⅛, but May Department Stores gave up 2½.

Among the rail leaders, New York Central was ahead 1½, Chicago Great Western 1⅛ and Atlantic Coast Line 1¾. Nickel Plate dropped ⅞, Chicago & North Western 1¾, Norfolk & Western ½, Baltimore & Ohio 1¼, Atchison ⅞ and Union Pacific ⅜.

Financial shares retreated. Financial Federation dropped 6⅛, First Charter Financial 1⅛, United Financial of California 4½ and Wesco 4.

American Telephone, whose billion dollar rights offering expired at noon Monday, dropped 2⅛. General Electric eased 2⅛. Rohm & Haas gave up 4½.

G. D. Roper pushed ahead 8¼. Du Bois Chemical gained 2. Harris Intertype advanced 4⅞. Polaroid soared 12 but Xerox, its glamor twin, gained only 3½.

Major Firms Report Good Oil Prospects

By MAX B. SKELTON

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP)—Stockholders of most major oil companies are being advised the industry's prospects for 1964 are good.

Most of the annual financial reports being mailed to stockholders are optimistic but warn of continued sharp competition and depressed products prices.

The annual report by the Standard Oil Co. (Indiana) summarized the situation this way:

"Prospects for the petroleum industry in 1964 are generally good, even with perennial difficulties with costs, prices and regulations. Even though prices for crude oil and refined products continue under pressure . . . record levels in industry operations, along with further gains in earnings, appear likely."

Socony Mobil Oil Co. emphasized its forecast of a good year by saying it has earmarked a record $475 million for 1964 capital and exploration expenditures.

Texaco Inc. said free world demand for petroleum in 1964 should rise about six per cent —from two to three per cent in the United States and eight to 10 per cent in other areas.

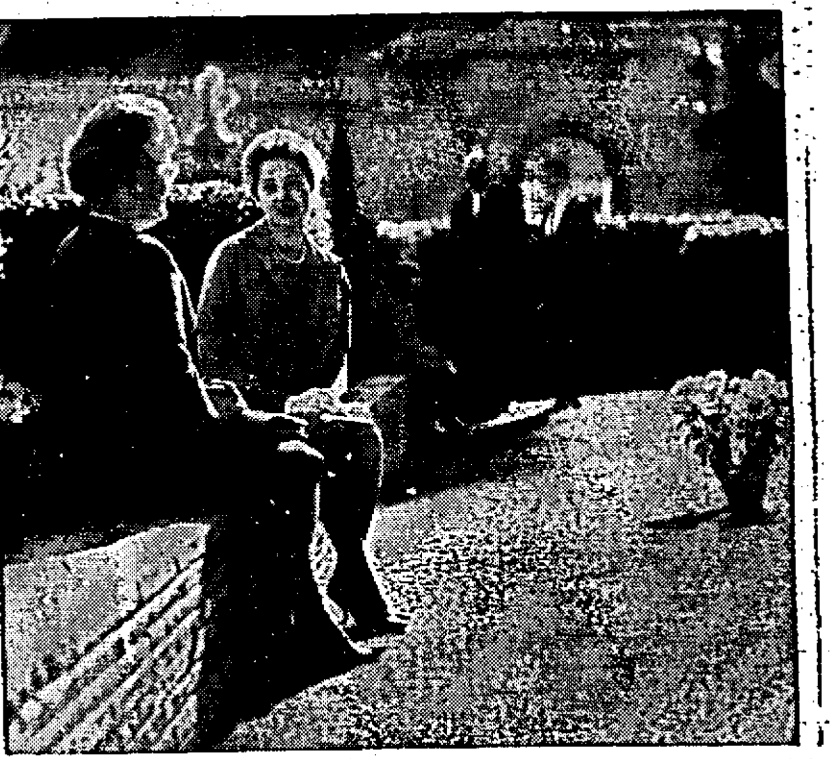
Phillips Petroleum Co. said expanding highway systems, trends to suburban living, increasing pleasure travel, and a rising general economy should cause 1963's strong demand for gasoline to continue.

The Gulf Oil Corp. reported 1963 earnings but said gasoline prices averaged one-half cent below 1954.

"At Gulf's 1963 level of operations in the United States alone, one-half cent a gallon in the price of gasoline is equivalent to more than $24 million a year in operating revenues," the Gulf report said.

Standard Oil Co. of California said there is indication of continued progress and growth in 1964 but such prospects are tempered by price and other industry problems persisting from 1963.

"To lessen the adverse impact of the cost-price squeeze on company earnings, management is expanding and intensifying its various programs for controlling and reducing the costs of doing business," California's report said.



"I WILL NEVER HAVE TO FACE THIS PROBLEM ALONE!"

"When my husband suggested we talk to the Rose Hills man about before-need memorial property, I knew he was thinking of the unnecessary suffering my friends went through because they had not planned ahead.

"We arranged a Family Protection Plan, while we both could choose what we wanted, without emotional pressures. He says he feels ten years younger, with the peace of mind he gained, knowing that I will never have to face this problem alone. He has proven his love beyond mere words.

"We certainly are glad we chose Rose Hills. Its beauty is so natural, with rolling hills, lovely lawns and gardens, and no headstones or monuments, it looks more like a park than a cemetery. There were so many beautiful sections from which to choose, and we found just what we wanted.

"We know, too, that Rose Hills will always be as lovely as it is today for they have that government-supervised Endowment Care Fund.

"By planning ahead, we gained financially, too. We were able to arrange a monthly payment plan that fits our budget perfectly, a plan which minimizes the cost to us.

"And as one of those little extra touches you always appreciate, the Rose Hills man gave us a handy Estate Portfolio for our important papers. It has containers for insurance, real estate papers, stocks and bonds and other vital records, properly catalogued so they are easy to find. He told us this portfolio is free to anyone interested."

This reaction is typical of that of thousands of wives, whose husbands had the foresight to plan in advance. Why don't you talk to the man from Rose Hills soon? Arrange an appointment by phone, or better still, send in the coupon for your free Estate Portfolio.

TO CLASSIFIED

Members of the specially trained, 70-man field auditing staff of the Audit Bureau of Circulations* make regular call on 2,900 publications . . . ours included . . . located in almost as many places.

The ABC auditor's call might last a day, a week, or even several months . . . just as long as it takes him to make a complete audit of our circulation records and obtain the information about our circulation audience that ABC will later publish.

Actually, he is working for you—our readers and our advertisers. Knowing full well that we will stay in business only so long as our publication continues to serve the interests of our readers, this audit of our paid circulation provides us with a regular and objective review of how well you think we are doing.

Knowing full well that sales messages must reach a responsive audience in order to be effective, our advertisers are also interested in the ABC auditor's call. The hard, and sometimes cold, facts he reports about our circulation provide you with an informed basis for investing your advertising money.

Yes, the ABC auditor has been here . . . and he will be here again calling to check on how well we are doing our job and to provide the facts to help us and our advertisers do even better.

INDEPENDENT PRESS-TELEGRAM

This publication is a member of the Audit Bureau of Circulations, an association of nearly 4,000 publishers, advertisers, and advertising agencies. Our circulation is audited by experienced ABC field auditors. Our ABC report shows how much circulation we have, where it goes, how obtained, and other facts that tell you what you get for your advertising money when you use this publication.

A SUGGESTION

When making a turn, always signal or use turn indicators. Signal well in advance so that drivers behind you are not forced to brake or swerve suddenly. Make sure your turn signals are off at all other times.

A REAL HONEY OF AN IDEA

Cardboard Sandwich Laced With Glue Is Sweet Money-Saver for Manufacturers

By
VERN ANTHONY

Busy as bees, workers in a plant recently opened in La Mirada by Hexcel Products, Inc., are manufacturing 'honeycomb' made from paper. And, as its name implies, it can be a 'sweet' industrial economy.

Amazingly, the honeycomb provides more strength for its weight than anything now known, when it is sandwiched between nearly any kind of sheet material, the manufacturers say.

• • • •

HEXCEL IS at 15100 S. Valley View Ave. in a building formerly occupied by the Coast Hardboard Co., which has moved to Whittier.

The La Mirada Division, managed by Thomas P. Muchisky, manufactures variations of Kraft liner board (a high quality wood derivative) honeycomb for such applications as interior and exterior walls, roofs, partitions, floors, cabinets, shelving, pallets and doors.

Customers throughout the 15 Western states, including Alaska and Hawaii, are serviced from the new facility.

• • • •

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA is a major market for Hexcel's industrial honeycomb products. Numerous new applications for the material have blossomed in the area, including relocatable residential walls, unusually flat residential doors, and lightweight incombustible walls for commercial buildings.

The relocatable walls, which consist of Kraft honeycomb core and wood veneer facing sheets, are strong but so light that they can be rearranged by a man and a boy.

Henry C. Cox, prominent Santa Ana home builder, introduced such relocatable walls on a mass basis in late 1962.

The primary advantage to the homeowner is that he can change the interior appearance of his home at will and the walls never will take on a "wavy" appearance.

• • • •

ADVANTAGE TO THE BUILDER is that he can sell a home, and wait for the family to make the final decision on where the walls should be placed and how large rooms should be.

The La Mirada plant is Hexcel's fifth manufacturing facility. Other plants are located at Berkeley (headquarters) and Oakland, Calif.; Irving, Tex.; and Havre de Grace, Md.

• • • •

THE TERM HONEYCOMB is used to describe specific structure, not any special material; and honeycomb can be made from numerous materials, such as aluminum, fiberglass, plastics, etc.

In tests of strength, a piece of paper honeycomb core only seven inches thick has supported the weight of a 4,800 pound automobile.

Escrow Group to Convene

Presidents and delegates from 11 escrow associations in the state will convene in Long Beach April 18. The Long Beach Escrow Association will host the state meeting, according to Marjorie D. Knox, local unit president.

Plans include a luncheon at Mr. C's restaurant, followed by a business session adjourning at 4:30 p.m. The Long Beach group then will entertain at a cocktail party.

The California Escrow Association group will include presidents and delegates from all local associations in the state.

Decisions made here, it was said, will be of major concern to real estate and escrow business and could play a key part in future legislation in these fields.

Noma Has New Name

The National Office Management Association (NOMA), has changed its name to Administrative Management Society, International President Joseph W. Gawthrop has announced. (NOMA was organized in 1919, and today has 16,000 members in the United States and Canada, plus members at large around the world.

The Long Beach chapter has completed the details involved in making the change-over to Administrative Management Society, according to Norman Greengrove, president of the chapter.

• • • •

THE PURPOSE of any name is meaningful identification. It is simply no longer appropriate to attempt to describe the field of the society's interest with the term "office management," Greengrove said.

The term "Administrative Management" carries with it implications of the broadened scope and the company-wide import of the aggressive profit orientation now increasingly typical of what used to be known as office management operations — and characteristic of the purposes and sense of direction, locally and nationally, of Administrative Management Society.

• • • •

HEAD OFFICES are in Willow Grove, Pa., where the society just completed a new office building to house its professional staff in administering the organization's many activities in the functional areas of personnel, systems, administrative services, advanced management, education and chapter services.

DEVELOPER, BACKERS TALK OVER TOWER PROGRESS

With picture of $7,500,000 31-story circular Tower building in background, Henry Sassoon, builder, and representatives of First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Alhambra discuss construction plans. At left is Grover C. Brown Jr., director, and at right is R. W. Holm, senior vice president-loan officer of the Alhambra firm, which is financing the high-rise project. Work on project is under way now at 660 E. Ocean Blvd., just east of another apartment building built by Sassoon and already occupied. The Tower is due for completion by July, 1965. It will be 300 feet high. "Topping out" of the structure is slated next January.

START OF FIVE-STORY PROJECT

Ground-breaking ceremonies for "Verdes West" condominium apartment project in San Pedro launch South Bay's tallest "own-your-own" project. In cab of first bulldozer to begin excavation for the five-story building are (from left) developer Charles Price; Lou Griffiths, deputy to Supervisor Burton Chace; Ken Jordan, secretary-manager of San Pedro Chamber of Commerce; and developer Paul Shorr.

Swedlow Opens New Plant Unit at Garden Grove

Swedlow, Inc., major aerospace plastics manufacturer, last week officially opened the first unit of its new plant facility on a 22 acre site in the Garden Grove Central Manufacturing District.

Housing the firm's aircraft transparencies and laboratory activities, it comprises about 70,000 square feet.

Opening ceremonies included a ribbon-cutting, followed by a guided plant tour.

San Pedro to Have High Condominium

Official groundbreaking ceremonies were held recently for "Verdes West," a $3 million five-story condominium apartment project on Western Avenue overlooking San Pedro's Peck Park and Los Angeles Harbor.

The 70-apartment structure will be the tallest condominium in the South Bay area. Construction operations are under way and the building is due to be completed early in 1965.

"Verdes West" is a Price-Shorr project being built by Verdes Development Corp. It is located at the Northwest intersection of Summerland and Western Avenue.

• • • •

EXTENSIVE preparation of the present hill site will place "Verdes West's" first floor at third-story height above Western Avenue. The top floor apartments will enjoy a view equivalent to that of a seven-story building.

The luxury apartment building is a block south of the new Western Plaza shopping area.

1,500 Due at Builder Meeting

Planned developments, condominiums and cluster housing developments in the West in the past year will be reviewed in detail by 30 speakers at the concentrated one-day conference on the three types on May 4 from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the Hollywood Palladium, according to Robert A. Olin, president of the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura counties, sponsors of the event.

• • • •

OFFICIAL NAME of the one-day meeting is "First Regional Conference on Planned Developments, Condominiums and Cluster Housing."

It is designed to present the newest developments of the three concepts for builders, lenders, architects, planners, city officials, manufacturers, and others in the home building industry in the 11 Western states, Olin said.

Plans have been made for seating 1,500 persons, said Ray A. Watt, of Ray A. Watt Construction Co., Gardena, who is chairman of the HBA Condominium Committee which is directly in charge.

• • • •

"RESERVATIONS will be accepted on a first come, first served basis," said Watt.

"At our very successful How-to-do-it Condominium Conference last year at Disneyland Hotel, we could seat only 1,200 persons because of fire department regulations, we had to turn back 300 requests for reservations and turn away 300 persons at the doors."

Show is sponsored annually by Orange County Builders Association.

Hutton & Co. Notes 60th Anniversary

Long Beach area representatives of E. F. Hutton & Co. are joining in the firm's observance this month of its 60th anniversary.

The company, member of the New York Stock Exchange, recently announced a 10 per cent expansion. Four offices of Baker, Simonds & Co., Inc., headquartered in Detroit, have joined Hutton & Co.; and the latter now has 46 offices in 12 states, according to S. C. Coleman, board chairman and chief executive officer.

• • • •

SIXTY YEARS ago, Edward F. Hutton began business with one office and one partner in New York City.

The firm lays claim to a number of firsts and innovations in its 60 years: 1907, market quotations provided to West Coast newspapers; 1915, suburban offices inaugurated in Los Angeles and San Francisco; 1916, one of the first hotel offices opened in New York's Plaza; 1922, Hutton's "Early Morning Bulletin," a forerunner of today's market letter begun and in the early 1920's Hutton partners made some of the first field reports on industrial companies.

E. F. Hutton today has 2,100 employes, including 650 registered representatives.

Management Changes Made by McDermott

R. Thomas McDermott, president and founder of J. Ray McDermott & Co., Inc., world-wide off-shore contractors who have done work off California, has been elected to the newly created post of chairman, according to an announcement from New Orleans.

Roger W. Wilson, 56, executive vice president since 1946, was named president.

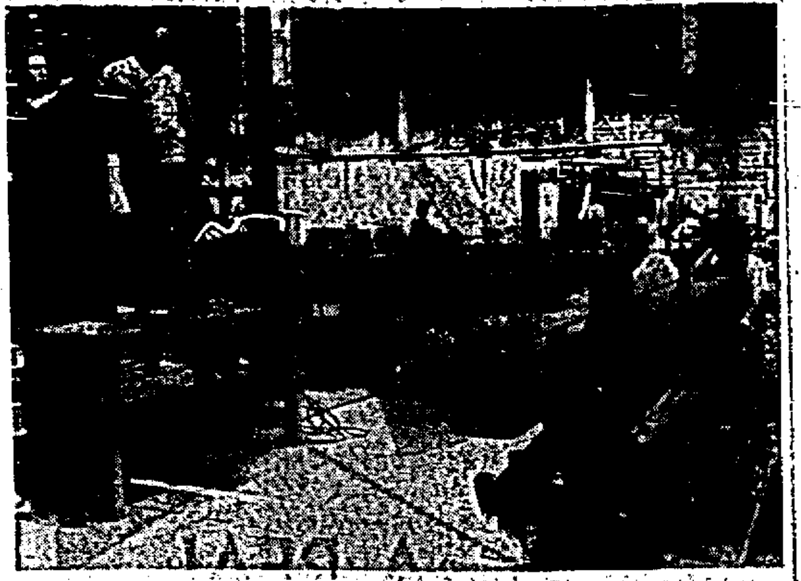
McDermott, nearing 65, said the management changes were "aimed at shifting the growing management burden to younger shoulders," while broadening the managerial base and streamlining executive procedures.

A. H. Stall, 64, a vice president and director, was elected to additional duties of vice chairman, another new post.

C. L. Graves, 48, a director and former vice president, was appointed executive vice president to succeed Wilson.

Eugene D. Saunders, general counsel, was named a director.

McDermott heads a newly established finance committee, which also includes Wilson and directors Graham D. Mattison and William A. Hobbs.



SPEEDS UP WORK AT DOUGLAS PLANT

Optical tooling dock speeds work on new DC9 twin-jet transport at Douglas Aircraft Division in Long Beach by mass production of large holding devices for the assembly line. Conventionally, assembly tools like the DC9 nose wheel-well jig at left are built in place on the assembly line and calibrated with micrometer precision by portable tooling bars like the ones along which technicians are sighting optical instruments. Stationary dock with fixed tooling bars eliminates time-consuming individual optical setups for each new tool. The DC9 schedule calls for first aircraft to roll out next February. After flight certification tests, it will enter service on short-to-medium-haul routes early in 1966 as a jet replacement for obsolete propeller and jet-prop airliners now serving hundreds of smaller communities.

ALICE LEWIS

Twenty-two years in department store sales and merchandising taught Miss Lewis that satisfied clients were the key to selling success. And now, as an outstanding success in real estate sales, she reveals that her secret has been the effort and concern that she has shown each client. Miss Lewis estimates that she has served over one thousand clients in the past ten years, many of whom were sent to her by other satisfied clients.

Miss Lewis left Hazelton, Penn. in 1922 and after some time in New York she made her home in Los Angeles. She holds a coveted "Certificate of Real Estate" received at Los Angeles City College and has spent her entire real estate career with Walker & Lee, Inc. She is in their office located at [illegible] Bellflower Bl., Lakewood. In addition to topping sales for the month of March, Miss Lewis was also the Outstanding Salesman in 1963 for the six Walker & Lee offices in this area.

Ad Club to Hear Woman and Speech Contestants

Nancy Fritz, chairman of the Junior Division of the Advertising Association of the West and immediate past president of the Los Angeles Junior Advertising Club, will be guest speaker at the Advertising Club of Long Beach meeting Thursday noon in the Panorama Room of the Lafayette Hotel.

Her topic will be "Young Advertising vs. Experienced Advertising—Who Should Umpire the Ad Game."

Miss Fritz is a research assistant at the MacManus, John & Adams advertising agency in Los Angeles.

Also on the agenda will be the annual Ayers three-minute speech contest, featuring students from California State College at Long Beach and Long Beach City College.

The common topic will be "Uncle Sam, the Ad Man?" Theme is a warning of the growing role of government in controlling and restricting the activities of this part of our economic system.

Winner of this competition will speak May 2 at the Advertising Association of the West Fifth District conference at the Continental Hotel in Hollywood, to determine the district representative at the annual Advertising Association of the West conference in Sun Valley, Idaho, July 5-9.

J. Earl Manning, owner of the Arthur Murray Dance Studio, will be chairman of the day. President Perry Griffith will preside. Guests are welcome and may call executive secretary Helen Perkins, manager of the Independent, Press-Telegram Engravers, for reservations.

Firm Buys Guam Base

Smyth Worldwide Movers, Inc., West Coast-based international moving and storage firm, has acquired substantial warehousing, trucking and operating facilities on the island of Guam, in the central Pacific.

Robert Hudak, manager of Smyth's Long Beach branch, said the company has purchased the entire installation of International Sea Van, Inc., at Asan, Guam.

Smyth has other domestic bases at Redwood City, San Francisco, Tacoma, and Seattle, and owns and operates overseas bases at Anchorage, Alaska, Hawaii, Japan, and Okinawa.

James H. Wilson, president of Smyth Worldwide, said the newly-acquired branch will employ 25 people and operate under the name of Smyth Van of Guam.

• • • •

THE PURCHASE includes land, 29 pieces of trucking and loading equipment, and a reinforced concrete warehouse of 10,000 square feet capacity, one of the few buildings to survive typhoon Karen, which devastated Guam in November, 1962.

"In a way, the typhoon is responsible for the company's decision to expand into Guam," Hudak said. "The United States Government recently began a five-year rebuilding program on the island which will involve many thousands of tons of material and equipment. We anticipate a healthy increase in commercial hauling and warehousing in the area."

$2,062 Million Invested in State by Metropolitan

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. assets invested in California amounted to $2,062.2 million at the end of 1963, it was announced Saturday by A. J. Miali, manager of the company's Lakewood office.

Metropolitan contributed significantly to demands for capital in California to finance industrial expansion and research; to help meet the needs of large and small businesses; and to spur the trend towards home ownership, Miali said.

For example, more than $585.3 million was invested in corporate securities in California, and Metropolitan mortgage loans in the state amounted to $1,082.7 million.

The company's holdings of U. S. government bonds alone — apportioned to California on the basis of its population —amounted to $88.5 million. Other Metropolitan assets attributable to California amounted to $305.5 million.

THIS VESSEL TO BECOME WORLD TRADE SHIP

Fair Trade Ship Will Show Products of Free Enterprise

American products and services ranging from pumps to paint, and from computers to milking machines, will go on sale throughout the world next year via a spectacular floating showcase.

The showcase will be the S. S. Tradefair, the first United States trade fair ship.

Conceived by Trade Fair Ship, Inc., at 46 South St., New York City, the operation is a private, profit-making venture deliberately designed to portray the American concept of the private enterprise system — by private enterprise.

The ship will carry products of American businessmen both large and small.

• • • •

A SERIES of four cruises over a 13 to 18-month period will put the American showcase in 52 ports, each of which has been market researched for an identifiable demand for American products and services.

The four itineraries of the first world cruise are Northern Europe; Southern Europe, the Mediterranean and the Near East; Arabia, the Middle East, India and East Asia; and Australia, South Africa and Latin America.

Admiral John H. Morrill, USN (Ret.), president of Trade Fair Ship, Inc., points out that with more than half of the nations on the globe competing for new consumer markets throughout the world, the American businessman must utilize every known means to expand his markets beyond U.S. borders.

• • • •

THE SHIP has been designed to serve as a business center; a stage for seminars; a forum for exchanging ideas and information on investment and licensing opportunities in the U.S. and abroad; on national customs and marketing procedures; a market place where transactions can be completed on a person-to-person basis by exhibitors and foreign buyers and an arena for commercial diplomacy to strengthen international ties.

An 18 knot, 20,000-ton displacement ship, 525 feet long, is scheduled to go into a yard for a $10 million renovation this spring. She will have 40,000 square feet of exhibit space supplemented by 75,000 square feet of special service areas.

Franchise, Permit Fee Totals Gain

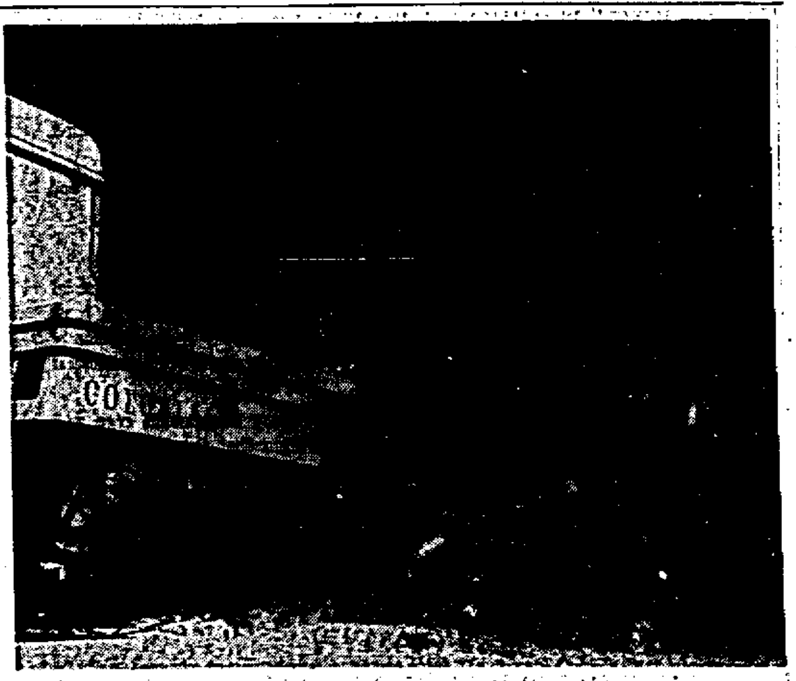
Franchise Taxes and permit fees collected by the Long Beach Bureau of Franchises last fiscal year amounted to $952,448.67, an increase of $17,052.04 over the preceding year.

The figures were disclosed in an annual report by City Auditor Murray T. Courson.

Principal revenue sources were $415,090.49 from the General Telephone Co. franchise, $253,418.33 from Southern California Edison Co. and $209,480.75 from pipeline installations.

The first two showed substantial increases. Pipeline revenues declined because of the city's purchase of a portion of the facilities formerly owned by Southern California Gas Co.

The bureau, headed by Chief Engineer Henry E. Jordan, spent only $36,251.31.



NEARLY 80 TONS AT A BITE

This gigantic new walking dragline machine can dig and cast about 80 tons of material with every swing of its 60-cubic-yard bucket. It has a 250-foot boom and is able to reach out as far as 246 feet and as deep as 150 feet below its own level. It's the largest machine of its kind ever built by Bucyrus-Erie Co., Milwaukee, and is now at work at a mine in Kentucky. When digging, the machine rests on its circular base 55 feet in diameter, with its "walking shoes" up and out of the way. To move the machine, the shoes are lowered to the ground simultaneously by a rotating cam system. In the same process, the main part of the machine and its base are lifted, moved forward along the ground and then gently lowered to complete a "step" of about seven feet.

Real Pure Water Not for Drinks

NEW YORK (UPI) — If you've never tried drinking "pure" water, try it some time. The chances are you won't like it. Nobody does. Water tastes good because of the mineral content, which varies considerably from one area to another.

Getting the impurities out of water to fit it for industrial use while making it not fit for human consumption is one of the tasks of the Detroit subsidiary of The Grow Corp. of New York, which makes an especially pure water used as a jet airplane fuel additive. The water, mixed with methanol and injected into the engine's fuel stream, provides an extra burst of take-off power.

RICHARD SIRIS
Company President

Siris Furniture Co. Expands Into New Long Beach Store

Richard Siris, president of Siris Furniture Co., today announced the grand opening of the firm's new furniture store at 1235 Long Beach Blvd., directly across the street from its previous location.

"This we firmly believe to be one of the most beautiful furniture stores in the entire harbor area, if not all Southern California," Siris said.

He declared it would be the policy of the store to carry on its "time-honored tradition" of offering finest furniture values to be found anywhere. "In fact," he said, "our furniture will only look expensive in its new surroundings, yet will carry a budget price."

The new store location, formerly an auto sales and service center, has been rebuilt as designed by Siris and architect Stanley Goldin, AIA.

• • • •

THE SIRIS COMPANY was founded in 1925 by Jacob Siris. The business was sold to his son, Irving, in 1944. The father-to-son tradition continued in 1960, when Richard Siris became president. He recently became a member of the National Society of Interior Decorators.

The store's new location provides triple expansion over its previous space. This, Richard Siris remarked, shows confidence that business growth will continue in the Long Beach and Orange County areas.

The new store features homelike groupings of furniture, with lighting suitable to individual displays.

W.U. Autodin Gets New Defense Order

Walter P. Marshall, president of Western Union Telegraph Co., announced signing of a contract with the Department of Defense, involving capital expenditures in excess of $53,000,000, to expand its Autodin Communications System, world's largest and most advanced automatic digital data network.

Scheduled for completion by mid-1966, Autodin's expansion, when additional outstation equipment and circuitry is installed, will provide Western Union with additional private wire revenues approximating $25,000,000 annually.

The present Autodin system, completed by Western Union for the Department of Defense early in 1963, consists of five major switching centers and more than 350 outstations, with revenues of more than $30,000,000 annually. The new contract will add four new switching centers.

• • • •

CAPACITY of the five existing centers will be increased and the enlarged system will have a capability of more than 2,000 outstations, over five times the present number. The new system will absorb many existing nationwide teletype networks.

Autodin is being developed into a global system for the high-speed interchange of vital telecommunications for the Department of Defense, not only between military installations but also with industrial plants which provide direct support for weapons systems.

Nickel Stainless Steel Sinks Gain in Popularity

That sturdy standby of yesterday, the stainless steel sink, has undergone a dramatic change and is fast becoming the most wanted kitchen helper in America by homemakers demanding the best in today's new homes.

Through addition of nickel to stainless steel, manufacturers have been able to create a major breakthrough toward supplying the kitchen with a sink even more durable than ordinary stainless steel while at the same time making possible a great variety of beautiful and permanent finishes, models and sizes. Nickel also practically elminates any possibilty of corrosion.

A San Fernando manufacturer (Ziegler-Harris Corp.) reports more than 3,500 sinks ordered in the first two months of this year compared to only a scattered few hundred during the similar period last year.

• • • •

IN THE Long Beach area, S and S Construction Co. is using these sinks in the 1,000-unit 2000 Beverly Plaza tract; and Koll Construction Co. is using them in a 400-unit condominium.

The Larwin Group Companies, one of the nation's leading master builders, has nickel stainless steel sinks in its new $18 million, 785 unit home community, Kingspark, in Simi Valley. Michael L. Tenzer, vice president and marketing director for Larwin, announced the sinks are being installed in the entire Kingspark development.

• • • •

NICKEL stainless steel sink manufacturers report more than 20 major residential, condominium and apartment builders have ordered the sinks since Jan. 1. The projects range in location from the San Fernando and Simi Valleys to Lancaster, Santa Barbara, Beverly Hills, Long Beach and Orange County.

A national consumer magazine recently reported that by 1970 more than 70% of all sinks manufactured will be some form of nickel stainless steel. Currently, 29% of all sinks now being made are nickel stainless steel.

EYES ON HER FUTURE?

Sandy Sind, "Miss Nickel Stainless Steel," adds a bit of glamour posing in kitchen beside stainless steel sink manufactured by nickel processing.

Living Expenses Average Near $6,000 in Southland

Southland consumers spent almost $6,000 for current annual living expenses in 1960 and '61, according to government findings.

Results of a survey of expenditures by families and single consumers in the Los Angeles area, including Orange County, were released by Max D. Kossoris, western regional director of the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Annual expenditures for current consumption in 1960-61 showed an increase of 44.3 per cent since 1950. At the same time, average money incomes after taxes rose 52.0 per cent.

IN ADDITION to the increased dollar expenditure in all major categories between 1950 and 1960-61, there were significant shifts in the proportion of total current living expenses for different purposes.

Food and beverages declined from 29.9 per cent to 24.9 per cent of current expenditures, and clothing from 10.3 to 9.2 per cent.

But shelter costs (including fuel and utilities) of homeowners and renters increased from 14.4 to 17.7 per cent in 1960-61.

However, the combined share for the three basic categories of family expenses—food, clothing and shelter—declined from 55 to 52 per cent.

Expenditures for the purchase and operation of automobiles also increased, rising from 14.8 to 15.2 per cent, partly because the percentage of families owning automobiles rose from 72 to 84 per cent.

* * * *

MEDICAL CARE and personal care also accounted for a larger share of family spending in the decade since 1950, with 3 out of 4 families reporting payments for medical care insurance in 1960-61.

The increase over the decade brought average expenditures for current living costs to $5,989 in 1960-61.

In addition, Los Angeles consumers made gifts and contributions averaging $296 and put $315 into life insurance and retirement funds.

Their accounts over the year showed savings of $107, on the average, through a net increase of assets over liabilities.

More Distilled Spirits Consumed

NEW YORK (UPI — The U.S. public keeps getting thirstier: 1962's total consumption of distilled spirits set a new high of approximately 254 million gallons, according to Schenley Distillers. This was an increase of about five per cent over 1961's previous record of 240 million gallons; '62 was the eighth consecutive year in which the national rate of consumption increased.

DONALD J. FARMER
Heads Corporation

Torrance Firm Has New Chief

TORRANCE—Dr. Donald J. Farmer has been named to succeed Leonard J. Heilman as president of General Technology Corporation here.

Dr. Farmer, one of the aerospace company's founders, served most recently as vice president for business development. Heilman recently resigned the presidency, but remains as a consultant and member of the board of directors.

Dr. Farmer announced that the company now will concentrate on its proprietary atomic frequency-control instrumentation, high-vacuum components and controlled-atmosphere systems.

This change in emphasis, he pointed out, results from rapidly growing markets for accurate and reliable frequency standards and high-vacuum system components.

General Technology currently is working on a plasma engine for NASA.

West Uses Most Steel in Building

"The construction industry in the West is steel's biggest consumer—and steel has revolutionized its product in the last few years to bring new economies to the big construction jobs just ahead," Jack L. Ashby, president of Kaiser Steel Corp., told the Association of Iron and Steel Engineers western meeting in Los Angeles.

"The West is embarking upon vast new highway building programs water transportation projects and rapid transit networks. The widespread and judicious application of steel in the design and construction of these facilities can result in more attractive structures, at lower over-all costs and longer lives. Nobody is better equipped to work toward these ends than the iron and steel engineers."

Ashby pointed out that the introduction of oxygen to the steel manufacturing process as well as the development of higher strength steels and new steel products, all within the last few years, allow greater design freedom than is now being utilized.

Celebrate Over 500,000th Pool Built in U.S.

Officials of the Swimming Pool Association of Southern California, Inc., assembled recently at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Frye, Monterey Park, in commemoration of completion of the 500,000th swimming pool constructed in the United States.

Industry spokesmen pointed to the fact that in 1954 there were only an estimated 20,000 swimming pools in the nation. They saw the increase from that number to one half million in 10 years as a miraculous growth pattern that could happen "only in America."

SPA/SC presented Frye with a solid bronze plaque in celebration of the completion of his family pool. Frye is employed in the engineering department of the Southern California Gas Company.

To help celebrate the occasion of this half-millionth pool, the association is presenting a "Pool Owners' Day" at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles. This will be free to the public commencing at 10 a.m., Saturday, April 25.

$2 Billion Spent Weekly on Personal Progress and Welfare

Public and private expenditures to further the personal progress and welfare of the American people — their education, health, and financial protection for themselves and their dependents against the contingencies of life — have now reached a combined total of more than $100 billion a year, the Institute of Life Insurance has reported.

The aggregate came to more than $104 billion for the 1962-63 fiscal year, or $2 billion a week for every week in the year, according to data obtained from private and government sources, the Institute said.

This represented an increase of $5½ billion over the previous year, and it has been showing a significantly greater rate of growth than that of the economy as a whole over the post-World War II period.

"Indicative of their expansionary trend, education, health and personal protection expenditures taken together came to the equivalent of about 18 cents of every dollar of gross national produce in the fiscal year ended last July," the Institute said.

"The comparable dollar total and proportion just five years before, in the 1957-58 fiscal year, were $71 billion and 16 cents, while back in the 1949-50 fiscal year they were only $36 billion and 13 cents of the product dollar."

Her Wash Goes Long Distance

WICHITA (AP) — A Wichita housewife had to ask the phone company to bring in her wash.

The woman hung a shirt on a utility line at her house to dry. A stiff wind quickly dried it—and blew it along the line to the top of a utility pole.

The phone company sent out a repairman to retrieve the wash.

Bethlehem Steel Gets Atlas Giant

WILMINGTON, Del.—In a letter being sent to shareowners, Ralph K. Gottshall, Atlas president and board chairman, is disclosing that contracts have been signed providing for the acquisition by Bethlehem Steel Co. of the Atlas Giant properties near Richmond, Calif. Atlas will receive approximately $13,200,000 in cash and real estate for the former Giant Plant site and adjoining land.

Atlas has conveyed a major portion of the Giant Plant site to Bethlehem for $8,500,000. An additional cash payment of approximately $2,000,000 will be made for the remainder of this site when certain tideland boundaries have been settled.

* * * *

NET GAIN after taxes from the two cash transactions will be $6,600,000, equivalent to approximately $1.90 per share. Net proceeds from the first portion of the transaction are being used to make substantial reductions in the company's debt and to make advance contributions to the Atlas Pension Trust Fund.

The remaining Atlas property adjoining the plant site, now under lease to the Richmond Golf and Country Club, is to be exchanged for several tracts of land in the east suitable for industrial and commercial development. These properties have a fair market value approximating $2,700,000. Closing of this exchange transaction is expected in the next 12 months.

Van Firm Shows Gain in Earnings

Bekins Van & Storage Co. has revealed 1963 net earnings of $1,809,000, amounting to $1.22 per share on 1,481,772 outstanding shares as compared with $1,512,000 or $1.06 per share for 1962.

According to Daniel P. Bryant, president of the world's largest moving and storage company, with headquarters in Los Angeles, this represents a 19.6% increase in net earnings and a similar increase in return on invested capital.

Gross income for 1963 climbed to a total of $41,295,000. In the same period Bekins paid $.40 cents per share plus a 2% stock dividend.

During 1963, Bekins continued an expansion program in the East by strengthening facilities and appointing new agents, it was revealed. A new warehouse and terminal was completed in Detroit and additional storage facilities were established in Washington, D.C.

In the West, Bekins erected a new storage plant at Fort Worth and built an addition to its facility in Las Vegas, Nev.

Penney Co. March Sales Set Record

NEW YORK—J. C. Penney Co's March sales, spurred by the early Easter, rose 15.4 percent over a year ago to an all-time record. It was the 12th straight month of sales gains.

The department store chain reported March volume of $141,895,867 against $122,919,584 for the same 1963 month.

Particular sales strength was shown by most units of women's and children's wear, with women's coats and dresses among the more impressive performers.

Sales for the first two months of the 1964 fiscal year which began on Feb. 1 amounted to $249,393,085 compared with $209,614,125 in 1963.

Dividend Deluge

Dividend payments this year will have to go some to top 1963, when a record $17.6 billion was disbursed to shareholders. But if current patterns of higher earnings sustain themselves, there's a relatively good chance for another all-time peak this year, financial observers say.

Employe Ideas Save Millions of Dollars

Employe suggestions for new ways of doing things at Hughes Aircraft Co.'s ground systems group at Fullerton saved $6 million last year—and one man was responsible for $320,680 of the savings.

Thomas F. Day, supervisor of engineering fabrication in the company's communications division, is 1963's Man of the Year for his suggestions which brought direct savings.

C. Harper Brubaker, general manager of Hughes at Fullerton, said that since the cost improvement program was instituted at Fullerton in January 1958, an audited total savings of $37,707,160 has been realized. Of this, $16,906,395 was in direct savings to customers' contracts, he said.

* * * * *

DAY'S SUCCESSFUL cost improvement program suggestions were mainly concerned with improving production costs through installation of new fabrication machinery.

Sixteen others ranked high on the list, Brubaker said.

They included: L. C. Brighton, F. P. Stumbo Sr. and W. H. Vickner, all Garden Grove; J. A. Brogna of Westminster; D. J. Carlson of Torrance; C. H. Clark Jr. and J. A. Haworth, both Buena Park; G. F. Griffin of Culver City; G. C. Matthews and Thomas Palladino, both Santa Ana; D. R. Wagner of Orange; F. A. Smith of Yorba Linda; R. A. Pawlicki of Anaheim; P. F. Messer of La Mirada, and L. E. Ringer and Robert Sage, both Fullerton.

Customs Collections

The federal government collected nearly $1.8 billion in customs receipts last year. The Port of New York accounted for the biggest single chunk — $514 million — but that figure was down from 1962 receipts.

Garden Park Sales Boosted by Location and Quality

A combination of dynamic factors continue to place Garden Park Estates among leaders home in sales volume, say the officials.

A superior Orange County location, quality craftsmanship and materials, a prompt customer service program and a wide selection of attractive and practical floor plans, form the success compound of the walled residential community in Garden Grove.

The homes are handy to major highways and freeways, connecting residents to important employment centers of the Southland. Good schools are in abundance, and the area is renowned for its excellent recreational facilities.

When brand new homeowners develop minor maintenance problems, a skilled staff takes care of the situation. "Residents comment how appreciative they are of this service," the spokesman said. A plaque was recently awarded the builders and contributing to the award's cause was complete service accessible to new homeowners.

• • • •

LARGE one and two-story homes, with three, four and five bedrooms and two baths are offered in the diverse choice.

Lath and plaster walls add to home durability. Other quality products are red cedar shingle or crushed rock roofs; concrete drives and patios; exterior vinyl stucco paint; custom-selected lighting fixtures; color-matched built-in gas range and oven and hood with exhaust fan and light.

Veterans can move in with nothing down, except costs and impounds, with monthly payments from $103.63, including principal and interest. Non-veterans can use lowest FHA down on 30 and 35 year loans. Conventional terms are available and the homes are Cal-Vet approved. Prices start from $19,850.

Designer Attracts Throng in Sol Vista

Interest was not confined to the ladies last Sunday, at the design clinic held by Parisian interior designer Jean Pierre Aubry, reports Baxter Caterson, sales director at Sol Vista International Home Fair, in Westminster. Men and youngsters as well were fascinated by the designer's sketches, with which he illustrated his answers to the many interior design questions of several hundred visitors, Caterson said.

Special event through April at the International Home Fair will be the design clinics by Aubry, from 2-5 p.m. each Sunday.

• • • •

THE ALREADY world-famous model homes presented at the International Home Fair present design themes from the far corners of the world — Scandinavian, Oriental, South Seas, Mediterranean, Continental and the Americas. Location is Bolsa Chica and Westminster Ave., in Westminster.

Presented by Alco-Pacific Construction Co., Inc., there are three, four and five bedroom, one and two-story plans, with two and two-and-one-half baths. Prices are from $25,350 to $29,600 with FHA, Cal Vet and conventional financing available.

Among the many delights for visitors to the International Home Fair models are the unique theme furnishings and coordinated decor. Some homes have sunken living rooms, and recessed floor-to-ceiling or raised hearth fireplaces. Entries are dramatized with double doors opening to indoor gardens.

Another Treasure Series of Homes Will Open Soon

The much-awaited grand opening of the Treasure Series of homes is drawing near and plans are presently being readied, according to Sy Bram, executive director of Sunkist Plaza Builders, the firm that built and developed the community.

The plans are based on enthusiastic indications by the homebuying public who attended the preview showing and gave signs of rapid sales, just as in the previous Buccaneer Series, which recently sold out.

This is due to the inclusion in the Treasure Series homes of the same quality materials and workmanship that have zoomed the Sunkist Plaza firm to the higher echelons of the home-building industry. As a result of its voluminous operation and their corresponding acquisition of a mass purchasing power, Sunkist Plaza Builders is able to build into each home more dollar value without an increase in price.

• • • •

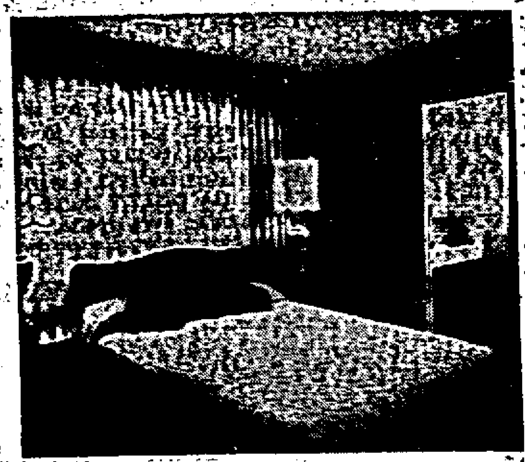
IN ADDITION, the large volume of homes built in various locations of Southern California has enabled them to sell the homes with a minimum outlay of cash. An example is the fact that the homes are available to qualified buyers with no down payment—only costs of $150. The homes are priced from $19,750.

The Treasure Series comprises a 72-home development on Springdale St., just south of Westminster Blvd. near vast stretches of ocean in Huntington Beach.

Exemplifying the extra value built into the homes is the inclusion of a complete array of Waste King-Universal built-in kitchen appliances fully color-matched.

The quality residences, which feature a bonus extra completely fenced rear yards, include a separate utility room, genuine Formica counters, natural ash cabinets, forced air heating with thermostat control, brick fireplaces, aluminum and glass shower doors, sliding wardrobe closets, shades and aluminum screens. In addition, the homes are on 6,000 square foot lots and are on wide paved streets.

To reach models, drive east on Garden Grove Blvd. to Golden West, then right to Bolsa, and right (west) to Springdale, then left to furnished models.



LARGE BEDROOMS
Three and four-bedroom homes make most of floor space at Sunkist Plaza Homes in Huntington Beach, where furniture planning is no problem. Bedrooms like this will be found in the new Treasure Series of homes.

Mesa Palos Verdes Buyers Moving In

A vanguard of 12 families, this past week, moved into Mesa Palos Verdes, Ray Watt's new $38,000 country estate community high atop the Palos Verdes peninsula, Glenn Stubbs, sales directors, announced.

"These are the first of some 600 home-buying families who will eventually call this prestige address their own," Stubbs said.

Mesa Palos Verdes is the only development in Southern California featuring seven award-winning model homes. Prominent among these is The Hillhaven, chosen to be the featured Balanced Power home at the 1964 Los Angeles Home Show at the Sports Arena.

• • • • •

"WE ARE very proud," Stubbs said, "that 1964 marks the fifth year a Ray Watt home has been so honored by the home building industry."

The Hillhaven is a split-level home, built around a large garden court. A combination living and dining area with a separate family dining alcove are features of the main level.

On the upper level, three additional bedrooms and a second bathroom adjoin the master bedroom suite that includes a separate dressing area and bath. The lower level rumpus room adjoins another bathroom.

Sky Divers Will Jump Over Homes

Sky Divers and a national home builder will combine their efforts for a spectacular afternoon today from 1 to 4 p.m. in Orange County. Jumping from high over Huntington Continental Towne House, a development of Kaufman and Broad Home Sales Inc., will be two women and two men from the Skylark Para-Center School at Lake Elsinore.

The divers will jump south of the Towne Houses at the corner of Adams and Brookhurst, in Huntington Beach. Sky divers, Frank Carpenter, Dave Becker, Kim Emmons and Jeanni McCombs will make four jumps from an altitude of 7,500 feet. Carpenter and Becker are instructors at the Skylark Para-Center School and both have made over 400 jumps. Miss Emmons and Miss McCombs were members of the 1962 U.S. Parachuting team and both have over 200 jumps recorded.

• • • •

DURING THEIR mile-long free-fall period, the jumpers will demonstrate the exciting techniques of this fast growing sport. They will criss-cross one another, make turns, rolls, loops, dives, and barrelrolls. During one of the jumps, they will demonstrate baton passing from one to another in mid-fall. At 2,200 feet, the jumpers will open their chutes and maneuver for a target landing south of the Towne Houses.

Between jumps, free refreshments will be served at the Huntington Continental Towne House reception area. The public is invited to tour the model homes and furnished displays.

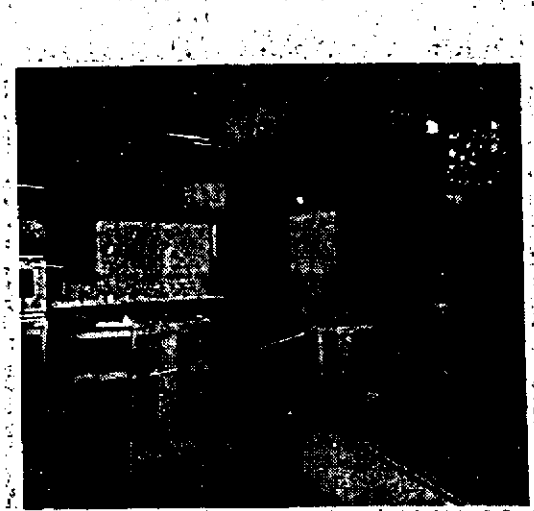
Answers to a recent survey showed 25 per cent of those expanding their homes were adding new bathrooms, 24 per cent were adding bedrooms and 18 per cent were installing family rooms.



APPEALING INTERIOR

Naturally finished wood kitchen cabinets flow harmoniously together with elegant dining areas at Springdale South. The newest unit in the Oceana Series will be ready soon.

Springdale South's Newest Unit Nearly Ready to Sell

With the approach of grand opening on the recently previewed Oceana Series of Springdale South Homes in Huntington Beach, a large sales force is preparing to meet the anticipated demands of the new development, according to Sy Bram, executive director of Sunkist Plaza Builders, the developing firm.

The preparations are being taken in view of the enthusiastic response to the preview showing held recently following sellout of the previous Pacifica Series unit, which sold out in record time.

Bram added that the preview showings revealed that high on the popularity list will be the inclusion of a complete array of built-in appliances in the kitchen. They are by Waste King-Universal.

These include built-in range and oven in color, waste disposer, Modernaire range hood and fan in matching color.

Suburbia Heights Already Half Sold

Suburbia Heights' first and second units report a 50% sales record, according to Norm Williams, director of sales for the Harry Tancredi Co., developers of the Buena Park project.

Williams attributes a great many of the sales to home-buyers' enthusiastic response to Suburbia Heights' special trade-in plan. He said it is now possible for residents to move into a new Suburbia home without waiting until their present one is sold.

Priced from $33,950, each two-story home includes four or five bedrooms, three bathrooms, family and recreation room, formal dining room and separate breakfast area arranged in more than 2,300 square feet of useable floor space.

Located on the old McComber Ranch at McComber Road and Luitwieler Ave., on and off ramps of the Santa Ana Freeway puts Suburbia Heights within easy access of downtown Los Angeles. And yet its secluded surroundings permit a maximum of quiet leisure to residents.

Showcase Homes Offer Terms to Fit Needs of Individuals

There is a select number of two-story homes available, which feature the growing room, in the second unit of Showcase Homes on Hazard Avenue just east of Hwy. 39 in Westminster, according to William Krueger, builder and developer. Krueger stated that the two-story home may be secured for the price of a single story in that the lower level has approximately 1,500 square feet and is in itself a complete functional home consisting of three bedrooms, two baths, and family/dining room.

Priced from $22,750, various types of financing are available to fit the particular need of the buyer. The rear yard is completely fenced and the front yard landscaped. Offering a choice of varied elevations, the exteriors are enhanced with stone, used brick, and colonial brick.

The growing room, which is upstairs, can be used as a spacious one room family activity center or can be finished as a luxury home with five or six bedrooms and three baths. The builder supplies three different blueprint plans so that the purchaser may finish this room in the future best suited for his particular family's needs.

LONG BEACH 12, CALIF., SUNDAY, APR. 12, 1964 SECTION W

Take the music of Edvard Grieg, adapted by Wright and Forrest for 'Song of Norway,' mix with talents of Civic Light Opera, and it all adds up to a REAL

COMING ATTRACTION!

"I CAN'T DANCE, you can't dance, but yet we're very definitely dancing," sang the lively chorus, whirling into a light-hearted Norwegian folk dance. The number was "Freddy and His Fiddle," adapted from Edvard Grieg's "Norwegian Dance, Op. 35." The rehearsal was for Long Beach Civic Light Opera's production of "Song of Norway," which opens Thursday at 8:30 p.m. in the Concert Hall of Municipal Auditorium. "Let's run through that again," said George Jack, who is staging the musical numbers. Freddy—Hartley Stevens—picked up his fiddle and the hilarious but strenuous routine began again, telling the story of the young man with the magic violin that can make anybody dance. From 2 in the afternoon to 2:30 next morning the rehearsal swept along. Despite lack of sets, costumes, orchestra and proper lighting, the magic of "Song of Norway" emerged under direction of Lee Murray and his assistant, Betty Kimber, the musical direction of Jack Kroesen, the ballet choreography of June Morris.

When Robert Wright and George Forrest announced that they were adapting Grieg's music and a play by Homer Curran in a musical, skeptics hooted. But San Francisco Light Opera Association opened with "Song of Norway" at the Curran Theater on July 3, 1944. On Aug. 21 it moved to New York's Imperial Theater for a run of 860 performances before it went on to a great success in England.

THE MUSICAL IS built around the life and music of Grieg, who lived from 1843 to 1907. Grieg is played by Ron Hallmark, Long Beach dentist. Other characters are the Norwegian poet, Rikard Nordraak (Bob James), Nina Hagerup (Peggy Olson), whom both men love, and the dramatist, Henrik Ibsen (Stan Throneberry). Laura Killingsworth plays the Countess Le Loup, who lures Grieg from his homeland to the sophistication of Copenhagen and Rome. Arthur Carah acts the role of Count Le Loup. Completing the cast are Joyce Kahle as Mother Grieg, Hal Lowe as Father Grieg, Hartley Stevens in the dual role of Freddy and Tito, Larry Laraway as Father Nordraak, Vince Pollard as Pisoni and Tchouky Mattei as the ballerina, Adelina.

In one scene, the Countess and Adelina engage in a duel of the prima donnas—the Countess with her arias, the ballerina with entrechats, tour jetes and pirouettes.

THE PLAY OPENS with the festival of St. John on Midsummer's Eve in Grieg's native Bergen, when Nordraak predicts that a man will come to combine the music and history of Norway.

The man, of course, is Grieg, who passionately loves his native land and wants it to gain stature and meaning in the world.

His music sings of Norway's deep fjords, its green forest, fertile valleys, snowy mountain peaks, its swift flowing rivers, quiet mountain pastures and sweet clean air. He revels, too, in its folk lore, its trolls, and the simple ways of its country people.

His compositions are basis for melodies in the musical: Prelude and Legend, and Hill of Dreams are themes from Grieg's beloved "Piano Concerto in A Minor."

OTHERS ARE Now, from "Waltz, Op. 12, No. 2", and "Violin Sonata No. 2," Strange Music from "Wedding Day at Troldhaugen," and I Love You from "Ich Liebe Dich."

There are more, each adapted from Grieg's own music: "Midsummer's Eve," "March of the Trollgers," "Bon Vivant," "Three Loves," and "At Christmas Time."

The play concludes with the famous concerto.

Costumes and sets are arriving at the Concert Hall, rehearsals are continuing and a beautifully staged, polished musical will be ready for the audience opening night. The show will have 11 performances through April 30. Tickets are on sale at Long Beach Civic Light Opera Association, 518 E. Fourth St.

By Elise Emery Independent, Press Telegram Arts Editor

"FREDDY wouldn't know so, but he's a virtuoso," sings the chorus to Hartley Stevens' spectacular fiddle playing (above).

THE COUNTESS (Laura Killingsworth) beguiles Grieg (Ron Hallmark) into leaving his simple way of life in Norway and going with her to Rome.

BALKY ballerina, Adelina, (Tchouky Mattei) needs helps in executing steps as she competes for attention.

This Strip Wasn't in the Script

AT REHEARSAL (left), when Bob James, Peggy Olson and Ron Hallmark sang "Hill of Dreams," Peggy wore hoops to simulate costume. When she stepped on bench hoops slowly slid to her ankles—but Peggy kept on singing . . . the show must go on!

—What Waves Say...

DON'T CALL them this morning—wait and let them call you. Those flying-for-charity tourists of Operation Amigos—43 strong—are due in from Mexico City at 9:12 a.m. today at International. Which means they had to rustle around lively and early to catch the plane and will probably want nothing quite so much as a nap when they turn keys in front door locks. All this after a breathtaking nine-day tour.

Pictured just before they took off (and in a much more rested condition than now) are Ella (Mrs. Fred) Good and Barbara and Jack London.

These amigos in friendly pre-trip discussion.

The tour, co-sponsored by Junior League and the Children's Dental Foundation, will realize about $1,800 for the foundation.

Co-chairmen of the novel trip to raise funds were Marge (Mrs. Loren) Conley and Loralee (Mrs. Thomas) Turner. In addition to Mexico City, the travelers visited in Cuernavaca, Taxco and Acapulco. And what a combination of things were planned for them—everything from seeing the bullfights to witnessing ballet, to dining in the smartest restaurants, being entertained in homes—and, of course, shopping.

HOME FROM "everywhere" is "Hap" Appleton. He took Moore-McCormack Lines' safari cruise ship SS Brazil out of New York. He was gone 10 weeks and traveled over 40,000 miles. Wonderful, he said. First the ship sailed along the east coast of South America then made the crossing to Africa. After that ports in Europe were visited.

All told, he traveled 32,000 miles by ship and the balance on 18 separate side trips by plane and car. On one of these, he flew into a remote game reserve in Africa and got pictures of 18 different kinds of animals including lions, rhinos, zebras — even a leopard.

At Monte Carlo he broke even, explaining that was because he watched—didn't play.

Sailing back to NY from Lisbon the ship got caught in a real granddaddy of a storm which blew it 150 miles off course. What's more, it was in horrendous seas and gale winds for a full five days during which time passengers weren't allowed out on deck at all. You'd be surprised how hungry you get for a breath of fresh air during that length of time!

YOU'VE OPENED your home for an art patrons tea for 200 guests. In the garden, an 85 piece concert band is set up to entertain, with chairs, instruments, musicians, the whole bit. Then, the rains come. Suddenly, guests, musicians, and instruments are all inside.

IT HAPPENED last Sunday when Virginia and Dr. Franklin Waters "loaned" their Park Estates manse for the membership tea of the Fine Arts Affiliates of California State College, Long Beach. Did it dampen anyone's enthusiasm? Jupiter Pluvius, no! The day was a howling success.

Unable to play a la concert, the band broke down into progressive jazz combos and they were terrific, I'm told. Most perpetually in musical motion and winning fans, right and left, were Rick Mattox, piano, Leo Potts and Dick Jennings, both sax, and Bert Powell, bass.

A few of those filling the charter membership ranks were Ruth Todd, Sam and Addie Pilchman, Katie Boswell, Haldis Hertzog, Dorothy and Lee Wiltse, Betty and Wally Arntzen, Shirley and David Gean, Ruth and Joe Reed, Athena Hall and Jack Van Eden. VIP guests present were patrons of the group, Kitty and Morrie Rosenbaum, Ann and Roy Huddleston and Betty Benwell.

JUST A DAB over the week following major heart surgery, Fred Capouch Sr. was released from the hospital to the TLC (tender, loving care) of wife, Darlene, That was last Sunday. What's more, he and Darlene went to dinner at Charlotte and Dwight Bennett's home Monday. Fred plans to take it easy for a month (but he's grumbling already that it's no easy chore, he feels so good) and then he'll be going full steam.

OBJECTS OF a surprise housewarming last Sunday were Leona and Bill Sheridan, arranged by their daughter and son-in-law, Nancy and Ron Irvin, and Bill's brother and wife, Ed and Mary Lou Sheridan. They timed party date to coincide with Leona's birthday.

Intent on attending an art show he very much wanted to see, and unaware of what was in progress when first guests arrived, Bill was practically insisting he'd get extra tickets so they could go, too. They sidestepped his offer until other guests arrived to spill the beans.

It was a great birthday gift—but the best is still to come. Bill will treat Leona (and himself, naturally) to a tour of Scandanavian countries later this year as his main present. There may be one small hitch. The Sheridans are both as Irish as their names indicate and when they fly over they land first in Shannon. Will they, begorra, be able to drag themselves away from that enchanted spot in the green country?

THE CALLER will do-si-do and suggest that the men "swing their partners" in true western style but the dancers are more apt to be twostepping, true ballroom style.

Sandlarks are having a chuckwagon dinner dance and roundup Saturday with a bona fide caller. Trouble is, the committee doesn't think very many in the group have the foggiest notion how to trip the western fantastic, except by faking.

Mary Jane (Mrs. Charles) Walker is chairman, assisted by Martha Ford. Affair will take place at that fine old corrall known as Norway Hall! Big money raiser of the spring, members, friends and associates are expected to pack the place in whatever western attire they can assemble. Hi Ho Silver, perhaps its time to get awaaaay!

FEMININE LAUGHTER and chatter, were the woof and warp from which the evening was woven when Mil Cameron and daughter, Julie Lawson, entertained at a miscellaneous bridal shower for Susie Granau. Susie, who will become the bride of Ed De Lacy in June, was kept starry eyed and busy as she opened gifts from 30 friends.

A TOAST to the evening which awaits them is enjoyed by Joan (Mrs. Chilton) Mahin, Dr. John Sewak and Claire (Mrs. Donald) Everson. It was during one of the many pre-dinner cocktail parties which dotted town week ago last night prior to Symphony Juniors glamorous Black and White Ball at the Edgewater. The threesome is pictured below at Sewak's home where Wanda and John and Pat and Don Ewing co-hosted a sip hour.

Although a most high fashion night, it was, still and all, a very good humored one as about 500 joined forces for the fun.

And it was the first time in members' memory when all the women wore, according to the party theme, either black or white gowns with not one other shade showing up on the ballroom floor! And long dresses were the vogue, definitely.

Topics of conversation were many. The fact, for instance, that member Nancy McAllister and husband, Dr. Bob, had brought their first child, a girl they named Camilla, home from the hospital that very day.

Acquaintances secretly envied Jan Wilson her wonderful tan, figuring she had been living it up at some delightful resort. Envied her, that is, until they found out her copper skin was gained the hard way, pulling weeds in the yard.

And so sped the evening away, spent in gay talk, small talk, serious conversation, dancing and dining in the heady togetherness of all really sparkly soirees.

Merry start for a long, merrier evening.

If Concern Is Truly for Children, STAY

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

To begin with, I don't love my husband and haven't for a long time. This past summer I had to go to work. I met a fellow my age and we fell in love. He is not married.

My problem is three children and a husband that loves me. I think my husband loves me more than he ever did. We have been married 12 years (he is 31 and I am 29). I want to leave my husband and marry the other man but I don't want to hurt my children. They like this other man a lot but they LOVE their daddy.

What am I going to do? Shall I stay with my husband or leave and try making a happy home with this other man. I know he will make a good husband but we both agree that we should do what is best for the children. We feel they will accept him better while they are young than they might when they are older.—S.T.

DEAR S.T.:

You can make all the excuses in the world but, in your heart of hearts, you know you are cheating on your husband and thinking of breaking up your home. You KNOW it would be better for the children to keep them in a happy home with their own father who loves them—and loves you.

I appreciate the heartache you must feel but why not try for at least a year longer to see if you can't find again the love you once knew, with your husband? Why don't you and the gentleman agree not to contact each other during this period? You should at least try. —M.M.

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

My wife should have something done with her voice; it's very high-pitched, especially when she raises it for some reason or another. This certainly does not add to her sex appeal, as at times it almost curdles one's blood.

Is there a solution to this? Can a high, thin voice be cultured through vocal exercises, to be made stronger and, hence, more appealing? Except for this she's tops, but this is now beginning to affect our relationship.

I'd sure like to know—and also how to sell the idea to her.—AL.

DEAR AL:

I completely understand your concern. I, too, am often "allergic" to voices.

Quite often bad voices can be VERY considerably helped. I do not live in your immediate vicinity so I can't suggest an exact place.

"However, in most medium-to-large-size communities there are public speaking classes or teachers available. I'm sure such a teacher could suggest a way for you.

My suggestion is to tell your wife, just as simply as you've told me, how you feel. And if need be, just for encouragement, take a few lessons with her. I sincerely wish you luck. —M.M.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Organizing Will Ease the Way for Others

By POLLY CRAMER, NEA

DEAR POLLY — On a sheet of paper titled "Valuable Information" I have listed the banks and account numbers where we have checking and savings accounts, safety deposit box number, titles, insurance policies, real estate information, social security numbers and all addresses of people to be notified should my husband and I both be seriously injured or die.

Also included is the name of our doctor, hospital, mortuary, cemetery, minister, employer and relatives who would be interested. This sheet of paper is kept in a plastic envelope in a desk drawer. Close friends and relatives know where to find it.

The second Pointer was a real helper to my husband while I was too ill to take care of the bills as I usually do. In an account book I have listed all the months with plenty of space between each of them. Under each heading is a list of all bills that come due that month, that is, the ones due quarterly, semiannually or annually. Then there is another list of the regular monthly bills and payments. Nothing is forgotten.

When the bills begin to arrive, they are placed within the pages of this book. I also wrote out instructions should a stranger have to take over this duty.—R.H.M.

GIRLS—How I envy anyone as systematic as R.H.M. Even though such duties, as those in her first hint, are not too pleasant, we should all think ahead and make it as easy as possibly for those who might have to take over for us.—POLLY

• • • •

DEAR POLLY—When the charcoal in our barbecue is slow in starting to burn, my husband connects my hair dryer, turns the control to cold and directs the stream of cold air at the charcoal. It acts like a bellows and in no time we have a beautiful bed of coals.—M. S.

DEAR POLLY—To anchor a blouse that rides up, cut twill tape the length of your waist measurement plus one inch. Stitch the center of the tape to the center back of the blouse at the waist line. Stitch a hook and eye to the ends of the tape. When you dress, fasten the tape around your waist and your blouse will stay put. —MRS. J. E. M.

GIRLS—Tape could be put on the inside of the blouse, like many readymade dresses have it, and then you know it will never show. —POLLY

Share your favorite homemaking ideas . . . send them to Polly in care of this newspaper. You'll receive a bright new silver dollar if Polly uses your idea in Polly's Pointers.

Honeys Come in Bunches

Multiple Births of Four or More Have Made Records in the Past Year in America With 26 Thriving Babies Born at Odds of Multimillion to One. The Four Axe Girls (above) Put Heart and Sole Into Bottoms Up.

MRS. THOMAS Harkins, 27-year-old mother of nine (above), with the happy Harkins quads . . . At left, Mrs. Martin Brecker gets a welcoming smile from one of her first born . . . And the Axe girls (right), on camera this time. Their mother, a registered nurse, calls their playroom "the pediatric ward."

By CURTYNE DRISCOLL

America is having a historic boom in multiple births.

Just a year ago, the Axe family of Lima, Ohio startled the world with the medical miracle of a set of identical girl quadruplets. It was reckoned a multimillion-to-one chance and the Axes became international celebrities.

Before you could say "quadruplets" four times quickly, the news was announced in Chicago that quads had been born there.

WHILE STATISTICIANS were scratching their heads, in one month (September) quintuplets arrived in Maracaibo, Venezuela and Aberdeen, S.D., completely ruining all odds on long shots.

Still the baby boom continued unabated. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Harkins of Jackson, Miss., increased the number of their offspring from five to nine with the birth of girl quadruplets.

And in the shadow of the New York World's Fair, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Brecker of Queens welcomed their first born, three girls and a boy.

To the non-medical multiple birth watcher, a surprising fact is that the expectant mother-of-quads-or-quints-to-be often doesn't know that she is expecting such a brood.

Mrs. Brecker, whose family has a history of twins, learned from her doctor in her fourth or fifth month that she was expecting more than one, but didn't know they were quadruplets until delivery time.

Mrs. Harkins also thought she was going to have twins.

THE FATHERS of the quads have a variety of occupations; newspaper promotion executive, grocery store operator and lawyer. They have one thing very much in common, however. They all pitch in and help. It takes more than two hands to cope with four babies, especially on such jobs as feeding four hungry ones simultaneously.

Living with the offspring that have defied mathematical odds has other difficulties—like telling them apart.

Little four-year-old Cathy Axe, who likes to pick up and carry her sisters around (one at a time), for example, finds it necessary to bring her happy burden into the kitchen and ask, "Who have I got now, Mommy?"

Stand by Your Promise

DEAR ABBY: By the time I was 17 I had broken all the Ten Commandments except "Thou shalt not kill." I got into trouble with a boy and he ran away. The Salvation Army took me in and I had my baby at the Booth Memorial Hospital. I decided to keep my little son. I worked as a waitress to support him. I started going with a kind, sober, hard-working man. I told him the truth about myself right off, but he didn't care. He married me and adopted my 10-month-old son. He treats us grand. I don't deserve this kind of happiness. One thing bothers me. Both my husband and I have dark eyes and dark hair. My son has blue eyes and bright red hair. People keep asking us how come. My husband made me promise I would never tell anyone the boy wasn't his. Why can't I say I was married before and the boy is my first husband's?—HATES TO LIE.

ABBY

DEAR HATES: The boy is LEGALLY your husband's son. Blond and brunette parents can produce red-haired offspring. You owe inquisitive friends nothing. You owe your husband a great deal. Keep mum.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: My wife has frequently criticized me for not taking her arm when crossing the street. I say that it's the lady's place to take her escort's arm. All of the pictures I've seen of royalty, or continental personages of good breeding, show the lady taking hold of the gentleman's arm.

I hate to see a great hulk of a man pushing some frail thing around as if she were on casters, or slightly intoxicated. I would appreciate your opinion.—M. K.

DEAR M. K.: The gentleman should offer the lady his arm. If he does not, she may gently take his arm and ask, "May I?"

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Roger and I were married only 16 months. We decided that our marriage was a mistake, and since there were no children to consider there was no point in spending the rest of our lives in a loveless marriage. We got a divorce. Am I supposed to return Roger's wedding ring? How about my engagement ring? I put them in my drawer and have no desire to wear them. Would it be improper for me to sell the set?—DIVORCED.

DEAR DIVORCED: The wedding ring and engagement ring are yours to do with whatever you wish.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: The woman who wrote to say that her husband took over the grocery shopping reminded me that my husband did that trick almost 30 years ago. He got the bright idea that I was too extravagant in the grocery store. He bought all sorts of silly items and overlooked the essentials. I got disgusted, so I went to his shop (he ran a garage) and started ordering the mechanics around. I made a real nuisance of myself because I didn't know a nut from a bolt. My husband got the idea, and gladly promised to stay out of my business if I stayed out of his.

Her husband, also a resident of this city, is the son of Mrs. Alice Mastrion of New York and the late Charles Lueder.

Kathryn Coop served as maid of honor. Laura Edwards, Mary Sue Occhipinti, Michelle Bagley and Jane Ann Madison were bridesmaids.

The new Mrs. Lueder wore a floor-length gown of Chantilly lace decorated with pearls and sequins. She carried a bouquet of orchids, white roses and stephanotis.

The bridegroom chose David H. Coop as his best man.

Completing the wedding party were Daryl Ellison, Conrad Drummond, Dominic J. Occhipinti and Mark Alan Madison, ushers.

Discard, Not Play Wins

Here is a hand that I first ran across around 1935 or '36. It is a rather tricky problem hand. The question is: Can South make his normal three no-trump contract against perfect defense?

Declarer can count three club tricks, three diamond tricks, two hearts and a spade provided that he can get them all in.

A moderate amount of study will show that one or maybe two duck plays are necessary. Thus, when spades are played, it is essential that South let East's queen hold the first spade trick in order to shut out West's low spades. If hearts are played, it is necessary to duck the second heart lead so as to shut out East's fourth heart.

It wouldn't take a good bridge player long to see all this. After a while he might even be cajoled into betting that he could make the hand. At that point the trap would be sprung, since perfect defense will hold South to eight tricks.

• • • •

THE PLAY starts out simply. The six of spades is opened and East's queen holds the trick. The five of spades is led back. West takes his ace and sets up his last two spades.

Haven't we been over all this before? Won't South go right over to dummy and lead a diamond in order to establish three diamond tricks?

Hasn't a rather obvious play been overlooked? Any East player worth his salt would surely discard his ace of diamonds on the third spade. At least he would do so when he is looking at all the cards. Now the jack of diamonds becomes an entry to the West hand, and South is set.

Plans Ahead

Bathroom planning can be one of the most important phases of building or remodeling a home. Because of the high humidity and condensation problems commonly found in bathrooms, considerable thought should be given to the choice of surfacing materials.

Ceramic tile, long noted for being waterproof, stain-resistant and dimensionally stable, is also preferred for its beauty and wipe-clean quality. For complete protection, even the bathroom ceiling may be tiled.

Major and Minor Notes

Solvang Stirs Memories

By RACHEL MORTON
I.-P.-T. Music Critic

When I was a young woman I made a concert tour of Europe, singing recitals in such cities as London, Paris, Vienna, Berlin, The Hague, Stockholm, etc. One of my happiest memories is of a concert we gave in Copenhagen, Denmark. I remember flying from Templehof Airport in Berlin in a hydroplane and landing on rough water alongside a pier in Copenhagen. Newsmen were there to greet me as I was not expected to arrive because of a very bad storm which had downed a plane due to arrive before mine, and on which all passengers had been drowned. So I made headlines before I had sung a note!

The quaint old Angleterre Hotel looked out over an attractive square or plaza, which seemed positively alive with bicyclists. We dined that night on the Fisherman's Wharf in one of the gourmet restaurants and a waiter pointed out proudly the crown prince and party dining near us.

Breakfasts in Denmark are something to remember. Served for two in our room was a great silver pot of coffee, six Danish coffee cakes, with about a pound of fresh butter and a great bowl of whipped cream for the coffee.

• • • •

DANISH audiences are most enthusiastic. My program listed Schumann's "Frauenliebe und Leben" (Woman's Love and Life) and Elsa's Dream from "Lohengrin" by Wagner sung in German; French songs, and a group of English songs. The response was so gratifying that the local manager asked me if I would return the next month as soloist with the Copenhagen Symphony Orchestra. I accepted and this time I sang in the beautiful and famous concert hall, Trivoli Gardens.

A party in my honor after the concert lasted well into the early morning when we drove to a fascinating restaurant, whose name I have forgotten, looking far out to sea where we watched the sun rise. There were many guests breakfasting there and I was told that this custom was one of Copenhagen's popular pastimes.

• • • •

WITH ALL these memories dearly treasured in my heart, it was a real thrill to spend a recent weekend in a little Danish village called Solvang, 29 miles north of Santa Barbara. What a quaint little town it is, and how beautifully situated, snuggled between the Santa Ynez and San Rafael mountains. The kindly people are of Danish descent and in a gala week in September they all wear native costumes. The architecture is copied from that of Denmark and the fascinating restaurants serve Danish food and smorgasbord. Irresistable were the pastry shops where 50 varieties of little iced cakes and tempting coffee cakes made one's mouth water, and also made one forget the diet pledges!

• • • •

THERE WERE intriguing gift shops, with all kinds of imports. And a wee Cheese House lured the visitor with free samples of Danish cheese and crackers. (Of course, after one bite, a purchase was made.)

The Royal Copenhagen Motel where we stayed, is only two years old with all the de luxe features of modern America (even to free coffee and Danish pastries for breakfast), but the decor of the room looking out over the lush, green mountains is distinctly Danish.

Andersen's Restaurant, made famous by its split pea soup, is only three miles away from Solvang and, of course, we had to indulge there. Solvang, by the way, means "Sun valley."

And as we drove away regretfully from the peaceful valley, flooded with sun, we mounted the high hills beyond and found ourselves journeying homeward through the most beautiful high mountain scenery one could imagine over the San Marcos Pass.

"Big" Denmark and "little" Denmark—I have grateful memoriess of you both!

Exhibition Designed to Please, Not Shock

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

"Contemporary Painting" from the collection of the Coca-Cola Bottling Company of Los Angeles continues at the Long Beach Museum, 2300 East Ocean Blvd., through April 26. The large grouping fills the first floor galleries with the exception of a small portion of the East Gallery which is devoted to an exhibit of elegant artifacts of feudal Japan.

The painting collection consists of works from 1924 to 1958, assembled by the then president of the company, Stanley Barbee. His taste reflects a catholic interest in the works of the day, and, as the catalogue states, "considered the diverse tastes of those who might compose a normal business."

INTERESTINGLY enough, the exhibit is dominated by one large work in the vein of abstract expressionism, though there are fine examples of all styles of painting on every side. Michio Takeyo's "The Vine" of 1956 is a bold, abstract statement in blacks on a shimmering white background. The stress of the vine is strongly felt, the composition is completely congruent.

ANOTHER UNUSUAL work is Michael Frary's "Hurricane Warning" of 1959; here several techniques are used: the beach is made of sand the jetty of glued-on small rocks, while the sky and house are in the immaculate "superreal" style and the water and bridges are brushed rather freely.

James Jaryaise's "Bird Collage" is a big, bold creature in primary colors with black. Sueo Serisawa's "Girl and Hoop" of 1948 has great charm. Frederick Wight's "Conversations on the Island" of 1959 implies rhythmic harmony and empathy between Nature and the human figure.

TWO FINE "hard-edge" works by John McLaughlin, "Oil #3" and "Oil #4" give a fine accounting for that school with their simple rectangular compositions done with immaculate precision. A slight departure is Hans Burkhardt's "Guanajanto;" in this instance, the rectangular forms are casas.

This collection is a pleasing one to visit rather than a shocker and meets well the purpose for which it was assembled.

For further information about the audition and for application forms write Coleman Chamber Music Association, 46 N. Los Robles Avenue, Pasadena 91101.

Children Invited to 'Story' Concert

"Music That Tells a Story" will be played by Long Beach Symphony Orchestra at two free concerts for children Saturday at 10 and 11 a.m. in Wilson High School Auditorium.

Lauris Jones, conductor, will direct the orchestra and tell the stories of "Fingal's Cave" by Mendelssohn, "The March to the Scaffold" by Berlioz and "The Moldau" by Smetana.

The Magic Basket Players will perform Dukas' "Sorcerer's Apprentice." The Magic Basket is a gold basket which, the story-teller explains, "holds all the stories ever told so that I can find a story for every child ever born."

ACTUALLY, the gold basket holds props for the performance. When the story-teller takes a prop from the basket, the magic of bringing the music to life begins as she says, "Now here is a story . . ." Laura Olsher, who is the story-teller, also plays the Sorcerer. Nora Jacobs, choreographer for all Magic Basket productions, plays the Apprentice; Roger Barnes is the Broom.

MISS OLSHER and Miss Jacobs currently are starring in the Lindy Opera House production of "Jack and the Beanstalk." Their "Magic Basket" opened in Los Angeles in December, 1960. It is rated excellent by Los Angeles Board of Education, was recommended by Life Magazine and has won the Peabody Award.

This arrangement of "The Sorcerer's Apprentice" first was seen in a performance with the Compton Symphony and since has been performed in Manhattan Beach, La Jolla, San Diego and other parts of California.

ALL CHILDREN are invited to attend the admission-free concert; parents also may attend. Performances are provided with the help of the Long Beach Unified School District and the Recording Industries Trust Fund with the cooperation of Local 353, American Federation of Musicians.

Reservations may be made for groups of 20 or more by phoning the Long Beach Symphony Association, 1935 E. Seventh St.

Auditions Now for May Concert

Auditions are now being held for singers for the Civic Chorus spring concert to be presented May 22 under auspices of Long Beach Recreation Department.

Rehearsals are held Mondays at 7:30 p.m. at Jefferson High School auditorium, with Frank Ahrold as choral conductor. Musicians wishing to audition may report at 7 p.m.

The "Missa Brevis in F Major" by Mozart is the principal work now being rehearsed.

Smith Sr. Lecture Scheduled

Dr. Norman Fruman, associate professor of English at California State College at Los Angeles, will present the sixth annual Bertrand Smith Sr. Lecture at Los Altos Branch Library, 5614 Britton Drive, on Friday at 8 p.m. His subject will be "Critics and Creators."

Dr. Fruman received his M.A. from Columbia University and his Ph.D. from New York University.

The lectures are made possible through an endowment of Smith, Long Beach book store owner since 1926 and donor of many fine and rare books to the Long Beach Public Library. Some will be on display during the evening.

AT 90, MR. Smith still makes frequent treks abroad to buy books. Between times he is busy in his book store which was recently given a rare tribute by writer Ray Bradbury. "I used to come to Long Beach especially to get lost—lost in books in the dusky corridors of Mr. Smith's store."

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

Many of the items in the Folk Arts Section of the recent Master Works of Mexican Art exhibit at Los Angeles County Museum are now offered for sale.

The pieces, most of them contemporary, include a 12-foot papier mache figure, straw figures, glazed and painted pottery, glass work, carved wooden chests, trays and textiles.

Hours of the sale are 1 to 5 p.m. Tuesdays through Thursdays, 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Fridays, and 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturdays and Sundays. The museum is closed Mondays. The sale will continue until all items are sold.

Master Works of Mexican art traveled for five years in the major capitals of Europe before coming to Los Angeles, where it attarcted record crowds at its only showing in the United States.

FRIDAY at 7:30 p.m. in the Messick-Hay Studio, 133 St. Joseph Ave., Ernest Van Harlingen, Fellow of the Royal Society of Artists, will give a lecture-slide presentation. He will discuss and illustrate abstractions in nature and nature as a source of inspiration, and will show artists in their studios. His material will cover 19 states west of the Mississippi. Both Ben Messick, FRSA, and his wife, Velma Hay, are included in the showing.

Van Harlingen, former director of the E. B. Crocker City Art Gallery in Sacramento, has returned from a Midwest and Western tour of art centers, associations and museums.

The public is invited to his lecture. There is no admission charge, but reservations must be made by telephoning Messick.

"TWENTY-FIVE Chicago Artists," a show emphasizing experimental techniques and individualism, will be on view in the Fisher Gallery at the University of Southern California from Thursday through May 7. Hours are 1 to 5 p.m. Mondays through Fridays.

In contrast to the New York painters' definite school of art, the Chicago group shows variety of techniques, styles and viewpoints, characterized by high quality, seriousness and lack of sham.

Most of them products of the Art Institute of Chicago, the artists include Robert Ahlstrom, Ronald Ahlstrom, Robert Amfit, Robert W. Anderson, Morris Barazani, Don Baum, Claude Bentley, Harry Bouras, Dorothy Brooks, Nancy Costa, John Flynn, Miyoko Ito, Tom Kapsalis, George Kokines, Paul McCarron, Ruth Migdal, Luis Ortiz, Kerig Pope, Robert Post, Ray Reshoft, Alice Shaddle, Edvins Strautmanis and George Waite.

LOS ANGELES Printmaking Society opens its "Relief Prints" exhibit today in its gallery, 818 S. Spring St., Los Angeles. The show will run through April 30. Gallery hours are Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., Sundays from 1 to 5 p.m.

Dick Swift of California State College at Long Beach is member-juror for this exhibit of woodcuts and related media.

Pre-Quake Alaska Is Film Topic

"Lumberjack in Alaska" will be presented at five local high school auditoriums this week as the final program in the Long Beach City College General Adult Division's International Film Series.

Opening at 8 p.m. Monday in the Wilson auditorium, the film-lecture will be repeated Tuesday at Jordan, Wednesday at Lakewood, Thursday at Polytechnic and Friday at Millikan High School. Tickets will be available at the door each night for those who are not season subscribers.

NARRATOR will be Don Cooper, who began filming "Lumberjack in Alaska" to while away his idle hours in remote logging camps. Cooper has explored some of the wildest parts of Alaska, along with the more settled areas, in producing his documentary.

There is an extensive sequence on pre-earthquake Anchorage and other towns in the present disaster area. One of the most spectacular scenes was shot while Cooper and a friend were trapped in an ice pack off Hubbard Glacier as huge icebergs crashed into the sea all around them.

'Silent World'

Capt. Cousteau is an outstanding authority on skindiving and underwater archeological exploration, as well as the author of numerous books and articles on the subject.

This film was to have been shown last month but did not arrive in time from the distributor.

Lakewood Barrister Knows Law of Caesar

Chef of the Week

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
I. P-T Food Editor

He's one Iowan who made a return trip to the old home town before deciding to make Long Beach his permanent home.

Born in Hillsboro, Iowa, a small farm community, today's Chef of the Week, Ted W. Sullivan ("W" for Winton"), first came to Long Beach in 1927, and attended Bryant Elementary School and later Burnett, and Alexander Hamilton Jr. High for a semester. Because of the earthquake and the general depression in 1933, his father sold his cafe here and the family returned to Iowa, where Sullivan finished high school. He then assisted his Dad in the management and operation of a cafe until early in 1941, when he accepted a civil service position as a junior clerk with the Social Security Board in Baltimore, Md.

• • • •

IN 1942 HE entered the U. S. Army Air Corps as an aviation cadet, won his wings as a fighter pilot and was commissioned a second lieutenant at Napier Field, Ala., in October of '43. He participated as a pilot in combat operations in the European Theatre of operations and was awarded the Air Medal and European Theater of Operations Ribbon with battle star for battle of Central Germany.

Two days after war was over he was the involuntary guest of the Red Army in Berlin for a week. At that time his identity was satisfactorily established and he was allowed to return to his home base in Eschwege, Germany. After serving two months in the Army of Occupation in Germany he returned to the U. S. and was released from active duty three months later. He just recently resigned his commission as Captain in the Air Force Reserves.

In November 1945 he enrolled in USC's College of Commerce, receiving his bachelor of science cum laude in 1948. Two years later he graduated from USC's School of Law.

While at the university he was a member of Alpha Kappa Psi commerce professional fraternity and the national legal fraternity of Delta Theta Phi. He was elected into the Phi Eta Sigma, the Beta Gamma Sigma and the Phi Kappa Phi scholastic honor fraternities.

SULLIVAN passed the California Bar in January of '51, and was admitted to practice before the Supreme Court of the United States, and the United States Court of Military Appeals in 1955. After being admitted to the California Bar he was employed by the Automobile Club of Southern California in its legal department.

He opened his own office in Lakewood Village in January of '52. Since '56 he has been law partner with Bigelow of Lakewood.

A past president of the Downey-Los Cerritos Bar Association, and of the Lakewood Junior Chamber of Commerce, Sullivan has served several different times on the board of directors of the Greater Lakewood Chamber of Commerce.

Presently he is a member of the Petroleum Club, serves on the board of directors of Lakewood YMCA, and as a director and chairman of the classification committee of the Lakewood Rotary Club. He has served two years as a lay member of the High School Curriculum Committee and the General Curriculum Committee of the Long Beach Unified School District. Sullivan also teaches a course entitled "Law for Everyday Use" for the adult division of City College.

He and Mrs. Sullivan (Evelyn) have two daughters and a son—Sherryl, 18, a freshman at USC, Doran, 9, and Ward, 8, both pupils at Mark Twain Elementary School.

Attorney Ted W. Sullivan

SULLIVAN'S hobbies are golfing and reading, the latter primarily in the field of international affairs and political science. The latter also, no doubt, explains why, when he undertook to panel his office, the electricity immediately went off, and why he's known as the "unfixit" rather than the "fixit" man. He could, however, open his own hardware store, what with the nuts, bolts and sundry equipment he has stored in his garage.

As a family, the Sullivans are anticipating the arrival of a new ski boat which they recently ordered.

Our "chef" is quite self-sufficient at fixing breakfast. But 10-to-1, he'll serve chocolate Malt-O-Meal. His one company recipe is Caesar Salad, and then he doesn't guarantee his aim when administering the egg.

SULLIVAN'S CAESAR SALAD

1 clove garlic, quartered
¼ cup salad oil
2 cups croutons
1 large head each romaine and iceberg lettuce (3 quarts)
½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
¼ cup crumbled Blue cheese
½ cup salad oil
1 tsp. Worcestershire
¾ tsp. salt
1 raw egg
2 lemons, halved
1 can anchovies

The night before the party, soak the garlic in ¼ cup of the oil. Wash and drain the lettuce and store in crisper.

Put all the ingredients on a tray, borrow the neighbor's large wooden salad bowl, and then into the dining room. Tear greens int large bite size pieces into the salad bowl; sprinkle the cheese on top; drizzle on the ½ cup salad oil, well mixed with Worcestershire, salt and pepper. Toss gently until every leaf glistens. Break the whole raw egg onto the greens; with a fork, ream the juice from the 2 lemons over all — toss again until all specks of egg disappear. Put the ¼ cup oil (garlic removed) over the croutons; give them a quick toss and sprinkle them on top of the greens.

Mobil Economy Run Ends in New York

Everybody's talking about their cars and how they performed in the Mobil Economy Run

We'd like to talk about our teen-age crew

This year, Chevrolet chose twenty teen-agers to drive its nine-car entry in the Mobil Economy Run. This marked the first time in the Run's history that non-professional drivers had been selected to crew an entire team of cars.

The Chevy Teen Team was chosen through the Junior Achievement program, and came from ten major U.S. cities. They are 18- and 19-year-old college students and secretaries, telephone operators and store clerks. For six weeks prior to the start of the Mobil Economy Run, these teen-age drivers were put through a rigorous training schedule at Arcadia, California. Then they set off on the 3,500-mile Los Angeles-to-New York trek.

Why did Chevrolet rely on twenty teen-agers in an event as tough as the Mobil Economy Run? Because Chevrolet has faith in America's teen-agers, as good drivers and responsible individuals. And we wanted to give them a chance to prove it, in front of the entire nation.

And prove it they did. The Chevy Teen Team came through with flying colors. They showed that the vast majority of America's 6.5 million licensed teen-age drivers are intelligent, capable drivers.

We're proud of the Chevy Teen Team. They set a standard of driving skill and common sense anyone would be glad to follow.

"The Corvair, Chevy II's, Chevelles and Chevrolets driven by the Chevy Teen Team in the Mobil Economy Run did remarkably well compared with the Class Winners in overall miles-per-gallon figures. The final results are a tribute to the high degree of driving skill displayed by the Chevy Teen Team Representing the young of America"

OUR COVER

One of Hollywood's youngest and most beautiful stars and also one of its most accomplished veterans—Natalie Wood—is once more in the Oscar orbit. Academy nominations are nothing new to Natalie; in fact, in 1962 she had the unique distinction of receiving two of them. Brown-eyed, chestnut-haired Natalie began her acting career at the age of 4 and is one of the few successfully to make the transition from child performer to adult star. This year's nomination is for her work in "Love With a Proper Stranger," with Steve McQueen. Her first nomination was for her memorable work as the high school girl friend of the late James Dean in "Rebel Without a Cause." For more about the Oscar orbit and Natalie's strong competitors for the little statuettes, turn to Page 7.

NEXT WEEK

Five years of life with the Indians of the Southwest, first with Apaches and later the Mojaves, were years of great unhappiness for a teen-aged white girl. First, there was the slaughter of her parents and four brothers in an attack on the family's immigrant wagon, then the cruelties heaped upon her by the Indians, later the death of her sister in their captivity and deprivation. Finally, she was released and reunited with a brother who survived the Indian attack. The story is told in Southland next week in "The Strange Case of Olive Oatman," by Maymie R. Krythe.

A QUESTION OF SPEEDING

Arrest the President?

By Hoyt McAfee

—Associated Press Wirephoto

Furore stirred by alleged speeding on the Texas open spaces by President Johnson raises question whether the President could be arrested.

CHANCES are overwhelming that, as President, Lyndon B. Johnson will never receive a ticket for speeding. It would be just as improbable to suppose that he will be arrested for some infraction of the law. But it could happen!

No provision in the U.S. Constitution exempts the Chief Executive from arrest. Should he exceed the speed limit in some state, run through a red light, or hit a wayward pedestrian, he would be as subject to due process of law as the ordinary citizen.

This subject — of whether the President could be held accountable for a speeding violation — has been very much in the public eye lately. Newspapers across the land continue to express the hope—on their front pages and in their editorial sections—that LBJ, under the wheel of his car, "will take it easy." This concern over his driving started during his abbreviated visit to Johnson ranch in Texas.

FOND OF "making the wide-open spaces sing past me" (as he once phrased it), LBJ climbed into his car and set out to pay a few neighborly calls on old friends. White House correspondents and photographers took off in pursuit of him. According to most accounts since then, they hit the 70-mile-an-hour Texas speed limit—then "lost sight of" LBJ.

Recently, however, the President dismissed the nationwide furore over his "fast driving" as a tempest in a teapot. He specifically disclaimed any knowledge of having driven over 70 miles an hour at any time.

All of which reminds me of the year I spent in Maryland. Dwight Eisenhower occupied the White House during that period. It was common knowledge to any observant reporter—and in fact, it appeared in the newspapers — that Ike sometimes went through Maryland, en route to Gettysburg, Penn., "like the cannonball express."

Two Maryland state policemen confided to this reporter that they once "clocked Ike (the President) going 104 miles an hour." They gave fleeting thought "to the idea of flagging him down, but in the end decided against it." High-speeding White House correspondents, whizzing along well behind the presidential car, were, however, halted and cautioned to stay within the Maryland speed limit.

AT WHICH POINT curiosity prompts the question: Have any U.S. Presidents ever been cited—or arrested—for an infringement of the law? And the answer to that, in two specific instances is yes! Back in 1853, Franklin Pierce, the 14th President, drove in his carriage to call on a friend in Southeast Washington.

As he headed back toward the White House, his spirited horses developed an unruly streak. It was during that unfortunate moment that his carriage struck down an enfeebled woman pedestrian! One Mrs. Nathan Lewis. A Washington constable—Stanley Edelin—hurried to the scene and arrested the President of the United States, Franklin Pierce!

As might be expected, Pierce's position made it imperative that an immediate investigation be conducted. After all the facts were weighed carefully, the charge against President Pierce was dropped. No official, spectator, or newspaper seemed to think that he had been "careless or negligent" in running down the woman. That, summed up, it qualified as an "unfortunate accident."

Ulysses S. Grant, the man who accepted Gen. Robert E. Lee's surrender at Richmond and later became the 18th U.S. President, also had trouble with "frisky horses." He set out one day in his handsome carriage, aiming to "get a little fresh air." Along M Street in Washington, D.C., between 11th and 12th, President Grant's steeds did some fancy sprinting.

SECONDS LATER a voice called out with the ring of authority: "Halt! You're breaking the speed limit." A startled President Grant found himself suddenly confronted by a traffic policeman. As for the latter, he blushed and stammered an apology when he discovered that he had halted the President of the U.S.!

To which Grant responded: "Go ahead, officer—do your duty! Write me a ticket—I'll accept it." He spoke cheerfully, reassuringly; and the embarrassed officer handed President Grant a $20 speeding ticket.

As a matter of record,

C.F. — FINLEY can be Scotch or Irish. In Scotland this family are a division of Clan Farquhar. "Fhionn-Laogh," meaning "fair hero," which later evolved as Finley, was a medieval chieftain of the Clan Farquhar who was titled Royal Standard Bearer at the Battle of Pinkie, where he died in 1547. In his memory many Farquhar descendants took the surname Fhionnlaigh. The clan shield is silver decorated with a gold boar head placed between two silver stars on a blue stripe across the top. Irish Finleys, natives of Ormond, originated as the O'Fionnlaighs, or "sons of the fair and valorous one." The Strange Case of Olive Oatman

By Maymie R. Krythe

IN THE SPRING of 1856, news spread through Southern California — that Olive Oatman, a young girl held captive for years by Mojave Indians, was to be allowed to return to civilization.

She reached El Monte, not far from Los Angeles, where she was reunited with her brother, Lorenzo, the only other surviving member of her ill-fated family, which originally numbered nine persons. The Los Angeles Star printed a detailed account of her family tragedy and of her years of captivity.

In August 1850, Royce Oatman, with his wife and seven children, started in a wagon train from Independence, Mo., to settle in the Yuma region. Ira Thompson, with whom they traveled as far as Tucson, decided to wait, with his cattle, for other trains to come by, to make the journey safer. However, the Oatmans became impatient, and pushed on alone. About 80 miles from the mouth of the Gila River they were attacked by Apaches. The savages killed the parents, four of the children and left one boy, Lorenzo, for dead. They took Olive, aged 13, and Mary Ann, as prisoners. Lorenzo finally reached California, and lived with the Thompsons at El Monte.

THEN THE SISTERS began the captivity that lasted five years for Olive but less time for Mary Ann, as she died for lack of proper food. The Star tells of the beginning of the girls' stay with the Apaches:

> "They traveled all night without resting. At noon, next day, they stopped for a few minutes to breathe, and then hurried on again until nightfall, when they came into camp. She (Olive) thinks they traveled a hundred miles. She was barefooted, and the sharp stones lacerated her feet. . . . Whenever she lagged, they would come behind and beat her, to urge her on. . . . The reason for their hurrying on so rapidly was fear they might be pursued."

The first year with the savages was almost unbearable; the girls' clothes soon dropped off; then Olive matted some bark together for rough garments for herself and Mary Ann. The pair were beaten when they couldn't understand what the Indians wanted them to do.

This tribe lived in poverty and filth; often the girls had nothing to eat but roots. Sometimes they had to go miles to get food and water for their captors. After a year with the Apaches the latter sold the sisters to the Mojaves for two horses, some beads, blankets and vegetables. Luckily, the chief's wife took a liking to the girls and gave them blankets and food. As there was little rain along the Colorado, these savages often died of starvation.

AFTER MARY ANN'S death, the Mojaves wanted to burn her body, but the chief's wife intervened, and the child was buried. Finally, these Indians told Olive she could go back to the white people. But she didn't know the way; and the Mojaves were afraid to guide her, for fear they would be punished.

In 1855, a rumor reached Southern California that Olive had married an Indian chief in the region of the Colorado River. Lorenzo wanted to go to rescue his sister, but didn't succeed in getting help for such an expedition. On Jan. 28, 1856, an Indian told officers at Fort Yuma that a white girl was living among Mojaves "10 days' travel away," and that "for certain considerations" he would bring her to the fort.

A correspondent at Fort Yuma wrote to the Los Angeles Star in regard to Olive Oatman:

> ". . . is rather a pretty girl, 15 or 16 years old. She is fast recovering her English, reads readily. . . . The death of her sister made this girl more of a burden than anything else to the Indians. She was constantly weeping, so they allowed the fact of her being still with them to transpire through a Yuma India."

WHEN OLIVE reached El Monte in April 1856, she denied marrying an Indian, and gave the Star a long account of her days with the savages. Many flocked to see her, and she was described as having "pleasant manners" and "a ladylike deportment." However, the Star stated:

> "Her face is disfigured by tatooed lines on the chin, running obliquely and perpendicularly from her mouth. Her arms were also marked in such a manner by one straight line on each. The operation consisted in puncturing the skin, and rubbing a dye or pulverized charcoal into the wounds."

That same summer, H. B. Oatman, a cousin, came down from Oregon, declared himself their guardian, and took the orphans north with him. As they passed through San Francisco, the papers made much of Olive's captivity and held interviews with her.

LESS THAN a year later, Royal B. Stratton, a minister of Yreka, at Olive's dictation, wrote down her adventures; and a San Francisco publisher got out two editions in 1857. Later, the book was revised, and published in New York, and about 30,000 copies sold in two years. The Democratic State Journal declared:

> "The reader will rise from its perusal with a feeling prompting him to seize the musket and go at once and chastise those inhuman wretches among whom Olive has spent five years. . . ."

After a few months, Olive and Lorenzo returned to California; later she went to New York with the Strattons. At Rochester, in 1865, she married John B. Fairchild; and on March 20, 1903, she died in Sherman, Tex.

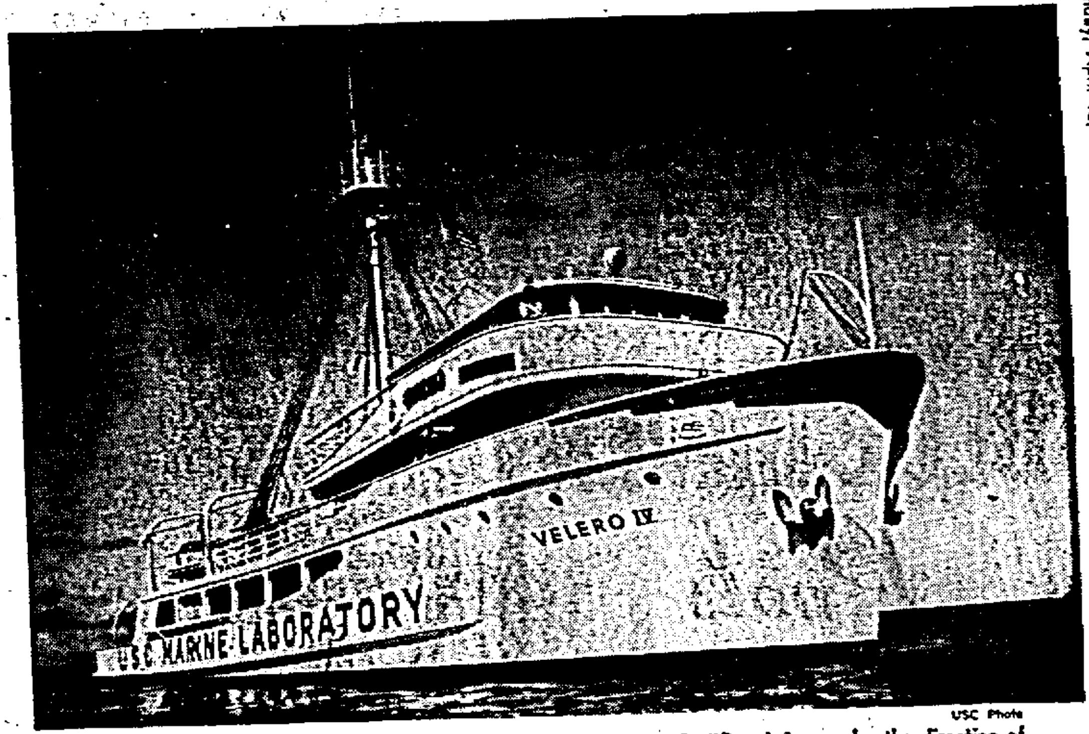
Science at Sea

Inquisitive Prober of the Deeps



USC Photo

Velero IV is a floating marine laboratory, carrying out many scientific missions under the direction of the Allan Hancock Foundation for Scientific Research and USC. She is fifth in series of Hancock vessels.

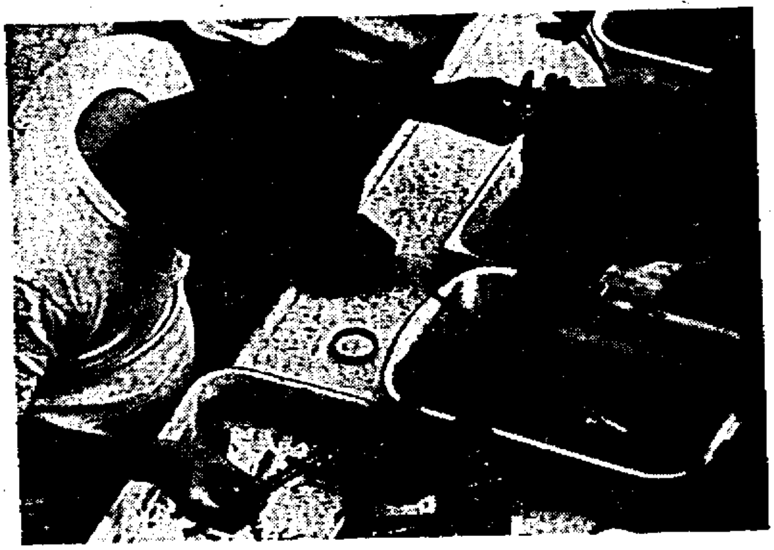
By Lou Jobst

FROM HER powerful steel bow 120 feet aft to her gleaming white stern, the Velero IV is pound-for-pound, foot-for-foot, the best science boat afloat.

The 510-ton Los Angeles Harbor-based oceanographic research ship—fifth in a line of famous Hancock Foundation cruisers—is virtually chocked, bulkhead to bulkhead, with scientific gear and apparatus.

The Velero, launched in 1948 and often mistaken at sea for a fisher because of her striking resemblance to modern high-speed tuna clippers, has a range of 8,000 miles, carries a crew of nine and has accommodations for a scientific party of 18 persons.

She has two permanent laboratories set up in the No. 1 hold and carries dehumidifying equipment to inhibit deterioriation of expensive electronic, microscopic and other laboratory equipment in tropical climes.



Fully equipped laboratories aboard the Velero IV permit study of sea life by students engaged in marine research. Craft has two permanent labs.

THE VELERO'S operational area is about 30,000 square miles of ocean off California and Mexico, and she carries radar so precise it can navigate in thick fog while tracking a foil-and-metal covered helium balloon in air and wind current tests, a sonar-transducer fathometer built into the steel hull 12 feet below the surface and a bathythermograph, a heavy two-foot, missile-like instrument which can be dropped over the side to measure water temperatures down to 400 feet.

She also carries underwater cameras, dredges and buckets for obtaining bottom samples, coring devices, an inventory of specimen nets, cranes and full equipped photographic, chemical, biological and geographic laboratories including one big open air lab on the fantail.

The all-steel marine laboratory is presently mapping huge sections of the Pacific Ocean floor under a $100,000 grant from the National Science Foundation.

THESE MARINE topographical studies are concerned with the 6,000-foot Catalina basin level and the 10,000-foot level along the Continental slope off Point Conception. Directing the operation and a team of 16 researchers is Dr. Donn Gorsline, USC professor of geology and a research fellow of Hancock Foundation for Scientific Research.

The Velero also is presently involved in studies of Southland currents and is usidg fluorescent-stained sands to trace erosion movements in the Malibu area.

Other contemporary studies also include an exhaustive look at material suspended in the sea in an area up to 70 miles offshore and detailed research and observation of currents and sea organisms in the Redondo Beach district.

IN THE PAST the Velero and her predecessors have done monumental work in identifying, cataloging and monographing marine flora and flauna which inhabit the eastern (or California) Pacific. The ship also has made detailed studies of offshore water pollution, ecological studies of mid-water animals in deep basins and several surveys of military oceanography for the U. S. Navy as well as geological studies for oil companies.

On most operations the Velero stays out no longer than 24 hours, allowing crew and researchers to live at home, but on other occasions has made long-range, sustained voyages.

The Allan Hancock Foundation for Scientific Research (which offers no courses or grants, no degrees and operates solely as an oceanographic research institution) was founded by Capt. Allan Hancock, former president of the Board of Trustees, University of Southern California.

THE FOUNDATION grew out of voyages of Hancock's Velero III, a series of sea expeditions, years 1931-41. So much material was amassed by the expeditions that it became necessary to provide a permanent repository which resulted in the construction of Hancock Hall at USC, and the founding of the institute.

The Velero was designed by G. Bruce Newby, naval architect and marine engineer of Long Beach.

Colorful Coleus

Foliage plants are quite as attractive as flowers in the garden. Coleus is, of course, the plant most gardeners think of first when colorful foliage is mentioned. It is easily grown from seeds and available with many color combinations.

But the big, beautifully marked leaves of caladiums, the feathery green of a new marigold named Irish Lace, and the brilliantly-colored leaves of any of the amaranths are other possibilities.

The Day FDR Died

By Hoyt McAfee

Franklin D. Roosevelt's warm personality, his regard for those about him is recalled on the anniversary, today, of his death, April 12, 1945.

IN THE CAROLINAS and North Georgia, it was a spring day — that April 12, 1945 — ideally suited for strolls in the sunshine and picnicking. Franklin D. Roosevelt, pale, drawn, and physically exhausted after his strenuous wartime trip to Yalta, slept late that morning. After a lighter-than-usual breakfast, he still felt tired, depressed, and in no mood for a swim in the beneficial water at Warm Springs.

Planned for that afternoon was an old-style barbecue—one which had been planned for the enjoyment of Roosevelt, Warm Springs polio victims, and White House correspondents. But as the minutes and hours ticked by, FDR's chances of attending it diminished rapidly. Early that fateful afternoon the end came abruptly for him as he languished in his Warm Springs cottage.

Shuddering, he spoke in a hoarse, agonizing voice: "I have a terrific headache!" FDR suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and death followed shortly thereafter.

WORD OF HIS death reached me before it appeared in extra editions of newspapers.

It was relayed by a member of the White House staff to my close friend, U.S. Senator Clyde Hoey of North Carolina. His hands were trembling as he replaced the receiver. Turning to me (I was visiting in his office at the time), Hoey commented:

"My God—I can't believe it! FDR dead, just when victory for America and her Allies seems so near in Europe! This means a terrible loss for freedom-loving people throughout the world. Millions of them thought of Roosevelt as their friend, a world leader in the fullest sense."

There, in his quiet study, Senator Hoey confided to me: "I saw FDR twice after his exhausting journey ot Yalta. Sure, his physical appearance looked disturbing. But I was confident a long rest at Warm Springs—plus swims in the curative water there—would restore the President's health and physical vigor."

AT THAT MOMENT my thoughts flicked back to a memorable day in my life—Sept. 9, 1936. That was the date on which I, still a greenhorn, fumbling reporter, enjoyed the rare privilege of an undisturbed personal conversation with Roosevelt, during the course of which he dropped an exclusive into my lap!

Over the years, I've attended, at one time or another, the cross-country press conferences held by Presidents Truman, Eisenhower, and Johnson. But with FDR, I felt that I had established a measure of rapport.

My totally unexpected meeting with him came about this way: Clyde Hoey, then an attorney and a candidate for governor of North Carolina (with FDR's encouragement), invited me to "take a little trip" with him. He added: "I intend to meet FDR at Clingman's Dome on the North Carolina-Tennessee border. He will proceed from there, via an open motorcade, to the 7-states' Green Pastures rally in Charlotte."

AS A FILLIP, Hoey ventured: "I may be able to wangle something special out of Roosevelt for you." Delighted over that prospect, I accompanied Hoey to Clingman's Dome, high up in the Great Smokies. FDR, riding in an open touring car, arrived there around noontime—and was cheered vociferously by Park Rangers, CCC camp boys and thousands of others.

Doffing his battered campaign hat, he flashed his famous grin and waved heartily. When his official car came to a halt at the CCC camp luncheon site, everybody in the assembled throng had a clear, close-up and unhampered view of him. At FDR'S insistence, Secret Service men stood discreetly off to the side.

He remained through that stop-over and his three-day visit to North Carolina absolutely the most loosely-guarded President I've ever seen moving about the country! And of all our modern-day Chief Executives, he was the undisputed master in meeting the public.

WHEN HOEY stepped forward to shake FDR's hand, I was at his side. Suddenly Roosevelt's golden voice boomed out: "Hello, Clyde—good to meet you up here so close to heaven" (that being a reference to the lofty elevation of Clingman's Dome). Hoey introduced me to Roosevelt thusly:

"I have with me a good friend—a young reporter who started his newspaper career just three months ago." Then he told FDR my name.

Roosevelt smiled, held out his enormous right hand, and addressed me by my first name. For that matter, he—with perfect naturalness—called kings, queens, princes, generals and admirals by their first names. His informality and warmth of friendliness put me completely at ease.

ENCOURAGINGLY, he made no effort to break off his conversation with us. Left to my own devices, I would never have been so thoughtless as to mention FDR's polio affliction. Yet he brought the subject up himself—with a candor that to us was remarkable!

First, he explained—as he pointed to his leg braces—that he couldn't "navigate without them." He also made it clear that he could rise to a standing position and move forward only with assistance. Further, that in delivering his speeches, he had to rest "most of my weight first on my right, then left, elbow. But"—and his chin suddenly shot up—"with determination, you can learn to live with this affliction: even find a way to make it enrich you as a person."

Then he referred to his "displeasure" over recent Supreme Court decisions — in which the stamp of unconstitutionality had been placed on some of FDR's most vital reform measures. In the event of his re-election, he emphasized that he'd push his New Deal program "vigorously—even if it becomes necessary to revitalize the Supreme Court."

THERE IT WAS—the tip-off, real high-voltage stuff! A momentary pause by FDR gave me a chance to ask: "Mr. President, how would you go about revitalizing the Supreme Court?" To show you how ill-prepared I was for that unexpected personal chat with FDR, I had no note paper with me! Clyde Hoey handed me his notebook as FDR revealed that:

(1) He'd launch a series of "Fireside Chats" in the hope of bringing pressure to bear on the Supreme Court.

(2) "As a last resort," he would seek Congressional approval to "broaden the base" of the highest tribunal. (When he proposed this in a message to Congress five months later—in February of 1937—his outspoken critics labeled it "the court-packing plan.")

After Roosevelt had spoken so frankly there at Clingman's Dome, I thought quickly: Just how much of this, if any, can I use? Clyde Hoey came to my rescue by asking: "Mr. President, may my reporter-

Decorating Enigma

Five drawings and sketches by John Lincoln and two small figures decorate this wall.

WHEN ROCK is used for wall in living quarters, decorating often proves to be a problem, as in the Lawrence De Carlo home in San Pedro. Art solved the problem here, with five John Lincoln works and two hand-carved Spanish figures placed by interior designer Charlotte Centoz. Colorful Coleus

Foliage plants are quite as attractive as flowers in the garden. Coleus is, of course, the plant most gardeners think of first when colorful foliage is mentioned. It is easily grown from seeds and available with many color combinations.

But the big, beautifully marked leaves of caladiums, the feathery green of a new marigold named Irish Lace, and the brilliantly-colored leaves of any of the amaranths are other possibilities.

The Day FDR Died

By Hoyt McAfee

Franklin D. Roosevelt's warm personality, his regard for those about him is recalled on the anniversary, today, of his death, April 12, 1945.

IN THE CAROLINAS and North Georgia, it was a spring day — that April 12, 1945 — ideally suited for strolls in the sunshine and picnicking. Franklin D. Roosevelt, pale, drawn, and physically exhausted after his strenuous wartime trip to Yalta, slept late that morning. After a lighter-than-usual breakfast, he still felt tired, depressed, and in no mood for a swim in the beneficial water at Warm Springs.

Planned for that afternoon was an old-style barbecue—one which had been planned for the enjoyment of Roosevelt, Warm Springs polio victims, and White House correspondents. But as the minutes and hours ticked by, FDR's chances of attending it diminished rapidly. Early that fateful afternoon the end came abruptly for him as he languished in his Warm Springs cottage.

Shuddering, he spoke in a hoarse, agonizing voice: "I have a terrific headache!" FDR suffered a cerebral hemorrhage and death followed shortly thereafter.

WORD OF HIS death reached me before it appeared in extra editions of newspapers.

It was relayed by a member of the White House staff to my close friend, U.S. Senator Clyde Hoey of North Carolina. His hands were trembling as he replaced the receiver. Turning to me (I was visiting in his office at the time), Hoey commented:

"My God—I can't believe it! FDR dead, just when victory for America and her Allies seems so near in Europe! This means a terrible loss for freedom-loving people throughout the world. Millions of them thought of Roosevelt as their friend, a world leader in the fullest sense."

There, in his quiet study, Senator Hoey confided to me: "I saw FDR twice after his exhausting journey ot Yalta. Sure, his physical appearance looked disturbing. But I was confident a long rest at Warm Springs—plus swims in the curative water there—would restore the President's health and physical vigor."

AT THAT MOMENT my thoughts flicked back to a memorable day in my life—Sept. 9, 1936. That was the date on which I, still a greenhorn, fumbling reporter, enjoyed the rare privilege of an undisturbed personal conversation with Roosevelt, during the course of which he dropped an exclusive into my lap!

Over the years, I've attended, at one time or another, the cross-country press conferences held by Presidents Truman, Eisenhower, and Johnson. But with FDR, I felt that I had established a measure of rapport.

My totally unexpected meeting with him came about this way: Clyde Hoey, then an attorney and a candidate for governor of North Carolina (with FDR's encouragement), invited me to "take a little trip" with him. He added: "I intend to meet FDR at Clingman's Dome on the North Carolina-Tennessee border. He will proceed from there, via an open motorcade, to the 7-states' Green Pastures rally in Charlotte."

AS A FILLIP, Hoey ventured: "I may be able to wangle something special out of Roosevelt for you." Delighted over that prospect, I accompanied Hoey to Clingman's Dome, high up in the Great Smokies. FDR, riding in an open touring car, arrived there around noontime—and was cheered vociferously by Park Rangers, CCC camp boys and thousands of others.

Doffing his battered campaign hat, he flashed his famous grin and waved heartily. When his official car came to a halt at the CCC camp luncheon site, everybody in the assembled throng had a clear, close-up and unhampered view of him. At FDR'S insistence, Secret Service men stood discreetly off to the side.

He remained through that stop-over and his three-day visit to North Carolina absolutely the most loosely-guarded President I've ever seen moving about the country! And of all our modern-day Chief Executives, he was the undisputed master in meeting the public.

SOUTHLAND HOMES

Its Qualities Have Improved With Age

By Stella George

ABOUT 17 YEARS AGO, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Masterson selected the site at 610 Los Altos Avenue in Alamitos Heights and built a two-story home there. Today, the trees surrounding the home are grown, other fine houses are nearby and the residence is one with a past, a present, and a future. Its quality has improved with age.

Trees play an important part in the outdoor landscaping. From her kitchen window, Mrs. Masterson can see a group of trees that is without price. Los Altos Avenue is a quiet street, and birds have long since discovered the tall trees are an excellent housing unit. One colorful finch calls regularly at the Masterson windowsill for meals.

The house has a wide entry that leads to the living room at the right, the dining room left, the den and stairway ahead. Throughout the entire dwelling the floor is covered with thick, soft carpeting of powder-puff texture, dyed a shade of gray-blue—perhaps mist blue describes it.

A SOFA RUNS nearly the entire length of one wall of the living room, facing the fireplace. A conversation grouping in one corner consists of two flowered quilted chairs meeting around a table and lamp. Heirloom pictures are hung in the room.

Color which radiates in the den is flattering both to people and inanimate objects alike, a kind of amber glow. Actually, it is achieved because the color chosen for the fiberglass on the patio roof is a delicate pink, which, penetrated by sunlight, becomes pink-amber. In the den are a recessed TV with a comfortable sofa across the room and occasional chairs here and there. One entire wall is of glass, looking into the patio and garden.

Patio furnishings are interesting—a Moses basket, for example, an oval-shaped sofa made of wicker. A tree shades much of the area. Barbecue accessories are near at hand. The garden on either side of the cemented patio is luxuriant with outsized plants, carefully tended.

A LARGE glass insert at the far end of the kitchen looks out onto the patio and provides this room with the same pink-amber lighting effect all day long. A small, glass-topped table with white wrought iron chairs is near, viewing the garden beyond.

The dining room is formal with high-backed chairs around an oval table. A cabinet there displays treasures accumulated throughout the years.

Upstairs, the master bedroom is as large as the living room. A second bedroom, no longer used by the Mastersons' son who is now grown, serves as Mrs. Masterson's art studio.

Mrs. Masterson has many fine Provincial and Contemporary pieces in her home. However, she says that she selected furnishings because she liked individual pieces or settings and they seemed to fit into a certain room or portion of a room. Whatever the method she used, the end result is an inviting atmosphere in every room.

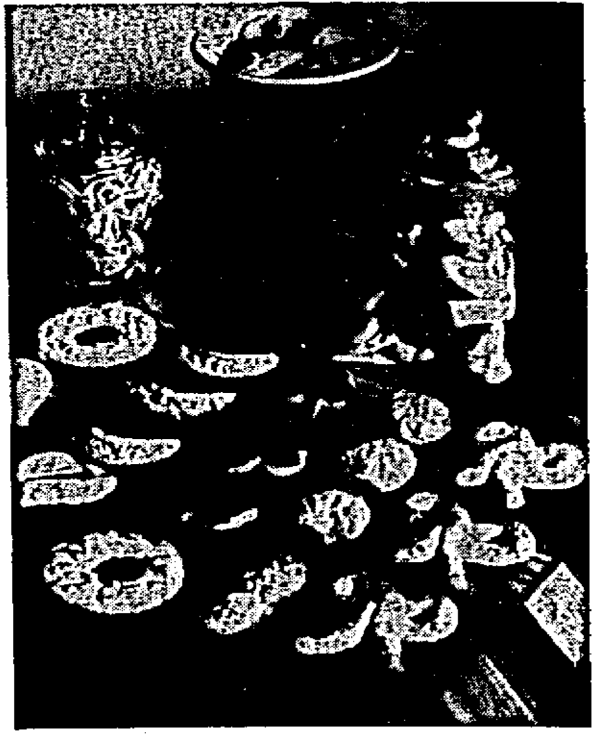
Cookies—As You Like Them

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

THIS BEING the year of the Shakespeare quadricentennial, it's only proper to expect a virtual flood of events commemorating the Bard's 400th birthday anniversary April 23. Since food was as popular in the Elizabethan Age as it is today—if in somewhat different fashion—what better touchstone is there to prove the sincerity of a 1964 tribute to the greatest of all English poets?

"As You Like It" Almond Cookies are fanciful enough to have been originated in Arden Forest itself. Crunchy with chopped almonds and as rich as Rosalind's regalia, they are prepared with an easy-to-handle dough which may be shaped just about any way you like before baking. Work with small amounts of dough and keep the rest refrigerated until you need it to mold more cookies.



Shape them as you like them from a basic dough recipe, and you'll have cookies like these for happy feasting.

'As You Like It' Almond Cookies

½ cup toasted slivered almonds
¾ cup butter or magarine
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
1 tablespoon milk
1 teaspoon vanilla
2½ cups sifted all-purpose flour
1½ teaspoons baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt

Finely chop almonds. In a large mixing bowl cream together butter and sugar, beating until light. Beat in eggs, milk and vanilla. Sift together into creamed mixture flour, baking powder and salt; mix well. Stir in almonds. Chill 2 hours. Shape cookies as desired. Bake on lightly greased cooky sheet in 350-degree (moderate) oven 6 to 8 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool on rack. Makes about 5 dozen cookies.

'Bows,' 'Rounds,' 'Circle-Bars'

For "Bows," an excellent cooky for a little girl's birthday party, shape the dough into "ropes," each about 12 inches long and ¼ inch thick; lay on a cooky sheet in the shape of bows, brush with slightly beaten egg white, sprinkle with candy dots and bake as recipe directs.

For chubby "Rounds," shape dough into ½-inch balls, roll in slightly beaten egg white, then in finely chopped almonds and bake.

"Circle-Bars" are made by rolling the dough and cutting 1-inch circles; slightly overlap three circles in a straight line for each cooky, sprinkle with chopped almonds—and off to the oven!

'Shamrocks,' 'Doughnuts,' 'Foldovers'

Any would-be leprechauns around your house should soar with delight over "Shamrock" cookies. Roll the dough and cut "leaves" with a 1-inch cutter. Lay a short strip of dough on cooky sheet for "stem" of each cooky and arrange three circles on it. Brush the dough with a mixture of egg yolk and green food coloring, then bake.

For "doughnuts," roll out dough on lightly floured cloth to thickness of 1/8 inch. Cut with doughnut cutter. Sprinkle "doughnuts" with granulated sugar and chopped almonds before baking.

"Foldovers" are assembled by rolling the dough and cutting circles with a 2½-inch cutter; sprinkling circles with chopped almonds; folding them over and baking. When cool, spread one side of each cooky with your favorite chocolate glaze.

'Hearts,' 'Crisscrosses'

Roll dough and cut with a heart-shaped cutter for "Hearts." With a mixture of egg yolk and red food coloring, streak an arrow diagonally across each "heart," then whisk into the oven.

For "Chocolate-Tipped Crisscrosses," roll and cut dough as for the "Doughnuts." Then cut through the circles and cross over ends. Bake, cool and spread chocolate glaze on ends.

Recipe of the Week

VERSATILITY OF HAM in food preparation is called up this week to win $5 for Mrs. Lloyd H. Neumann, 1534 Rose Ave., Long Beach 90813. The recipe:

Ham Loaf

2 lbs. cooked smoked ham, ground not too fine
2 lbs. raw smoked ham, ground not too fine
1½ cups milk
4 eggs
2½ cups Graham Crackers (rolled)
Salt and pepper to taste

Combine ingredients and form loaf in baking pan and pour over it the sauce.

Sauce:
1 can tomato soup
½ cup brown sugar
1 tsp. mustard
½ cup cider vinegar
½ cup water

Pour this over the ham loaf and bake 2 hours at 325 degrees.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif.

President

Grant made no appearance in court: thus forfeiting his $20 collateral to traffic court. On the other hand, he showed remarkable thoughtfulness by sending a complimentary letter about the arresting officer to the police department. Unsurprisingly, that patrolman—who had expected outright dismissal for his action—called Grant "my favorite President."

Much earlier in our nation's history, Thomas Jefferson, the most versatile of all U.S. Presidents, refused to accept a subpoena which would have required him to go to court and testify in the Aaron Burr treason case. Jefferson regarded that as attempted encroachment by the judiciary upon executive authority.

IN HIS LETTER to U.S. Attorney George Hay, he referred to a situation in which the sheriff of a county might summon a judge to step down from the bench and help quell a riot. "Would he"—Jefferson observed—"abandon major duties to perform lesser ones?" In Jefferson's view, it would be utterly unreasonable to expect him to do so.

For, as he went on to emphasize: "The leading principle of our constitution is the independence of the legislative, executive, and judicial branches of each other. Would the executive be independent of the judiciary if he were subject to the latter? To imprisonment, at the latter's whim, for disobedience?"

In diplomatic language, that was President Jefferson's way of stating: "You have no authority to compel my appearance in court. If I decide to cooperate with you, it will be of my own free will, as the independent Chief Executive!"

But a President who becomes involved in a traffic accident, or who breaks the speed limit, enjoys no immunity under the U.S. Constitution. As was shown in the cases of Presidents Pierce and Grant, he can be halted, questioned, and issued a citation!

Camera Guild

Members of Long Beach Camera Guild this week will be entertained with two special showings of slides, one of vacation activities and accompanied by music by Gerald Church and the other of Alaska by Hazel Vosper. Other members are invited to bring slides of vacation trips to the meeting which is scheduled for 7:45 p.m. Wednesday in Los Altos library.

April contest winners included Catherine Laursen, Lillian Garton, Marion Paglow, Charles Lawson, Hazel Vosper, Chuck Haven, Dick Paglow, Lester Hockney, Fount Clark and Bob Knight, color slides, and Catherine Laursen and Floyd Williamson, stereo. Slides were judged by Cecil Wilson of Jewel City Camera Club, Glendale.

meaning "royal manor house." In 1050, the head or chief of the English Cunninghams traveled to Scotland where he aided the Scotch Prince Malcolm to escape from the notorious King MacBeth. Cunningham concealed Malcolm by forking hay over him in a barn, saving his life. In 1058, Malcolm gained the Scotch throne and rewarded the Cunninghams with a unique, significant armorial emblem, a black hayfork centered on a silver shield, accompanied with the reminiscent motto, "Over, fork, over."

DEAR MISS RULE: Please explain ZERKLE.—F. Z., Seal Beach.

F. Z.: ZERKLE comes from the old Germanic hero name Sieg-heri, denoting "victorious warrior." Sieg-Heri was greatly abbreviated to Sieger, then to Zer, to which was added the nickname suffix "-kle."

DEAR MISS RULE: Could you explain MARQUETTE.—R.M., Garden Grove.

R.M.: MARQUETTE is French. The name became world famous through Jacques Marquette, born in 1635, explorer of the Mississippi River. Marquette was a nickname form of Marc, meaning "warlike one." The family shield, held by the Marquet branch in the medieval French province of Poitou, is blue, decorated with a gold "X"-shaped cross placed between four gold coins.

For the well-dressed landlubber this summer: Harburt's Hi Tone suit with double breasted blazer, brass buttoned, and straight skirted to combine with sleeveless knit shell in coordinating stripes. The patch-pocketed A-line shift is sailcloth textured.

'All Ashore'

Femininity, 1964, doesn't mean the saccharine little girl with buttons and bows, ruffles and frills. It does mean a softer, more lady-like sportswear approach. Say seersucker, sharkskin, poplin, linen, sailcloth, denim—the big fabrics of Spring-Summer—and it's difficult to conjure up a more feminine look in sportswear. Add chambray, gingham, dotted Swiss and all the female aspects begin to come through. Harburt's "Old World" concept, originating in Finland and snapped up for import by touring student hostelers from some of our poshest "Ivy" women's colleges, offers a fresh approach to the relaxed shift. Fabrics are home-spun in feeling. Color and patterns adopt the look of hand-screening with unusual design effects achieved by tone on tone overprinting.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Check Eyes, Ears

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Is bad hearing very often a cause of poor work in school?

ANSWER: Yes, often.

Dr. Gwenyth Vaughn, head of the department of speech, pathology and audiology at Idaho State University, reports that seven out of every 100 Americans are born with hearing or speech disorders.

"Many supposedly well-informed people still believe that kids will just 'grow out' of their troubles," states Dr. Vaughn. "This is false. They need help, treatment; they need it when they are young."

Physicians and educators suspect that the physical difficulties of many children go undetected and are directly responsible for low academic achievement.

Have a physician test your child's sight and hearing at least once each year.

A child can't answer a question if he doesn't hear it, or read an assignment if he doesn't see the words.

QUESTION: Do private schools give students better preparation for college than public schools do?

ANSWER: A recent research project indicated that public school students get higher grades than private school students of the same age and intelligence. College freshmen from the public schools in the area where the research was conducted proved superior, on the average, to the private school students of that area. This is not to say, however, that the product of the private school is inadequate.

QUESTION: If you were going to suggest one step to take that might have a beneficial effect on a student's whole performance in school, what would it be?

ANSWER: Improve his reading. How well he does in any subject will depend to a large extent on how well he reads books, assignments, and test questions. When reading improves, academic achievement in general improves.

FDR Death

friend quote any part of this conversation in his write-up?" His response was that I should "express it as my hope (FDR's) that the Supreme Court will revitalize its thinking and consider the urgent needs of the American people—now—today!"

WE THANKED FDR warmly, then joined his colorful motorcade across the Cherokee Indian Reservation; thence into Asheville for an overnight stop. On the following day, Sept. 10, 1936, thousands cheered Roosevelt tumultuously as he passed through towns, villages and finally reached Charlotte in a downpour of rain.

FDR refused to let his aides raise the top of his open touring car. Hence, when he arrived at Charlotte stadium, he—like the thousands already gathered there—was soaking wet. Leaning on an aide's arm, he shuffled forward slowly to the speaker's platform. Everyone in that overflow crowd saw, many for the first time, how difficult it was for FDR, a polio cripple, to move about.

Gazing out over his audience, FDR's finger suddenly shot up and his magnetic voice rang out: "Behold, my friends — a rainbow in the sky!" All eyes turned and looked in the direction Roosevelt had indicated—to view one of nature's loveliest sights.

ON FOUR occasions, in later years, this reporter covered FDR's cross-country political campaigning. With his uncanny knack for remembering names and faces, it surprised me none when he recognized me each time. Once, he motioned me closer to his open car and, with an impish grin, ribbed me:

"I notice that you brought note paper with you this time!"

Sure, I realized a reporter must remain objective and impartial in writing about public officials. But when the President of the U.S. shows you (an everyday reporter) warmth and individual attention, as was FDR's wont, you feel a very personal loss when he dies!

Garden Tips

Garden tips for the week . . . Once more we remind you, prune your fuchsias and geraniums. They will start to grow very soon and you can then start giving plant food.

As the early-flowering iris, Christmas roses and other perennials go out of bloom, lift them and divide.

Now is the time to plant your tuberous and fibrous begonias seedlings. Give them some shade in hotter areas.

Keep weeds removed and don't let them go to seed!

How about some "fresh from the garden" vegetables this summer? Your nurseryman has a good selection of plants already started for you.

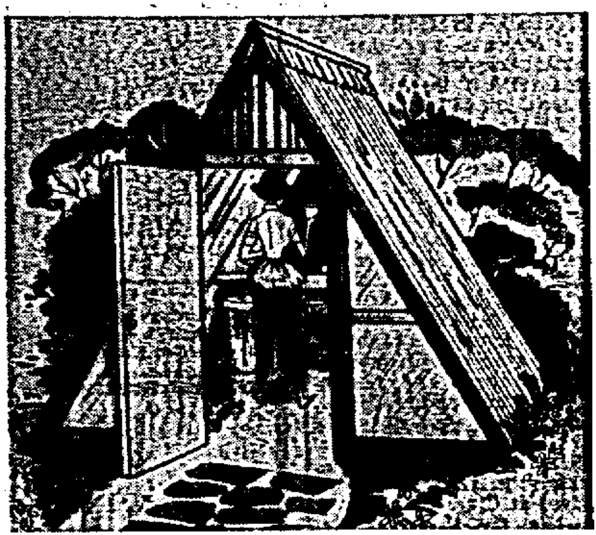
Home Workshop



Easily built, this greenhouse is a boon to gardening.

By Bill Meyerriecks

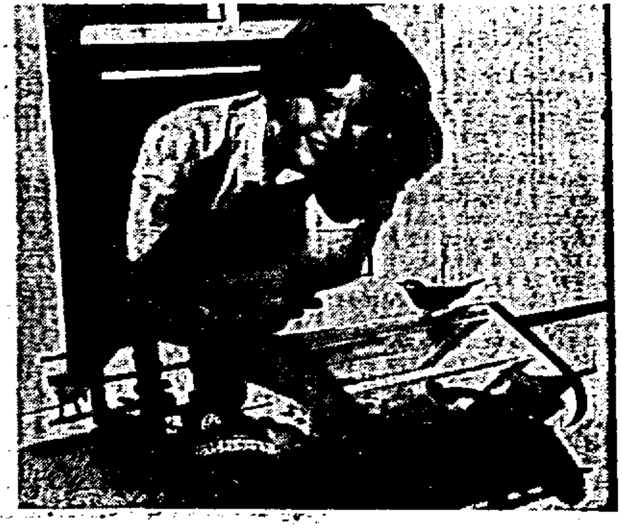
GREENHOUSE and potting bench, subjects of this simple Sketchbook do-it-yourself project, provide a useful adjunct to the home garden setup. Basic is an uncomplicated A-frame and the whole arrangement is easily constructed. In fact is is one outdoor project that can be built with hand tools only. Its completion is made easier by incorporation of translucent fiberglass in place of ordinary window glass. The type of fiberglass suggested is shatterproof and hailproof. It also produces a glare-free, shadow-free light evenly diffused over the flower growing area inside. It is available in a half-dozen different color shades.

Construction where the plastic panels are utilized makes a compact greenhouse with a 7-foot potting bench along the far end opposite the door. The base of the A-frame is approximately 10 feet square. Height at the ridge is 8½ feet. The foundation can be either poured concrete slab or a foundation curb with a floor of brick set in sand.

To order, specify A-Frame Greenhouse Plan S-156 and send name and address to 50 cents to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812.

Stage for a Bird Show

WITH THIS setting—a stage for birds—you'll find hours of happy showtime. NBC's Sue Wheeler demonstrates how the stage is set just outside the window, with its several kinds of perches, sunken bath with seed bar nearby, plastic covered area for bad weather, holes for providing suet for the non-vegetarians and just about anything a happy bird could want. With a full-sized pattern to follow, this bird stage is easily built in one evening and only scrap wood is needed. Set yourself up for a bird show. Send 50 cents for Bird Stage Pattern No. 341 to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif. 91409.



MEDICINE AND YOU

Alertness Paradox Revealed

By Ben Zinser

Southland Magazine Medical Science Writer

SCIENTISTS have long known that alertness decreases as time passes. But, given certain conditions, alertness may paradoxically increase after a time.

The finding is reported in the Journal of Experimental Psychology.

The experiment that turned up this finding involved 40 males 12 to 26 years old. The subjects were told to record the occurrence of variations in the illumination of a series of lamps.

The experiment lasted 135 minutes.

Twenty of the group were told the length of the experiment and encouraged to glance at their watches from time to time. The others were not informed and, furthermore, were not permitted to wear their watches.

Subjects who knew that the end of their task was approaching showed significant improvement in performance. But the uninformed group's performance did not improve.

IN MEDICAL research circles, Pudgie, a black Labrador retriever, is a VIP—Very Important Pooch.

Pudgie, reports Lab World, has been deaf since birth. She can't bark, for she has never heard what a bark sounds like. She's never heard her five puppies nor the voice of her mistress, 16-year-old Sandi Foerster of Ann Arbor, Mich.

Pudgie is being subjected to studies at Kresge Hearing Research Institute at the University of Michigan in the hope that doctors may acquire new knowledge that may have a direct bearing on the care of the human hard-of-hearing.

GUINEA PIGS are extremely polite when it comes to coughing, a medical researcher has found.

The discovery was made when the researcher blew smoke in the direction of rabbits, rats, hamsters, mice, domestic fowl, pigeons and guinea pigs. Object: to study the cough reflex.

Only the guinea pig showed a cough reflex resembling that of a human when exposed to "an irritating vapor," says Dr. P. R. Peacock of the Cancer Research Department of Glasgow's Royal Beatson Memorial Hospital.

In addition, the guinea pig put its forepaw up to its mouth "in genteel fashion," Dr. Peacock reports in British Medical Journal.

Seagoing 'Weatheman'

Loaded with weather detection, transmission equipment, this raft is a NOMAD, nuclear-powered unit at sea.

By Walter Finch

EVERYONE, the old shoe goes, talks about the weather, but no one does anything about it. No one, that is, but the U.S. Navy.

The Navy and Martin Co. of El Segundo have developed a nuclear-powered weather sentinel system which promises to protect coastal areas such as Southern California from sneak storms.

The new system is called NOMAD for Navy Automatic Weather Station.

The Navy has seven conventionally-powered Nomad stations and one nuclear model now in operation off the East and Gulf coasts, priority areas because of yearly hurricane assaults.

EXPERTS believe Nomads could be put on station off the coast of Baja Lower California and Southern California, a blind spot in the Southland weather detection system through which unexpected storms frequently race into this area.

Whether nuclear or battery powered, Nomad is mounted on a 200-square-foot raft or barge and is equipped with instrumentation to measure air temperature, barometric pressure, wind speed and direction and water temperature. These measurements are taken every three hours under ordinary conditions, but a storm sensor triggers hourly transmissions of this data during severe weather conditions.

The battery-powered Nomads, stationed up to 350 miles at sea, must be serviced and recharged every six months. The nuclear station can operate for 10 years on a single fuel load.

THE STATIONS transmit their data for about 2½ minutes every three hours and a constant appraisal of this information by experts can easily detect storms abrewing hours or even days before the bad weather breaks.

The stations and generators are built to sustain tremendous shocks, including ramming by a 20,000-ton vessel, and continue to operate.

Sentiment in a Basket

By Anna M. Cowles

CLEVER WAY to say "I love you" is with a May basket.

Here is a quick and easy way to make a pretty basket.

Using your favorite colors, pin two sheets of tissue paper together and use as one sheet until the basket is finished.

Outline a large circle on the sheet with a pencil. A pan lid, 10 to 12 inches in diameter, makes the right size. Cut on the pencil line and lift out the round center piece.

Using a smaller lid, outline a smaller circle two inches inside the edge of the center piece. Sew around the outline with needle and thread.

PULL UP the thread ends carefully and gather the tissue paper, leaving a five-inch opening at the top. Tie the thread and cut off the ends.

To make the handle, use a strip of each colored paper three inches wide. Make one strip six inches longer than the other.

Fold the width of each strip in half, press and fold again, and flatten for a strong handle.

Pin an end of each strip together at an angle. Wrap and press the longer strip around the other. The result is a narrow, flat, angle-stripped handle.

SPACE the gathers evenly around the top of the basket before sewing on the handle at the thread line. Leave an inch of handle below the sewing.

Separate the tissues above the gathers to make a double ruffle.

Fill the basket with jelly beans, candy hearts, or wrapped candies. Arrange spring flowers over the sweets, tuck in a name or a love note, and the basket is ready to give to a friend or hang on a door knob as a surprise for someone within.

BOOK REVIEWS

The Lingerer in the Guest Room

By Vera Williams

Southland Magazine Book Editor

WANT to know how to plot a short, compact novel? Want to know how to create characters that live in a few deft strokes?

Sit at the feet of Edwin O'Connor, who can do both as well as any writer alive.

The Pulitzer prize-winning author of "The Edge of Sadness" proves his skill again in "I WAS DANCING" (Atlantic-Little, Brown, $4.75), a novel about an old dancer that catches you by the throat.

Waltzing Daniel Considine, 78, has done his act, a waltzing burlesque of vaudeville, over the world for 50 years. But the shadows grow long for Danny. He thinks of his lawyer son, Tom, 44, whom he had not seen for 20 years when he came home briefly when Tom's mother died.

He wants to end his days in Tom's home. One autumn midnight Danny appears. He stays . . . and stays . . . and stays. He takes over the home and the telephone. He fills the house with his oddball friends, notably Billy Ryan, a a woman-hating priest, and Al Gottlieb, a lugubrious traveler who for years had been one of Dan's sychophantic fans.

At the end of a year, Tom and his wife break the news to Danny that in one month he must go to a rest home called Happy Valley, where Dan's crabbed and whining sister Delia already is ensconced.

The deadline approaches, and Dan plots ways and means to cling to his son's guest room. The climax is a smasher.

The novel has humor, it has compassion, it presents anew the old problems of the old and the young in a family. And it is a work of art. Be sure to read it.

THE PECULIARLY comic relationship of the Anglo-Irish landowners with their native Catholic servants and tenants in the Irish Republic provides the situation on which Honor Tracy, Anglo-Irish herself, has fashioned a rollicking yarn.

Michael Duff, last of a line of landed but impoverished Duffs, struggles along in dilapidated Georgetown, family estate, with the intention of marrying Dulcie Browning, daughter of a neighboring Anglo squire, in order to reduce his debts and chuck the whole boggy mess for life in England.

"THE FIRST DAY OF FRIDAY" (Random House, $495) complicates Duff's endeavor with a servant problem—Atracta Moin Smith, a faithful imbecilic incompetent, the mother of incredible howling triplets who is as meticulous about her Catholic obligations — on her master's time, of course — as she is slovenly in her household chores.

Ignoring 19 dismissals, she brings a lawsuit when Duff fires her for the 20th time, after his demented mother dies of a heart attack while laughing hysterically at Atracta. The lawsuit contends Duff cursed and hurled things at Atracta only as a form of woo. The trial, fortunately for Duff, is prevented by the intervention of Father Behan, a saintly "tall crazy man in shabby black skirts and a most absurd little bonnet on his head."

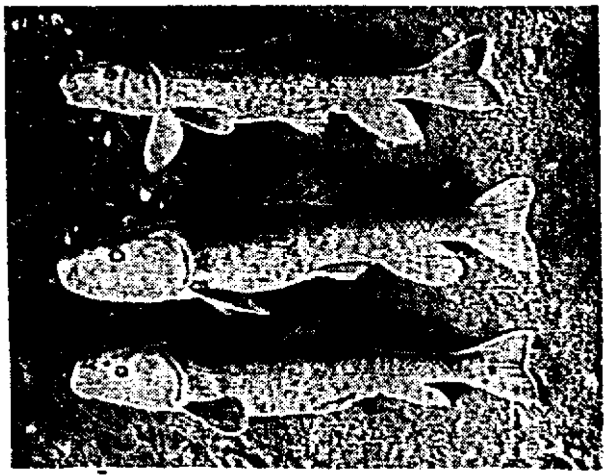
Pleistocene Age Hangover



Survivor of the Pleistocene era is the Cui-Ui, fish that is a denizen of deeps of Pyramid Lake, Nevada.

. By Tamara Andreeva

ABOUT 100,000 years ago, most of northern Nevada was under water. In the present location of Reno, and of the beautiful Pyramid Lake 30 miles distant was an endless expanse of the ancient Lahontan Sea. Its banks covered with weird black tufa formation, it presented a sight similar in grimness to a lunar landscape.

Millenniums ticked by. Lahontan Sea began to break up into a series of lakes with islets and sandbars separating them. While cataclysmic changes ate away at the banks, the hot sun did the work of evaporation.

Another 50,000 years went by, and the Lahontan Sea was no more. In its stead was a chain of large lakes of which the present Pyramid was one.

AS THE GEOLOGICAL changes went on apace, there were changes, too, in the life cycle of various animals which inhabited the area. Most of them could not withstand the change, and became extinct. The mastodon, the primeval camel and many other species were snuffed out. But life went on, undisturbed, at great depths. As Pyramid was separated from the rest of the lakes, its life was landlocked, too, forever to remain in this one spot.

And so today, Pyramid Lake boasts Nevada's only living antiquity—a fish that is a hangover of the Pleistocene era. It is about a 20-pound, 18-inch sucker fish known as the Cui-Ui.

The Indians, having found it palatable, and easy to catch have been fishing for it for years. And today, Lake Pyramid being on the Indian (Paiute) reservation, anyone wishing to catch a Cui-Ui must get the permit at the Reservation.

TO A NOVICE it may be well to know that catching a Cui Ui on conventional lures is out of the question. This deep sea fish does not go for any of them. The only way man has been able to get close to it, is during the spawning season some time in early April. At that time the fish moves in large schools toward the shallows to spawn, and is indifferent to intrusion of men. Indians gaff or spear it during this yearly migration. The prize then is either a brownish female or a bluish male with a black stripe on the back. They are said to have the taste of a mackerel.

As a species the Cui-Ui is doomed. Its numbers diminish not only through fishing out, but through its own stubborn adherence to a migration pattern which frequently proves fatal to thousands of its young. As the fish move toward the shallows, these are frequently cut off by sudden sand bars. The fish perish there, unable to get to deeper water.

The Cui-Ui is less a fish than it is a reptile. It does not act as ordinary fish do and its scales are those of a snake.

Easily grown and good for bouquets and arrangements, Pink Julep is a new version of bachelor's-button.

Old Favorite Dons New Dress

By Joe Littlefield

BACHELOR'S buttons, blue flowers, were very popular years ago, but — like fashion in clothes and cars, these flowers, too, went out of style. Recently a new introduction of these still-remembered flowers have appeared in the horticultural trade. They are Pink Julep bachelor's-buttons, introduced by Northrup King. The Pink Julep combination without the traditional blue colors is a unique mixture of red, white, pink, and variegated flowers. They are dainty and attractive for color in the garden and may be made up in bouquets or flower arrangements by themselves.

Seeds may easily be sown in the sunny garden right where you want them to grow and bloom for you. Work up the soil as you would for a lawn seed bed. Mix the Pink Julep bachelor's-button seeds in a bucket, the seeds mixed with manure, then the manure-seed mixture hand scattered where you want the plants to grow. The manure keeps the seeds separated so you don't scatter them too thick in some spots, and too thin in other areas. In other words you avoid spotty planting. After seed sowing, rake over lightly, moisten down without puddling. Keep seed area moist. When seedlings develop, scatter snail or slug bait to protect the young plants. When couple of true leaves appear you may dig out the ones that are too close together and replant in the thin spots.

If you like blue bachelor's-buttons, sow them too!

"Rex Begonias" will be the subject of Tony Radaro in a talk before the North Long Beach Branch, American Begonia Society, Tuesday evening in the Social Room, Community Savings & Loan Assn., 3901 N. Atlantic Ave. A potluck supper will precede the meeting. New additions to the by-laws will be balloted.

"The World of Roses" will be the theme of a rose show Saturday and Sunday in John Anson Ford Regional County Park, 7840 Park Lane (formerly Scout Ave.), Bell Gardens. Show hours will be 2 to 8 p.m. Saturday and from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Sunday and the public is invited free of charge.

Find That Bag

By Fred Taylor Kraft

Travel Editor

AN ELECTRONIC baggage tracing system will be inaugurated May 1 by domestic airlines.

To be known as ARCH (Airline Baggage Recovering Clearing House), the system is designed to speed the recovery of misdirected bags which cannot be located by the routine tracing efforts of the airline within 24 hours after the loss is reported.

"Each year," according to Jack M. Slichter, Air Transport Association vice president-traffic, "U. S. airlines handle some 100 million pieces of luggage and, inevitably, a few of these articles are misdirected. At present, about 90 per cent of all misdirected bags are located within 24 hours. The new system is designed to expedite the locating of the remaining 10 per cent, the ones that cause the greatest inconvenience to passengers.

"The new electronic tracing system is designed to find these articles faster and thus minimize passenger inconvenience. ARCH will cut three days or more from the time now required to trace a piece of luggage."

The new system will take advantage of the latest electronic sorting and communications equipment and will be operated for the airlines by Aeronautical Radio, Inc. Since substantially all of the major airlines will be tied into a nationwide teletype hookup, ARCH will allow for rapid exchange of information about lost luggage even when more than one airline is involved in a passenger's trip.

The operation is basically a matching-up process using punch cards and electric sorters. Each airline will transmit daily a list of bags on hand to the clearing house. Each airline will also transmit a list of missing bags. The use of a coding system will allow for an accurate description of the color, type, and even the contents of each bag. The two lists will be matched, the appropriate offices notified by teletype and the bag expedited to its owner.

THIS IS A FINE TIME to go motoring on weekends. Recent rains have given the Southland countryside new color. On top of that, there are many events and things well worth seeing within easy driving distance of Long Beach. For example:

If you like orchids, three events are upcoming: the giant display of cymbidiums which draws crowds from everywhere to Stewart's Nursery (8606 E. Las Tunas Dr., San Gabriel)—April 17 (10 a.m. to 9 p.m.). April 18 (10 a.m. to 6 p.m.), and April 19 (11 a.m.-5 p.m.). San Diego Orchid Show, Balboa Park, April 3-5; and the International Cymbidium Orchid Show, Santa Barbara's Earl Warren Park, April 23-26.

The Ramona Outdoor Play opens its 37th season next Saturday in Hemet, continues April 19, April 25-26, and May 2-3.

Hi Vista, located near wildflower sanctuaries 20 miles east of Lancaster, holds its 32nd annual Spring Wildflower Festival April 25-26, with more than 150 varieties on display.

ONE OF HAWAII'S most brilliant annual spectacles is Kamehameha Day on June 11.

The big event of the celebration is, of course, an hour-long parade in the morning from the Waikiki Beach area to the civic center in downtown Honolulu. Stately Polynesian women will be attired in their finest black holokus, black hats and treasured heirloom jewelry or candlenut leis. Male members of the Order of Kamehameha will wear red and yellow felt capes. Floats—and even the horses—will be decorated with the most brilliant flowers grown on the Islands.

Things actually begin to swing the night before with the Holoku Ball at the Royal Hawaiian Hotel.

All though the celebration is the time to eat Hawaiian food. There will be poi luncheons or luaus around town—with hulas accompanying the feasting.

ALL ANCHORAGE HOTELS are in operation despite the recent quake, according to Robert Giersdorf, vice president of Alaska Airlines, Inc., who has just returned from an inspection of tourist facilities in the stricken area. Giersdorf said the well-known Westward Inn and Travelers' Inn facilities suffered no damage to their structures and that the 420-room Anchorage Westward Hotel has reopened a portion of the building with restoration of lights and heating, and that the entire hotel will be in operation soon. A new Travelodge Hotel near downtown Anchorage will open on schedule this week.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

"Could you suggest some place unusual and interesting for two ladies (alone) to dine in London?"

IN THE VERY respectable Gore Hotel there is the Elizabethan Room, done in the style of the days of Sir Walter Raleigh. Rushes on the floor. A lute player in the long green stockings. Serving wenches with dresses cut down to way down yonder.

Along with this goes food like peacock, salmagundi, Good King William (which turns out to be spinach). Mead and mulled wine and clay pipes for all. I can't bear the food. But it certainly has atmosphere.

If you want to go down by way of Ireland, you can do something of the same in the historic halls of Bunratty Castle. (The O'Briens had their enemies pulled apart by wild horses in the courtyard.) This has even more color. Your airline has to route you through Shannon if you ask. And the total cost of dinner and night's lodging is only $15.

"Can you tell me where good road maps of Europe can be obtained? The free variety would be the nicest if that's possible."

ONCE IN A WHILE I've run into free ESSO maps in those stations. But Europeans don't throw around free maps the way our people do. Also you don't find the super service stations—your gas often comes from a pump on the main street in front of a small garage.

The American Automobile Association has excellent free maps for members. And they have offices in the major cities. The Michelin tire people make fine maps. For sale (not expensive) in all European book stores.

"We will be spending 10 days in Jamaica in April. How would you advise it spent—at one hotel, or break it up at Montego Bay and Ochos Rios and Kingston?"

WITH ONLY 10 days, I'd say one place. If you have a car, Ochos Rios—the former Arawak Hotel that has been taken over by Hilton management. If not, Montego Bay. I didn't think Kingston was too interesting. You get the same duty-free shopping at Montego Bay. And the beaches are better.

"Can you suggest a shop where I can buy a watch in Copenhagen? We will only be in Switzerland on a weekend."

THE AIRPORT at Copenhagen has a duty-free shop with a fair selection of Swiss watches. But you'll find Swiss watches at the Swiss airports, too. I think they'll be open on weekends.

"Where can I buy an electrical converter for European current and outlets?"

There is no standard converter for all things. You can buy electric razors and irons that convert by flipping a switch on them. You can also buy converter plugs — the two-prong type that fit continental outlets. But I've never found the three-prong British kind.

I think these things are a nuisance. I steam my clothes out in hotel bathrooms. Or send them out for pressing if I have to. And I carry a Gillette razor and British Wilkinson blades.

"My husband and I have been doing a study (for a master's degree) on witchcraft and wonder if there is some place we could go to see actual practice . . ."

THE MEXICANS say the town of Dolores de Hildago (near Guanajuato) is bruja country. Also in the back country around Vera Cruz—where they are called hechizeros. I tried to find some witches myself. But all I got was a lady fortune teller with cards. (She said I would be rich and to beware of water.)

In England, I saw a story on a society of witches. The British Tourist Association in New York City ought to be able to dig this up. In fact, I

SANTA BARBARA WEEKEND

Orchids on Parade

ORCHIDS those regal, exotic blossoms bearing the most subtle of hues and hinting origins in far-away tropical lands, will fill the exhibit hall of Santa Barbara's Earl Warren Showgrounds with magic April 23 through 26.

These are the dates for the giant 19th annual Santa Barbara International Orchid Show and should fit into many weekend gadders' plans.

Every year lovers of flowers in general and orchids in particular will flock from all parts of Southern and Central California to the showgrounds at Hwy. 101 and Las Positas Rd. to view these rare and enchanting displays of many species of orchids.

Santa Barbara area, particularly nearby Goleta Valley, to the west, has become a major area for growing orchids. Other growers are in Montecito and Carpinteria Valley east of Santa Barbara.

THE LARGEST orchid farm in the world is located at Rancho Dos Pueblos, at Ellwood, some 17 miles west of Santa Barbara, it is pointed out. Oil magnate Samuel B. Mosher started a 4,500-acre flower farm at Dos Pueblos in 1946. He hired experts who produced exquisite new species, and set up a completely equipped modern scientific laboratory for the culture and breeding of orchids.

Thirteen years ago, Dos Pueblos orchid farm manager Kermit Hernlund turned all his green-thumbed talents to the raising and development of cymbidium orchids. Larger, higher quality blooms resulted from the years-long effort.

Now Dos Pueblos — which attracts thousands of tourists who wish to see acres of blooms each spring — turns out the smaller, delicately hued cymbidiums by the thousands and joins with other Santa Barbara growers in operating the Santa Barbara Orchid Exchange. The exchange daily takes orders from flower markets throughout the country and ships out the blooms in water-filled, cushined tubes.

The show will have its premiere April 23 at 7 p.m. Other show hours are April 24 and 25, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. The show closes on Sunday, April 26, when show hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

SONNY HENSON
No Strings Attached

THEY'RE NOT pea pickers. They're pea pluckers. And there's a world of difference between the two.

Pea pluckers are friendly guests and employes who like to gather in the kitchen at the tropical Leilani Restaurant, 5236 E. Second St., and help chef Ray Lee pluck the strings from the delicate Chinese snow peas which are a feature of the restaurant's Cantonese cuisine. Each day Lee removes the strings from hundreds of these tiny tender peas, imported from Mexico. The monotonous work is made lighter by the assistance of Lee's friends who enjoy chatting with him while they de-string.

One of the chief assistant pea pluckers is Sonny Henson, man Friday to owner Don May. Sonny, a pleasant, warm-hearted man, has been at the Leilani for 24 years, performing as waiter, maitre d' on occasion and doing numerous other chores. Children whom Sonny waited on many years ago have grown up, married and now bring their own children in to meet him and enjoy his smiling personality.

Those wonderful little green peas are just one of the features of the Leilani's famous Celestial Dinner ($7.50 for two persons), an amazing, lavish spread of exotic Cantonese dishes. They're also included with the teriyaki steak ($3.50), a superbly marinated beef masterpiece served with soup, salad, rice, tea or coffee. Other marvelous treats are the a la carte lobster Cantonese ($2.75) and chicken almond ($1.90). Many couples order a plate of each and share them. Also outstanding are the big American dinners, priced from $1.95, for the fine northern halibut, to $3.95 for the choice Kansas City sirloin and $4.25 for the New York cut steak. All include soup, salad, beverage, dessert.

TELEVISION LOG OF THE EVENING NEWS AND THE INDEPENDENT-PRESS-TELEGRAM

The Rand Quicker Than Eye

(See Page 9)

'The Lieutenant' and His Company

GARY LOCKWOOD, title star of NBC-TV's "The Lieutenant," gets a personal inspection from Barbara Lyon. He passed with flying colors. Situation well in hand.

Bert's Eye View

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

THE MUD ON HIS khaki uniform looked sticky and the spot of makeup blood on his forehead bandage appeared fresh.

Gary Lockwood had come straight from the jungles of Viet Nam—the TV version of them—into the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer commissary.

As he sat down at the immaculate table, you expected the Marine would haul a can of C-rations from his pocket and hack it open with a penknife.

Instead, the title hero of "The Lieutenant" carefully spread his napkin over his lap, then ordered a cottage-cheese salad with a ground-round patty, medium-rare.

Lockwood, himself, is a medium-rare sort of guy.

He brings with him an intensity of craft, a brooding spark of creativity, a turbulence that, like a dam, is capped but ready to explode if the wall crumbles.

He has magnetism and that intangible, undefinable something—perhaps it's caring intensely—that is the mark of greatness in an actor.

IT IS A MARK of greatness that won't be back for a second season in the form of "The Lieutenant."

The series has not been renewed for the fall season.

That fact doesn't make a great deal of difference to bachelor Lockwood.

"Anyone of 100 actors could have done what I'm doing," he said. "The series, for me, involved limited demands, not very pressing problems.

"Oh, there were, on a few occasions, a couple of stories that were good. And people said, 'Gee, maybe that guy can act.'"

That's what he wants to do—act.

He hopes, with the wind-up of the series, to take only those parts that will help his image "as an actor with my particular personality."

His particular personality, as he sees it, is that of a fairly rugged young man, "long, lithe and confused."

THE PARTICULAR personality of the former football player and stunt man includes a financial astuteness.

"I'm financially capable now," he said. "I don't have to take roles I don't want just to be able to exist."

It's a financial capability that includes:

A major interest in an Imperial Valley produce brokerage.

An interest in an investment corporation.

A quarter ownership of a large ranch.

An interest, as promotion manager, for a new operation, "Tele-Cake"—wire her a cake on her birthday.

"In other words," he said, "I no longer have to take supporting roles to Elvis Presley and stand around admiringly while he beats up beach bums."

HE'S NOT A "STAND-AROUND" person, even while waiting for the role he wants.

There's a movie script he's written that he can spend some time polishing up.

There's his 30-foot cabin-cruiser and fishing. There's his painting and his sports car.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

"I've got a bougainvillea in my garden," he said. "One of my projects of the year is to make it grow."

One of Lockwood's perpetual projects is to make himself grow.

"An actor learns until he dies," he said. "It's not just feeling emotion—acting can be technical.

"You feel happy, like Rod Steiger said, when you think you're important enough to argue about a scene. That's right.

"But it still is the play that is the thing.

"You may create on the set, but it is the story that is all-important."

* * * *

LOCKWOOD'S NOT ABOUT to break out the crying towels for the demise of "The Lieutenant."

It's another "near miss" of which television has so many.

In his opinion, television is financially ruled. There's no way to blast a show off the air if it's No. 1 rated.

He's not particularly arguing with the system. That's the way it is and so be it.

But his own system now is to wait for the role he wants.

"It will come," he said. "I've always felt it, but I just don't know where or when."

When it does come and establishes his personality, his business—show business—will recognize him. There will be more of his kind of roles.

It's more than a matter of self-confidence. It's financial astuteness.

"Look at it this way," he said. "The more success my business gets out of me, the more I get out of it."

In the meantime, while Lockwood is waiting for his role, wire her a cake for her birthday.

So he can eat bread.

SPECIAL

1964—The fourth and final chapter in the distinguished "Saga of Western Man," which fell under the combined talents of the Clampetts and Marineland's sea "critters" on its first run, is repeated in color at 12 noon, ch. 7. Program begins with the voice of JFK, and contrasts affluence and poverty, productivity and obsolescence, eager youth and useless aged, power that can save or destroy.

CHILDREN'S THEATRE—Fourth and last of the full-hour specials, at 6 p.m., in color, ch. 4, is a repeat of the dramatization of "Robin Hood," written and staged especially for young viewers in primary grades of grammar school. Dan Ferrone plays the title role in a version whose format gives youthful viewers opportunity to participate.

ED SULLIVAN—The one-show United Nations this time devotes its entire hour to the world-famed Moscow State Circus, taped last fall during its visit as part of a U.S.-USSR cultural exchange. The American touring version (the London company, totally different, appeared last fall) features renowned clown Oleg Popov throughout the program at 8 p.m., ch. 2. Also featured are performing bears, high-wire walkers, Cossack riders, gymnasts, dogs, acrobatic strongmen and teeterboard acrobats.

THE ESTABLISHMENT—A repeat of last Monday's satirical revue is offered at 9 p.m., ch 11. Written by Peter Cook, hour features Peter Bellwood, Francis Bethencourt, Alexandra Berlin, Roddy Maude-Roxby, Carole Simpson and the Marian McPartland Trio.

CARNY—Sally Rand, who has been fan-dancing ever since she won acclaim at the 1933 Chicago World's Fair, is hostess and narrator for an hour-long look at the flavor, color and excitement that keeps 550 different carnivals in business around the country, playing to more people than professional baseball, basketball and football combined. Chet Hagan is writer-producer-director for the 10 p.m., ch. 4, color special, covering the midway exhibitions, the concessions and the amusement rides—showing the carnies on the lot, on the road and off-season, at home.

Pan and Fan Mail

Last Sunday you had a story about Donald O'Connor and the Long Beach earthquake.

You said his mother took him to lunch when the earthquake hit.

His mother must have been an odd character taking her little boy to lunch at 6 p.m. because that's about the time the quake hit.

Mrs. G. Breeste,
Bellflower

I know some people in show business who eat breakfast at 6 p. m. However, in fairness to Donald's mother, I checked my notes and found that she had taken him to dinner, not lunch. It's my goof, not her's.

* * * *

I was shocked and outraged by what was billed satirical entertainment, "The Establishment," on channel 11 last Monday.

Satire is, by definition, "used to expose or discredit vice or folly."

Considerable time, blatantly and by innuendos, was given to "exposing and discrediting" religion. Not one particular religion, but an impartial treatment of all religions.

For whom, then, was this hour-long program of derisive songs and lewd antics geared? For athesists? Agnostics?

No, they, too, must have felt their sensibilities assaulted.

Americans have been accused of losing their ability to become angry. Viewers will have an opportunity to check themselves on this score. This same show of British talent will be re-broadcast on the next Lord's Day, Sunday, April 12 (3 p.m. today, channel 11).

Mrs. Loretta Anderson,
Long Beach

You make your point, Mrs. Anderson. But I wonder if, like banning books in Boston, we're actually promoting increased viewing of this program.

Is it possible for you to find out the address for the "Let's Make a Deal" show?

S. Charlesworth, Long Beach

It's possible and it's a deal. The address is "Let's Make a Deal," care of NBC-TV, 3000 W. Alameda, Burbank, Calif. Sorry, I've forgotten the zip number.

OSCAR AWARDS — "Oscar," a 36-year-old, 7-lb., 13½-in. figure, worth about $60 with his tin and copper composition brilliantly gold-plated, takes the spotlight at the Santa Monica Civic Auditorium at 7 p.m., ch. 7, as 26 or more celebrities thank all those who made possible their taking him home. Oscar-winner (1955) Jack Lemmon, who proved his ad-lib talent in handling tongue-twisting Italian names as a 1962 presenter, will emcee, possibly brushing up on British names this year. James Darren, Harve Presnell, Katyna Ranieri, Debbie Reynolds and Andy Williams sing the 5 nominated songs, with Sammy Davis Jr. in a specialty number. Rock Hudson plays host in the lobby, and the top acting awards are presented by last year's winners, Gregory Peck, Anne Bancroft, Ed Begley and Patty Duke. Fan Dancer Hosts Special on Carnivals

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Sally Rand is coming to television, but she's not bringing her famous fans with her.

Sally did more for plumes during the 30s and 40 than a barnful of peacocks and, surprisingly, is still fluttering her exotic feather in a night club act. Surprising because Sally will soon be 60 years old.

NBC-TV has signed the blonde fan dancer to play hostess for a special hour-long show on barnstorming carnivals at 10 p.m. today, channel 4, in color.

• • • •

THOUGH she won't throw a competitive scare into Tuesday Weld, Sally was a hit recently at the Colony Club in nearby Gardena where she performed her fan dance four times nightly to a packed house.

Her act has changed very little from the days when she was arrested for wearing nothing but the fans.

Asked if she still dances in the nude, Miss Rand demurely replied. "You'll have to see the act. The Rand is still quicker than the eye."

Sally lives in Glendora with her mother, a brother, and her 15-year-old son, Sean. She is unmarried now, although she was at one time Mrs. Turk Greenough, Mrs. Harry Finklestein and Mrs. Fred Lall. Her real name is Helen Gould Beck.

• • • •

"NOTHING changes," she said. "Least of all my act. It has always been choreographed to Chopin and Debussy. And I still use ostrich feathers."

Sally and her fans gained fame at the Chicago World's Fair in 1933 and added lustre at the San Francisco Exposition in 1938-39.

Sally continues to import her fans from Africa. She says they cost $500 a pair, three times as much as she spent for them in the old days. Due to her exertions on stage, they wear out after only 100 performances.

"All my imitators have faded away," Sally said happily.

"Most girls are not equipped to handle fans because they don't have the chest and arm muscle development. The fans weigh seven pounds each.

"Well, when you think of all the air pressure against them when you're waving them in the breeze, you can really feel their weight."

Sally says she has always been confused with strip teasers, a notion she abhors. "They make a mockery of sex," she explained. "My dancing is nothing like that at all."

Televiewers will never have a chance to find out. When the "Carny" special hits the air, Sally will be fully dressed and the only fans in the studio will be the electric variety.

THE NAME is Sally Rand poetically attuned to fan, an occupational trademark for much of her 60 years. The plumes won't bloom, however, when Sally (right) dresses up for her hostess duties at 10 p. m. today (Sunday) for a carnival special in COLOR on channel 4.

A Small Man with a Giant-Size Sense of Decency

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Ernie Stern once wired the boss of a hotel chain: "Call me collect at your hotel." When the executive called, Ernie told him there were two dirty blankets on his bed and it was a heck of a way to run a place.

Another time, Ernie bought a new car and when one of the doors squeaked, he pointed it out to the dealer. The dealer just laughed. Ernie immediately wired the president of the company in Detroit. The next day the dealer was in Ernie's office, hat in hand, making amends.

The chances are you never heard of Ernie, for anonymity usually accompanies those in his line of work. Ernie was the publicity chief here for CBS-TV. When he died of a heart attack last week at the age of 48 there was an overflow-turnout at the chapel where services for him were held.

• • • •

THERE WERE good reasons for that turnout. I think you might be interested in some of them and in Ernie. He was a small man physically, slight of build, quiet by nature, intelligent and tasteful, with a giant-sized sense of competence and decency. But above all he had a sense of indignation against "The System" and wrongs that were docilely accepted, and when this feeling was aroused he revealed a personal flamboyance far more legitimate than that of most of the performers he had to promote.

Once, at CBS-TV's main office and studio building here, a top star didn't like a picture of himself that was displayed on one of the hallway walls. He tore it down. Ernie heard about it, marched down to the studio where the star was visiting a friend and ordered him out of the building.

• • • •

ERNIE ALSO had a sense of conscience toward television that many producers would do well to emulate. He was personally proud of such shows as "The Defenders" and "CBS Reports," and he would tell you which ones he wasn't proud of too. We watched Princess Grace's CBS tour of Monaco together and shook our heads simultaneously. If he didn't agree with you, he would tell you that too, loud and clear, newspaper outlet or not.

As an editor, he once noticed that the pictures being sent out by a major film studio were of bad quality. He sent this wire to the studio head: "I'm tired of getting complaints about you—take better pictures."

• • • •

ERNIE came out of long duty in World War II as a tech sergeant, and, as in his attitude toward television, he was conscientious as a citizen too. As a Boy Scout leader, he resigned with a letter to the head office complaining about how things were being run. The Scouts sent a representative from New York to Los Angeles to take him to lunch and work things out.

He hated meetings though he worked in a business that may be described as a series of meetings occasionally interrupted by creativity. A sign on his wall said: "No creative idea ever came from a meeting—creating ideas is a lonely thing."

Ernie was a good man.

Money worries have you talking to yourself?

CERTIFIED
PHONE-A-LOAN
$500 TO $5000 CASH OR MORE
NO PAYMENTS FOR SIX MONTHS
One confidential phone call to a Certified Loan Counselor can arrange for the money you need. Certified's Phone A Loan Service provides the cash to pay off all of your monthly bills now... puts off payments of any kind for six months... then gives you as long as five years to repay. Certified gives you the chance to declare a debt holiday and have the extra money for those things you've wanted and needed but couldn't afford. When you do make a payment, it probably will be less than half of all your present monthly installments put together. As a property owner you are eligible for a Certified cash loan. You may now have a 1st or 2nd mortgage... you may now be behind in monthly payments... even if you have been turned down recently... it will still pay you to talk to a Certified Loan Counselor.

Video Specials with 'King'

ABC is now talking with Nat "King" Cole about doing a series of specials next season. There are other possibilities for more exposure for the great pop singer. Nat is happy about this, but he wants them to understand one thing:

"I want to be hired to do a show not because I am a Negro but because there is an audience which wants to see me. If I don't cut it, if the ratings are low—drop me.

"The networks are in television to make money. It's a business. I don't expect them to put me on to please their consciences, but to please their business senses."

THIS voice of reason is raised by an intelligent man who knows what discrimination is, but has learned to live with it, if not to accept it.

"The civil rights fight," he says, "hasn't done much for me, professionally. But it's done a lot emotionally. Sometimes too much.

"And times I get angry at people on both sides. I think some people on both sides are using this to exploit things.

BOB THORNDIKE

Cherry Ave. Food & Liquor Mart

Folks, here's the inaugural number in a series of informal chats with you. We're using it to tell you about what we feel is the friendliest food shopping place in the Long Beach area . . . we believe those of you who have already discovered it and shop here in our modern, cheery store will agree.

We hope to combine a bit of humor now and then with some helpful suggestions on how to enjoy better meals at lower cost (by shopping here, natch!) For one thing, you can shop and save here MORE days than just about anywhere else. Cherry Food & Liquor Mart is one of the few complete one-stop food markets open 365 days a year, from 8 a.m. till 10 p.m. EVERY DAY.

In our spic 'n' span meat department, where the hours are 9 a.m. till 7 p.m. (9:30 to 5 Sundays), we're probably most well-known for our home-made pork sausage. It's the real old-fashioned "country style" sausage, with just the right amount of the right spices added to pure fresh lean corn-fed pork for the finest breakfast treat your mouth ever watered over. And don't forget our sandwich shop in our parking lot, for a delicious inexpensive snack or meal anytime. We'll be talking to you again soon!

Hair Expert Speaks

"I find that the chief cause of BALDNESS today is simply neglect! Failure on the part of a balding person to see a specialist before it is too late!"

So says S. I. Turoff, California's leading hair expert. This specialist has administered over one million treatments in 10 busy Turoff clinics throughout California. For many years, hair-worried Californians have brought their problems to him to solve. The satisfaction of thousands of clients reflects in the tremendous growth of the Turoff organization.

And Turoff further states, "It is surprising the number of old-fashioned ideas people still cling to, regarding their hair. For instance, many believe that baldness is inherited. If this were true, why should a person have hair for — say 30 years — before he started to lose it? We may inherit a tendency to baldness, not baldness itself. Some people believe it is 'natural' to get bald with age. This, too, is wrong. Science has proven that hair grows fastest between 35 and 60 years of age. However, the most foolish belief of all regarding baldness is that nothing can be done. Turoff records with thousands of clients prove that we can help 95 per cent of those we examine. Hair can be thickened where the roots are still alive, If a person is slick bald, we do not accept him for treatment."

What to Expect

Turoff continued, "If you are accepted for Turoff treatment, the causes of your unhealthy scalp will be removed, we will save and thicken your hair. The free examination will reveal just how much thicker you can expect it to be. Your hair will improve wonderfully and you will see it do so quickly. Personality Parade

Want the facts? Want to spike rumors? Want to learn the truth about prominent personalities? Write Walter Scott, PARADE, 733 Third Ave., New York 17, N.Y. Your full name will be used unless otherwise requested. Volume of mail received makes personal replies impossible.

Q. Judy Garland's husband claims Judy has tried to commit suicide at least 20 times during her life. Obviously such a girl does not really want to take her life. What is it that the poor soul really wants?—H.V., Racine, Wis.

A. Judy wants a man to love her truly for herself, not for her earning capacity or former fame. "All I'd like," she has said, "is a happy, married life."

Q. The famous line by the late President Kennedy: "Ask not what your country can do for you but what you can do for your country"—wasn't that line written by speechwriter Ted Sorensen?—David Small, Baltimore, Md.

A. No, it was written by Kennedy and first used by him in a campaign speech in Juneau, Alaska. Sorensen liked the line so much that he suggested the President include it in his inaugural address, and Kennedy did.

Q. Who said: "The two most beautiful words in the English language are, 'check enclosed'?" — Roy Brandy, Miami, Fla.

A. Writer Dorothy Parker.

Q. Is it true that Bob Hope, Bing Crosby and Cary Grant are all 60 or over?—Felicia Esar, San Antonio, Tex.

A. Each is 60.

Q. Joe Valachi, who told the Justice Department about the Cosa Nostra, the national crime syndicate—where is he? Is it true he has sold his life story to Life magazine?—Charles Steadman, Chicago, Ill.

A. Valachi is in the District of Columbia jail. He is writing his memoirs to pass the time. These memoirs are being carefully read by the Justice Department's criminal division. Valachi's story has not been sold at this time to any magazine or publisher.

Q. Among musicians, which girl singers are regarded as tops?—Tiny Taylor, Memphis, Tenn.

A. Ella Fitzgerald and Lena Horne are always listed among the best.

Q. Carol Burnett's child—boy or girl? — Dolores Vinocky, Johnson City, N.Y.

A. Girl.

Q. I understand that when German magazines now run cover pictures of Adolf Hitler they purposely blur the portraits. Is this so, and if so, why?—Willa Wagner, Hanover, N.H.

A. It is so. The objective is to make the cover shots unprintable for framing, so that portraits of Adolf Hitler are no longer hung throughout Germany.

Q. Does Prince Charles, heir to the British throne, play any musical instrument?—N. Knox, Chicago, Ill.

A. Charles plays the trumpet.

Q. Do the Beatles wear wigs?—Enid Brinkman, El Paso, Tex.

A. They do not.

Q. Is it true that Martin Luther King has refused L. B. Johnson's offer of a Johnson-King ticket in the coming Presidential election?—G. L. Brown, Ft. Worth, Tex.

A. No such offer was ever made Martin Luther King.

Q. Judge Joe B. Brown, who presided over the murder trial of Jack Ruby—I've been told that as a lawyer Brown never acquired or tried a single case. Exactly what is his legal background?—F. Paul, Atlantic City. N.J.

A. Judge Brown was born in Dallas on June 9, 1908. As a young man he worked as a railroad rate clerk. At age 25 he enrolled in night law courses at Jefferson University, 3 years later was graduated and ran for Justice of the Peace in the Oak Cliff section of Dallas. He was elected, thus never had the opportunity to acquire or argue a single case as a lawyer.

Q. Is the U.S. Chamber of Commerce still against trade with Communist nations?—Louis Marabini, New York, N.Y.

A. The Chamber under Edwin P. Neilan is abandoning that stand.

Q. I cannot believe that Hollywood intends to make a film of Edward Albee's play, Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? Say it isn't so.—Lidia Rossi, San Francisco, Calif.

A. It is so.

Q. Does Lance Reventlow, Barbara Hutton's only child, work for a living?—Ken Darby, Los Angeles, Calif.

A. He does not.

Q. Before he married Deborah Kerr, did Peter Viertel live with Bettina the model and Ava Gardner the actress?—F.T., Paris, France.

A. For a time he was most friendly with both.

Q. Was the Liston-Clay fight a fix? How come Liston's company made a re-match deal with Cassius one day before Cassius took the title? — Elley Rich, Las Vegas, Nev.

A. Liston owns 22 per cent of a company called Intercontinental Promotions, Inc. One day before the Liston-Clay fight, Intercontinental signed a deal with Clay (above) giving Intercontinental the right to promote Clay's first defense of the title for $50,000. Jack Nilon, Liston's manager, is also a large shareholder of Intercontinental. Bill Cherry, the company's lawyer, says: "We took a gamble. There was nothing illegal about it. We were just being smart businessmen. We made the agreement, which gives us a 365-day option, until February 25, 1965, just in case Clay should become champion—which he did." Liston has two of five votes on the board of directors at Intercontinental. The three other are controlled by Bob Nilon, Jack Nilon and Cherry himself.

THREE YEARS AFTER THE BAY OF PIGS, OF A KEY EVENT IN THAT DISASTER: THE

This week will mark the anniversary of the ill-fated disaster at the Bay of Pigs. It is exactly three years since Fidel Castro's regime threw back an exile-manned, U.S.-supported attempt to invade Cuba.

The story of that debacle has been repeatedly discussed since. It has been the subject of Congressional and executive investigations and of partisan political recrimination.

Yet one of the most important details of that Cuban defeat has not previously been revealed. It is an event that may have been the whole key to the Bay of Pigs tragedy, and its occurrence—or failure to occur—had a profound effect on the invasion itself and on subsequent history. And although it has not publicly been acknowledged, long and painstaking investigation by this reporter has documented this event.

Carried out on the highest levels of Cuba's revolutionary government, it was an attempt to assassinate Fidel Castro. And it came within a cat's whisker of success.

This plot, of course, was not the first against Castro's life, nor has it been the last. One of the records of which the bearded revolutionary leader is least proud is the number of times he has been the target of nearly successful assassination attempts.

Plotter of Castro assassination attempt, Sori Marin (in glasses and uniform) stands next to leader at parade.

Before detailing that most important plot, let's look at a few others. The most recent try came just before the celebrations in Havana last January commemorating the victory over Batista. U.S. security boats intercepted two speedboats crammed with anti-Castro conspirators and hundreds of petacas, plastic bombs to blast Castro from his reviewing stand.

The U.S. government, worried about the Caribbean aftermath of a successful assassination, is not happy about such attempts. But American nervousness has not been able to do too much about it. Some of the attempts have come so close to success that Castro has been left with the apprehensive wariness of a lone fox in a hunting preserve.

An early try at an ambush was engineered by the sinister Col. Johnny Abbes, formerly intelligence chief of the Dominican Republic. Abbes, working on orders of Dominican strongman Rafael Trujillo—himself the victim of assassination—hired a swashbuckling American adventurer, Alex Rorke, son-in-law of New York's famed restaurateur, Sherman Billingsley, to pilot a speedboat that landed eight men before dawn in eastern Cuba. The plan was to ambush Castro on his way to speak at a service at the Santiago cemetery.

Through a pouring rain, Trujillo's Tommy gun team spotted Castro's chief bodyguard, Capt. Alfredo Gamonal, in the second jeep of a caravan.

The killers assumed Castro was in the back seat, and their bullets chewed up Gamonal, the superintendent of cemeteries and the jeep driver. Castro, riding in the next-to-the-last jeep, was unhurt.

"He may have nine lives," Abbes told Rorke, who returned to Ciudad Trujillo complaining of Castro's charmed life. "But if so, I'll try a tenth time."

Abbes acquired an apartment in Havana overlooking the CMQ television studios, where Castro appeared frequently to deliver his nation-wide harangues. Another American adventurer, a one-time top competition sharpshooter, was retained by Trujillo on a down payment of $25,000 and the promise of a cool million if he managed to score a clean hit on his moving target.

The marksman said he could do it, but demanded a special weapon—a bench-adjusted telescopic carbine with a nondeflecting muzzle silencer.

SAVED BY TRUJILLO

"Dominican ordnance experts immediately went to work to produce the rifle," former Dominican State Security Minister General Arturo Espaillat recalls. "The weapon was completed and en route to Cuba, when Trujillo canceled the project . . . He was afraid of Washington's fury. I really think that Fidel would be dead today if the plot had not been called off."

Prior to that attempt, another American, Alan Robert Nye, a 31-year-old Chicagoan, was convicted in Havana for conspiring to kill Castro. Fee: $100,000. Although a Cuban court had signed, sealed and delivered the order for his execution, Nye was allowed to leave the country for the U.S.

There have been far too many of these attempts to detail here; although men like Alex Rorke, and Paul Hughes, a former American Navy jet pilot, have lost their lives because of them, Castro cannot rest easy.

Before embarking on an airplane trip, he usually inspects the plane from tip to tail. During the warm-up, he once spotted flames belching from the engine exhaust. Castro ordered the ignition cut and both pilots back into the cabin, where they explained for a half-hour that burning exhaust was normal and that it did not prove the plane booby-trapped.

During his visit to New York to attend the United Nations in 1960, Castro's food problems were magnified by his methods of selecting restaurants. A brace of bodyguards was ordered to go out and buy food from a restaurant—but never from the hotel kitchen or from the restaurant nearest the hotel. On each occasion, Castro would call out a number to his two messengers — say, "Three!" or "Five!", which meant they had to count off three or five restaurants before they could enter the next one, thus having presumably eluded the potential poisoners.

His security chief also carried sensitive white mice—"to detect assassination attempts by radiation or nerve gas," chief bodyguard Gamonal explained.

Conspirator Alan Robert Nye of Chicago was found guilty of trying to kill Fidel Castro, then allowed his freedom.

But the only security measure Castro really has faith in is the one he learned in his two years of guerrilla warfare: never let anyone know where you'll show up next. In the Sierra Maestra, when Castro and his little band were making their revolution against Batista, no one but Fidel knew exactly where the day's march route would end.

The habit persists. When he made his first visit to Moscow, he left Havana and returned to it as secretly as an enemy infiltrator. No one in Cuba knew when to expect the Premier home. When his Russian airliner finally landed, there was nobody to welcome him except some startled airplane mechanics. Grinning, Castro borrowed a coin, dropped it into the nearest pay phone to let Cuban President Osvaldo Dorticos know he was back.

But it was the assassination attempt just before the Bay of Pigs that was the most significant of all. It involved several senior commanders of the Cuban Revolutionary Armed Forces as well as key civilian leaders.

The Central Intelligence Agency, which had received absolutely reliable reports that a conspiracy to assassinate Castro was developing among his top lieutenants, decided to contact the plotters, because the U.S. was already training its own anti-Castro

by ANDREW ST. GEORGE

force in Guatemala. CIA agents discovered the conspiracy had a wealthy contact man in Miami, a former sugar cane grower, Alberto Fernandez.

With CIA's tacit approval, Fernandez bought a converted subchaser, the Texana III, and had it outfitted with concealed deck armaments, 50-cal. machine guns, two 57-mm. recoilless rifles and a pair of small speedboats with muffled interceptor engines.

OPERATIONS BEGIN

Now began one of the most daring and extraordinary secret intelligence operations ever attempted. Shuttling in the dark of night between Marathon Key and the north coast of Cuba, the Texana III was the link between the Cuban conspirators and the U.S.

Its two deck boats skimmed up to shore less than a dozen miles from Havana to pick up their unusual passengers: Cuban rebel comandantes in full uniform and government functionaries carrying brief cases.

Before the sun came up, the travelers were in U.S. waters, where they held quick conferences with American agents, sped back to Cuba the next night.

The tricky and hazardous process went on for a couple of months, and the U.S. learned more and more about the murder conspiracy headed by cool, brainy Comandante Humberto Sori Marin, a hero of the Castro revolution. Other top-level men involved astounded the Americans: Secret Police Chief Aldo Vera; Comandante Julio Rodriguez, deputy commandant of the San Antonio de los Banos air base; several Navy flag officers; the military superintendent of Camagüey Province; the president of the Cuban Sugar Institute; and the undersecretary of finance. They were determined to act early in 1961. The plot was to kill both Castros and touch off a general uprising.

Convinced that, regardless of what the U.S. did, the conspirators meant business, the CIA decided to capitalize on the plot without actually participating in it. Officials readied the landing forces to go ashore at the same time. Agents began a series of secret meetings in Havana with the conspirators to coordinate their plans.

Then, just before the target date, there occurred one of those impossible mistakes nobody ever believes. A crucially important secret conference was being held with most of the top conspirators. They met in a house of known safety in Havana's Miramar suburb on a tranquil street, Calle Onze. It was a large, yellow, somnolent building, lived in and owned by a respectable retired sugar engineer and his wife.

In the front patio, the engineer played gin rummy with his wife and led by many points. In the back of the house, the plotters gathered around a heavy refectory table covered with street maps, pinpointing the massive incendiary attack against the crowded downtown district of "Old Havana," which was to touch off the uprising. The Texana III had already shipped in hundreds of petacas.

Several blocks away, a militia security patrol stopped in front of another house, then entered to search it. A nervous woman in a back room fled from a rear door with her small daughter. She ran beneath garden walls and ducked into the rear entrance of the large yellow house of the engineer, an old friend.

The street was deserted. But one militiaman watched as she ran to the yellow house. So, under the blazing sky of a spring afternoon, in Miramar, the security unit walked down the street to that yellow house, that sleepy, yellow house. . . .

The pity of it was that the nervous woman who ran did not have to. The security police were on a routine search. She was suspected of nothing; if she had remained, nothing would have gone wrong.

The 11 key figures of the Sori Marin conspiracy were caught in a single sweep. The four men who had been sent in by the CIA might have gotten away; they were all Cubans and carried such perfectly forged papers that two were subsequently shot under their assumed names.

But Sori Marin had no chance whatever. As the milicianos burst into the room, his pistol leaped into his hand. But the security men's snub-nosed Czech Tommy guns chattered and Sori Marin crumpled as he tried to crash through a window.

And it was all a mistake. The militia walked in by mistake. The woman ran away by mistake.

TOO LATE TO STOP INVASION

Washington, working with fragmented information, decided it was too late to halt the invasion troops staging for departure in Guatemala. There was no way to know just how badly the conspiracy had been crippled; there was a possibility that many of its members had not been identified and would thus be able to carry out the plans.

It was a forlorn hope. April 17, at dawn, the first of the invasion troops splashed through the surf onto Giron Beach. April 17, at dawn, the seven top conspirators, led by Sori Marin, wounded, and supported by his guards, but still wearing his uniform, were executed in Havana. Within the next few hours they were followed to the wall by the captured CIA men. The rest, the slaughter at the Bay of Pigs, is history.

U.S. security and intelligence agencies are now more worried about the possibility of a successful assassination. For Washington—which once gave tacit support to Sori Marin—now feels that a real explosion involving Castro could trigger the most unpredictable chain reaction of the coming year, a chain reaction that conceivably could turn into World War III.

The current approach was pointed up in a quiet sort of way the day Allen Dulles—whose own job as head of the CIA ended a short time after that ill-starred invasion—appeared in public for the first time to talk about it on Meet the Press.

"Mr. Dulles," the moderator asked, "in launching the Bay of Pigs invasion, you were obviously expecting a popular uprising to support it. Yet none occurred. How could you have been so wrong?"

"A popular uprising?" Mr. Dulles puffed on his pipe. "That's a popular misconception—but no, I wouldn't say we expected a popular uprising. We were expecting something else to happen in Cuba . . . something that didn't materialize."

As this is written, U.S. intelligence is still expecting it to happen, but the expectation has now turned to a nervous and gnawing worry.

Dominican plotter Col. Johnny Abbes arranged at least two nearly successful attempts to assassinate Castro.

Cluster of bodyguards surround assassination-conscious Castro (back to camera) at a recent parade in Havana.

■ While Castro was making his revolution, Andrew St. George spent more time with him in the mountains than any other American journalist. They were close friends—Castro once awarded him a medal, ordered him released when he was arrested. Since Castro's open avowal of Communism, however, St. George has maintained close contact with anti-Castro Cuban groups.

TIPS FOR YOUR TRIP TO THE FAIR

by E. D. FALES, JR.

A few days from now, the New York World's Fair will open for a two-year stand as one of the nation's top tourist attractions. All summer long, millions of American families are expected to flock to it—most of them by car.

Before you set out for the Fair, however, there are things you ought to know about traveling by auto in 1964. Recent highway and safety research has given a new slant on several aspects of driving—and car maintenance.

Here's new information you should have:

THE IMPORTANCE OF LOADING. It used to be that families just piled the luggage in the trunk, seated people in the car and set out. Then they wondered why the car seemed to lean backwards, why it wandered and dragged and why they were so exhausted. Now experts know that proper load balance makes for safety, comfort and easier driving. To get it, you should:

Move some of the luggage out of the trunk and into the back seat; put heavy adults (or big children) in front; keep your gas tank half-full; and rent—or buy—a rooftop carrier. But be sure to locate it well forward—over the driver's head—and to rainproof it adequately.

THE DANGERS OF WEATHER. Everyone has always known that driving in summer cloudbursts is dangerous, but until recently no one knew just how dangerous. National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineers found that in heavy rain your tires actually lose contact with the road. With a half-inch of rain, you begin to lose contact at 30 mph; at 60 mph you're running entirely on water—like a boat! The NASA men's advice: in downpours, pull over, stop and wait.

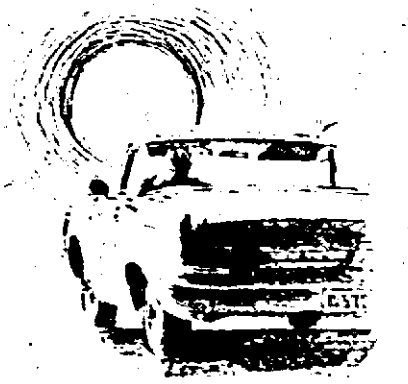
BEST TIME TO TRAVEL. It used to be said that drivers ought to start early in the day, and quit early, too, to stay out of the heat and get early lodging. But now experts know that your driving schedule should vary with your direction. Heading north and east, you should start and stop late; otherwise you'll be heading into the slanting rays of the morning sun. If your direction is south or west, an early start and an early stop are better.

WHERE THE WEAR COMES. Emergency crews on eastern express highways—the ones which will carry most of the visitors to the Fair—say there are five reasons for breakdowns on their highways. They are flat tires; broken belts for fan, generator or power steering; ignition system failures; overheated engines; and—strange as it may seem in this age of a gas station on every corner—running out of gas.

Before setting out to drive on today's highways, emergency crews suggest these steps:

(1) Check the tires. If tires are bald, or treads thin, replace them. (2) Look over belts for fan, generator, power steering, for dryness, cracks, slippage. (3) Investigate cooling system. Make sure winter thermostat is out, that fan doesn't wobble, that hoses are new. (4) Check generator. Many turnpike service areas aren't equipped to repair generators or replace brushes. (5) Look at spark plugs, points, condenser. Check them all, and, if necessary, replace.

MORE IMPORTANT THAN EVER. With 50 million headed for the Fair, it's more important than ever to think ahead, make reservations, eat at off-hours, lay out an itinerary and stick to it. And it's less costly and less exhausting, too. Best rule is to stay fresh, not drive more than 350 miles a day. Remember, the Fair is running next year, too!



Avoid driving into the sun by gearing your schedule to the direction you're traveling.

My Favorite Jokes

by Ray Walston

EDITOR'S NOTE: Ray Walston, star of My Favorite Martian TV show, was a printer in Houston, Tex., when Margo Jones, a renowned figure in the American theater, gave him his first chance to act. In the play High Tor, staged in the Houston Community Playhouse, Walston muttered one word—"Hello." Apparently that one line was enough to make Walston stage-struck. He abandoned printing and gradually worked his way up to become one of the top actors on Broadway. Hollywood eventually beckoned, and between film features, Walston appeared in a number of TV shows. Last year he was offered the starring role in his first TV series, My Favorite Martian. Ray is married, has one daughter, Kate, 9 years old, on whom he tries out such jokes as these:

A man who escaped from jail had previously been photographed by the police, and the pictures were well circulated throughout the area in an attempt to effect his capture.

The chief in a near-by small town wrote a letter to headquarters one Monday morning, in which he said: "I duly received the pictures of the six miscreants whose capture is desired. I have arrested five of them; the sixth is under observation and will be taken soon."

A spaceship landed near a New York delicatessen, but as it hit ground, a small circular piece broke off the landing gear. So, a couple of spacemen from Mars got out of the ship and started looking in the shops for a part to replace it. One of them suddenly pointed to the delicatessen window and said, "There it is—just what we're looking for." Then they went in and told the clerk they wanted to buy the piece of landing gear in the display.

"You guys must be crazy," said the clerk. "That's a bagel. If you don't believe it, here, taste one."

The first Martian took a bite out of the bagel and smacked his lips. "You know," he said, "that would go real good with lox!"

Two small girls were playing together one afternoon in the park.

"I wonder what time it is," said one of them.

"Well, it can't be four o'clock yet," replied the other with magnificent logic, "because my mother said I was to be home at four—and I'm not."

When you are dealing with scientific or so-called "unknown" matters, people are strange. If you tell a man that there are 270,678,934,341 stars in the universe, he'll believe you. But if a sign says "Fresh Paint," that same man has to make a personal investigation.

A clerk in a general store was serving a customer. The manager was at a desk some distance away, but he overheard the clerk say: "No, madam, we haven't had any for a long time."

Dismayed that his clerk should give way so easily to failure, the manager rushed over to be of help. "Oh, yes, we have," he interrupted. "I'm sure that if Mr. Johnson here sends a boy to the warehouse, he can locate what you want and have it brought over immediately."

The lady laughingly thanked him, turned and left the store.

"Never refuse anything," he admonished the startled clerk. "Always send out for it."

"Well, you see," replied the young man timidly, "she was just saying to me that we hadn't had any rain lately."

Paderewski, the late famous pianist, once praised a young polo player for his clever playing.

The young man replied modestly that it was quite different, indeed, from a performance by Paderewski.

"Oh, the difference between us is perfectly clear," answered Paderewski. "You are a dear soul who plays polo, while I am a poor Pole who plays solo."

A teacher was telling her class about the discovery of the law of gravity.

"Sir Isaac Newton was sitting on the ground looking at a tree," she explained. "An apple fell on his head, and from that, he discovered gravitation. Wasn't that wonderful?"

"It sure was," piped a small lad in the back of the room, "and if he had been sittin' in a school lookin' at his books, he wouldn't have discovered nothin'!"

1 quart vanilla ice cream
1 quart raspberry sherbet
chocolate sauce, if desired

Make and cool miniature cream puffs. Place a layer of puffs in 10-inch angel food pan with removable bottom. Top with layer of softened ice cream (1 quart). Repeat with layer of puffs, ice cream and sherbet, then puffs. Freeze until firm, preferably overnight. Remove from freezer about 15 minutes before serving. Remove from pan by running spatula around the outside edge of mold and around tube; push bottom up and out of tube pan. Heat oven to 425°. Heat 1 cup water and ½ cup butter, or margarine to rolling boil in saucepan. Stir in 1 cup all-purpose or instantized flour, all at once. Stir vigorously over low heat until mixture leaves side of pan and forms ball (about 1 minute). Remove from heat. Beat in 4 eggs one at a time. Beat until smooth and velvety. Drop by scant teaspoonfuls on ungreased baking sheet. Bake about 15 minutes, or until brown. Remove from baking sheet with spatula; cool. Makes about 90 to 100 puffs.

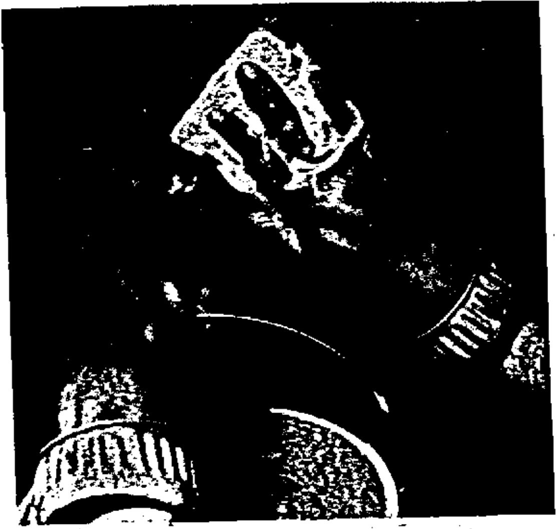
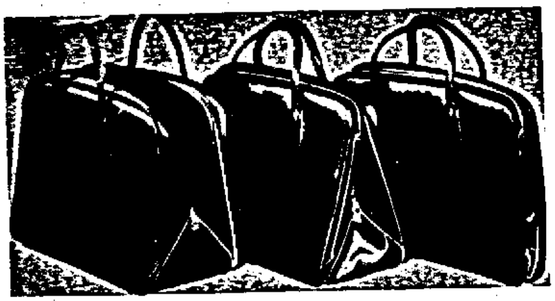
Make life easier—take a look at these new ideas for your home and family ■ BY PETER DRYDEN



Suds stoppers



Adjustable bag

Suds stoppers: One feature of these new household rubber gloves (photo top above) is a turncuff that stays turned up, even under the weight of liquid, to keep suds and water from running down your arms in such situations as wall washing. Palm and finger work surfaces have a nonslip tread design—and inside surfaces of the gloves have a special finish that allows you to slip them on and off easily without need for powder or pulling. In luminescent colors: cherry, lemon, orange, lime. 75¢. Surety Rubber Co., Dept. PP, Box 97, Carrollton, Ohio.

Adjustable bag: Here's something new for travel and business convenience—a bag (photo above) that has two separate compartments and adjusts to three different sizes. You can unzip it to full size for use as an overnighter; zip the top to make a smaller club bag; zip bottom as well to produce a slim briefcase. It's made of black pebble-grain vinyl, fitted with pouch for small articles, straps for tie-downs, lock for privacy. $7.98. Schling, Dept. PP, 538 Madison Ave., New York, N.Y. 10022.

Tint your windows: Spray a new preparation on any window and it deposits a tinted, transparent, light-absorbing film that reduces sun glare and protects furniture, carpeting and draperies against fading. The film also reflects heat, helping to keep a room warmer in winter, cooler in summer. Useful, too, for car and boat windows. In blue, green or charcoal. Aerosol can, enough for about 10 standard windows: $6.45 postpaid. Nationwide Glass Centers, Dept. PP, 2335 Hampton Ave., St. Louis, Mo. 63139.

PARADE'S SPECIAL
INTELLIGENCE REPORT

Because of mail volume, PARADE cannot answer queries about this column.

RETURNING PEACE CORPSMEN. Come summer, approximately 4,000 Peace Corps volunteers will have completed their overseas duties. Where will they go from there? On the basis of a study of the first 550 returnees, about 50% will return to college, 15% will enter business, 13% will teach, 12% will enter government service and the remainder will travel or get married and settle down.

WHITE-COLLAR CRIME. Most crime in the U.S. is not committed by professional criminals. Each day, according to insurance companies, white-collar bandits -- office employees, executives, salesmen and the like -- steal $4 million from their employers. This adds up to more than $1 billion a year. Many of the largest thefts are pulled by executives or supervisory personnel with no previous theft record. For the most part these people are opportunists who find the opportunity to steal so easy and simple it becomes irresistible.

RUSSIAN WEEKEND. There is no single word in the Russian language for Saturday and Sunday. As a result, the Russians now use the English word "weekend." Until recently most prominent Russians spent their weekends in the country at their dachas, country homes. But recently Khrushchev has come out with a one-family-one-home edict. Multiple home ownership in the Soviet Union, plagued by a desperate housing shortage, is now regarded as unpatriotic. To date, however, Mr. K. has not given up his dacha.

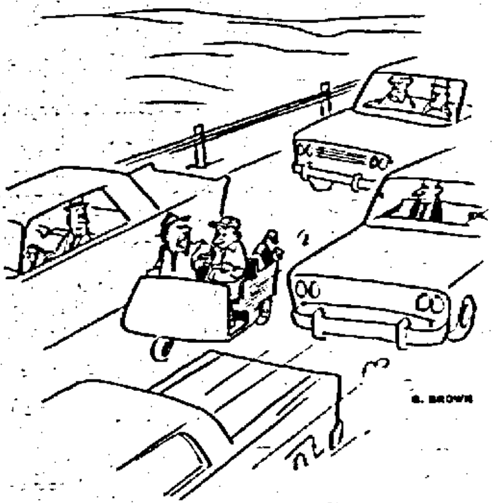
REX HARRISON AND LIZ TAYLOR IN CLEOPATRA. SO FAR, FILM IS BOX-OFFICE DISAPPOINTMENT.

CLEOPATRA SLIPPING. Despite inflated publicity figures released by its New York drumbeaters, it looks very much as if Cleopatra, the celluloid extravaganza starring Elizabeth Taylor and Richard Burton, will have to play for years before 20th Century-Fox recoups the $44 million the motion picture cost. To date, after its first highly ballyhooed run at roadshow prices both in this country and abroad, the film has grossed $15 million. Word-of-mouth advertising on the film is only so-so. Much of the epic is considered a bore. Added to this is the mounting antagonism women of the nation feel toward Elizabeth Taylor, plus the fact that Richard Burton is competing against himself by appearing in other films such as Becket and the soon-to-be-released Night of the Iguana. Honest theater managers who have played Cleopatra admit to Parade that the film has fallen far short of original financial expectations.

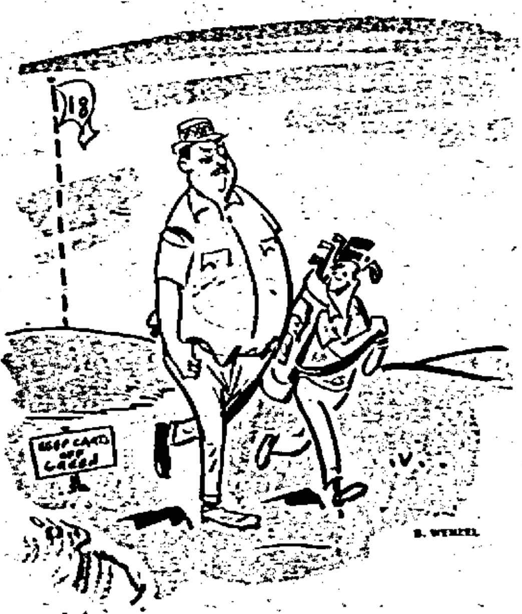
BUSINESS IN S. A. Many South American government officials decline to award government contracts unless bank accounts are first opened for them in Switzerland. When a corporation deposits money in such a numbered account and the bank book is given to the government purchasing agent, the deal is on.

NOVEL APPROACH. Professor Felice Ippolito of Italy's Nuclear Energy Commission, charged with having embezzled 10 billion lire, told newsmen: "If I am guilty, so are my superiors whose duty it was to control me. If they are innocent, so am I."

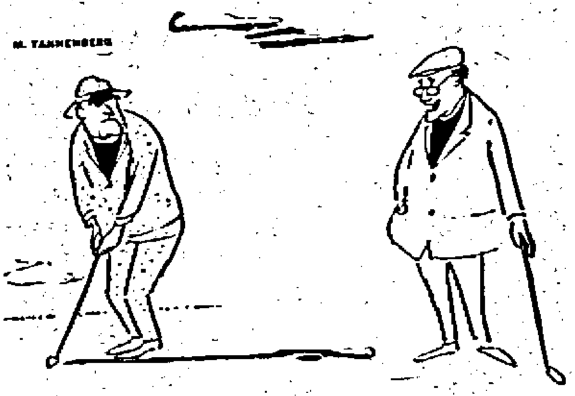
PAR FOR THE COURSE



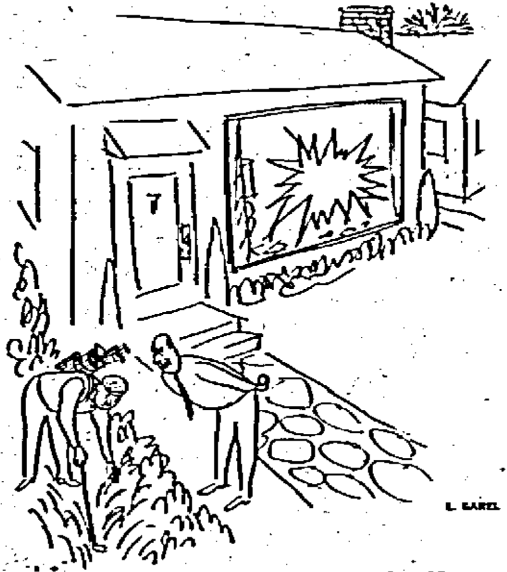
"I knew that slice of yours would get us into trouble."



"You broke the course record, sir. I've never seen a golf club thrown that far."



"Why, Leonard, your putt runneth over!"



"Looking for something?"

ANECDOTE OF THE WEEK

■ Governor Nelson Rockefeller, campaigning for the Republican Presidential nomination in California, was asked what he planned to do if elected.

"That's not worrying me one bit," he joked. "What I'm concerned about is what I'll do if I'm not elected." ■

Box office champions Doris Day and Rock Hudson are shown in scene from Lover Come Back. Like Pillow Talk and Send Me No Flowers, the film features "clean sex" comedy.

Rock Hudson and Doris Day THEY

HOLLYWOOD.

Tomorrow evening when the Academy Awards are handed out here for the 36th time, Doris Day and Rock Hudson, both 41, will receive from their colleagues the same acting honors each has been accorded in the past—nothing.

For this, rest assured, Doris and Rock will shed no tears.

Sixteen years ago both entered the motion picture business, not because they were driven by any artistic compulsion to act—at the time Doris Kappelhoff Jordon Weidler was a former band singer down on her luck, and Roy Scherer a truck driver trying to make a dollar—but because each wanted to earn a fortune. One of the quickest ways to achieve that goal is to become a movie star.

Today, Doris Day and Rock Hudson are not only multimillionaires but undoubtedly two of the most profitable screen attractions in the world.

In Hollywood's most valid and vital appraisal of movie star popularity, an annual poll of 18,000 theater-owners and film distributors who judge on the basis of box office grosses, Day and Hudson boast the following hard-to-beat 5-year record:

1959: Hudson, No. 1; Day, No. 4
1960: Day, No. 1; Hudson, No. 2
1961: Hudson, No. 2; Day, No. 3
1962: Day, No. 1; Hudson, No. 2
1963: Day, No. 1; Hudson, No. 3

THE THIRD TEAM COMEDY

Last week, Doris and Rock finished their third "clean sex" screen comedy together, Send Me No Flowers. If their two previous ones, Pillow Talk (1959) and Lover Come Back (1961), are any evidence of drawing power, Send Me No Flowers, based on a one-set 1960 Broadway play, should gross anywhere from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000, with each of the two stars banking a million dollars.

ONLY MAKE MONEY

stars of their magnitude, reports that Pillow Talk cost approximately $2,000,000 to produce. Lover Come Back cost $2,500,000. Thus far at the global box office, the two films have grossed a total of $25,000,000 and are still in hinterland release.

Why have Doris Day and Rock Hudson become so popular with movie-goers? And is it a good idea to team them?

One Universal executive says: "For my money Doris and Rock are en route to becoming the greatest box office team in the history of the industry—greater than Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks, Pola Negri and Rudolph Valentino, greater even than Greta Garbo and John Gilbert. What these two have that the others lacked is a sense of humor. They make sex funny—not tragic."

Rock Hudson and Doris Day attribute their popularity to other reasons.

"I think," says Hudson, "that first of all, people like us. Possibly they find us physically attractive and, I guess, photogenic. I'm dark-haired, and Doris is blonde. We both come from the Midwest—Chicago and Cincinnati. We're simple, not very complex, and people can identify with us.

"I tell you this," Hudson avers. "I don't care how much money Doris and I mean at the box office. If I didn't work well with her, I'd call it quits. As it is, it's a plus. We spark each other."

Doris confirms that view. "The lucky thing," she explains, "is that Rock and I like each other off-camera and on-camera. I like him because his sense of humor matches mine. That's a great advantage when you're making comedies. Sometimes you work with an actor—please don't ask me to mention names—and the two of you come in on different wave lengths. Nothing clicks; then it's murder. With Rock it's always fun, because we see eye-to-eye on the script. He knows when the emphasis should be on me, and I know when it's his turn.

TO EARLY TO TELL?

"They say we make a great team," Doris continues, "because we've been hot at the box office. Isn't it a little too early to tell? I've been with Rock in three of my last seven pictures. I've also made two with James Garner. Does the public go for Rock and me as a team, or do they watch our films because they like the subject matter? I think the most profitable films today are comedies. Movie-goers want to see happy pictures about happy people. That's the kind Rock and I make.

"Let's face it—motion pictures are a business. I love sports—baseball, basketball, football—but I wouldn't invest in any sports film. They're practically never successful at the box office. Romantic comedies generally are. Audiences today are both discriminating and sophisticated. They not only buy cast but also comedy. It's difficult to answer which comes first."

Ever since commercial motion pictures began, audiences have patronized and cultivated star teams. Most movie-goers are intellectually lazy. They attend films for relaxation and entertainment, not challenge. To them, Astaire and Rogers once meant dancing and music. Garbo and Gilbert signified tempestuous love. Today, Day and Hudson are equated with modern, sophisticated sex comedy.

Norman Jewison, the young Canadian who directed the pair in Send Me No Flowers, describes the Day-Hudson filmfare as "comedy of a high caliber."

WITTY, MATURE, SPARKLING

"Look at the three films they've made," he declares. "All are witty, mature, sparkling comedies of quality. Doris and Rock are no fools. They won't do inferior scripts. They've got enough money, enough power, to be choosy. They want only the best. They insist that the public get its money's worth. They're both stars in their own right. One doesn't need the other. When they get together in a film, it's only because each feels the other is right for the part. They insist on the proper chemistry, and that's where they're clever.

"People go for them," Jewison maintains, "because their names on a theater marquee now mean quality comedy. Beyond that, they are two handsome, pleasant, uncomplicated personalities. They both represent the fruition of the American dream, the rise of Horatio Alger, the personification of the Cinderella legend.

"Both came from broken Midwestern homes. Both were raised by their mothers. Both came from the middle class or even the lower middle class. Both came to Hollywood with nothing but hope. Today they're the biggest. If it could happen to them, it could happen to me. That's what the audience thinks subconsciously when they see Doris and Rock up there on the screen. These two aren't college graduates. They don't come out of the Actors Studio. They're not intellectuals. They're not method actors. They don't appear week after week on television. They're just the tall, good-looking boy and the sunny, freckle-faced girl next door who made good in a big, big way. You look at them, and they make you smile or laugh or feel good all over. That's why they're each worth a million a picture, and that's why people are willing to pay good money to see them together. In this day and age, an evening's hearty laughter is easily worth two bucks."
